POSTOFFICE OFFICIALS GET TOO MUCH SALARY

Assistant Postmasters In Many Cities Overpaid.

Many Violations of the Law Are Being Found.

Washington, May 29.—As a result of the thorough overhauling of the rosters of the postoffices throughout the country, Postmaster General Payne today announced his approval of instructions reducing the salaries of assistant postmasters at fifteen second class postoffices to 50 per cent of the salaries of the respective postmasters. Among them are Clarinda, Iowa, and Stevens Point, Wis., Ponce and San Juan, P. R. He has found thirty-six officials in the postal service who held office under designations not authorized by law, and directed that their positions be changed to conform to the law governing them. They were in the following offices: New Orleans, New York, Boston, Brooklyn, Buffalo, Cincinnati, Detroit, St. Louis, Washington, Chester, Pa., Los Angeles, Louisville, Nashville, Utica and Chicago.

Among those designations not authorized by law are "superintendent of stations" (although there is a superintendent for each separate station), "auditor of stations," "inspector of stations," etc. Violations of the law, which fix the maximum salary of clerks in second class postoffices at $1000 a year, except in the case of assistant postmaster, will be corrected at Leadville, Col.; New Brighton, N. Y.; Tarrytown, N. Y.; San Juan, P. R.

The investigation disclosed eight postoffices at which in all thirteen clerks received more than the salaries to which their designated positions as "assistant superintendent" entitle them, and in these cases the postmaster general has directed that the salaries be accordingly reduced. This order affects two positions in Louisville, Ky., two in New York city, one in Brooklyn, one in Philadelphia and Detroit, four in St. Louis and two in Boston. The maximum salary of these positions by law is a stated percentage of the salary of the postmaster. The postmaster general has directed that such of these changes as involve corrections of the violation of law shall take effect next Monday, and changes made to conform to the rules and practice of the department will be operative July 1, the beginning of the new fiscal year. Most of these excessive allowances were made during the administration of George W. Beaver, who suddenly resigned his position as superintendent of salaries and allowances immediately after the investigation of affairs of the postoffice department began.

Samuel A. Groff, who was arrested Wednesday for complicity in the Machen bribery case, appeared today before United States Commissioner Taylor and renewed his bond of $5000 for his appearance June 9, when he and his brother will be given a hearing. Alvin W. Chapin went on his bond.

RAILWAY TRAINMEN OPPOSED TO SYMPATHETIC STRIKES

The First Positive Declaration of a Large Labor Body Is Made at the National Convention Now Being Held at Denver.

Denver, May 29.—The first positive declaration of a large labor body against the sympathetic strike has been made by the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, now in national convention in this city. It was made in the form of a resolution which received unanimous approval by the delegates, based upon sentiments expressed in the annual address of Grand Master Morrissey. The portion of the address which inspired the resolution, and which when uttered by the grand master, roused ringing cheers of approval from those present, was as follows:

"The question of its ability to protect its working agreements is now a prominent factor in determining the responsibility of a labor organization in the business and employing world. The organization that represents employes in making an arrangement that is acceptable to them and shrinks responsibility when individuals or rivals disturb the peaceful relations between employes and employer, is not of the type that will command confidence in our progressive civilization and the enlightened trend of the relations between capital and labor.

"While the question of the protection of the labor contract is in its infancy, and education of the great mass of the unionists along those lines is necessarily slow, still we predict that we shall see the time when we will regard the contract-breaker, whether member or non-member, with as much contempt as we now do the scab."

In the beneficial or insurance department the losses for death and disability that were paid amounted to $1,670,790.42. Of these claims 1078 were for deaths and 478 for disability, a total of 1556.

Reports of other grand officers have been received an accepted by the convention.

CERTAIN TO REJECT CANAL TREATY

Colon, Colombia, May 29.—From a most authentic and semi-official source from Bogota, the capital, it has been learned that the Colombian congress is almost certain to reject the Panama canal treaty in its present form. It is added that open opposition to the measure is encouraged everywhere. Senors Herrera, Fabrega and Terran, the representatives of Panama in congress, are now on their way to Bogota. The other representatives will follow next week.

TRAIN INCLINED TO BE STUBBORN

Stamford, Conn., May 29.—The condition of George Francis Train, who is suffering from smallpox, while not alarming, is such as to cause his physician much uneasiness. Mr. Train announced to Health Officer Borden, who is attending him at the isolation camp, that he would hereafter take nothing more to eat and would refuse medicine. After laboring with him a long time, however, his physician and nurse finally induced him to reconsider his determination. In doing so the patient imposed as a condition, that his daughter and her child must abstain from all animal food. Mr. Train's daughter agreed to follow the wishes of her father. The patient was, at last reports, said to be a trifle more quiet. The crisis of the disease has not yet been passed.

SHIP SAVED, BADLY DISMANTLED

Cooktown, Queensland, May 29.—Advices received here from Port Moresby, New Guinea, say that the overdue German ship C. H. Watjen, which sailed from New York, Oct. 29, for Yokohama, has been towed to a safe anchorage at Hall sound, New Guinea, with the loss of her foremast, mainmast and rudder. About 15,600 packages of her cargo were jettisoned. The Watjen saved eight of the crew of the Hamburg bark Edith, bound from Puget sound to Port Pirie, which was totally wrecked on the Nereus shoals in January. The captain of the Edith and ten of her crew are missing.

TWO KILLED IN A FREIGHT WRECK

Newark, N. J., May 29.—Two laborers were killed and six injured in a freight wreck on the Pennsylvania road at Waverly today. A westbound freight had been derailed and an eastbound freight took an open switch about 100 yards west of the derailed freight and crashed into it. The dead are:

PRENTO DELGIO.
FRANK LOPARTO.

The dead men were from Newark.

Frank Topez, a laborer, also of Newark, was pinioned under the wreck and it was necessary to cut off his right arm in order to release him and save him from being scalded to death. A fireman and engineer were scalded.

Secretary Chamberlain's Protectionist Policy Causes Sensation.

Reciprocal Trade With Colonies the All Prevailing Topic.

London, May 29.—Colonial Secretary Chamberlain's protectionist policy is the all-prevailing topic of discussion here. His masterful assertion that he would make reciprocal trade between the mother country and her colonies the question of the hour has been sensationally fulfilled. Columns of comment fill the afternoon newspapers, and everyone is asking: "Does it mean dissolution?" Some people maintain that the government contemplates appealing to the country on preferential trade and old age pensions immediately after the close of the present session of parliament, at the beginning of August, while others maintain that the government has not the slightest intention of giving up its unexpired term of office.

The Telegraph, generally semi-officially inspired, says: "The issue could not be voted on for at least eighteen months, but in the meantime the government will give the country and parliament every opportunity to discuss it. A definite decision will probably be arrived at shortly, and will depend almost entirely on the result of the propaganda now undertaken by the press and the members of the house of commons. If the indications show that Mr. Chamberlain is likely to have the country at his back, a general election at the end of this year is extremely probable."

The colonial secretary himself, the Associated Press learns, is doubtful if he could win out just at present, but he is enthusiastically positive that with political agitation the constituencies can be brought to see the wisdom of his policy. Those who have discussed the preferential scheme with its author say he never exhibited such keen interest in any topic.

In this crusade the colonial secretary is absolutely in harmony with Premier Balfour and harbors no designs on the premiership. If a general election occurred tomorrow and Mr. Chamberlain's program were carried, Mr. Balfour would again take the reins of government. The only practical development likely to occur in the near future is a series of political speeches from the leaders on both sides. The opposition is almost solidly opposed to a modification of free trade and will endeavor to arouse that public ferment which was associated with the corn tax days. Mr. Chamberlain, Mr. Balfour and such Unionists as agree with them, will try to extract from the public that degree of support which they may interpret as a popular mandate. All signs point to a lengthy campaign on the lines of protection versus free trade, which is likely to destroy party lines almost as

WATERS GO HIGHER

Rivers In Kansas Reaching Highest Stage Ever Known.

Hundreds of Families Are Homeless In Kaw Bottoms.

Kansas City, May 29.—Nearly four inches of rain fell in portions of Kansas last night, adding to the already bankfull streams and rendering the flood in that state most serious. Today it is still raining at many points and the local bureau predicts a further downfall, which is certain to result in enormous damage, and to cause the most serious floods. Added to the general damage, in bridges washed out, railway tracks submerged and thousands of acres of bottomland covered, as reported last night, today hundreds of telegraph poles are down and telegraphic communication with many points is shut off. Trains are delayed in every direction, and on several lines traffic is almost entirely at a standstill. The heaviest fall of rain last night was in the northern half of Kansas.

At Concordia it amounted to 3.78 inches, at Baker 2.34, at Toronto 2.80 and at Osage City 1.63.

In Kansas City, Mo., the Missouri river is bank-full and still rising, and already has caused great damage to business houses and other property in the bottoms and along the Kaw river, west from its mouth at Kansas City, Kas., the lowlands for miles are under water, hundreds of families have been rendered homeless and thousands of acres of grain are under water. Last night a steady rise in the streams was predicted by the weather bureau, but with the additional rainfall noted, the Kaw and the Missouri rivers at Kansas City, and north and west of here, doubtless will within the next twenty-four hours have reached a stage never before recorded.

Des Moines, May 29.—From all over the state come reports to the effect that the rivers are receding and that further danger from flood has passed. In the Des Moines valley, from Spirit lake to the Missouri river, the entire bottoms were covered with water and the damage to the corn crop is inestimable. In Fort Dodge, Madrid, Des Moines, Ottumwa and other points, fully 500 homes have been inundated by the waters. In Des Moines alone the damage will reach $500,000. In South Des Moines the bottoms present a solid sheet of water, with houses dotted here and there, some turned over and others with their chimneys peeping above the water line. The river reached its highest recorded twenty-one feet, and threest point at 3 o'clock this morning, when tenths above low water mark. This is the highest mark upon the records of the government by four inches.

Specials from Van Meter and other points on the Raccoon river, above here, are to the effect that the river is rising steadily. While the Des Moines is receding slowly above the confluence with the Raccoon, it is rising below. South and Southeast Des Moines are threatened with further devastation as a result of breaks in the levees in this section. Hundreds of homes are surrounded with water and a break in North Des Moines early today inundater Central place, containing upwards of 200 fine residences.

Contrary to earlier reports, a telegram at 11 o'clock today, from Boone, forty miles above here, stated that the Des Moines is still rising there, which indicates that the decline here is but temporary.

JACKSON AUTHORITIES REDOUBLE VIGILANCE

MUST OPEN STATION

Twentieth Avenue Case Decided Against the Northern Pacific.

Must Carry Out Agreements of St. Paul & Duluth.

St. Paul, May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Northern Pacific must comply with the order of the railroad and warehouse commission to open the Twentieth avenue station at Duluth and run its trains via that station instead of going from the Duluth Union depot directly to West Superior.

This is, in substance, the effect of a long decision filed in the supreme court this morning by Justice Lewis in the case of the state in the matter of the railroad and warehouse commission, respondent, against the Northern Pacific Railroad company, appellant. Justice Lewis rules in that the Northern Pacific must uphold all the conditions of the charter of the Lake Superior & Mississippi River company, one of these being that suitable terminal stations be maintained at Duluth. The Twentieth avenue station is ruled of sufficient importance to be maintained. The court says, in part:

"If the people are furnished with reasonably adequate accommodations, the charter permits any reasonable adjustment of the trains.

"What constitutes such reasonable readjustment is a question of fact for the determination of the board of railway and warehouse commissioners, and it follows that, if necessary to operate the road within the rules above stated, then all the trains may be required to run on the Minnesota side."

CAPTAIN GORDON DROWNED.

Well Known Seaman Washed Overboard During Gale.

Houghton, Mich., May 29.—Capt. Patrick Gordon, of the barge C. A. Maxwell, was washed overboard and drowned Thursday night. The Maxwell was in tow of the propeller Turner, bound down from Duluth, when she careened in a high sea and parted her tow line, the stearing gear being carried away. Capt. Gordon was below forward when the sea filled the barge and he was washed overboard. The crew took to the rigging. Capt. Morgan, of the Turner, went to the Maxwell's assistance, but could do nothing until daylight. Gordon was 60 years old, had sailed the lakes forty years and leaves a widow and family at West Bay City. The news was learned when the Turner and barges put into port yesterday.

OPENING POSTPONED.

Peoria, Ill., May 29.—Opening of the Western league season here today has been postponed as Peoria and Milwaukee teams are tied up at Manhattan, Kans., by washouts.

Persistent Rumors of Attempt to Rescue Jett.

Machine Guns Are Placed to Protect the Jail.

Louisville, May 29.—Advices from Jackson, Ky., this morning indicate that all is quiet. There was some firing during the night, but nobody was hurt. All mountain passes into the little city were guarded during the night by outposts of militia. Rumor is persistent that the mountaineers are gathering and will make an attempt to release Jett and White, and the vigilance of the authorities has been doubled. The Gatling and Hotchkiss guns are now in places believed to be the most advantageous to the troops and for the protection of the jail. Nothing is known of the whereabouts of Capt. B. J. McEwen, who left yesterday afternoon.

What is believed to be the first accurate information regarding an attempt to release Jett and White came in this morning. It is said that several of the mountain desperadoes have been riding night and day since the two prisoners were lodged in jail here, spreading the news of the capture, and urging the mountaineers to be prepared to rescue their comrades. The authorities have no further intelligence of the mountaineers, and although many efforts have been made to secure information more definite, it has been fruitless.

It has been decided to keep an outpost on all roads and mountain passes, not only at night, but during the day. This probably will result in a call for more troops, and the field of operations is thus widened. All newspaper correspondents have been put in a tent at the military camp. They were formerly stopped at a little hotel, but were brought in yesterday under orders of the military authorities. None of the writers is allowed to file away any matter for his paper after dark, and all must remain in camp from dark to sunrise, under military supervision. Several of the correspondents here tried to send stories to their papers of the shooting, two nights ago, and were placed under arrest as they were leaving their camp and returned to their tent. The telegraph office will remain open at night hereafter until ordered to close by the superintendent's office of the Postal company in Louisville, but the correspondents cannot go to the office, which is in the Lexington & Eastern railroad depot, on account of the military rules.

Attorneys for both sides in the Jett and White cases agreed this morning to allow a jury to be drawn from another county than Breathitt. When court convened Judge Redwin, over the objection of Mr. McNeal, of the defense, set the case for Monday, June 1, when the commonwealth will make its announcement. The trial will not be entered into then unless the conditions are regarded as favorable by both sides. Judge Redwin refused to remove Elisor Little, whose term of office expires tomorrow, and who cannot act in the selection of a jury for this case. Both sides will try to agree on what county a jury should be drawn from. Court adjourned until tomorrow.

Sheriff Callahan said today that he would not act in the assassination case. Another elisor will be appointed. The commonwealth has proposed nine names and the defense twenty-five. No agreement was reached by the counsel.

CURTIS JETT.

SOLVING THE NEGRO PROBLEM.

ANOTHER DEMAND MADE FOR THE METROPOLITAN'S BOOKS

New York, May 29.—The Tribune today announces that a new demand for an examination of the books of the Metropolitan Street Railway company has been made by Eugene Philbin, as counsel for Henry J. Braker. Mr. Philbin repeats many of the statements made in his previous requests for information, declaring that the report of Mr. Teele has not explained the alleged discrepancy to which Mr. Emory called attention and demanding on behalf of the stockholders the right to examine the books to determine the truth. The alleged discrepancies are found in the reports to the state railroad commissioners and to stockholders. One of Mr. Philbin's statements regarding these is that "by carrying forward a false balance of $3,000,000, the company has entirely avoided accounting in detail for exactly $3,000,000 of the cash expenditures claimed to have been made on leased lines."

Another is that the company reports an expenditure of $8,448,257.22 in one year for "new construction on leased lines," when estimates of the mileage covered show that the cost should have been only $2,325,186.77. This leaves an alleged excessive cost of $6,122,070.45.

Another statement is that the company in February, 1902, asked for $23,000,000 to pay the unfunded debt incurred in the purchase of the stock of Third Avenue Railroad company and to extend the electrical system to eighty miles of road, when, in fact, the Third Avenue company's stock had been paid for and the cost of the electrical extensions contemplated was only $14,781,694.58. This, it is alleged, makes up another discrepancy of $8,218,305.42.

LOTS OF GOLD DUST AT DAWSON

Vancouver, B. C., May 29.—A special from Dawson today says: Never before in the history of banking in Dawson have there been such heavy purchases of gold dust as yesterday and today. The amounts purchased by the two banks here in connection with the large amounts deposited for safekeeping, will aggregate upwards of $1,250,000. Present indications are that the Yukon's output of gold this season will exceed that of last year by from $1,000,000 to $3,0000. A moral wave similar to that existing in coast cities has been in progress for some time, resulting in a great scattering of gamblers and other undesirable persons.

Bids For Omaha Freight House to Be Opened Monday.

F. H. Fogarty Great Northern's Assistant General Freight Agent.

The bids for the construction of the new freight house for the Omaha road and the moving of the present structure back from Fifth avenue about 170 feet were not opened yesterday, but the contracts will be let Monday instead. There were several contractors who wanted to submit proposals who asked for the postponement, as they han not had time to make up their bids.

FOGARTY APPOINTED

Great Northern's Assistant General Freight Agent.

The appointment of F. H. Fogarty as assistant general freight agent of the Great Northern road, announced in yesterday's Herald, was formally announced last evening.

The appointment of the Chicago representative of the Northern Pacific road to the Great Northern position under Mr. Broughton, has caused a sudden activity among Northern Pacific officials, who have an eye on the Chicago position.

The general offices of the road at St. Paul say that the appointment will not be made for two or three days, but it is likely to be tendered at once, though there is doubt of some of those selected accepting it. The position at Chicago is an important one, but is not so remunerative as many stations in the Northwest.

It is stated on the best of authority that no appointment from the employes of the Northern Pacific in the Northwest will have any effect upon the Duluth office.

TO FOND DU LAC.

Northern Pacific's New Train Schedule Made Up.

The Northern Pacific's train schedule for the new Fond du Lac service has been made up. Trains will leave Duluth at 7 a. m. and 5:30 p. m., and the trips will take forty minutes. The trains will leave Fond du Lac at 7:55 a. m. and 6:25 in the evening.

Sunday trains will leave Duluth at 9:30 a. m. and 2:30 p. m., and from Fond du Lac at 10:45 a. m. and 7 p. m. The Sunday service will be inaugurated day after tomorrow.

SOLON SPRINGS.

Omaha Considering Special Sunday Sunday Service.

The Omaha railroad is considering the operation of the summer train service to Solon Springs.

The action of the Northern Pacific in putting on the Fond du Lac summer train has been considered a profitable move, and the railroad company is satisfied and the people gratified.

The Omaha road put on the Solon Springs special last summer and it proved a success. The general office is now considering replacing it this year.

No announcement has been made to the local offices, though requests for information and data have been sent here by the powers that be in St. Paul.

If the service is given the train will probably be put on within a fortnight. There are a great many resorters, and a great many picnic parties, and those desiring outings who are anxious for the train.

Business Is Big.

"Commodore" George W. McCaskey, district passenger agent of the Northern Pacific road, from St. Paul, made the port of Duluth today. He slipped his moorings and cleared for his home port this afternoon, after having checked up the local office. Mr. McCaskey says the passenger business into the Northwest has been far heavier this spring than ever before, and that the immigration into the Canadian Northwesth and the Western states in this country is continuing heavy.

MORE JURORS ARE CALLED

Judge Dibell Issues Another Special Venire For Eighteen.

A scarcity of jurors in district court today caused Judge Dibell to issue a third special venire for the present term of court. The list included eighteen names and was returnable at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

In Judge Ensign's room the damage action of G. C. Dickerman against the city of Duluth went to the jury this afternoon.

The case of H. A. Hall & Co. against Jeanette Palmer, to recover on an alleged contract for papering and painting, is expected to reach the jury this afternoon.

The next criminal case on the May calendar will be called this afternoon, following the Tanko case in Judge Dibell's room. The trial of David Frankfort, a bowery clerk, who was indicted by the grand jury on the charge of swindling, is expected to start this afternoon. The information against Frankfort is that he inveigled one Anderson into trading watches, and during the transaction switched a "phony" watch on the latter that was worthless. Frankfort has been out of jail on bail.

The court cases will not begin until next Monday. There will be no session of district court tomorrow as it is a legal holiday.

Weather Man Once More Predicts Foggy Weather.

"The best laid plans of mice and men gang aft aglee."

The weather man had another spell of fog and rain dished up for the citizens of Duluth last evening, but at the last moment was prevented from serving it. The cold and wet passed to the south of Duluth and Central and Southern Wisconsin had a taste of the weather from which the citizens at the head of the lakes have been suffering for the past ten days.

But the bad weather was merely delayed, he says, Duluth has not yet escaped it entirely. It will come this evening and tomorrow, but in a somewhat milder form. Partly cloudy weather, with some rain and fog and fresh northeast winds, are predicted for tomorrow.

The Real Bargain and the Imitation.

THE difference between a legitimate bargain and the imitation is as radical as light and darkness, as vice and virtue. The one is a commercial benefaction; the other is the bane of commercial and sociological conditions.

The legitimate bargain comes from a trade transaction that gives needed benefit to some manufacturer or operator. The realization of cash, even at an apparent loss, saves him from greater loss, and often prevents the closing of factories employing hundreds of thousands of employes.

Such a loss is borne by the balance sheets of the capitalist. The merchandise which the transaction sends for public distribution under price, BROUGHT FULL WAGES to the skilled workmen that produced it; and its prompt disposal means the retaining of those workmen at full wages without loss of time.

Such merchandise is also a benefaction to those that buy it: for it is honest and worthy, and possesses all the qualities which it represents.

Thus the legitimate bargain is a benefaction to—

THE PUBLIC—because it is real economy—

THE LABORER—because he received full wages, and is saved loss of time—

THE MANUFACTURER OR OPERATOR—because the benefit of prompt cash enables him to quickly wipe out his loss by new, profitable operations.

On the other hand, the IMITATION Bargain is a connivance for public deception. It is the resort of the weakling attempting to disparage the real bargain by makeshifts and cheats.

Naturally there are limitations to real bargains. Legitimate losses fortunately are a very insignificant percentage of commercial transactions. And these offerings naturally go to the most wide-awake buyers, and the stores having largest regular accounts with the concerns.

Thus the other concerns that seek to imitate the successful stores connive at the production of cheap goods for make-believe competition.

Thus have grown up countless factories for the making of "bargains," and they stop at no device or resource for cutting down the cost.

Everything is sacrificed but the outside appearance.

Shoddy materials are used, and cheap labor.

Manufacturing industries are demoralized. The population of entire villages is taught to skimp and scamp the work, in a rush and hurry that racks the nervous system, precludes the possibility of using skill, and destroys the moral rectitude of entire communities.

Perhaps no evil exists that is broader and more far-reaching in its disastrous effects on social and commercial life than the Industry of Manufacturing Bargains.

In the first place, it makes cheats and bad workmen of countless boys and men who might otherwise become mechanics of high skill, whose products would be a real benefit to the world.

It tends to cut down wages, because no real skill is required; and a boy can do the work of a man, a girl the work of a woman.

It saps the honesty and ambition from thousands—yes, millions of American working people.

And it fills homes with rickety furniture, clothes people with unhealthy and unsightly garments, feeds people on poisoned food—

All because the public has not learned to discriminate between the legitimate and beneficial bargain of trade and the cheat that is as great an evil to him that makes as her that buys.

BIDS FOR STONE.

Government Opens Some For South Pier Work.

Maj. Lansing M. Beach, United States engineer now in charge of the Lake Superior district, this noon opened bids for furnishing 43,000 cubic yards of crushed rock or pebbles for the south pier construction work at the Superior entry. The amount available for this work is about $50,000.

There were four bidders, as follows: Duluth Crushed Stone company, of Duluth, for broken stone delivered on contractor's scows, $1.35 per cubic yard; Kettle River Quarries company, of Minneapolis, for broken stone on scows, $1.50 per cubic yard, or $2 delivered on stockpile at the entry; George A. Wieland, Duluth, for pebbles on scows, $1.03½ per cubic yard, or $1.08½ for pebbles delivered on stockpile; Whitney Bros., West Superior, for pebbles on scows, $1.50 per cubic yard, or $1.75 for pebbles delivered on stockpile.

Maj. Beach will forward the bids, together with his recommendations, to Washington.

DULUTH'S FIRST LACROSSE GAME

Tomorrow afternoon Duluth will see the first game of lacrosse played in this city.

St. Paul's crack team of all-star players will be matched against twelve experts at the game, representing this city and the people that know say it will be well worth a trip to Oneota Park to see.

It was originally intended to play the game at the new athletic park, but wet weather has prevented finishing the grounds off and the baseball management desires a good field for the opening of the Northern league season here on Monday.

The two teams will line up as follows:

St. Paul—		Duluth—
Barclay	goal	Fauble
Armstrong	point	Gillison
Cowle	cover point	Kirk
Laymond	first defense	McDonald
Gatesford	second defense	McMullen
McAuley	third defense	Cargill

AT WEST DULUTH

Joshua Evered, president of the National Iron company, died at his home, corner of Fifty-seventh avenue west and Cody street, at an early hour this morning. The cause of his death was heart failure.

Mr. Evered had been ill for about ten days previous to his death, but yesterday seemed to be somewhat recovered and was able to sit up in his chair. A relapse set in last evening, however, and he died at about 2:30 a. m.

The deceased was 59 years of age and a well-known citizen of Duluth. He came to Duluth in 1882 and was instrumental in establishing the old Northwestern iron works at the corner of Garfield avenue and Michigan street. He had been interested in the iron business during the greater part of his life. Later he established the National Iron works in 1896. The original plant of the company was on Garfield avenue, but under the vigorous management of Mr. Evered this building soon became too small to meet the growing demands of the business, which was moved to West Duluth last year. At the same time Mr. Evered moved his family from Duluth to West Duluth, taking up his residence at the corner of Cody street and Fifty-seventh avenue.

Mr. Evered leaves a wife and two children. The son, Walter Evered, is treasurer of the National Iron company and an active partner in the business. His daughter, Ivy Evered, resides with her parents.

Mr. Evered was highly respected by those who knew him in West Duluth, and the news of his death, which spread rapidly, caused many expressions of regret and sympathy for the bereaved relatives.

The works of the National Iron company are closed down until after the funeral, out of respect for the deceased.

The funeral will be held Sunday, but definite arrangements have not yet been made as to the time and the place of burial.

Grand Concert and Lecture

BENEFIT OF ST. JAMES CHURCH,

At Great Eastern Hall Tonight.

Subject—"Women's Debt to Christianity."

By REV. ARTHUR B. C. DUNNE.

FATHER DUNNE.

Another Fine Lecture—Series Will Close Tonight.

Rev. Arthur B. C. Dunne, the brilliant lecturer who is delivering a series of lectures in the Great Eastern hall for the benefit of St. James' Catholic church, attracted another large audience last evening.

The subject of the lecture was "American Patriotism," and Father Dunne fulfilled all the good things which have been said of him in other cities where he has appeared upon the lecture platform. Americans, he said, have more reason to be patriotic than any other race of people. He spoke in glowing terms of the great patriots of American history, and paid a warm tribute to the veterans of the civil war, whose memory is to be celebrated in a national holiday.

Father Dunne's style is that of a finished orator, and there is not a dull moment during his address.

During the course of the evening baritone solos were rendered by David Evans and a recitation by Master Harry Hayden.

This evening Father Dunne will give the last of the series of three lectures. The subject will be "Woman's Debt to Christianity," and in this lecture Mr. Dunne is said to be at his best.

A COMING WEDDING.

A well-known West Duluth citizen whose place of business is not more than one or two doors from the postoffice is about to join the vast army of benedicts. The invitation cards have not yet been issued and the gentleman modestly desires that his name be kept secret for a few days. The fortunate young lady, however, who is about to become Mrs. M. J. Fillatrault is a Duluth girl.

MEMORIAL DAY.

Memorial day will be generally celebrated in West Duluth. A number of business men have signified their intention of closing up their stores and offices, in spite of the fact that the day comes on Saturday and the closing will entail a considerable loss in trade.

Fond du Lac promises to be the popular resort of the pleasure-seekers. The liveries have been besieged with demands for carriages for the day. A number of picnic parties have been arranged to go up the river, and if the day is fine it is likely that Memorial day will be more generally observed than in former years.

IN JURY'S HANDS

John Tanko's Fate Rests There For Second Time.

Closing Arguments to the Jury Made By Both Sides.

John Tanko's fate, for the second time, is in the hands of the jury. Arguments by the state and defense were made this morning and the court instructed the jury after the noon recess.

For the state, County Attorney McClintock consumed a little over an hour in his address to the jury. He urged that the slaying of George Bollich, by the defendant was premeditated and cold blooded. He argued that it would stand to reason that when Tanko was put out of Bollich's house and his companions were permitted to remain, that he was incensed. The testimony showed that he shook his fist at the house and made threats against the owner. Mr. McClintock said Tanko's story that he went back to Harnek's house after being put out of Bollich's house, to wait for his companions, was not credible for the reason that his companions said there was no understanding that they were to meet him there. He claimed Tanko got his gun and overcoat and stood in front of Bollich's house for some time beore he fired a shot, waiting for some one to come out so he could get his revenge.

Bollich, said the county attorney, had a right to leave his house and make an investigation as to who fired at it. He had a right to protect his house from Tanko and the latter had no right to shoot him. Mr. McClintock then took up Tanko's theory of self-defense, that the shot was fired while he and Bollich were struggling for the possession of the gun. Yesterday afternoon a gun expert for the defendant, testified that a charge of shot at a distance of ten or twelve feet from the muzzle of a gun would make a hole one and a half inches in diameter. Mr. McClintock argued that the hole made in Bollich's body was, according to the testimony of a physician, about that size and the expert testimony only added strength to the contention of the state that Bollich was shot before he reached Tanko.

He argued still further along this line that the angle at which the charge of shot entered Bollich's body was conclusive proof that the men were not struggling for possession of the weapon when it was discharged. As to Tanko's statement that he was afraid of Bollich and ran when the latter came out of the house, the county attorney claimed that the defendant, after firing his last shot at the house, did not have time to reload before Bollich came out, and that he ran around a nearby house to gain time to slip into the gun the charge that killed Bollich when the two came face to face between the houses.

Argument for the state was closed with a strong plea for a suppression of the murderous assaults which, the county attorney said, have been occurring with frequency in this county, that while Tanko was not guilty of other killings that have occurred, he is alleged to be guilty of Bollich's death, and it would be a dangerous precedent to let him go free.

R. J. Dowdall, for the defendant, spoke several minutes on the seriousness of the duty revolving on each juror in the trial of a murder case and urged that calm and careful deliberation be given to every detail, that injustice might not be done his client. He argued that John Tanko was not guilty of wilfully taking the life of George Bollich, that the killing was done while the defendant was trying to get possession of his gun and keep it out of the hands of Bollich, whom he feared would do him serious injury. Mr. Dowdall went over the testimony of his client in detail and argued for its authenticity. He claimed that the witnesses for the state were prejudiced and unfriendly toward his client and that Tanko stood practically alone in his defense, an ignorant and illiterate foreigner, who could not speak or understand English and who had not the least intention of harming Bollich.

The jury retired shortly after 2:30 o'clock.

AN HONEST SKEPTIC

And Where He Landed.

An honest skeptic will learn things that a prejudiced and ignorant person misses. There have been many skeptics of the great rebuilding value of the pure food Grape-Nuts simply because they did not undertsand the scientific principle upon which it is based.

A Cincinnati man prepared to die and then got well and strong in spite of his convictions. He says: "I have always regarded your food as only another catch penny to fool the public, but I am now forced through simple justice to admit that it is all you claim.

"I suffered for years from indigestion and had 'set my house in order' to die. Then I took up the study of the alimentary table, bought a set of chemical devices to analyze the different foods and set to work to intelligently study the food question.

"I selected and ate those vegetables and meats in which I found the most nutriment and which were supposed to be the most easily digested, but I continued to waste away and my stomach grew to be a veritable hell; sour scalding eructations came up in my mouth, taking my breath away for such a long while that I thought many times my end had come. I would fall in a faint and remain unconscious for some time, and when revived would find great dark spots obscuring my vision to such an extent that it seemed to be almost night in my room.

"My stomach grew so weak that I could not digest even well boiled rice. While lying in bed, badly discouraged and more willing to die than live, a voice seemed to come to me, 'Why don't you give up your prejudice and try Grape-Nuts.' I thought about it every little while during the day and late in the evening sent out for some and ate a little, expecting it would hurt me and cause all the terrible trouble over again, but an hour passed and everything was right, so I took another little meal and waited. I felt better and the old sick feeling quit. So about 9 o'clock I took a pretty good meal of Grape-Nuts and went to bed feeling good. I laid awake some time fearing my poor weak and scalded stomach would suffer, but strange to say I dropped off to sleep and slept sound and peaceful and enjoyed the most glorious night's rest I had for several years.

"I go heavy on Grape-Nuts now and I have gained 10 pounds in the last five weeks; have sound, refreshing sleep, no sour eructations of the stomach, no dark blind spots, and my nerves are as steady as can be. I am truly myself again and all due to having at last found the proper food." Name furnished by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

SILBERSTEIN & BONDY COMPANY.

The store will close tomorrow Memorial Day at 1:00 o'clock.

We close at the usual time this evening—6 o'clock.

Everything for the Decoration Day outing—can be had until noon tomorrow.

First of all come the Tailored Suits, Costumes, Jackets and Coats—AT HALF!

It is easily the most important garment sale of the season—not alone from a price standpoint—but because it embraces some of the handsomest and most fashionable garments that we've had this season.

The only reason for us offering you such exceptional buying advantages right in the heart of the season is that we wish to re-adjust our stocks now—clean out every odd suit, every odd size—every garment that can not be reordered from makers. It's good merchandising for us to do so—and good buying for you to take advantage of so good an opportunity!

Think of getting elegantly Tailored Suits and Coats that had sold for $20, at $10; or those that sold for $30 at $15; $40 for $20—and magnificent costumes of voile, silk or other fine materials that had sold for $75 at $37.50; that had sold for $100, at $50.

That's but half of the story—the store itself will give you the whole of it. Come! Remember, open only until noon tomorrow, and close this evening at 6, as usual.

SWEN OLSON GIVES BONDS

Another of the Men Indicted For Land Frauds Appears.

Swen Olson, who was indicted with Swallow & Hopkins, A. L. Agath and others for alleged frauds upon the government in land deals, appeared before Court Commissioner Pressnell yesterday afternoon and gave bonds for his appearance at the October term of the United States courts. He was in Florida when the indictments were returned. He came back a day or so ago and as soon as he had his bond arranged he voluntarily appeared. His bond was fixed at $2500, and it was given with John McAlpine and Henry Turrish as the sureties.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.

St. Paul Prisoner Hangs Himself By Bunk Straps.

St. Paul, May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—James Rubeshek, a prisoner at the city workhouse, attempted suicide early this morning. He was found hanging by the straps of his bunk at 5:30 o'clock by the cell man. Rubeshek was instantly cut down, and, there being signs of life, a doctor was called and subsequently the man was taken to the city hospital.

His condition is regarded as very critical, with just a shade of a chance for his recovery. Rubeshak is a Bohemian, who arrived in the city on May 21 from Prairie Du Chien, Wis. He was arrested for drunkenness and committed to the workhouse on Monday, May 25.

THOUGHT HE WAS DEAD.

Kingston, Ont., May 29.—The Seattle Dispatch, stating that John Josie, alias John Phillips, on his deathbed confessed to having done murder and afterwards having escaped from Kingston penitentiary, was the first intimation that the man was still in existence. When he and a companion got away one stormy night from the prison, they stole a boat and started to row to Clayton, N. Y., it was thought they had been drowned. On May 21, 1875, in a drunken carousal, in a house near Belleville, Josie shot and killed his sweetheart, Annie Adams. He drew a revolver on one of the men present and the woman sprang in front of the man, receiving the shot intended for another. He was sentenced to life in the penitentiary, but escaped nine years afterward.

STRIKERS UGLY.

Attack Tannery Foreman at Milwaukee With Knives.

Milwaukee, May 29.—Armed with a revolver and a butcher knife nearly eight inches in length, James Papas and Andrae S. Contos, Greek tannery employes, are charged with attacking Carl Berg, foreman at the Pfister & Vogel tanery on the First avenue viaduct today. The men were arrested. Had it not been for the intervention of the police bloodshed would have followed. One shot was fired in the melee, but did not take effect.

The outlook for a settlement of the tannery strike is not encouraging. It looks like a fight to a finish as the employers will not treat with the men as a body.

SERVICES HELD

High School Students Pay Tribute to Memory of Veterans.

Are Addressed By Delegation of Members of G. A. R.

Memorial services in which veterans of the Civil war endeavored to engender thoughts of patriotism in the minds of the high school students were held from 9 to 10:30 o'clock in the assembly hall of the high school this morning.

There were several of the best speakers among local G. A. R. men delegated to talk to the students. Besides speeches there was appropriate music by the choir of the high school musical society.

Principal Smith introduced the speakers saying that the students should revere the men who had done so much for them in time of war and listen with attention to the words they should have to say to them during the exercises.

Judge White was the first speaker. He told of some of his experiences during the war and deprecated the credit due the old veterans of today saying that they were young and glad to enter the struggle where they would encounter so many interesting experiences, and that sentiment of their friends practically forced all of the young men to enlist whether they wanted to or not.

Doctor Wilson, Col. Graves and Marcus Bates, talked to the students in a manner which interested them while it aroused their patriotism and respect for the old soldiers. Mr. Bates' description of Lookout Mountain was particularly enjoyed by the pupils.

Dr. S. P. Long, who was a chaplain of Pennsylvania volunteers during the Spanish-American war, also talked. His short address was much enjoyed.

"America," the soldiers' chorus from Faust and other appropriate selections were well given by the choir.

POOR OLD CICERO.

Roman Orator Hanged In Effigy By Students.

Marcus Tullius Cicero, the proudest orator of ancient Rome, was hanged in effigy in the assembly hall of the high school yesterday afternoon.

Spurred on by the raucous cries of "Lynch him! Lynch him!" from the throats of third year students who are forced to study his letters and orations in their Latin work, a senior, who had formerly suffered in the same manner, fitted a hangman's noose about the neck of the poorer bust of the great statesman, and throwing the rope over a hook swung the cast free from its pedestal.

How far the proceeding would have gone had they not been interrupted, it is impossible to say but just at this juncture Principal Smith made his appearance at one of the entrances of the hall and the ceremony was speedily abandoned.

The lynchers were students who had been detailed to decorate the stage of the assembly hall for the Memorial day exercises which took place this morning. After they had neatly arranged the American flag over the rostrum, they showed their distaste for all things un-American, and particularly Latin, by proceeding with the lynching bee.

The bust which was the victim of the execution received no material injury and none of the students connected with the affair were disciplined.

EDITORS ARE RETURNING

Leave Washington For Chicago After Being Entertained.

Washington, May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Minnesota editors left Washington this morning for Chicago, where a brief stop will be made prior to going to their homes. The editors and their wives and daughters were given a reception last night by the Minesota residents of this city. An address was made by Commissioner H. L. West, a former well-known newspaper writer, and Frank A. Day, president of the Minnesota Editorial association, responded to Mr. West's cordial words of welcome and fraternity.

Representative J. Adam Bede also made one of his characteristically happy little speeches, and Fred A. Johnson, correspondent of the St. Paul Dispatch, made the address of welcome in his capacity as president of the local Minnesota association. A string orchestra furnished music, and the flow of wit was stimulated by a delicious punch, which was furnished to aid the digestion of salads, ices, etc. President Day, in speaking of the visit to the capital, said he thought he expressed the sentiment of the entire party that this trip has been one of the most enjoyable outings yet taken by the association and it was with regret that they turned their faces homeward.

FAST MEN COMING

Ball Team Will Be Materially Strengthened In Duluth Games.

Kennally Finally Decides to Come Here—Another Swift One.

After playing eight games without a first baseman, the Duluth team will open the season at home Monday with first basemen to spare.

Yesterday Manager Van Praagh closed a contract with a clever Easterner named Harris, and this afternoon he ecelved a telegram from Kennally, who deserted the Cardinals to play for Rockford, saying that he was heading for this city, ready to play the best kind of ball and advising the management to move the center field fence out a little farther.

Kennally has been batting at a terrific pace in the Three I league and his release by Rockford is an evidence of the strength of the agreement between professional baseball clubs that no team shall play a man that had previously signed a contract with another.

When the big first baseman refused to report to Duluth, his case was taken up with President Laxdal, of the Northern league, and then with the president of the Three I league. As a result Kennally was told that he must play ball with Duluth or drift back to semi-professionalism, which is a very undesired thing to a player that has once made good in fast company.

Kennally has played in Duluth and is popular. It is possible to get him here much quicker than the Easterner and it is probable that for that reason he will be given preference.

Another new player expected to reach here tomorrow is Murphy, third baseman, recently with Fort Wayne, Ind. He is en route and will come direct to Duluth instead of joining the team at Grand Forks.

OARSMAN IS REJECTED

Henley Authorities Refuse to Allow Demourelle to Enter.

New York, May 29.—Ferdinand Demourelle, the amateur oarsman, of New Orleans, who entered for the diamond sculls at Henley, has been rejected by the Henley authorities.

Secretary Fortmeyer of the American Amateur association has received a notification from Henley of the rejection of Demourelle's entry and has notified the New Orleans association of the action of the Henley stewards.

Demourelle, who is at the Harlem Rowing club, says he has not been officially notified, but presumes the report is correct. He feels much chagrined at the action of the Henley officials and says his record as an amateur is without a blemish.

Demourelle has been training at Worcester under Ten Eyck, the former champion, and is in fine shape. Ten Eyck, who is with him in this city, says if the Henley stewards have rejected Demourelle, that is the end, as they never react or explain.

James Wolf, of New Orleans, Demourelle's closest friend, is expected here today. He will endeavor to reopen the matter.

MAY HAVE BEEN A CLOUD

That Professor Lowell Saw About Planet Mars.

Cambridge, Mass., May 29.—Regarding the announcement from Professor Percival Lowell of the Lowell observatory at Flagstaff, Ariz., that a brilliant projection has been discovered on the planet Mars, the general belief in Cambridge is that Professor Lowell very likely saw a cloud.

If this is so, it would indicate an atmosphere and this in turn would make it possible for Mars to be inhabited.

ENGLAND ASTIR.

much as did the home rule question. In all the arguments the example and probable attitude of the United States will figure largely. The opponents of the scheme point out that the comparative immunity of the American from taxation precludes his prosperity under protection being applicable to the Britisher, who, as even the government organs admit, is already so heavily taxed that the initial years of protection, with higher priced food, would be a severe strain on him and possibly create bitter dissatisfaction among the poorer classes.

The sugar convention bill enabling the government to carry out the provisions of the Brussels sugar convention, which passed its second reading in the house on Thursday, is taken by the Liberal papers to be an important feature of Mr. Chamberlain's "attack on free trade." The text of the bill issued today provides for the prohibition of the import of bounty-fed sugar, that the origin of the imported sugar be proved and that there be no supervision by the customs or inland revenue authorities of all British refineries, which must be worked only by persons authorized by the commissioners.

Seniors Object to Woman Receiving a Degree.

Washington, May 29.—A row has developed in the class of diplomacy of the Columbian university over the fact that the faculty proposes to confer the degree of Doctor of Civil Law on a woman member of the class, Mrs. Emma Reba Bailey.

Six male seniors have protested against the pursuance of this course on the ground that Mrs. Bailey has not sufficient legal learning, that she is undignified and that being the first woman in the country who has ever reached such a high point in legal training she intends to use this fact for advertising purposes. The men have reached an ironbound agreement not to appear at the commencement exercises of the school to receive their degrees if Mrs. Bailey is made a Doctor of Civil Law.

The president of the university declares that the degree will be conferred on Mrs. Bailey at the regular commencement exercises and that if the men are not present they will not receive degrees.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Three Trainmen Injured In Severe Accident Near Gladstone.

Gladstone—The westbound Soo passenger train, at 10:30 last night, while five miles west of here, near Eustis, Mich., was derailed by a large tree, blown on the track by a severe wind storm which prevailed last night. The engine and all cars were put in the ditch except the sleeper. Conductor Swift, Engineer Borrows and George Hatton, baggageman, were badly bruised.

Calumet—Paul Lackner, aged 30, was killed at the twelfth level south from shaft No. 3 of the north branch of the Tamarack mine yesterday by falling rock. He leaves a wife and several children.

Sault Ste. Marie—It is learned from one of the parties concerned that a company composed of Chicago and copper country capitalists, is being organized to build a narrow gauge railroad from Eckerman, on the South Shore railway, to Whitefish point, on Lake Superior, a distance of thirty-five miles. The men interested are owners of large tracts of timber lands along the route to be traversed, and it is to furnish a market for the pine, hemlock and hardwood that the line is projected.

Escanaba—Frenchmen from all over the upper peninsula will congregate at Menominee on June 24 to attend the annual celebration of the St. Jean Baptiste societies of Northern Michigan and Wisconsin. Several thousand visitors are expected, and among them will be the lodges from Escanaba, Champion, Norway, Marquette, Negaunee, Ishpeming, Iron Mountain and Ironwood. In addition, Houghton, Hancock, Lake Linden, Calumet and Sault Ste. Marie will be well represented. The speaker of the day will be Rev. J. M. Brousseau, a Canadian orator.

Ishpeming—E. H. Comstock, principal of the Houghton high school and secretary of the Upper Peninsula Interscholastic association, has completed the list of entries received for participation in the annual field meet to be held, as originally planned, at Ishpeming tomorrow afternoon. It was decided at a conference at Ishpeming on Saturday not to postpone the meet for a week, as suggested. This decision is favorable to the majority of the schools which will compete, as most of the teams are in condition and ready. The schools which will compete number ten, as follows: Marquette, Ishpeming, Negaunee, Sault Ste. Marie, Escanaba, Menominee, Calumet, Houghton, Hancock and Quinesec.

Iron Mountain—A close call from what easily might have been a disaster costly to life and property is reported from Crystal Falls, where, in the C. & N. W. railroad yards, a car containing 25 boxes of dynamite, or almost a ton, was badly wrecked. Why the dynamite failed to explode is considered a miracle. Had it exploded many lives would have been lost.

It's the dispenser of cheerfulness, the distributor of sunshine. One sees bright rainbows across the clouds of despair after taking Rocky Mountain Tea. 35 cents. S. F. BOYCE.

WATERS GO HIGHER.

night, but this city suffered no damage. The fall of water south and west was heavy and a severe wind knocked out many telegraph wires.

Wichita was shut off from general wire service until nearly 10 o'clock this morning, when communication East was established.

Southern Kansas has not been flooded as thoroughly as in the north, but Oklahoma is still flooded. Train service from the South is greatly delayed.

MILLS CLOSE AT ASHLAND.

Ashland, Wis., May 29.—All of the nine Ashland sawmills closed down yesterday rather than grant the demands of setters and carriage riders for an increase of fifty and twenty-five cents per day respectively. The owners of the mills met and decided to shut down rather than grant the demands.

MISSING MAN HAD MONEY.

Thomas Cain Believed to Have Been Murdered.

La Crosse, Wis., May 29.—Sensational developments were made yesterday in connection with the sudden disappearance of Thomas Cain, thought to have been drowned in the Mississippi river, while on his way to his home in Brownsville from this city.

It develops that he came here and drew $300 from a bank, which he had on his person on the night of his disappearance. A little daughter of Louis Selice, residing near the spot where his boat was found says that about 10 o'clock on the night of his disappearance she heard cries coming from the direction where the boat was found. She says it was Cain's voice.

Footprints around the boat show that several men walked on the shore. Cain is thought to have been murdered and his body thrown into the Mississippi.

ANOTHER DAY

Taxpayers Have One More Chance to Avoid Penalty Attachment.

Indication Is That Proportion Paid Will Be Very Large.

The rush of taxpayers to the county treasurer's office continues and the entire office force is kept busy from the opening to the closing hour receiving the money in payment of the real estate taxes for 1902. The daily receipts have reached a large figure, and while the county treasurer has been too busy to figure out exactly what percentage of the 1902 realty tax has already been paid, it is said to be a large proportion.

Taxpayers will have an opportunity of paying taxes all day tomorrow, from 8 o'clock in the morning until 6 o'clock in the afternoon, even though it be a legal holiday. County Treasurer Whipple has decided that inasmuch as the last day of the month falls on Sunday, every opportunity should be offered the tardy taxpayers before the 10 per cent penalty goes into effect. This penalty will attach to all taxes that are not paid before next Monday morning. The office will not be open Sunday, so that all who wish to escape the penalty must get in before the office closes tomorrow afternoon. Under the law the county treasurer has no alternative in the matter of attaching the penalty, and all will be served alike whether their assessment is less than a dollar or runs up to several hundred dollars.

It is expected that today and tomorrow will witness the heaviest receipts at the county treasurer's office. During the last few days the amount of taxes that has been paid by check from outside owners of St. Louis county lands has reached large figures. Although taxpayers have the option of paying but half of their taxes now and the other half in October, the percentage of those who desire to avoid further annoyance in the matter by paying the whole assessment at once is very large.

The 10 per cent penalty which attaches Monday will be on the entire amount of the tax assessment.

Died of Aconite.

Edward LaChance, a prominent resident of Bennett's Siding, Wis., died yesterday afternoon from aconite poisoning and the matter is being investigated by the coroner of Douglas county. The story told by the decedent's son, who brought the report to West Superior, is that his father went to his hut to get a drink of liquor, that he hurriedly took a flask containing aconite from the shelf and drank the contents, dying shortly after in great agony. The coroner will investigate the reason for the presence of the drug and other circumstances which were not yesterday satisfactorily explained.

CHARLES BETCHER ILL.

Physicians Give Some Hope of His Recovery.

Red Wing, Minn., May 29.—Charles Betcher, president of the Betcher Lumber company, which has interests in many cities of the Northwest, has been critically ill and his life despaired of. His physicians now say there is a possibility of his recovery. He is one of the earliest settlers in this city and one of the foremost of its business men.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Wendell Reyne, of Cedar Rapids, Ia., aged 40, shot his divorced wife three times and then shot himself. Both will die. Failure to effect a reconciliation was the cause.

It is now reported that in addition to the eight trainmen killed in the Southern Railway freight wreck at Bryan, Ala., Wednesday, five tramps, four negroes and one white man were killed and burned. The bodies of none of the missing men have been recovered.

A small two sparred yacht, with sails set, foundered outside of the breakwater at Port Colborne, Ont., Thursday. She is supposed to be the Emma Dietrich of Cleveland, recently bought by a Mr. Pettit, of Lockport, N. Y. A son of Mr. Pettit and a boy named Bayliss were bringing the craft from Cleveland and are believed to have been drowned.

Michael Hiser, of Pomah, Wis., aged 74, committed suicide at his home, tying himself to a hot kitchen stove and cutting his throat from ear to ear with a dull jack knife. Despondency is given as the cause.

Dr. Francis Tumblety, aged 82, supposed to be poverty-stricken and friendless, died Thursday in St. John's hospital, St. Louis, and a will opened after his death revealed that he had left an estate of $100,000. He made many bequests in his will, among them being legacies of $10,000 each to Cardinal Gibbons and Archbishop Ireland for charitable purposes.

PECULIAR THEORY

Of Defense In an Indiana Murder Case.

Evansville, Ind., May 29.—Mrs. Bonaparte Dixon, of Abayeville, Perry county, charged with the murder of her husband, was arrested and taken to the jail at Cannellton. Judge Cook refused her bond.

Mrs. Dixon was indicted several weeks ago, but was not arrested owing to illness. Since that time she has become the mother of a child. It is said her health is still very feeble and that her attorneys will make another effort to have her released on bond, fearing the confinement will prove fatal to her.

Mr. Dixon died early in March, and a post-mortem examination showed that he died from the effects of arsenic. The state will try to prove that Mrs. Dixon administered the poison to her husband because she loved another man.

It is said that the theory of the defense will be that even if Mrs. Dixon had committed the crime, in her state of mind, she was not to blame. It is said a short time before the death of Dixon an oil driller came to his house to board and that he resembled the first husband of Mrs. Dixon so much that the woman became infatuated with him and lost all control of herself.

FARMER MURDERED.

James Campbell of Arcadia, Wis., Found In Pond.

Whitehall, Wis., May 29.—The body of James Campbell, an elderly widower, who lived near the village of Arcadia, was found in a pond near his home yesterday. Evidences of foul play were found on his person. On the bank of the pond was a broken spade covered with blood and hair, and in Campbell's back and neck were charges of birdshot. The head and face were frightfully mutilated. Campbell was last seen alive on Sunday last by two section hands. The belief is general that Campbell was killed by tramps and his body thrown in the pond. Campbell's horses were found in the barn in a starving condition, they probably having gone without food since Sunday. Feeling runs high in the community.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Mrs. Sheldon Is Acquitted of Writing Disparaging Letters.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Watertown—The jury in the Eddington-Sheldon scandal case returned a verdict for the defendant. The jury was banquected by the Sheldons and the cadet band serenaded Mrs. Sheldon at 10 p. m. The Evans case was dismissed and the victory for the defendant is complete. The suit was brought by Mrs. Rose Eddington, wife of a photographer, and the premier soprano of Watertown, against Mrs. S. B. Sheldon, an alto singer, for heavy damages for libelous and scandalous letters alleged to have been written by Mrs. Sheldon concerning the character and sundry and divers acts of the plaintiff. These letters were generally addressed to prominent citizens and members of the Episcopal church, both parties to the suit having been members of the church choir.

Pierre—Some residents of Redfield sent to Governor Herried a copy of a poster advertising a "hot ten-round glove contest" at Ashton, on June 2. The governor has addressed a letter to the sheriff of Spink county, calling his attention to the statutory provisions which makes the penalty for engaging in or promoting a prize fight imprisonment in jail not to exceed one year, and a fine not to exceed $500, or both. His attention is also called to the fact that a sheriff who allows such an exhibition within his jurisdiction forfeits his office.

Bonesteel—Carrie A. Pierce, wife of Bonesteel's defaulting city marshal, swore out a complaint charging all saloon men and gamblers with selling intoxicating liquors to minors and running gambling places. Warrants were served by Sheriff Taylor on seven saloonmen and they were taken before Judge Worcester at Fairfax where a continuance was granted until June 8. The saloon men are determined to fight the matter to the bitter end.

Armour—Douglas county is made defendant in a suit for damages as a result of the order issued by the local board of health authorizing the sheriff and his deputies to kill "all dogs running at large." One of the deputy sheriffs killed two bird dogs belonging to W. H. Smith, a traveling salesman for the Gaar-Scott Threshing company, and he has brought suit to recover the loss.

The board of health ordered dogs running at large shot for the reason that hydrophobia was known to exist among them in the section, one man having lost thirty head of cattle from the bite of a mad dog.

Rapid City—Bishop W. H. Hare, of Sioux Falls, is expected to arrive this week, and there will be a large gathering of Episcopal clergymen from the western part of the state Friday night for the consecration of the church here. The Rapid City church was built by Archdeacon Ware when he was rector here, about fifteen years ago. The building is of stone, with stained glass windows. It has just been cleared of debt.

Terry—Word has been received of the death at Ellensburg, Wash., of Mrs. Edward Alexander, formerly Miss Maude Bunker, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sol Bunker. She was born in the Hills in 1882.

Britton—General Hendrick post, G. A. R., has decided to erect a soldiers' monument in the Britton cemetery. It is proposed to raise about $1000.

Hill City—William H. Bunnell died of Bright's disease, aged 78 years. He left a widow and several married daughters.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Jamestown—For some time there has been a report in circulation in the vicinity of Montpelier that the remains of a human being had been buried near the river under peculiar circumstances and that a certain man knew where such a grave was located. By accident this week, what appeared to be an old grave was discovered and the partial remains of a human skeleton, appearing to be that of a boy about 15 years of age, were removed. The relics were taken to Piano where they were reburied.

There has been a tradition in that part of the country that some eighteen years ago a boy, whose parents formerly lived in Aitkin county, had suddenly disappeared and nothing was ever heard from him; that his father was accustomed to treat him harshly and frequently used to beat him. The neighbors believed that the boy was made away with by foul means, but in those days nobody cared to interest himself in the fate of the lad, and nothing was ever done to find out his whereabouts.

William Thompson and daughter Bessie were arraigned in Justice Perrin's court yesterday afternoon charged with having wilfully driven off a herd of fifty-six head of cattle belonging to Mrs. Theresa Weston. Thompson asserts that the cattle belong to him and he is much incensed over his arrest. A plea of not guilty was entered and adjournment taken.

Work on the new $25,000 ward building at the state hospital for the insane will be commenced shortly. Temporary buildings for use of the workmen are being built.

J. G. Goodrich, a well known resident since 1872, was stricken with apoplexy and died twenty-four hours later. He was 84 years old.

NOISES

From Young Millionaire's Menagerie Annoyed Neighbors.

Atlanta, Ga., May 29.—Russell Hopkins, the wealthiest young man in Atlanta, was convicted of maintaining a nuisance in the rear of his palatial home on Peach Tree street, in the shape of a menagerie. The prominence of Hopkins drew a large crowd to Judge Broyle's court.

Among the witnesses against Hopkins were several women of the smart set, who testified that night was made hideous by the animals in Hopkin's menagerie. These women also testified that they had to use quantities of disinfectants on account of odors emitted by the menagerie.

Hopkins admitted having 18 dogs, 2 coyotes, 1 bear, 2 coons, 1 small lion and 2 donkeys in his collection. He also said the animals made much noise, but said he didn't mind it, as he loved the animals. Judge Boyle suspended sentence, as Hopkins promised to send the animals to the country. The menagerie has caused much bad blood in the smart set.

THE OUTLOOK SATISFACTORY.

The rapid decline of stocks in Wall street has led some people to believe that there is a halt in the country's prosperity and that the outlook is unpromising. But the situation in Wall street really has no relation whatever to the business conditions existing throughout the country. The period for digestion of securities has apparently arrived, and the heavy liquidation is not considered indicative of the general financial situation of the country. The New York Commercial has interviewed many men who are prominent in various lines of business and possess an intimate knowledge of existing conditions, and their testimony is unanimous that there is nothing at all the matter with business and that the promise for the immediate future is bright. The only dark cloud on the horizon is that produced by the labor situation. Unless the demands of labor so cripple industry as to make production cease and check the investment of capital in industries and building extension, continued prosperity seems inevitable. It is believed, however, that the labor disturbances will soon be ended and their termination will mark the beginning of a prolonged period of industrial peace. Both sides have been unreasonable in many respects and have had costly lessons which may result in greater conservatism on the part of both. If these lessons are heeded, industrial peace will be secured on a more permanent basis, and those who labor and those who employ labor should strive to reach agreements that will contribute to the maintenance of prosperity.

The interviews alluded to above show that manufacturers of iron and steel were never so busy, and iron has always been regarded as "the barometer of trade;" orders for freight cars this year are larger for every month than the corresponding months last year, showing that the railroads are preparing to handle great quantities of freight of all sorts, and collections are reported easy. The crop outlook is fine, and when the agricultural communities are prosperous there is little fear that the other sections of the country will not be prosperous, because the prosperity of the farmer ensures a good demand for the products of the factory and the mill. With the domestic trade well maintained and our foreign commerce on a satisfactory basis, the outlook must be regarded as very promising.

PUBLIC OWNERSHIP.

By the enactment of recent laws in Illinois any city in that state may construct, operate or lease street railways within their corporate limits providing three-fifths of the number of people voting on such a question give their approval, and the proposition must be submitted to them before it can become effective. The municipal ownership problem is one of the greatest for any city. Numberless experiments have been made and the results have been varying. The success of an enterprise depends largely upon the management, whether the business be public or private. Chicago has long desired to go into the public ownership of its street railways, but how the idea will work out in any particular city cannot be foreseen. It would be experimental anywhere. Some of the largest cities in Great Britain, Liverpool and Glasgow among the number, own and operate their street railways, and, after reducing fares, find the business profitable. In 1897, the last year of private ownership in Liverpool, the street railway in that city carried 38,000,000 passengers, with receipts of $1,400,000. In 1901, under public ownership, 101,000,000 passengers were carried and the receipts were $2,300,000. After expenses were paid and provision made for sinking fund and depreciation, a surplus remained of $88,000. In Birmingham and Glasgow public ownership experiments are numbered by scores and most of them thus far have been satisfactory.

On the whole, the system of municipal public ownership is advancing in Europe, where it has been most freely applied. Toronto owns its street railways and leases them, under strict conditions, to a company on a profit-sharing basis, with favorable results. On the other hand, Philadelphia broke down a few years ago in running its gas works, but the cause of the disaster was political meddling with the working force. Cincinnati owns its railroad to Chattanooga, 336 miles long, and was compelled, by commercial reasons, to build it through a costly mountain section, private enterprise having refused to act. The railroad was a heavy burden to taxpayers for twenty-five years. It has been leased from the start, is now gradually paying for itself, and will eventually be a large source of permanent income. Its management on behalf of the city, through a board of trustees composed of prominent citizens, has always been good.

Public ownership should without doubt be profitable, when properly handled. The conduct of the business should be in the hands of non-partisan boards, where politics cannot interfere. With this condition half the victory is won and the prospects of success greatly increased.

The Atlantic club in London has adopted a rule providing that the losses of members at bridge shall be absolutely restricted to $2500 a week. "Bridge," says the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, "is a wise provision of Providence, whereby people who have nothing in themselves can find an abundance of something, such as it is, outside themselves."

Of course the opponents of government ownership of the railroads and telegraph lines point to the postoffice scandals as a vindication of their views.

INDUSTRIAL SCHOOLS.

Of the many experiments that have been made to better the condition of the young of certain classes, the industrial schools which have been springing up throughout the country, have been proving highly effective. The city of Columbus, Ga., branched out in this line a couple of years ago in a unique manner, and the results have demonstrated the wisdom thereof. A primary industrial school was established as an integral part of the city school system. The object was to furnish to the children of the cotton mill operatives a more practical training than that afforded by the ordinary graded courses. Although the laws of the state of Georgia do not compel school attendance, the factory workers have sent their children to the industrial school in numbers that have taxed the accommodations. A Columbus correspondent states: "It is filled to overflowing by children who are there because they want to be there or because the usefulness of the plan of education in vogue there has approved itself to their parents. Truancy is said to be an almost unheard of occurrence. In fact, it is a hard matter to give the children a holiday. Never a case of corporal punishment, never an indication of ill-will of pupils towards the school has been reported."

The school is conducted as a kind of neighborhood center in an old mansion refitted for the purpose. The curriculum includes instruction in various arts and crafts, needlework, carpentry, cooking, washing, gardening. Evening classes of the same practical character as the day classes draw many of the children and young people who are already at work in the mills. Fortnightly 'parents' meetings' have been started and are very largely attended. The parents for the most part are hard-working wage-earners who have had no educational advantages, and who manifest an interest in the progress of their children, astonishing people who have become accustomed to think of them as hopelessly listless and anaemic. So well has this plan taken that the superintendent of schools contemplates the establishment of a "secondary industrial school school," which shall draw pupils both from the primary industrial and from the ordinary graded schools. The aim of the continuation school will be to fit young people either for employment in the great shops of the city or for admission to the higher technical institutes. "At the same time the school, while teaching its pupils to work, will not forget to teach them to live."

With the steady progress made throughout the country on these lines, the educational outlook for the children of laboring classes grows much brighter every year.

A WOMAN'S CUPIDITY.

The efforts of Mrs. Gunning Bedford to foist upon the heirs of her husband a child alleged to be her own, but in reality one adopted through an advertisement in a London paper, is but another illustration of the cupidity of some women to obtain something not rightfully their own, even at any cost. Mrs. Bedford's plea of guilty ends in its beginning a legal fight by the relatives of the late Gunning S. Bedford over his estate, which was valued at over $350,000. The relatives caused the arrest of Mrs. Bedford, and her arraignment. The penalty for a false birth entry, in England, is from one to seven years' imprisonment, but Mrs. Bedford got off in an easy manner. Mr. Bedford was the nearest of kin of his uncle, the late Judge Gunning S. Bedford, and was 32 years old. The widow is Helen Middleton, of Washington, D. C., and she and Bedford lived mostly abroad, until Feb. 17 last, when, after a long illness, Bedford died in Paris. His will provided that should he have a child it should inherit his interests in the three trust estates from the Bedford family, amounting in all to $350,000 and in charge of Lawyer Eugene L. Bushe, of New York.

When Gunning S. Bedford's body arrived on the steamship La Lorraine, on April 11, it was accompanied by the widow and a child. Mrs. Bedford had a certificate for the birth of Eugenie Bedford, dated St. Pancras, England, Dec. 18, 1902. Relatives of Bedford who attended the funeral at St. Patrick's cathedral on April 14, expressed surprise that there was a child, as up to the time of his death they had not heard that there was an heir. Some of the relatives engaged the law firm of Coudert Bros. to look into the matter. As the result of investigations by the Coudert Bros. in Paris and England, Eugene L. Bushe, the New York trustee of the Bedford estates, was notified that relatives of Bedford believed the Bedford baby was spurious and admonished him not to pay out any money on the assumption that the child was a genuine Bedford heir. Under the law the trustee, after such a notice from counsel, would be held responsible if he did make payments before the matter was cleared up by the courts. Lawyer Bushe, having once received a cable dispatch from Bedford saying that he expected an heir, believed Eugenie Bedford to be Bedford's child.

Mrs. Bedford simply overreached herself. The stake was large, to be sure, for unless an heir could be produced she would get but a small part of the estate. As stated before, the case is but an illustration of the avarice of an ambitious woman who was not satisfied with what she was legally entitled to.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Richard Ferris, actor-manager and somewhat of a game fighter, accompanied by Attorney Matthew Gallagher, counsel and adviser, both from Minneapolis, and surrounded by a retinue of witnesses, citizens, soldiers, etc., marched into the Spalding dining room this morning.

Dauntless and defiant the party marched down the aisle and surrounded the breakfast table and talked over the affairs that will culminate either in Judge Dibell's court this afternoon, or at the Theater Metropolitan Monday night.

A microscopic search revealed no deep furrows of trouble on the brow of Mr. Ferris. He was as placid as Superior on a busy day.

"Win or lose," he said, "there's no cause for excessive worry. We have our story to present to the court this evening, and we believe that every link in the chain of evidence we intend presenting by affidavits is sound.

"Our position is that of the person who is so firmly of the knowledge that he is right, that we do not see how we can lose.

"There will probably be some joy at the hearing this afternoon. We'll be there with both feet.

"We are rehearsing the play for next week and will be in readiness for the opening Monday night if our contentions are sustained."

Mr. Ferris is the center of a great deal of curiosity, and there seems to be a great deal of interest focused on him and the case. He had a large book full of records, and one filled with parts for the next week's play, and looked like Marks, the lawyer, as he left the hotel for the theater this morning, accompanied by his attorney.

Charles J. Johnson, the emperor of Grand Marais, and messenger of the goddesses (of that place) arrived in Duluth this morning.

Mr. Johnson is a glib talker. He always has an answer ready. If you ask him, "What's new at Grand Marais?" he will answer without hesitation, "Nothing."

That is because he is used to it, and to the ways of staid Grand Marais.

The ways, by the way, are remarkable, and Mr. Johnson left the St. Louis hotel, where he is stopping, as soon as he had breakfast. He went out shopping.

Now to see Mr. Johnson, you wouldn't spot him for a shopper, and is not the type of man you would judge cared whether ribbon had a beveled edge or a shirtwaist was decorated with green insertion, or whether the puckering strings were "it," or if Cuban heels were fashionable.

That's just where you would be fooled. For back of his mask of businesslike airs, Mr. Johnson has tender sentiments and delicate tastes.

He is the shopper for all the ladies of Grand Marais.

When they hear Charles Johnson is coming to Duluth a large and enthusiastic chorus of women is at the dock at leaving time, rendering a chorus of "don't forget the insertion," "remember 'not more than $6.99 for the hat,'" "eleven, not twelve skeins," "Robbie wears a No. 4," etc., etc.

When Mr. Johnson returns, there is another gathering of the amazonian forces, and he is greeted with demonstrations that would make a royal prince turn fish flounder green with envy.

So great is the faith of these accomplished mothers, sisters and sweethearts of the male contingent of Grand Marais, in Mr. Johnson's judgement, that they entrust him with the most particular purchases, and on occasions he purchases even the hats and bonnets, together with the trimmings that go with them, and has never caused a heartache or a tear up to date, that anyone knows of.

If Mr. Johnson were not a liberal minded citizen he might easily become a professional shopper, and make a good livelihood by it. But he does these ventures-some things, dangerous though they are, on the pro bono publico theory, and it is working fine.

He will return to Grand Marais tomorrow or so, and when he goes he will carry some summer finery or something to make it with.

A party of railroad men at the Spalding last night were talking about Cal. E. Stone, and have given him the title of "Golden Rule" Stone, on account of the magnanimity displayed in his consideration of President Roosevelt on his recent trip over the Great Northern road. Mr. Stone is the assistant general passenger agent, and was placed in charge of the four days' trip the president made over James J. Hill's line.

The situation was a rather peculiar one, as the president was the instigator of the proceedings brought by Attorney General Knox, against the merging of railroad interests, as laid out by Mr. Hill.

Ungallantly, when Mr. Stone met the president formally, he hinted to Mr. Roosevelt that the merger had him about where they wanted him, at that moment, and an open switch or a defective bridge might do a great many things.

"By George, that's so," said the president.

"And we don't know yet—we haven't decided whether to let you go this time or not," said Mr. Stone.

"I know I'm taking long chances with myself," laughed the president, "like the man with the royal flush who bet 20 cents."

"Come to think it over," said Mr. Stone, "I remember our policy is to return good for evil, so we'll treat you fine."

Of course the president had some reservations regarding the "evil," but he said nothing about it, and had a good time all up and down the line.

Fugacious Time.

Kansas City Star:—There is a sort of revival of "Uncle Chet" Thomas stories. The Topeka Capital tells this one: One day "Uncle Chet" drove out to South Topeka to sell a man a horse. The man was no judge of horseflesh and knew it. So after looking the animal over he told "Uncle Chet" to come out again in about ten days. "A friend of mine who knows a horse when he sees it will be there then," he said, "and I'll see what he thinks. And, by the way," he added, "how old did you say the horse was?" "Seven years old comin' February," said "Uncle Chet" as he gathered up the reins and drove away. In about ten days "Uncle Chet" drove out to South Topeka again. The prospective purchaser's friend was there and after looking the horse in the mouth, asked his age. "Twelve years old this spring," replied "Uncle Chet," smiling blandly. "But," broke in the man who wanted to buy the horse, "you told me not ten days ago that he was only seven." "So I did," squeaked "Uncle Chet," "so I did. My God, how time does fly!"

"You can go, my boy."

THE UNWELCOME HUM.

We watch with eager longing for the robin in the spring.
And we strain our ears to hear his prized note.
Our hearts are filled with gladness when at last we hear him sing.
And the music thrills us rippling from his throat.
We like to hear the twitter of the sparrows in the trees,
And the orioles are welcome when they come,
And the bluebird charms us, swinging in the tree-top in the breeze.
But we hate to hear the first mosquito
hum!

It is rank discrimination, for the skeeter does her best,
And she bravely sings the only song
she knows,
And it isn't right to blame her if she robs us of our rest,
When were settled to enjoy a quiet doze.
She has the best intentions, and she's not at all to blame
If her voice is not as musical as some.
But there's realy no use talking, she'll get slapped at, just the same,
For we hate to hear the first mosquito
hum!

Trouble For Civilian Officers.

Philadelphia Press: A number of young men who secured appointments in the army under the stress of the Spanish war are now discovering that all is not gold that glitters. Influence helped to secure their appointment at a time when men were needed badly, and they were transferred into the enlarged permanent force. But now they have to undergo examinations for promotion. No influences operate in that matter. If they fail they are allowed another trial, and if they fail a second time they are dismissed on that account, and others are "hanging in the balance." Army officers who do not keep up with the requirements of the modern service do not have a very happy time of it. Under Secretary Root "influence" cannot help such a man.

A TOMB IN THE HILLS

By H. S. Canfield.

(Copyright, 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

The fresh yellowish green of the spring had not changed to the darker hues of summer, for the season was late in the Pennsylvania hills. The sunshine warmed sward and bared ground, but there was a lingering chill in the shade of heavy trees. Three miles away a big city threw its murk of coal smoke to the sky, but out in the cemetery there was clearness and utter peace. From the topmost twig of a maple an oriole swung and chanted his evening hymn and, though the sun was low, from grass and bush came the multitudinous hum of insects born for a day. All morning and for long after high noon the burying ground had been thronged by people who came to lay offerings of flowers upon the graves of their loved ones, but now the forest of marbles was deserted and the flowers, emblematic in their swift decay, were already drooping and withered. That pale death (Pullida Mors) which knocks with equal hand at the door of prince and peasant seemed still to linger about the place and mutter a benison. Slow on the late breeze came the rolling notes of a bell from the city and the round golden sounds harmonized with the quietness and enriched without breaking it.

Robert Harding, who was a lawyer and had come to Scarborough on business, wanted rest on Decoration day and went to the place of tombs to find it. He had lingered for hours watching the slowly moving crowds, or reading the inscriptions cut into the stones. He had seen many tears; he had seen grief in all of its stages from the agony which treads upon the heels of a fresh loss to that quiet resignation begot by years. Always the scent of the tons of flowers was in his nostrils and in his ears subdued voices.

"We do not differ so widely from the Chinese after all," he had said. "They are a people of ancestor worshippers, and these rites are tinged strongly with worship of the dead."

Now, late in the afternoon, tired by his long watch, he sat with his back against a massive granite shaft which rose above him, faced and pointed like an obelisk. It had been a restful day and he felt the better for it. Not any of the grief he had seen touched him, because he was used to grief, and the plaints and sighs of the people seemed far away.

He sat while the minutes passed and the shadows lengthened, half dozing, and his mind, as such minds will, strayed from the graves and murdered blossoms to the intricacies of the case upon which he was engaged. He was running over its main points in desultory way and fast drifting into slumber when he heard the sudden crunch of wheels on the gravelled drive and aroused with a start. Glancing around the corner of the shaft at his back he saw a carriage stop ten paces away. It was a carriage of dark green body with black wheels. The horses were bay and blooded. The coachman wore a rich and inconspicuous livery. On the panels was a coat-of-arms not larger than the palm of a hand. There was solidity, richness and quietude in all of the appointments of the equipage which spoke of wealth and breeding. Harding noted that the coachman was well past middle life. There was no footman.

A door of the carriage swung open and a woman stepped out. She was swarthy, fat and old, her iron gray hair showing under her black bonnet. She could not have been much under 70 years, but was hale and strong and descended lightly in spite of her flesh. Once on the ground she turned and held out her hand to some one still inside.

There met hers a hand slender, white and bony, a hand almost bloodless, wrinkled and venous. It closed like the meager claw of a bird. It was a left hand and on the forefinger blazed and rioted a single diamond larger than a filbert, a white stone of violet and crimson fires, an almost priceless stone. It seemed to throw gleams of light upon the brittle wrist above it.

There came from the carriage, stepping stiffly down, a woman whose face was a skull with dead skin stretched across it. The upper lip was shortened by a painful nervous contraction, showing all of the teeth in front. The nose was thin to tenuity, the chin sharp. The eyebrows were as white as snow and beneath them were eyes of a brilliant and tender blue, the only living things in that face. The mass of snowy hair, dressed in the fashion of the early sixties, bore only a wreth of orange blossoms. The talons of the right hand clutched an enormous bouquet of orange blossoms. From head to foot the woman was robed in bridal white; white satin slippers met her white stockings on a high instep; about her wasted neck was a circle of pearls, from her snowy hair to the hem of her snowy silken gown fell a snowy veil.

She spoke in a thin voice. This voice had dried and wasted as she had dried and wasted. She said:

"Once again, Clara! Oh! once again!"

She walked slowly to the grave and laid the blossoms upon it, then sunk upon her knees, raised the ghastly hands to the ghastly face and bowed her head. The other woman stood rigid, her face set, looking afar off and silent. So she stood through five minutes, then she put her hand tenderly upon her companion's shoulder. "Come!" she said.

"Not yet," was the answer. The kneeling woman rose and going to the shaft laid her forehead against it. Then she turned and spoke:

"We must talk of him first. I could not go away without talking of him. He was handsome and brave, was he not? So handsome and brave and good. And he died long ago—long ago. Tell me how he died, Clara?"

"He died in the last charge, under his flag. Its silk was over his face when they found him."

"You were his sister, yet you have not grieved as I grieved, Clara."

"I was his sister, but you were nearer and dearer to him."

"And on this day long ago—so long ago—we were to have been married. He wrote that he was coming home on furlough. Then there was the great battle down in Virginia and I heard the guns over the hundreds of miles of space. I came to you, don't you remember, and told you that the world was damp with blood. You took me in your arms and tried to comfort me. That seems five lifetimes since. He was handsome and brave. What does the stone say, Clara?"

"It says that it is sweet and right to die for one's country."

"Is that true?"

"It is true, I believe."

"It is—it must be. But it seems so hard. Why should his life be taken? He was so handsome and brave and good; I loved him; I wanted him so; and I was waiting for him. This gown came from the maker's yesterday; I mean that yesterday long age. Don't you know I tried it on and you kissed me on the cheek and said that he would kiss me there soon? Oh, God! It was so long ago! Today was the battle—I mean today back yonder in the years."

"He sleeps soundly 'mid a thousand happy whisperings of flowers. He sleeps soundly when the leaves of autumn march a million strong. He sleeps the seasons through, and it will not be long now until you see him again."

"Until we see him again, Clara. You will be there when we meet, won't you? Then you shall kiss me on the cheek and he shall kiss me. You have been with me all of the lifetimes since he fell. You will not let death part us?"

"I shall be there," said the dark woman. "We shall be there."

"I was twenty years old that day," said the woman in the bridal gown. "and now I am old and you are old; the world is old."

She stooped and placed her hand upon the great slab which roofed the tomb, then entered the carriage silently. The ather followed and the door closed softly. The horses wheeled at saber gait. Harding watched them winding among the graves and soon they went from sight. He passed his hand across his eyes, for it seemed to him that he had dreamed. Only the orange blossoms told him that he had been awake. He read those lines, deeply chiseled into the granite:

"Sacred to the Memory of John Hardnett Ray, Lieutenant Company A, Eighteenth Pennsylvania Volunteers. Killed in Action May 30, 1862. Dulce et Decorum Est pro Patria Mori."

A STRIKE BULLETIN.

Me old man struck, away las' June, an' hasn't turned a lick—
He hasn't even cleaned de clay dat waz stuck ter his pick.
He didn't like de wages dat dey chucked inter his mitt—
I guess dat's what de trouble wuz, but anyhow, he quit.
But, say, I guess de fambly's in de bigges' kind o' luck—
De ole man's in the walkout, but me mudder hasn't struck.

Me sister Liz wuz workin' in a place dat sells quick lunch.
De boss, he makes some kicks, an' dat starts trouble wit' de bunch.
Dey all goes out an' won't go back—you oughter talk to Liz—
She's makin' speeches ever'wheres about de strikin' biz.
Dat's all she does—jest chews de rag about de moneyed duck,
But still we's eatin' reg'lar, 'cause me mudder hasn't struck.

Me brudder Bill—he's strikin', too—been out sence May de first.
He says de slob dat takes his job is lookin' fer de worst.
Dey wants him back, but no, b'gee! He says dat he won't stan'
For wolkin' here, unless de boss will fire some udder man.
I'm striken', too. I hops de bells, an' wants anudder buck.
But here at home we's eatin', 'cause me mudder hasn't struck.

Well, say! Now, on de square, it's fun ter hear me brudder Bill
An' sister Liz an' de ole man start up a-talkin' mill
About how dey've stopped wolkin' jest ter teach de udder dubs.
An' all de time me mudder keeps a hustlin' at de tubs.
I likes de ole man's backbone, but I likes me mudder's pluck—
I guess we'd all be hungry, if me mudder'd gone an' struck.

Geology of the Heart.

New York Times: "No," said Maude, pensively, "neither Henry nor Charles for me; that's clear. I will not let Henry propose because he hasn't got the 'dust,' and I can't get Charles to declare himself because he hasn't got the 'sand.' However, there's old Mr. Richfellow. I'll keep my eye on him. He's got the 'rocks.'"

Short, But Expressive.

Rochester Post-Express: There is an instructive and diverting article in the Pall Mall Magazine on the subject of the sayings of witty lawyers, but strangely enough the collection of anecdotes does not contain the witty reply of an English lawyer named Adam to a letter from a brother barrister named Eve. It is the custom in England for a barrister, when he applies to the lord chancellor for leave to don silk, to write to men of his own standing at the bar in order courteously to inform them of the fact. Among Mr. Eve's contemporaries, when he took silk, was a Mr. Adam; and in reply to the official circular this gentleman wrote as follows: "Dear Eve—Whether you wear a silk gown or a figleaf, I don't care—Adam." Could anything be neater than this?

Too Much Haste to Get There.

Cleveland Leader: Great as the prosperity of the American people is, it would have been decidedly greater if there had been less gambling, of various kinds, in the last few years. The more general and remarkable business activity is and the faster wealth accumulates the more money is wasted in efforts to obtain much by risking little, in more or less open swindling schemes. That is a form of folly which is most conspicuous in the best times.

Mosquitoes Fattened on Oil.

Minneapolis Times: Believers in the kerosene cure for mosquitoes have been terribly shocked by the appearance in the New Jersey districts where coal oil has been most freely used of the biggest mosquitoes ever seen in those localities, and the worst of it it that they arrived a few weeks earlier than usual. It seems that the oil that is poured upon the waters stimulates and nourishes the pollywogs and the little mosquitoes and the result is an early crop of big ones. It is feared that if the kerosene treatment is continued the New Jersey mosquito will be as big as a sparrow in a few years and as deadly as a rattlesnake.

THE BLUE AND GREY.

The grass grows on hills serene
Where ranks of dead are sleeping;
We hear no more the cannon's roar,
Where guards their watch were keeping.

The armless sleeve, the sightless eye,
A strife for self did sever;
Voices are stilled; yet echoes cry:
The stars and stripes forever!

Their hopes and fears, their prayers and tears,
And burdened griefs together,
Lie buried in the blue and grey,
Forever and forever!

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Jealousy is passion's greed.

A girl never appreciates a kiss unless she makes you take it against her will.

A woman can make herself believe anything she wants to, unless it is a logical belief.

The man who borrows your money acts as if he were doing you a favor in trusting you enough to take it from you.

The man who spends a dollar a day on cigars and $2 on drinks, is always indignant at the extravagance of the man who keeps a horse instead.

A Diplomatic Humorist.

Chicago Chronicle: Count Cassini's complaint that exaggerated stories of the Kischineff affair are sent out of Russia is calculated to excite some hilarity when we consider that both the telegraph and the mails are subject in Moscow to scrutiny compared to which the work of a microscopist is coarse and careless.

Material to Feed On.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat: Kentucky families are so big that a fued never runs out, although it frequently takes a new shoot.

Poor Show For Reform.

Minneapolis Times: It will be observed that those noiseless Fourth of July celebrations are being arranged for the small boys, not by them. They are making other arrangements.

Importance of an Alibi.

Washington Post: One of the clews in the Umbria dynamite mystery points to Washington. As congress is in vacation a number of persons who might otherwise be suspected will have no difficulty in establishing an alibi.

Confidence Restored.

New York World: President Roosevelt must have gained new confidence in his invincibility as a candidate for re-election. He declares that during his present tour he "has not "kissed a baby and is not going to." No one need question his courage after this.

Isn't a Bit Stingy.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat: Hardly a day passes that Colonel Bryan does not point out some worthy citizen besides himself who would make a good Presidential candidate.

ARE AFTER BUTTER

Chicago Dealers Invading the Source of Duluth's Butter Supply.

Strawberries Firm and Missouri Is Sending the Only Berries.

Chicago butter dealers have been making extensive purchases in the district about Duluth during the past few days. One Chicago house has a contract for 1,000,000 pounds of butter to be delivered before July 1, and offers have been received by Duluth dealers and other firms in neighboring cities for fresh packing stock to be delivered in Chicago during June.

The price which is being paid by the Chicago firm is about a cent higher than the regular market price, in order that the best quality may be secured.

The entrance of the Chicago firm into the Duluth source of butter supply has caused he price of butter to remain firm during the past week, although shipments of grass butter are becoming more frequent and larger.

Strawberries are firm this week. There is at present but one district from which shipments are being received, Central Missouri, and the supply is scarcely equal to the demand. The Illinois berries will likely commence to come in next week if warm weather continues during the remainder of the week.

The nearest source of supply for strawberries to Duluth is Wisconsin. The shipments of Minnesota berries do not cut any figure in the local market. A few berries are grown in the vicinity of Deerwood, but the chief local source of supply is the neighborhood about Eau Claire. The wet weather of the past week has been beneficial to the crop and if dry weather follows the Wisconsin berries may be expected on the market by June 15.

A few lots of new potatoes have been received by local firms. They come from Florida and Texas. They are not likely to be seen on many dinner tables yet, however, as they are selling at $2 per bushel.

Eggs have been very active during the past week and are slightly lower, selling at 11½ cents.

Cheese has also dropped about a cent a pound and full cream twins are selling at 13½.

The commission dealers all report an active week's trading in spite of the wet, cold weather of the early part of the week.

There has been no change in poultry prices during the week. Trade has been fairly active with a good demand.

Meat prices also remain stationary. Mutton is selling at 10 cents and dressed beef at 7 and 8. The dealers report a good week's trade, especially on the ranges, where the retailers have been buying freely.

COUNTY BOARD MEETING.

Several Road Matters to Come Up Next Friday.

The next regular meeting of the board of county commissioners will be held Friday, June 5. At this meeting there will be a number of county road matters to come up for consideration and disposition by the board. Several committees that have been investigating proposed new roads and road improvements during the past two weeks will be ready to report. The county road committee has revised the road book and will have ready to reach commissioner a statement of the roads in his district that are legally entitled to county aid the coming year and for which appropriations have already been made.

A Grewsome Find.

A West Superior party of fishermen, including Municipal Judge Hally, Deputy Game Warden Blackadder and others, made a grewsome find of a freshly made grave near one of the old camps of the Sauntry Lumber company, near Amnicon lake, Douglas county, and a decomposing human head in one of the huts. The party did not have the proper implements to open the grave, so the matter has been reported to the Douglas county coroner for an investigation.

IS THERE NO END?

Duluth Falls Before Grand Forks, Though Playing Good Ball.

Batted Well But Could Not Bunch the Hits Properly.

NORTHERN LEAGUE.

	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Grand Forks	7	0	1.000
Winnipeg	7	1	.875
Fargo	4	4	.500
Crookston	2	4	.333
Superior	1	6	.143
Duluth	1	7	.125

Sadly pathetic stories about the Cardinals being feeble with the stick seem grossly exaggerated as sundry dents in the left field fence at Grand Forks will testify.

They peeled off four spectacular swats yesterday but they came slowly in bunches of one without any break, except in the sixth. Gehring, now champion long distance smasher of the league, hit out a home run in the fourth. The ball went clear into the next ward.

Mueller, McCoy and Lagger each had a double and it is safe to say if yesterday's batting pace could be maintained it would net three out of four games in almost any series.

Mueller had more speed than a $4000 automobile. He struck out eight men and did not give a base on balls. The big fellow is rapidly rounding into form and predictions are frequently made that he will prove superior to such men as Corbett, Bartos, Sessions or Martin before the season is very far advanced.

Duluth outplayed the league leaders in the field, putting up a game that was full of ginger and fast plays. Lee Quillin replaced Wheaton at second and played a great fielding game, though he did not do much at the bat.

McCoy is proving himself one of the best batters in the league, averaging about two hits each game. "Doole" Kline deserves much credit for the way he sticks in the game. He has a badly split finger and a sore throwing arm that would have retired a man of ordinary vitality in the first few games. An eastern college man named Martin has been signed as second catcher and will be here for the opening game Monday. If Kline is not able to participate in that game the new man will be worked until Kline gets in shape again.

The local management has also secured a fast first baseman in Harris, of New York state league. Ever since the desertion of Keenally several local fanatics have had their eye on this man and have been watching him average three hits per game and play his position errorlessly. It was through Harris that the local management secured Martin, the new change catcher.

Another new man is likely to be wearing the cardinal hosiery in the opening game. He is Murphy, whose release was recently purchased from Fort Wayne. He is said to be a heavy hitter and fast man at third.

The team still needs another good steady pitcher and it is not unlikely that Manager Van Fraagh will land one within the next week. He has a line out for an exceptionally promising youngster now traveling will in the American Association, and, if secured, he will take his turn regularly with Mueller and Gehring. That report about Duluth signing Freeman seemed to have been incorrect as it is now announced that he has signed with Crookston.

The score of yesterday's game which was lost through a streak of bad luck more than anything else, was as follows:

Duluth .....0 0 0 1 0 2 0 0 0—3

Struck out—by Mueller, 8; by Harris, 3. Bases on balls—off Harris, 1; off Mueller, 3. Two-base hits—McCoy, Lagger, Mueller. Three-base hits—Harris. Home runs—Gehring.

Dollar, the star twirler of the Northern league last sason, and who deserted it for the Three-I league this year, is finding the way of the transgressor hard. The league he is now in is not any faster than the Northern and yet he is being hammered all over the lot.

Pitcher Gordon, of the Superior team, completely ignored the Elkins anti-pass law passed at the last session of congress and issued free transportation to five men in one inning at Grand Forks Wednesday.

Speaking of that last game between Superior and Grand Forks the individual batting record of the season was made by Cole, first baseman for the latter team. He had five hits including three doubles.

What's more, every Grand Forks player scored at least two runs in that famous 21 to 1 game.

Incidentally Durall, the Superior third baseman, accumulated five errors which is also something of a record.

Corbett's great pitching was too much for Fargo yesterday and the Champions won easily by a score of 5 to 1. Fargo only made three hits while Winnipeg contimued its batting streak and rapped Mehl safely ten times.

* * *

J. Pluvius prevented the opening of the season at Crookston yesterday to the disappointment of the entire town. The business men had arranged to close their stores and taken in the event. Today the season will open with a double-header, the first game being called at 3:30 and the second at 6 o'clock.

On Sunday the Big Duluths will journey to Aitkin for a game with the strong team of that place. Lovell and Bruen are slated to do the twirling for the Big Duluths.

The police department team and the Western Union messenger boys are scheduled to play tomorrow. During the recent strike of the A. D. T. boys the police arrested nine or ten of them and the youngsters expect to even things up on the diamond.

More people saw the game at Grand Forks yesterday than attended the National league games at Philadelphia or Boston. The Northern league is turning out big crowds everywhere, the attendance being reported the lightest in Fargo. That 10,342 paid admissions at the Duluth-Winnipeg games on Victoria day is about the record outside the National and American leagues.

Gehring will probably pitch today for Duluth and Mueller is scheduled to twirl one of the games tomorrow.

MAY RAISE RATES.

Insurance Men May Boost Them In Superior.

It is said that the insurance companies doing business in West Superior have been intimating a revision of rates ever since the destruction by fire of the Scofield mill. Comment among tre business men is to the effect that the insurance companies may reduce the amount written on West Superior properties. It is thought possible that the isurance men may increase the rates, but this cannot be confirmed. The proposed action in reducing the amount of insurance is said to be based on dissatisfaction regarding the ability of the West Superior fire department in coping with large fires.

THIRD MAN IN IT

The Intermediary Between Machen and Groffs Is Wanted.

Further Alleged Irregularities Being Probed By Inspectors.

Washington, May 29.—A large corps of inspectors, including some of the veterans of the service, were at work probing into the alleged irregularities at the postoffice department yesterday, but no further arrrests were made. It is said to be possible that the intermediary who, it is alleged, figured in the transaction which led to the arrest of Augustus W. Machen, the former general superintendent of the free delivery service, may turn state's evidence. His identity has not yet been disclosed. Mr. Machen's counsel issued a statement asserting his ability to fully disprove all the charges. The investigating officials are equally confident.

The government is anxious to expedite the trial of Machen as much as possible consistently with the proper handling of the case. It is arranging to have its witnesses at Machen's preliminary hearing June 5. The preliminary hearing of the Groff brothers, the profits of whose firm Machen is accused of sharing on a 40 per cent basis, has been set for June 9.

Postal officials refuse to give any information respecting the go-between who, it is alleged, figured in the transactions that caused Machen's arrest. It is said there is a possibility, if not a probability, that he will be used as a witness for the government. The postmaster general said:

"That there is a third party in this matter I have no doubt, but I cannot say anything further."

He was asked whether the delay in making an arrest was due to failure to locate the man. The postmaster general replied in the negative, and added that sometimes there were other persons. He significantly suggested that sometimes it was found best not to be too precipitate in taking action, and there was an intimation that the department might desire the go-between to turn state's evidence.

A report was publisher here that George W. Beavers, former superintendent of the division of salaries and allowances, was in the city, but the department denied having any such information.

Mr. Payne was asked as to the nature of the charges on file against Mr. Beavers. He replied that they might be summed up as the payment of extravagant prices for materials and supplies used in his division, including time clocks and stamping machinery. He said there was only one charge that Mr. Beavers had received a commission on these supplies. This charge, he said, was under investigation.

A much more rigid overhauling of the affairs of Mr. Beaver's former office will begin shortly. The salaries and allowance division is now in charge of a former assistant superintendent who is a veteran inspector and the department thought for this reason it could concentrate its investigation work along other lines that needed immediate attention. The investigation of the affairs of the free delivery section, it is alleged has not been interrupted, by the arrest of Mr. Machen.

The inspectors who brought about that result are continuing the inquiry and will probe into other charges against Mr. Machen. In this connection, Postmaster General Payne said that one of the charges under investigation was an allegation that Mr. Machen had forged the name of another man on an official paper about ten years ago. He said that Mr. Machen knew of this charge and had informed him (the postmaster general) that he (Machen) was ready at any time to bring conclusive proof that he was innocent of the transaction.

Other charges involve letter box contracts. Some of the charges are of a similar nature to those on which yesterday's arrest was based. Overhauling of the free delivery branch will be thorough and Postmaster General Payne today declared with emphasis that the investigation will not end until all irregularities have been inquired into and eradicated. He said that he did not yet know when it would be possible to close the investigation and that he would not attempt to approximate the date. He said there had been a few charges against several other officials of the department, but the complaints of irregularities were confined principally to the free delivery service, the salary and allowance division and the office of the assistant attorney general. He declined to say how Inspector Mayer and his associate inspectors secured the drafts that are alleged to compose part of the documentary evidence in the possession of the authorities, as that matter for the time at least required observance of secrecy.

Mr. Payne has given considerable attention to means of better safeguarding the miscellaneous appropriations available in various bureaus. These appropriations offer the greatest latitude in expeditures.

"Unquestionably," said Mr. Payne, "these abuses will not occur again."

He called attention to the fact that the rural service at its inception was of an experimental nature and said much latitude was given on that account. The employes in that section, until recently, were not subject to civil service rules, their appointment being made subject to the discretion of the postmaster general, who, he added, was after all the responsible party though the great multiplicity of details made it physically impossible for him to examine into every matter he signed.

THE REVISION IS ADOPTED

Presbyterian Assembly Adopts Revision of Confession of Faith.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 29.—The Presbyterian church of the United States in general assembly yesterday finally disposed of the question of revision of creed that has been before the last three general assemblies and which has agitated Presbyterian circles for the last fifteen years. The assembly by unanimous vote adopted the revision of the confession of faith as prepared by the committee appointed by the general assembly in 1901. Besides clearing the calendar of this important question, the assembly disposed of the "Tennessee overture" in regard to separate presbyteries in the same territory, which was commonly known as the "colored question of the Presbyterian church," and the report of the special committee on divorce and remarriages.

The fact that creed revision was to come up attracted the largest crowd that has attended any meeting since the opening. After disposing of some business of minor importance, Moderator Coyle announced that the Rev. Henry Van Dyke, of Princeton, N. J., chairman of the committee on bills and overtures, would submit the report of the committee on revision. Before reading the report, Dr. Van Dyke stated that two protests, one from the presbytery of Lehigh and the other from the St. Cloud presbytery, tending to obstruct action on the revision question, had been before the committee and it was recommended that they be asked by vote to throw them out. The assembly so ordered.

Dr. Van Dyke then proceeded with the report of the revision committee. He read the detailed vote on each one of the eleven overtures which showed that no one overture had received more than ten negative votes. The overtures were voted upon seriatim and adopted. But one voice in the negative was heard and this only on overtures 5, 6 and 7.

At the afternoon session the "colored question" was disposed of promptly and without a flury. Dr. Putnam, from the committee on bills and overtures, reported as simply recommendations that alere?e Gedygm shrdlu emfwyp vbgkqxz colored ministers" which had some up from Tennessee and other Southern states, be referred to a committee of five, this committee to report to the next general assembly. Dr. Roberts moved an amendment to this resolution giving the colored element in the church representation on this committee and increasing the membership to seven. The amendment was accepted and the resolution adopted.

REMARKABLE COURT SCENE

Jerome Accuses Judge Foster of Juggling With Justice.

New York, May 24.—In a scene as remarkable in many respects as any that has occurred in a court room in a decade District Attorney Jerome practically accused Judge Warren C. Foster, of the court of general sessions, of juggling with justice.

Henry C. Wilson, formerly chief clerk of the engineering department in the army building, was in court that sentence might be pronounced upon him. Wilson had been convicted of attempted bribery. A motion had been made several days ago to grant a new trial to Wilson on the ground that he was a federal officer and should have been tried in a federal court. The judge said he felt the point was well taken, and although he believed Wilson guilty he thought it best to suspend sentence.

"Judge Foster," shouted District Attorney Jerome, "are you going to pronounce judgment without passing on the pending motion? This court should be kept above every question that would bring discredit upon it. There lies in the heart of every practitioner at this bar a wish that the court should not place itself in a false position, which the court now seems to be doing. Gravely as I would regret it, I would prefer to have a new trial granted to this man than an action to bring the court into discredit. Your honor allows this man to stand as a convicted felon, yet you say that he is not."

Wilson's attorney interrupted and withdrew his motion for a new trial. District Attorney Jerome stood for a few seconds, his face flushed. Then he said: "Then it is a different state of facts that confronts you now, Judge Foster. This defendant stands before you in the light of an innocent man allowing the stigma of a thief to be placed upon him. What a travesty it all is! The right and only way is to dismiss this indictment if you don't believe this man guilty. Don't juggle with justice."

Judge Foster was pale as he said, "Though I do not like to differ with the district attorney, I will do what I always do—my duty—and in this case suspend sentence."

PROFESSORS SHOULD TALK

French Lecturer Says College Professors In America Are Caged.

Chicago, May 29.—"Professors in American universities are like caged employes. They may not speak, they may scarcely even think as they please. They must respect the opinions and interests of the trustees who employ them, and of the rich men whose millions make the institutions possible."

This was the criticism offered by Leopold Mabilleau, director of the Musee Social, of Paris, in the third of his series of lectures at the University of Chicago. M. Mabilleau is recognized as one of the leading free thinkers of France. The subject of his talk, which was delivered in French, was "Governing Ideas in Public Education."

"If a professor is to do the highest grade of work and accomplish a maximum of good he must be at liberty to think and speak as he pleases, even though his thoughts and opinions may be contrary to those of trustees and founders," said M. Mabilleau. "In America, unfortunately, this is not yet the case. In this country educators are bound to respect certain interests and failure in this respect on their part frequently results in their enforced resignation. Numerous instances of this sad state of affairs have arisen in the past few years, and I have personal knowledge of several such cases.

"In France we have a different and far better system. There all the universities are supported by the state. Once a man is appointed to a professorship he is settled for life, and is given the widest freedom to investigate, conclude and opine as he pleases. In other words perfect freedom of speech and thought is guaranteed to all our educators.

"This is a lofty ideal which other nations would do well to adopt. Signs of its coming are already beginning to show in the United States, and I am assured by President Eliot, of Harvard, and Harper, of the University of Chicago, that the time is not so very far distant when the ideal will be reached in America."

WILL DEAL IN MEAT.

New Zealand Government Enters on New Enterprise.

London, May 29.—The government of New eZaland will shortly initiate a big meat selling enterprise. Prime Minister Seddon has cabled in response to an inquiry from London that the government proposes to buy meat in the colony and ship it direct to the United Kingdom, where depots will be established in the big manufacturing centers. The meat will be sold at a price that will simply cover the costs.

It is further learned that New Zealand intends to employ the existing sixty or seventy factories to kill, freeze, pack and ship the meat at a fixed sum per carcass. A commissioner will manage the government's business in the United Kingdom, and superintend a staff of branch managers. The first depots will be established at Glasgow, Manchester, Liverpool and Cardiff. All will be run in the name of the New Zealand government.

There will be also retail shops, although it is intended to abandon these and lease the retailing to ordinary butchers, the government simply maintaining experts to oversee the trade. The New Zealand frozen meat imported into Great GBritain in 1897 was valued at £2,077,000, and the beef at £118,000. In 1902 the mutton imports had risen in value to £3,219,000 and the beef to £477,000. Great Britain's total imports of mutton in 1902 amounted to nearly £7,000,000, and beef nearly £8,000,000.

Mr. Seddon hopes to capture a large proportion of this trade.

SET BRIDGE ON FIRE.

Mill Owners Think the Strikers Did It.

Sandy Hill, N. Y., May 29.—Trouble has existed at the Union Bag and Paper company's new mill for some days. Press tenders and pulp handlers waited on the superintendent and demanded the discharge of a non-union man and Foreman Plue, on the ground that the latter insulted a young woman friend of one of the strikers. Superintendent Wasson refused and thirteen men walked out. Shortly afterward the wooden bridge spanning the river was ablaze, but the fire was extinguished. The strikers subsequently offered to compromise, but in view of the fire the superintendent declines to act until the police investigate its origin.

HONEST LETTERS

That Leave No Doubt That

Paine's Celery Compound

Has Again and Again Cured After Physicians Have Failed.

For years men and women in every rank and walk of life have been sounding the praises of Paine's Celery Compound, and telling of its victories over disease and death. Those who were most heavily burdened with disease, victims of suffering pronounced incurable by doctors, and who stood on the brink of the grave, are the people who most gratefully remember Professor Phelps, of Dartmouth college, the eminent physician and scientist who discovered Paine's Celery Compound, the medicine that never fails to conquer blood diseases, dyspepsia, rheumatism, neuralgia, liver and kidney troubles. Mr. F. Marion Sikes, of Cronly, N. C., happily rescued from a complication of dangerous ailments, long-standing dyspepsia, muscular pains and after-results of typhoid fever—nervousness, weakness, watery blood and sluggish circulation, gratefully and thankfully writes for the benefit of thousands of men and women who suffer today. Mr. Sikes says:

"For many years I suffered with dyspepsia. All that I ate did me no good, and I couldd find nothing that would give me relief. Last year I was taken with a pain in my leg that ran from my hip to the end of my toes. I had as good a doctor as I could find in Wilmington, but he only gave me relief for a while. I was then taken with typhoid fever, and my family and friends had given up all hope. A friend of mine, Capt. Walter Tait, advised me to try Paine's Celery Compound, as I was so nervous I could not stand alone. I began the use of the wonderful medicine, and before I had taken half a bottle I felt like a new man. I have now used two bottles and am today a well man and feel better than I have for ten years. I thank my God for the use of this great and marvelous compound."

RELIEVED BY DELAY

Secretary Shaw Glad Canal Treaty Ratification Hung Fire.

Payments Will Not Have to Be Made Before August.

Washington, May 29.—While Secretary of State Hay is fidgeting over the delay in the ratification of the Panama Canal treaty at the Colombian capital, Secretary Shaw of the treasury is regarding the state of affairs with complacency. "It's an ill wind that blows nobody good," said Secretary Shaw in this instance thinks he is on the right side of the weather vane. The canal proposition, from the treasury point, has caused him an endless amount of worry, for, notwithstanding the immense amount of gold stored in the government vaults and apparently unlimited supply of coin of all character, the draft of $40,000,000 payable to the French company and $6,000,000 to Colombia is a trifle heavy even for Uncle Sam's pocketbook.

Secretary Shaw is now no longer connect the large canals payments in the present fiscal year, as the indications are that by the time the ratification is made the fiscal year will have been ended, or nearly so.

There was a time, not many weeks ago, when Secretary Shaw regarded the outlook with some anxiety. Soon after the adjournment of the special session of the United States it was not known how soon the Colombian congress would be called together for the purpose of acting on the treaty. Supposing that it should be done immediately, there was a prospect that the preliminaries would be settled very soon and that the time would be at hand for the payment of something like $50,000,000 out of the current funds of the United States treasury.

The prospect now is that even if the congress of Colombia should ratify the treaty early in July the payments for the canal rights and property will not have to be made before August or September at the earliest. Although the season of tight money will then be at hand, Secretary Shaw is not anxious. The treasury officers believe that there will be a much less severe stringency than there was last year, and this belief is based on sound reasoning.

One of the chief causes of reassurances is the success of the present refunding operations. The conversion of 2s and 4s has not been going on very rapidly during the last few days, but even if the offerings of these short-term bonds should cease altogether at this time Secretary Shaw would feel that this plan of converting these securities into long-term 2s had not been unsuccessful. The refunding sum of $70,000,000 of these bonds, even when $100,000,000 had been hoped for, is a matter of great significance to the money market and to bankers and financiers generally. Several millions of dollars have already been thrown into circulation in the form of premiums on bonds paid by the government. More important than this, the bank circulation has increased greatly within the last six weeks. This phenomenon was looked for, this being the main object of his refunding plan.

"BOOZELESS BEER"

For the Redskins In Indiana Territory.

Paul's Valley, I. T., May 29.—A big brewing company is preparing to offer for sale throughout the Indian Territory a substitute for beer without its intoxicating qualities.

What the thirsty inhabitant yearns for is something that will make the wheels go round, but an artificial rose is better than no rose at all, and the substitute will be made to resemble the real thing as nearly as possible.

The first requirement is that the beverage shall not contain more than 2 per cent of alcohol. This however, has not always been a protection. William Mellette, United States district attorney for the western district, in which Muskogee is situated, forbade the sale of such concoctions as "Tin Top" and "Simco's Mead" in his district last fall.

Since that time brewing companies have been feeling their way to resume business in the sale of "non-intoxicants." The indications are that one company has reached a point of supposed safety, as it has established its local agencies. Federal officers, undoubtedly, will lose no time in carrying the matter into court, where a test case will be tried.

MONARCH OF THE PAST.

Mrs. "Jack" Gardner Is Increasingly Eccentric.

New York, May 29.—According to a telegram to the Press from Boston, it is believed generally there that Mrs. "Jack" Gardner is socially a monarch of the past. True, in her Venetian palace she still attracts her old friends, but her eccentricities are on the increase, and every week society reads of a new exploit. Boston is too conservative for much of this sort of thing.

It is said Mrs. "Jack" has aged painfully. Only a few years ago her figure and complexion were called marvelous for a woman well beyond 50. The successor to the throne of Boston society is Mrs. Montgomery Sears, who is equally popular in New York and Newport. Mrs. Sears has great wealth and much charm of manner. Moreover, she holds the friendship of other leaders of fashion.

Mrs. Sears has an original custom that distinguishes her. She plays the hostess frequently, and always is gowned more simply than any of her guests. At her last great ball Mrs. Sears surprised everyone by wearing a gown of black, made and trimmed simply, and with only a string of pearls about the neck. Her most unpretentious guest outshone her. All the other women were glad and loved their hostess accordingly. But on the following night Mrs. Sears appeared at another woman's ball, and from head to toe she glittered with jewels. Since then she has avoided fine feathers when entertaining.

BUSINESS OUTLOOK

Manufacturers of Iron and Steel Were Never So Busy.

Orders For Freight Cars Large—Collections Are Easy.

New York, May 29.—Business and trade scanned by men deep in their secrets, show few unhealthy spots. Wall street's inaction is not considered indicative of the general financial situation of country, according to statements made to New York Commercial representatives.

It is freely stated that there is really nothing at all the matter with business, and that while the mercury in the commercial thermometer never remains stationary, the tendency is constantly away from the zero point.

In the statements which follow, these points are made illustrative of the buoyant tendency of business: Manufacturers of iron and steel were never so busy; nothing seriously disturbs the business of the country; orders for freight cars this year are larger for every month than the corresponding months last year; collections are easy.

August H. Ivins, of the United Boxboard and Paper company, said: "We have forty-eight companies and the buying for them is done through my department, and as we buy anything from a paper of pins to a locomotive, I am in rather close touch with the business of the country. There never was a time when the manufacturers of iron and steel—the men who turn out the finished product and of whom we have not been hearing so much—were so busy as now.

"The manufacture of malleable iron has greatly developed. It cannot be delivered fast enough to supply the demand. Manufacturers are behind their orders in many lines. It would have been better I think, if less water had been used in capitalizing the industrial concerns that have been put on the market. A reasonable stock issue would have been taken up and no reaction would have come. But we are growing out of it and repairing damages and learning a lesson.

"Nothing seriously disturbs the general business of the country. There was a time when anything affecting Wall street affected the entire country. But now people have come to look upon the stock market as a game and those who go in take their chances.

"You can scarcely think of any condition that would produce a real panic in the street. It was thought that McKinley's death would do it, but the flurry was not important and soon over. If J. Pierpont Morgan was to drop dead tomorrow, I don't think the effect on Wall street would be great or lasting. Everybody stands braced down there, and steeled against anything that may happen. Even in Wall street the tendency from now on ought to be upward.

"Good wages are beneficial in many ways. The endless chain would work in this, but for exports—that is high prices would mean everybody able to spend and spending. But if in exports prices may not be too high. If they are, exports may not be made with profit for competition comes in. Good wages for labor up to the point that they may be paid without stopping a reasonably profitable export trade, are all right. Working men are certainly getting their share of the benefits of prosperity, and I look for no curtailment in the buying of those things that enter into the comforts of life."

W. H. Hagar, of the American Car and Foundry company, made this statement:

"Being the largest builder of cars for the trade in the world our business naturally reflects, in a general way, the commerce of the country. We are as good a barometer of prosperity as the earnings of the railways and the demand for iron and steel, for it is only when railroad business and iron and steel business is good that freight cars are in demand and only when the people have plenty of money and willingness to spend that passengers cars are needed in any considerable number.

"Orders for cars either indicate business already being done or in anticipation by the railroads. But it must be admitted that the railroads, through their agents at every little flag station, know what the country's actual condition is. Such a thing as a request for time on contract payments has not ocurred in a very long time.

"Orders for freight cars this year are larger for every month than for the corresponding month last year. And we have orders for passenger cars for delivery away into 1904.

"And speaking of the iron and steel business, the only trouble until recently has been to supply the demand for steel. There is nothing in that billet talk except what is favorable to the steel business. Most of the steel plants make their own billets now. There naturally would be a falling off in prices of foreign billets. I do not see that this country suffers by making billets at home instead of importing them. The money stays here that formerly went abroad. And I am not sure that slightly lower prices for steel would be a bad thing. Consumption would be increased and demand further stimulated.

"To some extent the state of the steel business will depend on how much building goes on. All our modern structures use a vast amount of steel There is continuous development of new uses for this steel. Exports are larger than in the earlier years of the export business."

Max Wolf, treasurer and director Standard Varnish works, had this to say:

"Business in our line is better than ever. Collections never were so good as at present. The future depends on the workingman. I do not think that can be given too much emphasis. If the wage-worker demands what it is impossible to pay it will affect business. He will not be the good spender he is now if he ceases to be an earner, as he may if he demands what cannot be paid. Already he has forced employers to band together to preserve even the little that remains to them of the power to direct their own business.

"The West, I think, is a better barometer of business than the East. We are conservative here. We respond slowly to things about us. Out West, the moment the money begins to pour in, it also begins to pour out. The West is buying. If labor is wise the whole country will soon become as confident of the future as the West. I hope he will show wisdom."

"There is no question in my mind," said Franklin Leonard, Jr., treasurer of the Comstock Tunnel Co., "that all industrial enterprises have reached their crest and the wave is now slowly receding. As to how that will affect the mining market I have only to quote the past and it becomes self-evident that every industrial boom is followed by heavy activity of mining stocks. Intrinsically, a mine depends upon its own showing for its value, and once that is established nothing can deprive it of that consideration.

"Personally I have always been inclined to think that the wage scale was not always adjusted so as to bear an equitable relation to capital. In the West we are obliged to pay $3 a day at our mines for unskilled labor, for what is termed a shoveller. I think that very high for the work accomplished, and the payment of such sums is somewhat of a burden upon the company.

"The alleged prosperity which has been spoken of so much during the past few years has always impressed as being on one side. Anyone who has closely watched the stock market of late can well realize that the period for the digestion of securities has only begun."

"Assuming that wages would remain at their present standard, would the employe have any spare funds for investment?" Mr. Leonard was asked.

"I should not think so," he replied. "All earnings are now being used for the necessaries of life, and there can be no surplus left for investment, unless the price of most commodities decreases."

J. Evans, of H. B. Shafiin Co., said: "There is nothing the matter with the country. Prosperity exists everywhere, and with the exception of the suspension of business on account of strikes, commercial affairs seem to move along satisfactorily. So far as I can see there is as good a demand for commodities as there usually is, and there is no reason to believe that the demand is going to fall off.

"Collections are easy, and so long as crops are good there will be no change in this respect. While labor has work it will have money to spend and will spend it. Wall street stocks have been overbought by some speculators, I guess, but they have little to fear unless the administration changes at the ner presidential election, which I do not consider possible.

"So far as dry goods are concerned, a good deal of the present quietness is the result of the manufacturers adopting a policy which they think will eventually drive out the jobber. They are attempting to sell their goods direct to the retailer, and they are going to make a big mistake. Some are commencing to feel the result of such a course already. I do not mean to say that all manufacturers are doing this; it is only certain ones who are sending their men out among the retailers."

SHARPERS FOILED.

Thought to Rob Oceanic's Passengers But Failed.

New York, May 29.—A quintette of American card sharps, looking the part, arrived here from Liverpool and Queenstown aboard the White Star liner Oceanic, not a cent richer than when they sailed. Purser T. H. Russell recognized the contingent and immediately posted in the smoking room this warning:

"Special Notice—The attention of the managers has been called to the fact that certain individuals believed to be professional gamblers have recently been traveling to and from America on Atlantic steamships and it is deemed right in the interest of passengers to bring it to their notice."

There was "nothing personal' in this but it did the business.

The five gamblers were soon known by sight, if not by name, to most of the frequenters of the smoking room. On the first evening out from Queenstown three of the quintette threw dice—with each other—at "five pun' a throw. They spoke with a British accent and never mentioned "dollars." But they didn't look as British as they want to make out.

They tackled William A. Hazzard, the polo player, inviting him to join them in dice throwing or poker. He respectfully declined. Then they "won" money from each other in $25 bets, with a great flourish, as if they were in dead earnest. That was all the play they got.

And Happiness and Prosperity Assured by

Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Pills When All Else Fails.

Every child born into the world with an inherited or early developed tendency to distressing, disfiguring humours of the skin, scalp and blood, becomes an object of the most tender solicitude, not only because of its suffering, but because of the dreadful fear that the disfiguration is to be lifelong and mar its future happiness and prosperity. Hence, it becomes the duty of mothers of such afflicted children to acquaint themselves with the best, the purest and most effective treatment available, viz., The Cuticura Treatment.

Warm baths with Cuticura Soap, to cleanse the skin and scalp of crusts and scales, gentle applications of Cuticura Ointment, to allay itching, irritation and inflammation, and soothe and heal, and mild doses of Cuticura Resolvent, to cool the blood in the severer cases, are all that can be desired for the speedy relief and permanent cure of skin tortured infants and children, and the comfort of worn-out parents.

Millions of women use Cuticura Soap, assisted by Cuticura Ointment, for preserving, purifying and beautifying the skin, scalp, hair and hands, for annoying irritations and weaknesses, and for many sanative, antiseptic purposes which readily suggest themselves.

Sold throughout the world. Cuticura Resolvent, 50c. (in form of Chocolate Coated Pills, 25c. per vial of 60). Ointment, 50c. Soap, 25c. Depots: London, 27 Charterhouse Sq.; Paris, 5 Rue de la Paix; Boston, 137 Columbus Ave. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Proprietors.

LARGEST IN HISTORY

Of United States Are Imports of Manufacturers' Materials.

Form About Forty-Eight Per Cent of Total Imports.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Importations of manufacturers' materials into the United States in the fiscal year which ends with next month will be by far the largest in the history of our importations, and will amount to nearly or quite $500,000,000. Manufacturers' materials will form about 48 per cent of the imports of the fiscal year. The ten months' figures of the treasury bureau of statistics, just completed, show that manufacturer's materials formed 47½ per cent of the imports for the ten months and 48.77 per cent, or practically one-half of those of the latest available month, April, while in March they formed 49.06 per cent. Beyond doubt, the total importation of manufacturers' materials in the fiscal year 1903 will by far exceed that of any preceding year. The fiscal year 1902 was the banner year prior to the current year, its total being $445,000,000, while the highest figure ever reached prior to 1902 was in 1900, when the total was $380,000,000. A comparison of the prospective figures of nearly or quite $500,000,000 in the fiscal year about to end with those of preceding years is interesting. The total of manufacturers' materials imported in the last two months was, in round terms, $91,000,000, and those of the ten months ending with April were $410,058,806. Should the figures of May and June equal those of March and April, it would bring the total imports of manufacturers' materials for the fiscal year above the $500,000,000 line. Comparing this with preceding years, it may be said that the total for 1902 was $415,000,000; for 1900, $380,000,000; 1890, $223,000,000; 1880, $232,000,000; 1870, $120,000,000, and 1860, $93,000,000. The share which manufacturers' materials form of the total, as already indicated, will be about 48 per cent of the total imports of the present fiscal year. In 1900 it was, in round terms, 46 per cent; in 1890, 34 per cent; in 1880, 37 per cent; in 1870, 28 per cent, and in 1860 26 per cent.

The ten principal articles of manufacturers' materials imported are hides and skins, silk, chemicals, fibers, India rubber, tin, wool, wood, copper and tobacco. These ten articles form 70 per cent of the imports of manufacturers' materials. The following table shows the total value of each of these articles, or groups of articles, imported in the ten months ending with April 1903, compared with those of the ten months ending with April 1893.

Articles—	1893	1903
Chemicals, drugs, etc...	$43,467,044	$53,172,501
Copper, unmanufactured	850,080	17,242,379
Fibers, unmanufactured	15,804,577	29,529,602
Hides and skins.....	2,588,033	48,705,568
India rubber, unmanu'd	25,453,123	26,084,366
Tin, unmanufactured...	8,465,714	19,251,701
Tobacco, unmanufact'd	11,810,113	14,061,123
Wood, unmanufactured.	8,497,117	18,202,110
Wool, unmanufactured..	18,444,546	18,614,717
Silk, unmanufactured..	27,475,332	44,483,388

The figures of chemicals include all chemicals imported, as it is impracticable to state separately, from the monthly statements, the exact proportion which are manufacturers' materials.

MURDERER UNKNOWN

Coroner's Jury Renders Verdict In Heffernan Case.

New York, May 29.—The inquest into the death of John Heffernan, who was shot near the Ardsley club at Tarrytown, Sunday night, was held yesterday by Coroner Russell at Irvington, and resulted in a verdict of murder by some person unknown.

Sarah Campbell, Heffernan's companion, said she thought he declared his assassin to be Rufus L. Sewall, of Boston, the prospective son-in-law of Robert Howitt.

Frank Healey, night watchman at the Ardsley club, and the first person to go to Heffernan's assistance, also declared that the wounded man said his assailant was Mr. Hewitt's prospective son-in-law.

After testimony had been given by Edwin Gould, Dr. George F. Brady, Edward H. Jaffray and others, who declared they heard no such statements on the part of Heffernan, John Finn, hallboy at the Ardsley club, testified that when he asked Heffernan who shot him, Heffernan replied:

"Mr. Hewitt's incnded son-in-law. I had him down, but he was too strong and got away from me."

Finn insisted that Heffernan did not say "thought," but spoke positively.

Mr. Sewall, who had been a guest at Mr. Hewitt's house on Saurday night, volunteered to make a statement and to waive counsel. As he understood it, Heffernan told Mr. Jaffray a man in the bushes shot him from behind. He did not leave Mr. Hewitt's house from the time they sat down to dinner until the telephone bell rang, and then went with Mr. Hewitt and Jaffray.

Mr. Hewit corroborated the younger man's testimony.

Mr. Sewall and Miss Campbell were called upon the stand and the question was put to the young woman point blank:

"Is that the man who shot John?"

Without the least hesitation, the girl replied:

"No, it is not. The man was taller and stouter than this one."

BODIES IN MINE

Weird Tale Comes From Arkansas About De Soto's Party.

Petrified In Zinc In Cave of the Ozark Uplift.

Milwaukee, May 29.—George H. Chase has received from Yellville, Marion county, Ark., a copy of a paper read before the Nine O'Clock club of that place by E. H. Avey, an old resident, containing an account of a discovery he has recently made in the depths of the mountains that reads like a fairy story. He claims, with all veracity, that he found the followers of Ferdinand De Soto, the old Spanish explorer and discoverer of the Mississippi, petrified in zinc in a cave of the Ozark uplift. The story has something of the Washington Irving style.

"My partner and myself had abandoned work on our mine, known as the Ike Emery, several months ago," said he, "and determined to prospect for a new location. After prospecting for a few days, we selected a spot for development and set to work. Almost a week was spent in drifting into the mountain side, where we struck a small opening, and when made large enough to admit us, we found ourselves in something of a cavern, which, tested by throwing rocks into the darkness, gave promise of being extensive. This was the beginning of an experience that in its simple truth rivals the famous tales of the 'Arabian Nights.' We went back to camp and outfitted ourselves with lamps and other necessaries. Entering the cave, we went ahead for about fifty yards almost on a level with the starting point, to where the passage divided, one passage leading to the left with the trend of the mountain in conformation with the direction of the creek, the other almost straight ahead into the mountain. We chose the latter, taking, however, the precaution to mark the way of exit. We found this passage to narrow so rapidly that we were obliged to crawl, and then retraced our way and began the exploration of the other passage. As we proceeded it grew larger and steeper of descent, but as the air seemed pure, we had no hesitation in going straight ahead at as rapid a pace as circumstances would permit, and in a short time found some small stalactites, which, to our amazement, were covered with a coating of zinc. Crawling on our hands and knees until we could stand erect in the greater cavern where the light of our torches could penetrate the dome, marvelous stalactites were revealed that seemed to hang pendant from the inky blackness. A most wonderful sight presented itself.

"Before our eyes spread as we passed cautiously along an army of 147 Spanish soldiers scattered here and there through the stalactite wilderness, in all the abandon of a freebooter's life, silent, motionless, immovable as they have been for centuries, and entombed in a sarcophagus of pure crystalized carbonate of lead. In one place a group was seated in a circle as if consulting; in another a crowd gathered around two men throwing dice. One of the players was resting on his knees and left hand, and with the right hand raised seems to have just made the cast, while the others appeared to have been eagerly watching the result of a throw. Back of these players sat the banker, and arranged in a semi-circle before him were some virgin lumps of silver, some fine specimens of Indian arrow heads, some coins of Spain, and an Indian wampum belt.

"Further back were men engaged in polishing and cleaning the armor worn by the soldiery; still others polishing the old flintlock arbalists, cutlasses and crossbows. Others were lying in a position of rest, and at some distance away, near to the original entrance, were a troop of some fifteen soldiers dressed in the steel armor of the sixteenth century.

"You will recall that the famous Spanish explorer, De Soto, in his search for riches, ascended the Mississippi and was buried in his waters, while his survivors went forward in their ill-fated explorations that ended in their death by disease or at the hand of the aborigines. Their fate has been warped in mystery, but there are today many legends of Spanish mines in this country. It is plain that my partner and myself have discovered the mine which the ill-fated party of De Soto worked far back in the sixteenth century, and where, overcome by some exhalation from the earth, they met their death."

A STARTLING TEST.

To save a life, Dr. T. G. Merritt, of New Shrewsbury, Pa., made a startling test resulting in a wonderful cure. He writes, "a patient was attacked with violent hemorrhages, caused by ulceration of the stomach. I had often found Electric Bitters excellent for acute stomach and liver troubles, so I prescribed them. The patient gained from the first, and has not had an attack in 14 months." Electric Bitters are positively guaranteed for Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Constipation and Kidney troubles. Try them. Only 50c at all druggists.

A Good Beginning

If the blood is in good condition at the beginning of the warm season, you are prepared to resist disease and are not apt to be troubled with boils, pimples, blackheads and blotches, or the itching and burning skin eruptions that make one's life a veritable torment and misery.

Now is the time to begin the work of cleansing and building up the blood and strengthening the weak places in your constitution. During the cold winter months we are compelled to live indoors and breathe the impure air of badly ventilated rooms and offices. We over-work and over-eat, and get too little out-door exercise, and our systems become clogged with impurities and the blood a hot-bed of germs and humors of every kind, and warm weather is sure to bring a reaction, and the poisonous matter in the blood and system will break out in boils and pustules or scaly eruptions and red, disfiguring bumps and pimples. Make a good beginning this season by taking a course of S. S. S. in time; it will not only purify your blood and destroy the germs and poisons, but promote healthy action of the Liver and Kidneys and give you a good appetite at a time when you need it most.

S. S. S. improves the digestion and tones up the Stomach, and you are not continually haunted by the fear of indigestion every time you eat, or troubled with dizziness, nervousness and sleeplessness. There is no reason to dread the coming of warm weather if you have your system well fortified and the blood in a normal, healthy condition. It is the polluted, sluggish blood that invites disease germs, microbes and poisons of every kind and bring on a long train of spring and summer ailments, break down the constitution, and produce weakness, lassitude, and other debilitating disorders.

Eczema, Acne, Nettle-rash, Poison Oak and Ivy, and other irritating skin troubles are sure to make their appearance unless the humors and poisons are antidoted and the thin, acid blood made rich and strong before the coming of warm weather.

SSS

A course of S. S. S. now would be a safe precaution and a good beginning and enable you to pass in comfort through the hot, sultry months and escape the diseases common to spring and summer. S. S. S. is guaranteed purely vegetable and is recognized as the best blood purifier and the most invigorating and pleasant of all tonics. Write for our book on "The Blood and Its Diseases."

HORRIBLY AFFLICTED WITH BOILS.

I had a horrible attack of boils that broke out all over my body and from which I could get no possible relief until I began taking your medicine, and from my experience I can safely say S. S. S. is the best blood purifier in the world.

THE BEST TONIC AND APPETIZER.

While living in Sherman, Tex., I became a victim of impure, watery blood. I ran down in appetite and energy, was scarcely able to get about and had to stop off and rest occasionally. I took S. S. S. and began to improve at once, and after a thorough course became strong and well.

I think S. S. S. the best medicine I ever used as an appetizer and general tonic. J. G. SCOTT, 311 Railroad street, Rome, Ga.

STUDIES IN ACTS

THE LIFE-GIVING SPIRIT

International Sunday School Lesson For May 31, 1903.

Romans 8:1-14. "There is, therefore, now no condemnation to them that are in Christ Jesus. For the law of the spirit of life in Christ Jesus made me free from the law of sin and death. For what the law could not do, in that it was weak through the flesh, God, sending his own Son in the likeness of sinful flesh, and as an offering for sin, condemned sin in the flesh; that the ordinance of the law might be fulfilled in us, who walk not after the flesh, but after the spirit. For they that are after the flesh do mind the things of the flesh; but they that are after the spirit the things of the spirit. For the mind of the flesh is death; but the mind of the spirit is life and peace; because the mind of the flesh is enmity against God; for it is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can it be; and they that are in the flesh cannot please God. But ye are not in the flesh, but in the spirit, if so be that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you. But if any man hath not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of him. And if Christ is in you, the body is dead because of sin; but the spirit is life because of righteousness. But if the Spirit of him that raised up Jesus from the dead dwelleth in you, he that raised up Christ Jesus from the dead shall quicken also your mortal bodies through his Spirit that dwelleth in you.

"So, then, brethren, we are debtors, not to the flesh, to live after the flesh; for if ye live after the flesh, ye must die; but if by the spirit ye mortify the deeds of the body, ye shall live. For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, these are the sons of God."

Golden Text: "For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, these are the sons of God." Romans 8:14.

WHAT CHRIST'S INCARNATION BRINGS.

The Christian religion is a most glorious thing when accepted and obeyed without any reservations whatsoever. Paul took it with all his heart and gave his whole life to its study and service. He presented it to great multitudes of people in his day and carefully observed its effect upon their lives. Putting what he saw with natural vision along with the insight inspiration gave him, he was able to write of the changed relations to sin, the law of Moses and to death of those who are justified by faith in Christ. Such persons are dead to sin; they serve the law "in newness of the spirit, and not in oldness of the letter;" death is no longer a dread foe since sin, its sting, has been killed by the triumphant Son of God.

Through his faith in Jesus Christ and the operation upon his life of the Spirit of God the believer becomes just before God. His religion is to him a tremendous moral power, accomplishing what all his best efforts of all his days could never have done. His life may not be perfect; it is, however, in line with the plans of God and its outlook is toward eternity. It is a life of union with Christ. The soul is hid with Christ in God. Such language seems very mystical to the person not in sympathy with the fervid faith and religious love of Paul. When he writes that there is now, therefore, no condemnation to them that are in Christ Jesus, he thinks of the intimate dependence of the Christian on his Savior, which enables the former to reap the benefits of the startling victory of the latter over sin and death. If a person is really joined in a moral, spiritual union with Christ, of course he can never suffer condemnation, for then Christ would suffer with him, and Christ has suffered once for all the just for the unjust, that he might bring us to God.

By "the law of the spirit" is meant the authority of the spirit, regulating action, which law can only order or prescribe. The "law of sin and of death" indicates the authority which sin has held over our spirits, not as statute law, but as constituent law, of our spiritual natures, defying all statutes of God and man that contravened its selfish gratifications, and trying to rule as the sole arbiter of life. The power previously exercised by sin is now ended. The natural bent of the Christian's life is toward righteousness, and he is ruled by this new authority; or, rather, it is the old authority (the old constituent law of the spiritual nature) reborn, purified, redeemed and sanctified by the life and victorious death of Jesus. This change is called conversion. It marks the point from which one acts morally from motives entirely within him, instead of being driven to do right by outside law and penalties, and the general constraint of opinion and social influences.

Years ago the only known method of propelling large vessels through the water was by spreading canvas and waiting for the wind to blow favorably. Later men learned to use the force of steam in navigation and they then aided their sails by introducing engines. They called it auxiliary steam. A little later they made their engines larger and relied on them as the principal means of navigation, but retained enough sails to assist the steam—that was the day of auxiliary sails. Between these two types of vessels came those that had both full steam power and full sail power. Today the ocean greyhounds and the armored fleets of the world are fully equipped with boilers and machinery sufficient to make them entirely independent of the winds and waves. They can go on their straight course whether the elements are favorable or not. Their motive power is all within themselves. It is put there in ever fresh supplies as occasion demands.

There are people who are moved to moral or immoral action by outside influence alone. The wind blows, and they go with it. There are other people who have some motive power in themselves. It may be only a little or it may be much; it may be auxiliary steam or full power steam with auxiliary sail; it has not thrown off its dependence on things without. There are still others who have arrived at the elements of moral atmosphere without them. They have in their own minds and hearts the fuel and machinery to drive them whithersoever they wish to go and they have in their wills a pilot to guide them in clear weather and in foul, when aids to navigation are visible and when the atmosphere is thick and dead reckoning their only guide, over the open ocean or where the channel is sinuous and ranges are few. God has put within every man the possibility of being morally superior to his conditions. Only those rise to their privileges who are born of the Spirit of God through faith and repentance. To them the truth and the Spirit are the continual gifts of God, constituting the fuel on which the engines of moral action are fed.

The law that God gave through Moses proved no stronger than the weak flesh of the people who were bidden to obey it. Sin was too mighty for man; but Christ annulled its power, condemning it in that he took the common flesh of man as the tabernacle of his Spirit and in the flesh triumphed over all the temptations sin presented to him while he lived. He also condemned sin in that he spoke against the sins of mankind, and when sin caused his death he proved himself superior to it by wresting from it the supposed victory of his death and rising to life again. The incarnation and death of Christ had for their object the removal of human sin. Sin could only touch Christ through his flesh. Death broke forever the connection between him and the possibility of his sinning. He arose free from every vestige of any element that could lead to sin. His Spirit abides as the power that enables the Christian to fulfill the requirements of the law of God.

THE LIFE OF THE SPIRIT.

What a contrast exists between the life the Spirit of God inspires and the life that follows the fitful course of sinful inclinations! Devotion to things that are evil marks the latter, utter absorption in things that are unspiritual; the whole mental endowment is set upon the fleeting enjoyment of such toys as sense affords. These things bear in themselves the seeds of death. To say "the mind of the flesh is death" is but another way of saying that "the wages of sin is death," for the mind of the flesh produces the sin that works for the wage of death. But if the one is obedient to the authority of the Spirit, his character and conduct will bring him increasing life and peace. The divine Spirit is the very essence of life. "Peace" is the sense of reconciliation, of union with God. The believer must not allow his mind to be divided by such opposing tendencies of life as the fleshly mind introduces. If he does, he will merit the rebuke Jesus gave to Peter, "Thou mindest not the things of God, but the things of men." Paul warned the Philippians against some evil persons who professed to follow Christ, but "whose end is perdition; whose God is their belly, and whose glory is in their shame, who mind earthly things." He wrote the Colossians the exhortation, "Set your mind on the things that are above, not on the things that are upon the earth." Here are two goals, life and death; here are two cups, the one containing the potency of life, the other the potency of death. There ought to be no hesitation about which is to be chosen. The choice determines the judgment of heaven on each person. At the end of this life the man will either stand before the court of last resort and be the worst witness against himself, or Christ will crown him a son of God. Which?

The "mind of the flesh is death," because it is enmity against God. There is no life eternal apart from peace with God, for life eternal depends absolutely upon harmony and union with him. It is not only his gift, but also must be received as a part of the giver, who bestows himself as the best part of every benefaction. The ministry of Christ struck at sin so terribly because it is the cause of enmity against God. Get rid of it and the barrier between the soul and God is burned away. Then God can truly come into the soul, and where God is there is life eternal and no death that is fearful.

To please God ought to be one of the best motives to noble living. But the person whose actions and thoughts are dominated by considerations that spring from the flesh alone cannot possibly please God; he does not even know the first elements of being pleasing to his heavenly Father. The determining factor in the spiritual life is the indwelling Spirit of God: "Ye are not in the flesh, but in the Spirit, if so be that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you." The spirit is the medium of contact with God. All Christians have the Holy Spirit in some measure; not the spiritual endowment that fits for special service, but sufficiently to give life and sanctifying moral sense.

Paul seems to have thought that the first action of the Spirit of God upon the human personality was upon the spirit, for he assumes that though the body may be dead because of sin, yet the spirit possesses the life properties that pertain to the righteousness of Christ. This vitality of the spirit was a part of his conscious experience of the grace of Christ; but his faith rose to greater heights than his experience had yet attained, or could attain in the present life, and told him that if the spirit of him that raised up Jesus from the dead dwells in the mortal body that same Mighty One will quicken the mortal body of the believer through the power of the same Spirit. Paul's idea that Christ is the first fruit of redemption, and that all who believe reap the benefit of his experience and resurrection power seems to be the dominant motive of this passage.

There is a strong ethical tone underneath this entire discussion of the new life of the redeemed. Verses 9-13 do not tell of a righteousness that is imputed to the believer because of what the Savior has done for him, but of the moral rectitude which the power of the Spirit of Christ enables the Christian to attain. Debtors we all are to avail ourselves of the grace offered. We owe this to God and we owe it to ourselves. If we are remiss, we pay the penalty, which is death. This doctrine of the power of the Spirit in human life was not new with the dawn of Christianity. The Old Testament had taught it in its teaching about the creation, about prophecy, about the individual's spiritual life and about the spiritual development of the nation. In Paul's thought the influence of God's spirit is centralized in the person and ministry of Jesus.

The height of moral privilege is reached on the entrance of the believer into sonship to God. The sonship referred to here is not merely that of being the offspring of God; it is the recognized status of sonship in which one can enjoy the full legal and personal privileges of sons of God. Such a relationship knows no restraint, no servility, no cramping bondage. It breathes the air of freedom and in terms of endearment and familiarity approaches God, so confident in the assurance that it has been placed over into the ranks of sons of God that it has forgotten that there was ever any barrier between it and Divinity. The ever-present witness of the Spirit of God helps along this blissful forgetfulness and keeps the soul mindful of its high privileges.

Confide in a Woman

Women may write about their ills to Mrs. Pinkham, and avoid the questioning of a male physician. They can tell their story without reservation to her; she never breaks a confidence, and her advice is the best in the world.

The questions asked of a woman by a male physician are embarrassing, and often revolting to a sensitive nature. In consequence the whole truth is not told; this makes it difficult for female troubles to be successfully treated even by the best physicians, and is the reason so many women grow worse rather than better. A woman understands a woman better than a man,—there are symptoms which sick women have that a man cannot understand, simply because he is a man, but the whole truth may be told to Mrs. Pinkham, and her vast experience enables her to give advice which leads to a cure.

All women who suffer should secure Mrs. Pinkham's advice; it costs nothing but a letter addressed to her at Lynn, Mass. Female troubles are real troubles, and must be treated understandingly. For a quarter of a century Mrs. Pinkham's advice and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have been helping women to get strong and well, and her great file of letters prove that more than a million women have been restored to health and strength by her advice and her medicine when all other means have failed.

When you go to a druggist for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, do not let him persuade you to try something which he says is just as good; there is nothing just as good, because Mrs. Pinkham's medicine holds the record for the largest number of cures of any female medicine in the world.

BLOOD DROPS ON NECKLACE

May Lead to Solution of the Reichlin Murder.

Cleveland, May 29.—Drops of blood which have dried upon a necklace and were partially effaced through contact with water may, according to Jake Mintz, form an important clew in the establishment of the true theory of how and why Miss Agatha Reichlin was murdered at Lorain on May 1. New evidence which he says has been discovered, Detective Mintz declares, is the most important that has been found thus far in his investigation, and he predicted that within a day or two the murder mystery will have been cleared up entirely. A few days ago the detective says a Norwalk boy, who was visiting in the country, between Elyria and Lorain, picked up a necklace of pearls. From a pendant was suspended a tiny heart of pearls, and below that a cross, also of pearls. It is supposed that a burglar dropped it from a car window.

THE PRICE LOWER

Wheat Market Dull and the Close Is at Lower Level.

Flax Liquidation Continues and the Price Drops Off.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 29.—The wheat market started out firm and slightly higher this morning, the chief bearish feature being the excessive rains in the Southwest. The cables were lower and this caused an easier feeling, but prices were well maintained and the market ruled dull and steady until after the noon hour, when it turned weaker and the close was at prices lower than yesterday. The market was gradually very dull. In Chicago there was some interest in the May option which dropped off 2c at the close and in New York the same option was rather wild, having a range of 5c during the morning. There is uncertainty as to the etent of crop damage that retards speculation. The Modern Miller was somewhat more hopeful than for the past two weeks, but reported the improvement as not very marked. In Europe the weather was generally favorable. The shipping demand was dead.

The Liverpool market closed ½d lower. Paris is ½c higher and Antwerp unchanged.

Primary receipts of wheat were 235,000 bus. last year, a holiday. Shipments 383,-000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour were 350,000 bus. Clearances for the week according to Bradstreet, were 4,877,700 bus. Argentine shipments for the week were 1,580,000 bus, against 2,576,100 bus last week and 2,200 bus last year.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis, 102 cars, and at Chicago 20, a total of 122 cars against 141 last week.

Stocks of wheat in Duluth are estimated to decrease 250,000 bus this week and this will reduce them to about 2,000,000 bus. In Minneapolis a decrease of 1,000,000 bus is expected.

There will be no session of the Duluth board tomorrow or Monday.

In the Liverpool market corn closed with an advance of ¼d. The Chicago market July corn was up ½@¾c and July oats ⅜c. Primary receipts of corn were 413,000 bus and shipments 385,000 bus. Clearances were 260,000 bus. Weekly clearances were 1,179,740 bus. Argentine shipments of corn this week were 1,442,000 bus, last week, 883,000 bus; last year, 1,012,000 bus.

In the Duluth market trading in wheat was very light. The market opened a shade higher at 78¾-⅞c, sold at 78⅝c and 78⅝c, fell off to 77⅝c at 1:05, and closed at 78⅛ a decline of ¼c. May and September were unchanged. In Chicago the May option fell 2c and July 1c. In Minneapolis the day was very weak, falling 3c. May also was weak losing ⅞-1c. New York May closed 1c lower, while the July was unchanged.

Cash sales were 10,000 bus, and for No. 1 northern, 3c over July was paid, and for No. 2 northern 2c under No.

Flax was very active and liquidation that started yesterday continuing on a large scale and carrying the price downward although in the early part of the session the market gave signs of some strength. July opened unchanged at $1.14¾, sold off to $1.14, rallied to $1.14⅜, but then turned weak and sold down to $1.13¾. The closing price was $1.13⅝. This was a decline of 5c. September fell ¾c and October 6c. Argentine flax shipment for the week were 296,000 bus, against 312,-000 bus. last year. 216,000 bus. Receipts at Duluth were 8 cars and at Minneapolis 22.

There was a decline of 1c in the price of rye to arrive on track and May.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat to arrive, No. 1 hard, 80¼c; No. 1 northern, 78½c; No. 2 northern, 76½c; May, 78½c; July, 78c; September, 7le. Oats to arrive, 34½-35c; on track, 35¾-36c; May, 40c. To arrive, 40c; on track, 40c; May, 40c. Flax in store, $1.12½; on track, $1.12⅝; to arrive, $1.12⅝; May, $1.12⅝; July, $1.13⅝; September, $1.15; October, $1.14; November, $1.12½. Rye, 55@56c.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Trading Light Owing to Coming Holidays.

Chicago, May 29.—Opening prices in wheat were firm on excessive rains in the Southwest with July unchanged at 73¾c. On account of the three days' holiday trading was exceedingly light and the market lacked any conspicuous feature. There was a good demand for July and September deliveries, but May was offered quite freely by commission houses which added to the lower cables, soon caused an easier feeling, after July had sold up to 73⅝c. Minneapolis and Duluth reported receipts of 169 cars, which, with local receipts of 30 cars, one of contract grade made total receipts for the three points of 139 cars, against 111 cars last week.

Trading continued dull throughout the remainder of the session. There was some selling of May by belated longs and with little demand, the price declined over 2c, and closed at 75c after reaching 74⅞c. July closed 1c lower at 73½@⅝c.

Trading in corn was light with no early features. Opening prices were strong on covering by shorts due to the poor crop prospects and July was a shade to ⅛@¼c higher at 45⅝@45¾c. Local receipts were large at 402 cars, with 20 of contract grade.

The market held steady and July closed ⅛@¼c higher at 45½c.

Oats were dull with opening prices about steady. Too much rain in the West and not enough in the East brought out a considerable demand early in the day and after opening a shade higher, at 33⅞@34c, July advanced to 34⅛@34¼c. Local receipts were 217 cars.

Provisions opened steady and the early trading was dull and featureless. Selling of pork and ribs by pit traders resulted in a slight decline from the opening figures. September pork opened unchanged at $16.75, September lard was 2½c lower at $8.77½ with ribs off 2½c, at $9.17½.

Close: Wheat—May, 75c; July, 73½@⅝c. September, 70⅝c; December, 71@⅛c. Corn—May, 45⅝c; July, 45¾c; September, 45¾@⅞c; December, 42⅝c. Oats—May, 34⅛c; May (new), 33c; June, 34⅜c; July, 34c; September, 31¾c; December, 30¼c. Pork—May, $16.66; July, $17.35; September, $16.70. Lard—May, $8.75; July, $8.82½; September, $8.80. October, $8.55. Ribs—May, $9.37½; July, $9.42½; September, $9.20. Rye—May, 48⅝c; July, 48½c. Cash: No. 2 wheat, $1.16; No. 3, $1.10; May, $1.12; July, $1.12. Timothy—May, $3.45. Clover—May, $11.50. Barley—Cash, 42@56c. Cash wheat—2 red, 75½@76c; 3 red, 71@74c; 2 hard winter, 74@76c; 3 hard winter, 71@75c; 1 northern spring, 76½@78c; 2 northern spring, 73@80c, 3 spring, 74@79c. Corn—2, 45¾@46c; 3, 45¾c. Oats—2, 33½@⅝c; 3, 32½c.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The market closed dragged down at close on May wheat liquidated down at close on selling by scattered holdings. The rest of the market extremely dull and uninteresting. Cash business dull. Speculative operations small. There is still enough uncertainty about crop conditions to prevent confident short selling or buying. Advices from Canadian wheat crop are beginning to come in unfavorable, account of drought. European weather is favorable. Now that the May manipulation is out of the way we are hopeful for better conditions, but the tendency of prices is not very apparent. The June government report will undoubtedly modify conditions somewhat. Estimated cars, 50.

Corn—The wet weather West, dry weather East and fears of a strike on the railroads, combined to prevent much selling pressure and the tone of the market is firm but dull. Some of the packing interests that have been quite large holders have been selling, but in the main the trade is without features of interest. There is a fair cash demand and country offerings not very large. May corn lost its premium through the selling by scattered holders. Estimated cars, 386.

Oats—Oats are controlled by the same influences that are operating in corn. On the whole, however, the condition of the crop in the West is probably improving, in the East the drought has only been partially broken. Market is without speculative pressure and also without much cash demand. Estimated cars, 299.

The Modern Miller: Except in parts of the West and Southwest where heavy rains fell and in the East where drouth conditions prevail, the weather was favorable for winter wheat and further improvement was noted in the condition of crop in sections where the deterioration was most marked. The general condition, however, has not been improved because of offsets of damage by floods and rust that have appeared where frequent rains and hot weather are prevalent much of wheat in central regions continues to head on a short growth.

Chicago Record-Herald: The May wheat price at New York yesterday advanced 3 cents closing at 86½c. The wheat stock there is but 800,000 bus, and there is a holding which is controlled by Milmine of New York and Waterman, the rich miller, at Albany. They are supposed to have about double the contract stock bought with only one day longer for the shorts to pay tribute on the grain they cannot deliver. This same interest is supposed to be long some wheat in Chicago.

The continental wheat man has been buying no wheat by the way of the gulf for some time, and his bids are about 2 cents under what the wheat is worth on this side. But there are large wheat shipments being made constantly to the other side by those who made the sales some weeks ago, and on all this wheat the foreigner has a profit.

COPPER MARKET.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market had a better tone today. There was accumulative buying in all of the better class of stocks and the liquidating pressure seems to have been removed. Traders continue to sell stocks and the short interest is believed to be very large. Copper was a pound sterling higher in London. Advices from New York continue to quote Lake 15c bid. As a whole the coppers have acted very well on this break and they ought to do well when the rally comes.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, May 29.—The cotton market opened easy at a decline of 1 to 11 points, chiefly on nearer positions, on weakness was due to unsatisfactory cables, especially in regard to the spot sales in Liverpool, which reached only 4000 bales, confirming previous claims of subsidizing demand by spinners. Later the local market rallied on covering in anticipation of the holidays and before noon the trading level had been raised to yesterday's closing prices on the old crop months and an advance of 1 to 4 points on new crop positions with trading, however, slack and scarcely any new outside business included.

Cotton—Spot closed dull; middling uplands 11.70; middling gulfs, 11.95. Sales 19,800 bales. Cotton futures closed quiet. June 1.10; July 11.46; August 10.65; September 9.99; October 8.53; November 8.41; December 9.40; January 9.59.

NEW YORK MONEY.

DECLINE IN STOCKS

Continued Professional Hammering But Not Much Liquidation.

Bank Statement Showed Only Small Reduction In Loans.

New York, May 29.—First prices showed fractional gains over last night ranging up to ½ for the leading issues. Rock Island preferred and Denver & Rio Grande preferred advanced about a point St. Paul ⅝ and Sugar ¾. The dealings were not a large scale. A better tone in the London market, helped the advance here.

The under current of firm ness to the market did not arouse any pronounced demand for stocks. Buying went on cautiously in various stocks, but an accumulation of the general list was checked by the pressure of stock by Amalgamated and Rock Island after they had risen slightly. St. Paul rose to 150 and its advance helped toward more strength in other leading stocks. The specialties made a better showing than the railroads. Anaconda advancing 4, Colorado Fuel, Tennessee Coal, Manhattan, Leather pfd, Realty pfd and North American 1@1⅛. New Jersey Central also gained 3 and Hocking Valley 1. Of course, stocks that have not had a decline commensurate with the general drop go lower and it is likely that there are some issues that will see still lower prices, but we are inclined to believe now that practically all the liquidation has been completed as we said yesterday would probably be the case on the next slump and good medium grade and low-priced dividend paying stocks may be bought on a ten point margin without danger. Only a few stocks went below previous low figures in yesterday's decline.

Waldorf to Coe Commission Co.: The further decline in the stock market is attributed to forced selling which has been in progress for several days by men connected with important syndicates and underwritings. It is believed, however, that the last of this liquidation has been effected and consequently a more cheerful speculative feeling prevails in financial circles. Despite yesterday's disappointing out-come of the out-come of the stock exchange there is a strong feeling in quarters usually well informed that barring accidents the market will get an advance before getting more than a traders' set-back. It is argued that while prices are at about the lowest level recorded since the May panic two years ago, conditions outside of Wall street, with the exception of the unrest of labor are all that could be desired. A big crop of winter wheat is assured. Railroad earnings as indicated by the remarkable statements submitted this week by L. & N., So. Ry., and St. Paul are making phenomenal progress. In twelve months the circulating medium has increased about $115,000,000. In the vicinity of the stock exchange there is a situation completely dominated by doubt as to the future, a situation which is exactly the reverse which obtained at the height of the boom of two years ago. No report however improbable, was then discredited for long as it was to the taste of the optimist. Today the wildest rumors of the opposite sort find ready belief and the street steeped in pessimism is apprehensive of an industrial smash as well as further clapse in security values. It is to be noted, however, that the big financiers not only do not share the views, but maintain that as a rule prices and values are close together and that in the case of many securities quotations have fallen below intrinsic value based on earnings and dividends. This is true of Pennsylvania, B. & O., Mo. Pac., Atchison, So. Pac., R. I., B. R. T., and the Steels. The activity and decline in R. I. naturally makes it a leading topic, its weakness being ascribed to continued liquidation.

Ridgley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: A pretty good rally would seem to be in order today after such a violent break even if only on short covering to balance up over the holiday. Though some important interests are undoubtedly buying stocks, they seem to be satisfied to take offerings on a scale down and are making no apparent move to check the decline, so the bears thus far have had it all their own way. Beyond a doubt this great downward movement is nearing the end, yet there is very little encouraging news to buy on except for investment. But every break brings the market nearer the bottom and those in position to protect their purchases will surely make money by buying now. Stocks are on the bargain counter now though it is of course possible they may go still lower before the tide definitely turns. The chances favor a better market today with a higher closing and higher prices next week. I would not be surprised to see Rock Island at 43 before 33 and other stocks in proportion.

Town Topics: The action of the market yesterday was natural. After a deluge of liquidation like that of last Monday, a substantial rally such as occurred naturally follows, and sooner or later, according to precedent, prices sag back or are driven back by the shorts to near the previous low figures. In some cases, of course, stocks that have not had a decline commensurate with the general drop go lower and it is likely that there are some issues that will see still lower prices. But we are inclined to believe that practically all the liquidation has been completed, as we said yesterday would probably be the case on the next slump, and good medium grade and low-priced dividend paying stocks may be bought on a ten point margin without danger. Only a few stocks went below previous low figures in yesterday's decline. They were Amalgamated Copper, American Sugar, Canadian Pacific, Union Pacific, among the active issues. We are not bullish on the market because of the new low record prices. We are bullish on Wabash preferred, Mexican Central, Baltimore & Ohio, Erie, Manhattan, Missouri Pacific, Southern Pacific and United States Steel. The outlook for the market today foreshadows irregularity on account of uncertainty with regard to the bank statement and a lower opening two days' holiday, but as the market seems to be oversold we anticipate a hardening, with a likelihood of considerable covering on the part of the large short interest.

Coe Commission Co.: The market opened irregular with some improvement in values in some of the better class of stocks. Values have fluctuated within a narrow range and are generally unchanged. bank statement is better than expected. The market has evidently been greatly benefitted by the severe shaking out we have had and stocks have passed to strong holders and will not be on the market again until we have a material advance.

Harris, Gates & Co.: When prices were at their lowest yesterday and everyone was selling they would have no matter with the market, the head of a leading stock exchange house, which has been actively engaged in Pennsylvania since it was first listed here, gave the following as their view of the situation: "The present conditions which prevail in the financial world are due to the excesses committed by railroads and corporations during the past two years. The collapse in confidence which has occurred in the last thirty days seems to have been chiefly occasioned by the Pennsylvania railroad being compelled at the last moment to have their new issue of stock underwritten. This corporation, which has been foremost in the last six years in buying and branching out and which has ignored the possibility that they might not readily place securities as they desired, has been compelled to virtually acknowledge that they have come to the end of their rope."

New Steamer Easton Expected Saturday—A Tidy Craft.

Favorable Reports Come In From Stranded W. P. Palmer.

The steamer Easton which was recently purchased by Captain Singer for the White Line Transportation company is expected to arrive in Duluth early tomorrow morning.

The Easton is considerably larger than either of the other boats belonging to the White Line, the Bradshaw and the Bon Ami. The Easton measures 465 gross tons. She is 155 feet in length, 30 feet in beam and 13 feet in depth. The Mabel Bradshaw which is the larger of the other two vessels measures 332 gross tons. She is 125 feet in length, 25 feet in beam and 9 feet in depth of hold.

The Easton will be put on the run which was formerly covered by the Iroquois. While a less speedy and somewhat smaller boat than the Iroquois, the Easton is a very seaworthy vessel and will amply fill all that is required of her without the enormous consumption of coal which was required by the Iroquois.

The Easton will take out two excursions to Two Harbors tomorrow, which will give Duluth people an opportunity of inspecting the new vessel.

WILL GET HER OFF.

W. P. Palmer Reported to Be Nearly Released.

The Pittsburg Steamship company's local office announce this noon that it expected to hear that the steamer W. P. Palmer had been released this afternoon.

From information received over the telephone last evening at the office it was learned the boat is lying on a sand bar, her bow three and a half feet out of water and with nineteen feet of water under her stern.

The boat was making no water, and from the report, which was a complete story by the wireless operator on board from Asland, it is believed that not a particle of damage has been done the boat, though there may be some trifling repairs to be made later.

The tugs Inman and Schenck are working on the boat, trying to release her, and a force of shovelers taken from Ashland to the vessel to lighter enough ore, with which the Palmer was loaded, to make it possible to float her.

Several scows and clamshells and flat boats belonging to the Whitney outfit were at Ashland, and these were taken to Sand Island and will help release the grounded steamer. It is likely that a large part of the cargo will be placed on the scows until the steamer is afloat.

The local officials have not been able to find out the cause of the grounding of the vessel, or at least will not talk about it if they have found what it is believed that the thick weather of Wednesday conspired to get the ship away from its bearings.

TROUBLE BREWING.

Reported Disagreement Over Classification of Vessels.

A dispatch from Detroit says: Trouble is brewing between the Lake Carriers' association and the Masters' and Pilots' association over the wage scale and the classification of the vessels of the lakes. The masters and pilots have demanded the adoption of the classification made by the marine engineers and asks that the wage scale adopted by the lake carriers last March be applied to first, second and third-class steamers, according to the engineers' classification. The lake carriers will not agree to this, it is said, as they claim the engineers' classification, when applied to the masters and pilots, would be a discrimination against wooden tonnage even greater than it is in the case of the engineers.

The engineers' classification places all steel freighters of over 2100 tons in the first class and all wooden freighters of over 1200 tons in the same class.

A STORM PREDICTED.

Chicago, May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—A storm, which had its center out in Kansas caused stormy signals to be displayed on Lake Michigan and Lake Superior early today. The signals indicated a northeast and east gale. How hard the wind will blow will depend on what the storm does on its way eastward, and a special observation was ordered by Professor Cox for 4 o'clock this afternoon. It is not expected the storm will reach the lake until tonight.

GRAIN TRADE QUIET.

Chicago, May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Little or nothing was being done in the grain trade today, on account of three days' holiday on the board of trade. No work will be done at the elevators tomorrow, and Monday is the judicial election. There was no talk of a change in rates.

MUCH WRECKAGE SEEN.

Port Huron, May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Masters of down-bound steamers report passing a large quantity of wreckage about forty miles above Port Gratiot light. This is supposed to be from the steamer Pfohl, which partially burned and sank off Goderich. She was formerly the old steamer St. Paul.

CITIZENS REJOICE

West End and West Duluth Business Men In High Glee.

Victory In Twentieth Avenue Case Means Much to Them.

The people of Duluth, and particularly the business men of the western part of the city, are jubilant today over the decision by the state supreme court requiring the Northern Pacific to reopen the station at Twentieth avenue west, which has been closed since the Northern Pacific took in the St. Paul & Duluth.

This is the close of a long, hard struggle, in which the business men of the western part of the city have taken the lead and borne the brunt of the fight.

Just how sweeping the decision is is a matter as yet for more or less conjecture. One thing sure is that the road must put the Twentieth avenue station into operation again. Whether this means that the road must cease running through West Superior or not is another question, but the indications are that the decision means that the Northern Pacific will have to run its trains direct from Duluth to the Twin Cities, and that it will no longer be permitted to run through Superior.

When the St. Paul & Duluth was swallowed up by the Northern Pacific a change was made in the train system. Instead of running directly through to St. Paul, taking up the Superior passengers from a branch train, the trains went from Duluth to Superior over one bridge and then back to Minnesota again over another, reaching the city again at the West End station. This necessitated the closing of the passenger station at Twentieth avenue west and the one at West Duluth proper.

Immediately the people of the West End, as well as those of West Duluth, began a fight for a restoration of their service. This has continued ever since, and now victory seems to perch on their banners. The state railroad and warehouse commission made an order requiring the company to restore the Twentieth avenue station, but the company refused.

The commission then took the matter into court, and after a hearing before the district court at Duluth, that tribunal held with the people and against the railway company. The company appealed, and the supreme court took it up. This court's decision was just announced today, and, like the others, it is favorable to the demands of the people of Duluth.

The decision is very important to the people of West Duluth and the West End, and, indeed, to all parts of Duluth. Many have looked upon the plan of the Northern Pacific in running its trains to Superior as an infringement upon the road's agreement with the state to forever maintain the old line of the St. Paul & Duluth wholly within the state. The road claimed that it was doing this, because it came back into the state before going to Superior, before leaving the city limits. At the same time, in a freight case the Northern Pacific has been claiming that business sent that way is interstate traffic.

Among the West End people who have been active in the fight are John J. Moe and C. O. Nelson. Mr. Moe could not be located this afternoon, but Mr. Nelson, when he was informed of the victory, was greatly elated. He had much to do with starting the sentiment that resulted in the prosecution of the case.

"I have been unable to see," he said, "how the decision could have been otherwise. The victory is a big one for the West End and indeed for the entire city. Its importance cannot be measured in dollars and cents. As I understand it, it means that the Northern Pacific must run its trains on this side of the bay."

West Duluth is interested in the matter as well. While the case involved the Twentieth avenue station, the people of West Duluth claim, and with reason, that the same rule will apply to their station. Therefore the West Duluth Commercial club will get together tonight and jollify on the strength of the news from the supreme court at St. Paul.

The railroad may be able to figure out some system whereby it can heed the orders of the railroad and warehouse commission, as the supreme court directs, and still take in Superior with its main train on its way to St. Paul. This will be difficult, however, and unless something is figured out the road will probably have to go back to its old system and run its trains through Duluth on the old line, taking on Superior patrons in some other way.

FOR THE CARNIVAL.

Duluthians Will Go to Illinois For a Conference.

A committee of the Duluth Carnival and Amusement company will leave next Tuesday for Dixon, Ill., where a carnival is in progress all next week, for the purpose of conferring with the Ferarl Brothers relative to the attractions the show company will bring to Duluth during the big carnival and fair in July. The people interested in the local enterprise will insist on the very best attractions that Ferarl brothers have on the road owing to the fact that this will be the first time that a carnival or amusement on so large a scale has been attempted in Duluth, where the people demand the best.

Negotiations are still going on with the railway companies coming to the head of the lakes relative to the reduced round trip fare that will be made to Duluth during the carnival week. Concessions of one and a third fare for the round trip have already been made but efforts are being made to get an even better rate in view of the large number of pople in the Northwest that the enterprise is expected to reach who will desire to come to Duluth.

"The "booster" buttons are taking like wildfire and are disappearing by the bushel.

SWAMP LAND CASES.

Copies of the New Rules Received Here.

Copies of the amended rules in regard to swamp lands in the state of Minnesota have been received at the local land office. Hitherto the only news received in Duluth concerning the new regulations was a letter stating that the celebrated La Chance decision had been reversed by the secretary of the interior, and many points in the new ruling were not clear to the local officials.

The La Chance decision which was handed down by the secretary of the interior in 1886 said that field notes of the surveyors were but prima facie evidence and that if it could be proven affirmatively that any tract of land was not swampy such a tract did not pass under the grant.

There are seven sections in the new code o rules. Section 1, says:

"All existing contests between the state and actual settlers whether settlement be made before or after the survey shall be disposed of under the rule announced in the La Chance decision."

Section 2. "All other existing contests in which no claim of settlement is made shall be determined by the field notes of the surveyors.

Section 3. "In future surveys of the public lands of the state of Minnesota great care shall be exercised that exact surveys be made."

Section 4. "All contests or controversies concerning the swampy or non-swampy character of the public lands of the state of Minnesota whether heretofore or hereafter surveyed shall be determined by the field notes."

Section 5. "No contest or controversy heretofore carried to a hearing and a decision shall be in any manner affected by this decision."

It is also provided that the silence of the field notes in regard to the swampy or non-swampy character of the land shall signify that the land is dry.

This decision of the secretary of the interior will dismiss a large number of cases which have been for a long time before the local officials and do away with an immense amount of litigation which has proved very costly to the state.

BONDSMEN ARE LIABLE

For Personal Injury Inflicted By Sheriff, Says Court.

St. Paul, May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—The bondsmen of the sheriff of Anoka county cannot escape an action brought by a citizen against them for personal injuries inflicted by the sheriff. So the supreme court holds in the case of Cyrus E. Hall vs. John Tierney et al.

Tierney, as sheriff of Anoka county, visited Hall's place on July 2, 1901, and demanded possession of certain cattle under a chattel mortgage held by the Deering Harvester company. Hall refused to deliver the cattle unless the sheriff would show him proper papers in replevin. The sheriff thereupon, says the complainant, attempted to forcibly enter the premises and take the cattle. Hall resisted, and claims that Tierney and his deputies thereupon assaulted and beat him and arrested him and locked him up in the jail at Anoka without a warrant.

Hall sued the sheriff and his bondsmen for $5000. They demurred to the complaint. Judge Giddings overruled the demurrer on the part of Tierney, but sustained it as to the bondsmen.

Two appeals were taken to the supreme court.

Hall appealed from the order sustaining the demurrer of the bondsmen.

Tierney appealed from the order overruling his demurrer.

The supreme court affirms the lower court's order as to the sheriff and reverses the order as to the bondsmen.

As to the claim that the assault by Tierney was the act of an individual and not official, the court says:

"Such an act, although unlawful, is one done by the officer under color and by virtue of his office, and constitutes a breach of the condition of the bond."

Justice Collins says in the syllabus:

"First—The object of an official bond is to obtain indemnity against the misuse of an official position for wrong purposes; and that which is done under color of office and which would obtain no credit except for its appearing to be a regular official act, is within the protection of the bond, and it must be made good by those who signed it.

"Second—Held, in an action brought against a sheriff and his sureties upon his official bond, that each of two separate and distinct causes of action were sufficiently stated in the complaint as against a general demurrer."

LOOKS WARLIKE.

London, May 29.—According to a dispatch to the Times, the situation in Manchuria is unchanged, and all accounts agree that Russia is preparing for contingencies. A well qualified military officer on the spot reports that Russia is making extensive preparations, including the placing of orders for 250,000 tons of coal, which betray a warlike attitude. Steamers, says the correspondent, are constantly unloading coal and breadstuffs at Port Arthur. M. Lessar, the Russian minister, is expected to arrive in Pekin tomorrow.

THREATENS CAVE-IN

Michigan Street Paving Is Threatened With Serious Injury.

Retaining Wall at Eighth Avenue West Considered Unsafe.

Four hundred feet of Michigan street paving is threatened with an expensive cave-in if immediate steps are not taken to compel the building of a retaining wall on the south side of the thoroughfare, between Sixth and Eighth avenues west.

The matter was discussed with considerable apprehension at a meeting of the board of public works this morning, and it was finally decided to ask the council to take the matter up, the railroad companies interested having failed to heed the warnings of the board.

A portion of the street is already giving way, where the railroad companies have taken earth away up to the street line. The city was compelled to do this paving at considerable expense to the permanent improvement fund, owing to the exemption from local assessments of all railroad property, and the city officers say that if repairs to the endangered section should have to come out of that fund at this time it would mean a delay in many very necessary public improvements of a permanent nature that are being asked for in other parts of the city.

On Monday the board will have the first hearing on assessments for the paving of East Superior, between Sixteenth and Twenty-third avenues, and also for the paving of South Lake avenue from the viaduct to the ship canal.

Yesterday was the last day for paying, without penalty, the assessment of East Michigan street, and out of an assessment of $7916.77, the sum of $6700 was paid in.

STOPPED THE STRAPPING.

Exciting Episode Takes Place on Park Point.

Park Point came to the front with a new and thrilling human interest story yesterday.

Coming home from school late a little 12-year-old girl was met by an angry mother and a large strap.

The woman beat the child terribly, according to a number of witnesses, until suddenly one large hero loomed up in the neighborhood. He saw the woman strike the girl across the head and the way he kicked over the sand dunes in his effort to reach the scene of activity caused some people to run in doors and hide.

He caught the strap, took it away from the woman and she sprang at him. He gave her a severe thrashing with the strap and finally shook her like a rat.

Then the man and woman talked it over, the hero threatening to prosecute and the woman agreeing not to punish the child in that manner again.

COW PUNCHERS FORM ESCORT

Salt Lake City, May 29.—The special train bearing President Roosevelt and party pulled into the Oregon Short line station from the north at 8:30 this morning, amidst the blowing of factory whistles and the shrill yell of cattle punchers and the enthusiastic welcome of thousands of people gathered at the station.

As the president stepped from the train he was met by Governor Wells, Mayor Thompson, Col. J. B. Bubb and Secretary of Agriculture Wilson. The president greeted them warmly and after chatting a moment the party was escorted to carriages. The street for blocks was lined with military, civic and fraternal organizations, and as the carriages passed the organizations fell in line. Preceding the president's carriage was an escort of mounted police, while fifty Rough Riders, splendidly mounted and in typical plainsmen's attire, acted as a special escort.

The procession included a battalion of the United States infantry, two batteries of the United States artillery corps, National Guard of Utah, under command of Brig. Gen. John Q. Cannon, veterans of four wars and a large body of fraternal organizations.

Bringing up the rear were nearly 600 mounted cow punchers and sheep men, many of them having come over 150 miles of rough trails to greet the president. The sunburned, brawny plainsmen in their sombreros and blue front shirts formed the most picturesque part of the parade and the president rode in his carriage and bowed in response to their wild cheering.

Excursion trains had been run from every point in the state and more than 5000 saw and cheered the president here. Among the spectators were many old Mormons, many of whom had come across the plains with Brigham Youngs.

Nine thousand school children, every one of them waving a flag, greeted President Roosevelt as he stepped from his carriage and mounted a platform. The reception given him by the youngsters evidently pleased the president very much and he smiled and bowed repeatedly.

All the healing, balsamic virtues of the Norway pine are concentrated in Dr. Woods Norway Pine Syrup, nature's own remedy for coughs and colds.

London, May 29.—Our Lassie won the Oaks stakes at Epsom today. Hammerkop was second and Sky Scraper third. Dazzling, owned by J. R. Keene, and ridden by Lucien Lyne, the American jockey, fell during the race.

New York, May 29.—The injury to the Constitution, which had her topmast carried away during the race yesterday, is today being rapidly repaired and from present indications she will start in tomorrow's race. Another topmast is to be set up today.

A SURE THING.

It is said that nothing is sure except death and taxes, but that is not altogether true. Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption is a sure cure for all lung and throat troubles. Thousands can testify to that. Mrs. C. B. Van Metre, of Shepherdtown, W. Va., says: "I had a severe case of Bronchitis and for a year tried everything I heard of, but got no relief. One bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery then cured me absolutely." It's infallible for Croup, Whooping Cough, Grip, Pneumonia and Consumption. Try it. It's guaranteed by all druggists. Trial bottle free. Regular sizes 50c, $1.00.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE SALE.—Whereas, default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage given to secure the payment of the purchase money of the premises therein described with a power of sale therein contained, duly executed and delivered by Fred B. Patterson, mortgagor, to Elisha G. Gay, mortgagee, bearing date the 19th day of March, 1898, and duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds of St. Louis County, Minnesota, on the 26th day of March, 1898, at 9:30 a. m., in Book 164 of Mortgages, on page 26; and,

Whereas, said mortgage and the debt thereby secured were, by an instrument in writing, bearing date the 8th day of April, 1898, duly assigned by said Elisha G. Gay to C. Herman Philipp, which said assignment was duly recorded in the office of the register of Deeds of St. Louis County, Minnesota, on the 11th day of April, 1898, at 8:30 a. m., in Book 108 of Mortgages, on page 552; and,

Whereas, said mortgage and the debt thereby secured were, by an instrument in writing, bearing date the 19th day of December, 1902, duly assigned by the said C. Herman Philipp to said Elisha G. Gay, which said assignment was duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds of St. Louis County, Minnesota, on the 28th day of May, 1903, at 2:15 p. m., in Book 182 of Mortgages, on page 463; and,

Whereas, default has been made in the payment of said mortgage debt, and there is actually due on said mortgage, at the date of this notice, the sum of $515.00, principal and interest, $55.50 taxes paid by said mortgagee, and $25.00 attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure; and no action at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover said mortgage debt, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by reason of said default and under and by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in said mortgage, to-wit: All that tract or parcel of land lying and being in the county of St. Louis and state of Minnesota, described as follows, to-wit: The easterly one-half (½) of lot numbered fifteen (15), in block numbered four (4), of Gay's Division of Duluth, according to the recorded plat thereof, which said premises with all the hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder for cash to pay said mortgage debt, taxes, attorney's fees and the costs and disbursements allowed by law; which said sale will be made by the sheriff of said St. Louis County, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Duluth, in said county, on the 11th day of July, 1903, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as allowed by law.

Dated Duluth, Minnesota, May 29, 1903.

BUST OF SENATOR DAVIS UNVEILED AT ARLINGTON

Simple and Impressive Ceremonies By G. A. R.

Eloquent Oration By Capt. Henry A. Castle.

FROMTHE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU

Washington, May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The life size bust figure of the late Cushman Kellogg Davis, senator from Minnesota, was unveiled today at Arlington cemetery with appropriate ceremonies by the several posts of the Grand Army of the Republic, department of the Potomac. The bust, which is of white marble, and executed by the famed Italian sculptor, Signor Trentanove, rests upon pedestal of reddish brown granite, such as has stood for centuries in cemeteries of Italy. It is highly polished and increases from two feet square at the top to nearly five feet at the base. Just below the base of the bust, chiseled in relief on the four sides of the pedestal, are the words: "Soldier," "Scholar," "Statesman," "Friend," while half way down, on one surface is the inscription: "Senator Cushman Kellogg Davis, June 16, 1838—Nov. 27, 1900."

The ceremonies of the unveiling were of a simple, though impressive character, and conducted by the various posts of the Grand Army, department of Potomac, Judge Kimball, department commander, presiding.

The oration at the unveiling was delivered by Henry A. Castle, of Minnesota, now holding the position of auditor of the treasury for the postoffice department and a life-long friend of late Senator Davis. Mr. Castle's remarks follow:

A few months ago I stood on burial hill in historic Plymouth, besides the graves of Thomas Cushman, the preacher of the Pilgrims and his wife, Mary Allerton, who died in 1699, the last survivor of the Mayflower passengers—these two being the maternal ancestors of Senator Cushman Kellogg Davis, by whose grave we now stand in historic Arlington. Nathaniel Cushman, his great-grandfather, served nearly three years in the war of the revolution as a soldier from Connecticut, fighting at Germantown and Monmouth. His father, Maj. Horatio N. Davis, who still survives at the age of 91, was an officer in the war of the rebellion.

It is a far cry from Plymouth to St. Paul and back to Washington; from the first quarter of the seventeenth to the dawn of the twentieth century; from the frail bark tossing on wintry waves to a spot in the senate chamber of yonder marble capitol. But all that these transitions signify, all that the intervening generations of sturdy men and women presage, all that the special environments of his own life betoken, were transfused and concentrated and crystalized in him whose loss we mourn, whose virtues we celebrate, whose monument we unveil today.

Cushman K. Davis was born A. D. 1838, in the state of New York. In his infancy his parents removed to the frontier territory of Wisconsin. He was educated at the university of Michigan, graduating in 1857. He studied and practiced law in Wisconsin, served during the civil war in a Wisconsin infantry regiment, removed to Minnesota in 1865 and for thirty-five years occupied there the highest rank in his profession. During all this period he was the states' chosen orator for all great occasions. He was a representative in the legislature, United States district attorney, governor of Minnesota from 1874 to 1876, and a senator of the United States from 1887 until his untimely and la-

THOUSANDS OF PEOPLE HOMELESS AND UNFED IN STREETS OF DES MOINES

All Traffic Suspended In the Flooded City and Inestimable Suffering Prevails.

The Flood Situation Along the Banks of the Missouri and Kaw Rivers Is Growing Worse.

Des Moines, May 30.—Four feet of water was coursing through a large section of the East Des Moines business district at daylight this morning, due to a rise in the river of a foot over all past records and carrying away of a section of the levees dame at Centre street. Thirty-five thousand people in East Des Moines, five thousand in South Des Moines and four thousand in North Des Moines are practically cut off from communication with the main section of the city. Absolutely no attempt is made to transact business. The street railroad company does not expect to be able to start cars for a week. Six thousand persons are homeless, 50 per cent of whom are practically without shelter and have been unfed for twenty-four hours, during which time they have been exposed to the constant heavy rain with the thermometer close to the freezing point. Many women and children shivered all night long, in rain-soaked garments, unable to find a dry place on which to lie. Box cars were placed in reach of many of the refugees this morning, in which they could find shelter from the rain, but relief work is in a deplorable condition and far behind the needs.

Inestimable suffering prevails. The swiftness of the flood left no time for preparation or organization to combat it. Levees all over the city are yielding. In many places the Des Moines river is two miles wide. The damage cannot be computed because of the fact that close to 2000 buildings are submerged and it cannot be told whether they will be carried away. Great damage was done by the breaking of the levee along the C. B. & Q. tracks, which inundated the principal factory district. Several hundred thousand dollars worth of machinery is under water. A dozen ice houses have been washed away, resulting in an approximate loss of a hundred thousand dollars. The plant of the Daily Capitol is flooded and boats are plying through the business district in that vicinity. To get to the Northern hotel at 9 oclock this morning it was necessary to use a boat. The waterworks and electric light and power plant, by heroic efforts, were kept in operation this morning, although the water was entering them as fast as the engines could pump it out. If they should cease, the city would be without light or water and many big plants using electric power would shut down. Of the seven bridges in the city, but one is open for traffic. Railroad service is practically suspended. Water is over the Northwestern, Wabash, Burlington and Rock Island tracks in many places in the city limits. From Fort Dodge, above here, the Des Moines river is reported to be two feet higher and still rising. The weather forecast is for continued rains. The Racoon river above here is at a standstill.

Kansas City, May 30.—The flood situation along the banks of the Missouri and Kaw rivers here and west is far more serious than on yesterday and the predictions of the local weather bureau that the disastrous record of 1881 would be exceeded will doubtless be realized. The Missouri river continues to rise. This morning, the government gauge here registered 25 feet and 26 feet is the limit of 1881. A still further rise of two feet here is expected within another twenty-four hours. Heavy rains having fallen again last night for a mile around Kansas City.

The principal damage so far sustained in this locality is on the Kaw river at Kansas City, Kansas, and at its Armourdale and Argentine suburbs. It is estimated that 2500 persons have been driven from their homes within five miles of the mouth of the Kaw river. Perhaps 2000 of this number are at Armourdale where the streets are from two to three feet under water. Citizens, police and firemen, worked all night removing household effects, rescuing women and children and providing shelter for the homeless.

The north half of Argentine occupied mainly by railroad and packing house

MEMORIAL DAY IMPRESSIVELY OBSERVED THROUGHOUT LAND

Business Suspended to Do Honor to the Dead.

Elaborate Ceremonies at National Cemetery.

Washington, May 30.—With solemn and impressive ceremonies Memorial day was observed in the national capital on a more elaborate scale than ever before. Business was suspended, not only in the departments of the government, but also throughout the city. People of all classes united in perpetuating the memory of the heroic dead who, in countless thousands, sleep peacefully in the eight national cemeteries of the District of Columbia. Soldier monuments and statues on the government reservations were flag draped, flags on all of the public buildings were at half mast and the national colors, with folds caught in bands of crepe, were displayed from hundreds of private residences.

Notwithstanding the absence from the city of the president, who usually is a conspicuous figure in the Memorial day exercises at Arlington, the arrangements were elaborate and beautiful. They were under the direction of the department of the Potomac G. A. R. and included a parade of the G. A. R. posts, the old guard, other patriotic organizations and the militia of the District of Columbia, headed by the Marine band, decoration of monuments and graves, and addresses by men prominent in public life. The weather was perfect, cool but with a brilliant sun shining from a cloudless sky. The parade, which was formed on Pennsylvania avenue, with right resting on Fifteenth street, moved shortly after 10 o'clock. It was a picturesque pageant, composed not only of hundreds of veterans of the civil war and active military organizations, but also of the organizations of young men who participated in the Hispano-American war of 1898. The young veterans followed the old and demonstrated with them their loyalty to the flag.

After a short march through the city, the organizations in the parade boarded electric trains for Arlington, the most beautiful of national cemeteries, overlooking the historic Potomac, where the principal exercises of the day occurred. The procession reformed at the gates and a national salute was fired by the Fourth battery, United States field artillery, as it entered the grounds. Already the 18,000 graves in the cemetery had been strewn with flowers and each marked by a tiny American flag, the women of the societies auxiliary to the veterans' organizations having been engaged in this patriotic work since early morning. A touching feature of the ceremony—a feature typifying a country thoroughly united—was the decoration of the graves in the section of the cemetery where lie the Confederate dead.

The procession marched to the tomb of the "unknown dead," which had been beautifully decorated by a special committee and there the marine band rendered a solemn dirge. The march was then resumed to the section allotted to the Spanish war dead, where another dirge was played.

At the conclusion of the ceremony of decoration of the graves a great crowd gathered in the amphitheatre. There, under direction of department commander, G. Kimball, of the G. A. R., and other department officials, impressive services for the soldier dead were conducted. Hon. Charles Emory Smith, editor of the Philadelphia Press, delivered the oration of the day. He spoke as follows:

The beauty and sanctity of Memorial day, instead of declining, rather increase with passing years. The Grand Army beneath the sod steadily swells in numbers. The Grand Army which survives approaches closer to the final bivouac. The old graves lose none of their hallowed glory and new graves add to the wealth of flower and affection lavished on these consecrated spots. Here at Arlington is the center of a nation's tribute. If these flower-crowned mounds could open and yield up their noble denizens as they were in life there could assemble under these trees overlooking the broad bosom of the Potomac and yonder capitol of the republic the largest council of illustrious leaders of the war that could be marshaled at any place.

And, if they were thus assembled they would recognize that the republic has not been ungrateful to her defenders. She has been generous to the dead and to the living. This was your just due. You and those who fought with you did the greatest work which has ever been wrought for the nation. The issues which bred the strife of sections have been settled. The reunion of the sections has been sealed in common sacrifice. In the crucible of a common struggle the lines of sections should be melted and in the new destiny the map of the Union should no longer be divided into North and South.

The old issues have passed away. There are new questions of deep import—questions which come in part as legacies of the old and which may tend in some measure to excite the old feeling. There is the problem of dealing with a race which has been emancipated from slavery and yet not admitted to the privileges of freedom. The educational, the industrial and, in some degree, the political aspects of this subject demand the most serious consideration. The burdens and the responsibilities do not belong alone to either of the sections. We may not all agree on the elements of the problem or on the true solution. But may we not approach the question in the spirit of mutual forbearance. May we not discuss in a temperate and rational frame of mind? May we not strive to understand each other's point of view and each other's relation to the subject with fair and reasonable consideration of the various aspects which are entitled to weight? We have outgrown the old conditions and the old animosities. Why should we not outgrow the old narrowness and the old one-sidedness? Reunion does not mean the suppression of individual conviction or the stifling of frank expression, but why should it not mean larger liberality of spirit, greater breadth of understanding and higher effort for just enlightened and patriotic action?

The war for the Union had to come before we could enter upon our great national development. The conflict was irrepressible until the cause was eliminated. The war was necessary to make us a true nation. Our subsequent history, with all its resplendent advancement has been a natural evolution. We had to have the war of sections before we could wipe out sectionalism and enter upon real nationality. We had to have real nationality before we could become a real world power. We had to have broad world interests before we could sit at the world's counsel table. We already dominated the West because we were the great western power; but before we could exercise a voice in the East we had to become an eastern power, as we did when we went to the Philippines. And we had to become a true world power before we could become the world's best peacemaker and the most potent influence, as we are, for arbitration, humanity and civilization.

Late in the afternoon the monument and bust of the late Senator Cushman K. Davis, of Minnesota, was unveiled with appropriate ceremonies. Department Commander Kimball presided. The monument was unveiled by Little Marie Angelique Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Johnson of Minnesota and the oration was pronounced by Henry A. Castle of Minnesota, auditor for the postoffice department.

Under the auspices of the various posts of the G. A. R., memorial services were held in all of the cemeteries in the District of Columbia, national and private. The orators of the day at the several ceremonies were as follows:

Soldiers home cemetery—Edward P. Seeds.

Congressional cemetery — Captain Thomas H. McKee.

VIEWS ABOUT THE NATIONAL MILITARY CEMETERY, ARLINGTON, VA.

Memorial day is celebrated in no place in the United States with more reverence than at the National cemetery at Arlington, Va., just across the river from Washington. In this "city of the dead," which is generally considered one of the most beautiful cemeteries in the world, lie the bodies of thousands of men who wore the blue. Their relatives, in great numbers, are accustomed to visit the place on Memorial day to strew with flowers the graves of their beloved dead

TWO FAMILIES OF NEGROES DROWNED IN THE MISSISSIPPI

Sixteen Persons Lost Their Lives While Crossing the River In Skiffs Which Were Upset By Waves From Passing Steamer.

Memphis, Tenn., May 30.—Sixteen negroes, composing two families of cotton plantation hands, were drowned last night in the Mississippi river near Pecan Point, forty miles north of this city. They left the Chites plantation after dark in two skiffs. Waves from a passing vessel capsized the frail boats, and all hands save one went down. A lad, Will Bell, escaped by clinging to an oar. The following is a list of dead, several of whose bodies have been recovered: H. C. Roundtree, aged 56; Rebecca Roundtree, 40; Maggie Roundtree, 18; Geneva Roundtree, 10; Ella Roundtree, 6; Albert A. Roundtree, 3; Emma Roundtree, 5; infant Roundtree; Lewis George, 25; Neal Camm, 18; Curtis Gordy, 20; Joseph Moore, Lillie Moore, infant Moore, Andrew Roundtree, wife of Andrew Roundtree.

CHAPLAIN'S WORDS CONVINCING

New York, May 30.—Chaplain Vattmann, of the Twenty-ninth United States infantry, in his interviews with the members of the Sacred college, was very strong and energetic in speaking of the situation in the Philippines, says the Tribune's Rome correspondent. He demonstrated the necessity of abandoning immediately the present dilatory policy and of taking measures to solve promptly the different ecclesiastical questions, which are vitally important in determining the existence and advance of the Roman Catholic church in the Islands.

Chaplain Vattman openly the necessity of having soon an American clergy to take the place of the Spanish, and of raising at the same time the standing and prestige of the native priests in order to convince the Filipinos that Rome also was determined to begin a new regime in the archipelago.

The frank and earnest statement of the chaplain produced a deep and favorable impression at the vatican.

PITTSBURG JEWESS STRANGLED

Pittsburg, May 30.—Mrs. Lena Wolf, a Jewess, 25 years old, was found strangled to death on the floor of her home, 77 Magee street, about midnight. The suspicious action of her husband, Morris Wolf, when questioned by Deputy Coroner Dempsey, led to his arrest pending a further investigation. Neighbors heard screams coming from the house, and upon forcing an entrance, found Mrs. Wolf lying dead upon the floor. The condition of the room indicated a struggle. Wolf denied that there was a rope about his wife's neck when he found her, but when closely questioned, pulled a rope from his pocket and said he had taken it from her neck. The police are investigating.

BROKER ENDS LIFE WITH PENKNIFE

New York, May 30.—His health undermined by business worries, and his mind unbalanced for several days, Frank Emmett, a prominent cotton broker, who retired from business a few days ago, has ended his life with a penknife. Arrangements were being made to remove him to a sanitarium, but he escaped the vigilant attention of his family after dinner last night, retired to his room and there cut his throat. Mr. Emmett was a member of the cotton exchange and had been successful in business. He leaves a wife and six children. Mr. Emmett was born in New Orleans and was 48 years old.

TROLLEY CAR RACES THROUGH STREETS ENVELOPED IN FIRE

Startling Spectacle Is Presented to New Yorkers of Burning Car With Passengers Jumping and Fire Apparatus In Swift Pursuit.

New York, May 30.—A trolley car with blue and yellow flames shooting from beneath and speeding at a twenty-mile an hour rate, men making leaps from the rear platform, women screaming from the windows to be let off and two fire engines, a hook and ladder and a battalion chief in wild pursuit, was the stirring spectacle furnished yesterday on Third avenue. The car was filled. Just below 114th street a defective fuse set fire to the isolation in the bottom and in a few minutes flames began to curl out from beneath the car while white streamers of smoke filtered through and gave warning to the passengers of their danger. There was a mad scramble for the door but on the instant the conductor gave the signal for full speed ahead. So the motorman turned in an alarm, and when the first engine reached the avenue the blazing car was a block away. The engine started in full pursuit, and after two blocks was joined by another. On the sidewalk several thousand people joined in the pursuit. Its speed fanned the flames and there was momentary danger of them breaking through into the body of the car. A fire truck joined the race and then Battalion Chief Short wheeled into line. Down the avenue they sped, the burning car gaining every minute on its pursuers and the engines finally abandoned the chase.

The car finally arrived at one of the company's barns and the fire was extinguished with little damage.

MISS L. F. ACKER, 293 Second Ave., Detroit, Mich., writes:

"Peruna is a decided beautifier, better than any paint or powder, for it gives you that clear, smooth complexion and the glow of health, which no cosmetic can ever imitate. I was troubled for several years with humor of the blood, which inflamed the skin and at times covered my face with pimples and blotches. I had pains in my head, back and limbs, and was constipated. I took Peruna and in a short time all was changed. All the impurities of the blood were cleansed, the pains relieved, and I was restored to perfect health. My complexion is fine and clear and I do not need any powder to cover up the imperfections."—Miss L. F. Acker.

People generally think that pimples are a sign that the blood is out of order. There is a sense in which the blood is out of order when pimples appear. That is to say the blood contains too much nutritive material.

Blood is the product of digestion. Digestion may be deranged or it may be in excess of the needs of the body. Deranged digestion will lead to pimples, skin affections, and the like. Excessive digestion leads to thickened blood, coated tongue and the like.

There can be no doubt of it that a cleansing of the system is necessary.

The question arises "What is the remedy that will best accomplish this purpose?" Something that will cleanse and stimulate the mucous membranes of the body. Peruna is exactly such a remedy as hundreds of women can truthfully testify.

Catching Cold the Bane of Women During the First Warm Weather.

The Change From Warm Flannels to the Thin Muslin Underwear of Summer Is the Cause of Many Lingering Colds.

Miss Rose Fowler, Bussey, Iowa, writes:

"As I owe my health and strength entirely to Peruna, it is only just that I should write you this letter. About six months ago I contracted a severe cold which I neglected and which went from bad to worse. My head was stopped up, my throat and lungs sore, and I was in a pretty bad way.

"I then consulted a doctor, but after taking his medicines for over a week and deriving no benefit from them I determined to try Peruna, although I do not take patent medicines often. However, Peruna cured me in a short time and I bless the day when I first started to use it. I did not have to wait long before I noticed an improvement and in two weeks I was well."—Rose Fowler.

To catch cold in May is often more dangerous than to catch cold in January. The first warm days of May are depressing and tend to exaggerate the enervating influences of the cold.

If a person catches cold in January he is braced up by the invigorating weather, but to catch cold in May is unfortunate as the weather tends to depress rather than invigorate. In this way it frequently happens that to take cold in May is far worse than a winter cold. The May cold hangs on week after week. The usual remedies seem to do no good. It produces a complete lassitude of the whole body. Red, puffy eyes, sneezing and fullness of the nose, raw, red sore throat, hoarseness, want of appetite—there are a few of the symptoms of a May cold.

But should a cold make its appearance in spite of precautions don't wait for it to get settled. Begin to take Peruna at the appearance of the first symptoms. A few doses of Peruna at the beginning will do wonders. Don't take any quinine. It will only make you more liable to take cold again. Peruna cures a cold without damage to the system.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

TRAIN SERVICE DISORGANIZED

Floods Have Put Railroad Systems In Deplorable Condition.

Topeka, Kan., May 29.—The floods have thoroughly disorganized the train service in Kansas. General Superintendent Gruber of the Rock Island said today:

"Our system is in a deplorable condition. The Colorado Flyer has been tied up at this point, four trains at MacFarland and one at Wichita. Another train is tied up somewhere on the Harrington branch. The wires are nearly all down. Only the St. Joseph line to Topeka is working. At Durham the Cottonwood river flooded the depot and ran the agent out. At Keats a cloudburst at midnight put the track under three inches of water."

The Union Pacific system is in little better condition. At Calhoun Bluffs, east of Topeka, the tracks are covered. The water is over the first floors of the business houses at St. Mary's.

The floors of the Kaw river bridge at Rossville are covered. The tracks of the Union Pacific west of Topeka are under two feet of water in many places between here and Wamego.

The Santa Fe is unable to pass Lakeview, on the main line. A train reached Topeka at 9:30 from Kansas City over the Ottawa cutoff to Emporia, then east over the main line to this city. The Santa Fe will get a train west to Emporia to connect through trains, which will be run over the Ottawa cut off.

ONE MAN FOUND TWO MILLIONS

He Restored to Owners This Amount of Valuables.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 29.—The distinction claimed for Isaac Banks of No. 1624 Bainbridge street is that he has found more money in his time than any other person in the world. The average old man, looking back over the long life, can remember to have found altogether $5, or $10 or $25—or maybe only a few cents. But Isaac Banks has found $2,000,000.

Mr. Banks did not find all this money in a lump. He might, for instance, have picked up a check for $2,000,000 dropped by a plutocrat, and in that case his achievement would not have been particularly wonderful. But Mr. Banks' $2,000,000 was found at odd times—now $100, now $50, now $10,000, once $90,000 and once $160,000.

It was not all cash, but nearly all of it was negotiable—negotiable bonds and stocks and diamonds and pearls and sapphires, watches, rings and tiaras, things which are surely profitable enough. And Mr. Banks found, too, a good deal of cash—sufficient, indeed, had he kept it, to have made him a rich man. But of the whole $2,000,000 not one penny did he keep.

It would seem that Mr. Banks must have gotten, for finding so much money, some very large and generous rewards. These are the rewards that he received for restoring valuables worth $2,000,000 to their owners: In cash, $50; in present (gloves, necktie, books, etc.), $100.

The old man—he is 77—was for 33 years the guardian of a room in a bank—the Fidelity Trust company—that contained hundreds of safety deposit boxes, and to examine their boxes over 500 persons a day would visit the room. Some of these persons would drop money or jewels or bonds on the floor, or they would carelessly leave them lying on a table, and it was these valuables that Mr. Banks, during 33 years, found and returned. His health no longer permits him to work. Therefore the Fidelity Trust company has pensioned him. One of the directors of this company said to him on the day he left the bank for the last time:

"You have a record that will take you straight to heaven."

"Oh," wonds moved Mr. Banks profoundly. He often repeats them. He takes the same pride in that comment on his life which a British soldier takes in the Victoria cross. A very bald-looking old man, a typical Philadelphian of the old school, with a face to which an honorable and frugal life has given a look of distinction and uprightness, Mr. Banks lives quietly and comfortably.

DULUTH BALL TEAM IS VICTORIOUS

Defeated Grand Forks and Appears to Have Struck Its Batting Gate—Opening Game at Home to Be Played Monday.

NORTHERN LEAGUE.

Clubs—	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Winnipeg	8	1	.888
Grand Forks	7	1	.875
Crookston	6	4	.600
Fargo	4	5	.444
Duluth	2	7	.222
Superior	1	8	.111

All fans will please stand up and yell!

The Cardinals struck their stride yesterday, defeating the great Grand Forks aggregation with ridiculous ease.

It was rippling music that came glittering over the wires after the game, and there was nothing doing except merry laughter from all sides.

Briefly, the Cardinals played at a tremendous pace—fielding in peppery style and clouting the ball hard, far and often.

"Loole" Kline arrived somewhat with that overdue batting streak, and speaking of spectacular hitting, "Loole" ripped off a home run drive that sent the ball skipping from roof to roof among the humble cottages on the other side of the town. He also has a triple and a slugle.

Gehring pitched for Duluth, and the heavy-hitting Grand Forks team got dizzy trying to connect. The best they could do was six scattered hits, and Scharnweber, who is leading the league in batting, got two of these.

Although Shepard did not get a hit he caused the populace to sit up and remark things, by his daring base running, he scored three of Duluth's fourteen tallies.

Every person for ten miles around was feeling supremely joyful before the game, as the Grand Forks team had won eight straight games without so much as playing the last half of the ninth inning, and Duluth had only won one game in eight. Grand Forks was in first place and Duluth was in last place. Despite the threatening stick work of the Cardinals the day previous, the North Dakota fanatics were betting real money that the leaders would take all four from Duluth.

McCarthy, who pitched such a good game against Superior, was put in to beat the Cardinals. A few bases on balls and some rather tremendous stick work netted Duluth six runs in the first and two in the second. Even Olmstead, who has been doing light stick work, cracked off a double with two men on bases.

When the game was over, Grand Forks was out of first place and Duluth had worked up out of last place. The score:

Duluth	1	2	0	0	0	3	0	0	3	—14

Bases on balls—McCarthy, 7; two-base hits—Olmstead, Scharnweber, 2; Sessions; three-base hits—Klein; home runs—Klein; struck out by Gehring, 2; McCarthy, 6.

Umpire, Cussack.

The Duluth team will return tomorrow morning and the opening game of the season here will be played on Monday afternoon at the new athletic park, Thirty-fourth avenue west and Jenswold street.

With favorable weather it is expected that the largest crowd ever attending a game in the city will turn out, despite the disappointing showing of the Cardinals away from home.

There will be a parade down Superior street and out to the ball park at 1:30 in the afternoon, in which Mayor Hugo and members of the council will participate.

When "Newt" Randall, the local boy, who heads the Winnipeg batting order, steps up to the plate, he will face Mayor Hugo, who will twirl the first ball for Duluth. After that one trial the mayor will give way to Mueller, who will pitch the opening game. Corbett, said to be the best in the league, will pitch for Winnipeg.

Superior lost two games to Crookston yesterday. Freeman, who was reported to have signed with Duluth at Winnipeg, pitched for Lycan's team in the first game and Superior only got five scattering scratch hits. The score:

Battries—Crookston, Freeman and Howard; Superior, Daniels and Keefe. Umpire, Owen. Time, 1:40.

The second game was called at 6 o'clock in the evening and both teams put up a faster game, but Superior was unable to connect with Howell's style of curve. The score:

Superior....	0	0	1	1	0	0	0	—2

Batteries—Crookston, Howells and Howard; Superior, Davies and Keefe. Umpire, Owens. Time, 1:03.

Winnipeg hit Foulkes hard and took the second game of the series from Fargo by a score of 9 to 4. Bartos was touched up for nine hits by Fargo, but Winnipeg fielded well, while Fargo gave Foulkes the poorest kind of support. The score:

	R.	H.	E.
Winnipeg .. ..2 0 0 0 1 3 3 0 0—9	14	2

Batteries—Fargo, Foulkes and Bonthrone; Winnipeg, Bartos and Rogers.

Volz, the big pitcher from the New England league who should be wearing the Duluth uniform, pitched for St. Paul yesterday and won his game 5 to 1. The hard-hitting Louisville champions only got four hits off him.

Mueller had two hits in the first Grand Forks game and he is smashing the ball steadily.

Kline seems to have arrived with his old-time stick work.

Over 800 people saw the game yesterday, and the trip has been more of a success financially than otherwise.

The Eagle Clothing store team goes to Cloquet for a game tomorrow, playing Schaffer behind the bat, Sommers pitching, Sheehan first base, Winters second, Gebeau short, Bennett third, Ross left, O'Brien center, Dash right and Scobie substitute.

At the regular weekly shoot of the Minneapolis Gun club Thursday H. C. Hirschy broke all Northwestern records, killing 244 straight targets. Up to this time the records were held by J. L. D. Morrison, of St. Paul, who broke 200 straight at Duluth in 1901. Fred Gilbert also made 200 straight at Spirit Lake, Iowa, in 1902. Previously Hirschy had made 72 straight and Morrison 146 at the grounds of the Minneapolis club.

Brains count in baseball as much as they do in anything else. The man who can take in the whole situation at a glance and at the same instant suit his actions to his thought will win games where an equally good player who does not think will lose them.

Here is an instance which stands alone in all the annals of baseball—with a single exception:

In the days when the Cincinnati reds were at the top of the heap they went up to Wilmington, Ohio, to play an exhibition game. The Wilmington team was made up entirely of amateur players. The Wilmington pitcher was a young chap named David Reese and the Wilmington second baseman was a college boy named Lynne Smith. It was young Smith who turned out to be the hero of the most sensational play ever made in the national game.

The reds went up to the little town in the full flush of success, determined to have a lot of sport with the local players. The reds won the toss and went to bat. Young Reese, the Wilmington pitcher, was a first-class amateur, but naturally he was badly rattled at the idea of facing the best team in the National league, and for the first few minutes his work was poor.

The first two of the reds who went to bat hit base hits. The third man got a base on balls, and everybody on the Cincinnati line began to grin broadly at the fun ahead. All the bases were full and there was nobody out. It was a huge snap—a regular picnic.

Then old "Bug" Holliday, the fourth man on the batting list of the reds, picked up his club and sauntered up to the plate, blood in his eye. The first ball young Reese pitched "Bug" struck at. What is more, he hit it and sent the ball flying straight out over second base—a hit that under most circumstances would have been good for a couple of bases.

The minute the ball left "Bug's" bat all three of the men on bases started at the top of their speed for the next base. But they figured without their host.

Young Lynne Smith, second baseman for Wilmington, was equal to the emergency. He jumped straight up into the air and made a desperate lunge at the ball with his right hand. The ball stuck, and when he came down Smith lit with both feet fairly on the second bag. That put two men out—the batter and the base runner who had just started for third.

But young Smith was not yet satisfied. Without the hesitation of a moment—which would have been fatal—he started on the dead run for first base, and, unassisted, caught and touched out the base runner who had started from first to second when "Bug" made his hit. So, all alone and without assistance of any kind, young Smith made a record which is unique among ball players.

That triple play seemed to take all the starch out of the reds. It also had the effect of steadying down the Wilmington team and giving them sufficient nerve and courage to play to the best of their ability.

Reese, the scrub pitcher, struck out a lot of the reds' best batters, and at the end of the game the famous players from Cincinnati had to go home with a score of 4 to 2 against them.

It is, of course, easy to say that young Smith's wonderful catch was only a fluke. Perhaps it was. Admitting that, and admitting further that his coming down squarely on second base with both feet was a piece of good luck, it must still be admitted that it took quick and cool thinking to lead him, the minute he struck the ground, to start after the runner from first, instead of throwing the ball to home, which nine out of ten players would have been content to do.

Here is the story of a bit of quick baseball thinking, which resulted in turning Jack Doyle, of the old New York team, against his best friend, Tom McCarthy, perhaps the surest thrower and one of the quickest fielders who ever played in the National league.

Boston and New York were playing in the latter city and Doyle was at bat for New York. New York had a man on first and second. Tom Brown was the base runner on second, and he was famous as one of the fastest and most daring runners in the game. Tom McCarthy was out in the left garden for Boston.

Doyle lined out a sharp grounder into left field. McCarthy ran up on it, scooped it with one hand, and without stopping to look or even to gather himself together sent the ball sailing to first base.

Ninety-nine fielders out of a hundred would have thrown the ball to home in order to cut off the runner, particularly when a fast man like Tom Brown had been on second when the ball was hit. Doyle naturally figured that McCarthy for thinking a little quicker than anyfirst thirty feet on his way to second and was caught far off the base when he tried to get back. Brown meanwhile had stopped after overrunning third in fear of the natural throw to home, and no run was scored. The next man to bat flew out and the game was over, with Boston a winner by one run.

As McCarthy came in from field Doyle met him and in something of a huff asked why on earth McCarthy had thrown to first instead of putting the ball home, which would have been the proper thing to do.

"Just because I knew that everybody would think that was the proper thing to do," answered McCarthy. "Tom Brown, I knew, was well aware that I am a good thrower and he would stop, after turning third to see if I was socking it home. And you, I figured out, would run past first with the idea of getting to second while the ball was on its way to the plate. I won by doing just exactly what nobody expected me to do."

But Doyle declared that McCarthy had taken an unfair advantage of him, and the relations between the two never got back to the old friendly footing.

Anson was a quick thinker on the ball field, but once he released the best second baseman that ever wore a suit would follow the rule, so he overran body else on the nine.

The second baseman in question was "Bad Bill" Eagan. Everybody who remembers "Bad Bill" will admit his supremacy on the second bag. When the play we celebrate came up there was a base runner on second. Chicago was one run to the good, and it was in the last half of the ninth inning.

Dahlen was playing third base for Chicago. The man at bat hit a sharp liner down to second. "Bad Bill" started for it and at the same instant the man on second started for third base.

The liner was a clipper and the ball struck "Bad Bill's" hands and bounded out. It struck the ground ten feet away, with "Bill" right after it. Once he got his hands on it and without stopping to look where he was throwing "Bill" let the ball fly to third base.

Most ball players, after fumbling the ball, would have tossed it to the pitcher or thrown it home, if, after looking around, they saw that the base runner had started to try to score.

In this case the base runner, after touching third, went on for twenty feet and then stopped, for an instant, to see what had become of the ball. He saw it coming straight as a die for third base and went back there like a flash. But the ball beat him by ten feet. Unfortunately for the game and also for "Bad Bill," Dahlen had taken it for granted that Eagan would throw the ball to the home plate, and was not looking for it to be thrown to him. Consequently the ball went by him, going within four inches of his nose, and striking the grand stand far behind.

The result was that both base runners got safely home before Dahlen recovered himself and the ball, and the game was lost to Chicago.

Anson was furious and immediately after the game gave "Bad Bill" his release for making that throw. As a matter of fact, it was the best possible play under the circumstances, and Dahlen rather than "Bad Bill" was to blame for it not coming out as planned. If "Dal" had thought as quickly as "Bill" the game might have been settled right then and there.

HANDSOME GUN CLUB TROPHY

High Average Cut Presented to Club By Panton & White.

The Panton & White high average cup, which has been presented by that well-known local firm to the Duluth Central Gun club to be awarded the member making the highest average score, is considered one of the handsomest trophies ever shot for in the Northwest. The cup is of solid silver, standing about fourteen inches in height and elegantly chased and engraved. The handles are of genuine buckhorn and the whole is inclosed in a mahogany case with French plate-glace top and sides and plush lined. The trophy and cabinet is said to have cost Panton & White $225.

This week will occur the fifth shoot for this trophy, the rules governing the contest being as follows: Each contestant shall shoot therefor at fifty birds per shooting day during the season of 1903, which ends Aug. 1. On the last date there will be a final shoot of 100 birds each. The contestants breaking the highest number out of the 600 birds shot at shall be entitled to the cup until the close of the 1904 shooting season. The cup is to be contested for in 1904, and should the winner of the 1903 contest win a second time, he will be entitled to permanent possession of the trophy. In case the cup is won by another in 1904, it shall be shot for again in 1905. In case another contestant wins the cup in 1905, a final shoot for the permanent possession of the cup shall be held near the close of the season of 1905, between the contestants successively winning the cup in the previous three seasons. The winner of the last contest will become permanent possessor of the cup.

LIKE FAIRY TALES

Some Political Yarns Now Circulating Sound Very Funny.

Reported Combinations Calculated to Cause Brain Riot.

From current political reports there seems to be a necessity of either suppressing a crowd of originators of political pipe dreams, or of a general readjustment of ideas relative to the fight for the Republican nomination for governor in 1904.

Here are some of the tales that are told:

Dunn and Heatwole have no compact, but after a short period of disguising their hostility by Judas smiles and caresses, are drifting apart and showing the real state of their feelings toward each other.

Dunn is no longer an enemy of Van Sant, but is flirting with his forces, and is even coyly and admiringly slapping the solid form of the governor on the back and telling him he is all right.

Van Sant is a candidate for a third term.

Van Sant is not a candidate for a third term, but will help Dunn.

Van Sant is not a candidate for a third term, but will see that Dunn does not get the nomination.

Heatwole is a candidate for governor.

Heatwole is not a candidate for governor, but will support Dunn.

Heatwole is not a candidate for governor, but will fight Dunn.

Of course it is manifest that not all of these tales can be true. Sundry inconsistencies will suggest themselves at once and bear out this statement.

The situation seems to lend color to the report that there is no agreement between Dunn and Heatwole, but both of these gentlemen are crafty individuals, and if there is one it would not be very good politics just yet to let people know about it. If there is no agreement there is a large doubtful quantity in the situation that wants to be elucidated before calculations go very far, and that is Heatwole's position. What is he working for and what does he want? Is he a candidate for governor himself, and if not, has he a candidate? If he has a candidate, who is he?

The report of an alliance between Van Sant and Dunn is preposterous and amazing in the extreme. While it is well known that politics makes strange bedfellows, it never made a stranger population for a political bed than Van Sant and Dunn. If this story is true. They have been very dear enemies for some time; their ideas are diametrically and irreconcilably opposed; in short, they can more easily be imagined in the attitude of seeking each the other's scalp than attempting to promote each other's peace, health and prosperity.

While Frank Eddy is not generally considered to be a very formidable candidate, he has certain elements of strength. It is whispered, and the whispers are accompanied by some show of proof, that he has the support of Senator Nelson and his friends, which certainly gives him a start. While he may not come close to the nomination, he will probably have strength enough, if he stays in until the convention, to have something to say about the outcome of the fight.

Most calculations on this situation sooner or later get to Joel P. Heatwole, and when they leave him it is only to return to him again. While he has his depreciators, he is a strong figure in the state field. He is a shrewd organizer and an artful political plotter. He is also an ambitious man, and one who keeps an end long in mind and works toward it when others do not suspect its existence in his brain. Senatorship or governorship, whichever it is, he has some such end in his mind now. Whether he has planned to have it materialize this time, or whether his plans involve assistance to somebody else this time that will hand it for him another time, nobody knows; at least, nobody that will tell.

The mention of Mayor Hugo's name as a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor has created considerable comment and none of it has been unfavorable, except one remark by Olpense, of the Anoka Union, who makes a business and profession of being crabbed, and who ill-naturedly granted some remark about Duluth's hogging everything. The Fairmont News develops a charming and much appreciated feeling of warmth toward Duluth, and discusses the matter as follows, referring to a report that Duluth might have a candidate:

"If true, we hope Duluth will soon trot him out and let us see what he looks like. If he is a good man and all right on the corporation question he can count on a great deal of support in Southern Minnesota. Judging by our own feelings none of the candidates so far mentioned exactly fill the bill, and down in this "neck of the woods" we have a warm spot in our hearts for Duluth. Trot him out and let us look at him."

Aside from the mention of Mayor Hugo, the St. Paul Globe has recently published a report that Duluth is so sore over Odin Halden's defeat for the nomination for state auditor last year that she is going to spring a candidate for governor. The St. Paul Globe seems to be aspiring to a reputation as the mother of more wild wild and improbable yarns than any other paper that ever existed. Within a few weeks it has sprung several, such as the report that the state auditor had discovered that the state was being cheated out of royalties on its iron mines, and that the steel trust was fostering an enterprise whereby the mining regions were to be converted into a new state, which it could rule. The report referred to above is evidently from the same imaginative factory. Duluth politicians know pretty well where to lay the blame for Mr. Halden's defeat, and there is no intention whatever at this end of the state of trotting on a candidate for governor.

Evangelistic Services.

Judge J. C. Moody, of Newburg, Ind., is to be in Duluth during the coming week in connection with the work of the Bethels. He will conduct evangelistic meetings at the Lake avenue Bethel Sunday, Monday and Wednesday evenings and at the branch Bethel Thursday and Friday evenings. Judge Moody is a man of much force and strong convictions. He was recently elected judge of his city and since his election has caused the closing of every saloon and gambling house.

TO HELP OTHERS

HE WORTHY OBJECT OF ALDERMAN HOSKEN'S DAUGHTER.

Not a Charity But a Desire to Do Something In the Interest of Humanity—Her Statement.

Miss Rhetha Hoskens, the only daughter of Alderman John Hoskens, of No. 634 Cherry street, Grand Rapids, Mich., with the worthy object of helping others, makes the following statement:

"I was partially paralyzed, bereft of speech and unable to walk without support. My parents had given up all hope of my ever being well, for the best physicians had treated me without helping my case. We all thought I was doomed to die.

"The paralysis was over my entire left side and so affected my organs of speech that I could hardly make my simplest wants understood. With the assistance of a chair I could manage to get across the room, but I was nearly helpless.

"My trouble began with what the doctors called poverty of the blood, and I kept growing weaker and weaker in spite of their medicines. Then, when prospects seemed darkest, my mother decided to have me give up all other medicines and take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. They acted like magic. In less than a week after I began their use I found I was improving. We were all overjoyed. I continued With Dr. Williams' Pink Pills faithfully, and the dreadful paralysis disappeared, my strength returned and I became the healthy girl I am today. Everybody who knew me regards my recovery as simply marvelous. I am always glad in the interests of humanity to tell what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People did fer me."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are unlike other medicines because they act directly on the blood and nerves. This makes them invaluable in such diseases as locomotor ataxia, paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after-effects of the grip, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions and all forms of weakness either in male or female. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are sold by all dealers, or will be sent postpaid on receipt of price, fifty cents a box, or six boxes for two dollars and fifty cents, by addressing Dr. Williams Medicine company, Schenectady, N. Y.

HOUSEHOLD SCIENCE

Club Women Propose New Department In Normal School.

To the Editor of The Herald:

For some time a number of prominent Duluth club women and many of the public school authorities have thought it advisable to have their daughters taught domestic or household science in the graded schools. Mr. Denfeld has been broached on the subject and has felt it an excellent plan, but the appropriations have not been sufficient to meet the expense.

Nothing daunted, a year ago some of the women turned to the resident manager of the normal school and asked that a department of household science be introduced and maintained in the normal school, but again the plea was no appropriation for it. For a while there seemed no prospect for this measure, however, hope revived in the hearts of these women when they read in the columns of the daily papers that the state legislature had passed a bill appropriating a substantial sum for the expenses of the Duluth normal school. A representative of these women called on the president, Mr. Bohannan, and Mr. Washburn, our local member of the board, and asked their good offices in bringing the matter before the board this summer. Both these gentlemen were sympathetic and felt it a good idea. Mr. Washburn viewing the matter from a legal standpoint, said that there was no law governing the board under which they could establish such a department. Our spokesman argued that we should start the precedent, that the emergency of the times demanded it; that it is now difficult to procure help of any kind and that something must be done along this line to relieve the burdens of the overworked mothers and wives of our families; that the time is now ripe for it and by giving the students of the normal school the opportunity of receiving instructions in the scientific and practical methods of domestic or household work, they in turn could teach it in the graded schools. As a clever little woman said to me when talking on this subject, "why should not our daughters be trained to make comfortable and happy homes as well as that our sons should receive training in manual labor?" Never, until the study of household science is made compulsory in the graded schools, where all are equal, will we be able to manage our household problems in an efficient and intelligent manner and adjust the economic questions arising between mistress and maid.

The result of the interview these gentlemen proposed that the club women of Duluth assist in establishing this department of household science by equipping two rooms in the normal school building for this purpose and they felt that the board might be induced to maintain the department throughout the year, furnish the fuel and a teacher respectively in cookery and sewing in the most approved and scientific methods.

Of course we can not at once reckon upon the cost of equipping a room each for cooking and sewing, but it seems that with united action from the club women of Duluth this end might easily be accomplished.

The women and young girls of Duluth will also be given the privilege of instructions and demonstrations in cookery and sewing upon the payment of a very small fee, and it is hoped and expected that many will avail themselves of it.

This matter would have been carried before the woman's council this week for action, but owing to the absence of Mrs. Washburn, the president, and Miss Ensign, the secretary, it was impossible to do so. The normal board meets next Tuesday, June 2, and through the daily papers is the only way the women can be reached before that time. A petition will be circulated so that a number of the club women may have an opportunity to sign it in time to present it to the board meeting on that day. Many others no doubt would be glad to sign it, but since the time is so limited we fear we may not reach them and we trust they will understand the reason.

I have been requested to say that the establishment of this department of household science in the normal school would in no way interfere with the school of domestic science or demonstrations in cooking that may be arranged for by the Y. W. C. A.; that at present they have no definite plans and the work would not be along the same lines.

We feel assured that the mothers and wives of Duluth desire some relief in their household burdens and we trust that they will co-operate with the club women and the Normal board in making this plan a success. Yours very truly,

MARY B. STATHAM.

DECORATE THE CITY

Traveling Men Urge Its Proper Adornment at Convention Time.

Thousands of Visitors to Be In Duluth at That Time.

Preparations for the convention of the United Commercial Travelers of America for the jurisdiction of Minnesota, the Dakotas and Montana, are progressing splendidly, and as the date of the meeting draws nearer the outlook for its success grows brighter.

The convention will be held June 12 and 13 in Duluth, and it is expected that the delegates, members of the order and their friends and families, together with others whom the low railroad rates will attract, will number fully 5000 people whom the Duluth council and the city will entertain during those two days.

The programs are complete, and have already been published. The arrangements committee, consisting of Burt Holcomb, W. H. Wilson and C. W. Sutton, is working actively and effectively, and there will be few points overlooked.

The merchants of the city, who may be expected to reap some benefit from this large crowd of visitors, will be asked to do their share to make the convention a success by decorating their places of business on Superior and First streets. Orders have been sent in for large quantities of bunting, and it is believed that enough has been ordered to meet the demands, but in case more should decorate than are expected, the members of the committee say that it will be well to make purchases early. The stocks of bunting that have been ordered have been placed with local retail stores.

MEMORIAL DAY IMPRESSIVELY OBSERVED

Glenwood, Prospect Hill, St. Mary's and Mount Olivet, jointly—Hon. John W. Yerkes, commissioner of internal revenue.

New York, May 30.—Very appropriately, New York chose Decoration day for the unveiling of Augustus St. Gaudens's equestrian statue of Gen. William T. Sherman, erected by the citizens of the metropolis in the plaza at the Fifty-ninth street and Fifth avenue entrance to Central park. This ceremony was the principal event in the city's observance of the day. It was preceded by a parade of troops, the G. A. R. and Loyal Legion, and of which Maj. Gen. A. R. Chaffee was grand marshal. The parade was reviewed by Governor Odell and Elihu Root, secretary of war, who were accompanied on the reviewing stand by Mayor Low, the officials of the chamber and guests. The cord which unveiled the statue was drawn by Master William T. Sherman Thackara, a grandson of Gen. Sherman. Augustus N. Hiles presented the statue to the city and Mayor Low accepted it.

The ceremonies closed with a benediction by Bishop Potter.

In all the cemeteries in and about the city and at Grant's tomb at Riverside drive memorial services were held.

Milwaukee, May 30.—Memorial day in Milwaukee was celebrated in the usual manner. The graves of over 1000 soldiers in about a dozen cemeteries were decorated with flowers and flags by veterans of Grand Army posts. The veterans of the national soldiers' home had their usual exercises and parade and dedicated a monument, the memorial address being delivered by Col. John L. Mitchell. A big public meeting was held in the exposition building this afternoon and a parade by the national guard followed the meeting, at which patriotic anthems were sung by 2400 school children and patriotic addresses were delivered by prominent citizens.

St. Paul, May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Memorial day opened with the usual decorating of the graves of all soldier dead in the various cemeteries. Business was very generally suspended and the parade this afternoon was one of the largest in many years. Following the parade formal exercises were held in the central Presbyterian church. Former Senator Hiram Stevens delivering the oration on "The Victories of Peace.

Chicago, May 30.—Under a gloomy sky Memorial day was celebrated by a naval demonstration on the lake front in which more than a thousand veteran sailors took part. A flotilla of flowers and floral emblems was launched as a tribute to the men who lost their lives on river and lake. At the various cemeteries exercises were held.

A street parade of veterans, military and civic organizations will take place this afternoon. The column will be reviewed by Gen. John C. Bates, commander of the department of the lakes, Col. W. P. Rend, of the G. A .R., and the mayor.

A STORM OF INDIGNATION

Raised By Opposition to the Proposed Beecher Park.

New York, May 30.—A storm of indignation was raised yesterday at the board of estimate when opposition developed to the building of a memorial park to Henry Ward Beecher about the Plymouth church in Brooklyn, because Mr. Beecher had no national reputation.

The Rev. Newell Dwight Hillis, pastor of Beecher's old church, and other prominent men were on their feet in defense of Mr. Beecher. Dr. Hillis made an impassioned speech, showing how Mr. Beecher played such an important part in the history of the country, that President Lincoln recognized his as one of the saviors of the country. On the suggestion of Mayor Low the whole matter was referred to Park Commissioner Younge, of Brooklyn.

A MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCE

A Decoration Day Story—By Ada C. Sweet.

(Copyright, 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

The hot May sun was shining down upon the city. Men, women and children surged out from streets, alleys and courts, intent on reaching the fields and their encircling acres, here and there, shaded by trees and shrubs, and thickly planted with the Dead.

Abner Hull stood aimlessly looking abou thim. The street to which he had just walked from his cheap boarding-house, was one of those which led through the town. The old man walked aimlessly on in the direction taken by the overflowing electric cars. His face, lined and weather-beaten, was serious, almost grim. The corners of his mouth drooped, his shoulders were bent, his feet dragged, his clothing hung loose upon his gaunt frame; he looked, as he felt, forgotten and alone in the world.

Suddenly a shrill, faintly heard, but persistent strain of music came borne on the soft south wind, the thin stream of sound upheld up the throb of drums. Old Abner Hull stood still. Nearer came the music, and around a corner a square away wheeled a double line of blue-clad men. Old Abner hurried to the curbstone and stood awaiting the little band of veterans.

"Hello, comrade," called a hearty voice from the passing G. A. R. post. From the double file of men, one dropped out and grasped Abner's hand.

"Where have you been? Haven't seen no rheard of you for ten years!" said the friendly veteran. "Come on, fall in, let's see if you have any vim left in you! You've grown a little the worse for wear since sixty-four—like the rest of uds."

Abner was hurried on after the blue streak in the street, and was soon marching along in step with the somewhat slow pace of the veteran's march.

"Bring the good old bugle, boys, We'll have another song," chanted the war music.

"There it is! Good old tune!" said Abner, and he stamped along lustily with the others.

As they waited at the railway station for the train which was to carry the thronging people to Rose Hill cemetery, the old friends chatted, standing a little aside from the other comrades, after one or two introductions of the new-comer to this or that veteran.

"You don't ask any questions, Asher," said Abner, at last, just as the train was backing in. "And I know why; but I am going to tell you, all the same."

"All right," replied Hillis, "but wait till we get settled in the car."

When they were seated side by side, and the dingy houses began to fly past them as the train pulled out, Asher—his arm laid along the back of the seat, his hand touching Abner's shoulder, spoke:

"Now out with it. And first—you left home looking for work, and never came back, never wrote. That much I know. How about it?"

The broken old soldier sat in silence, for a time, embarrassed by his comrade's scrutinizing look.

Married soon after the civil war to a woman of strong will, rugged health, and coarse grasping nature, the gentle warrior had fallen an easy victim to petticoat government of the absolute despotism type. Four strapping daughters in time became assistants to their mother in the business of carrying on the family affairs. His fifth daughter, 'Mandy, looked like him and was like him in gentleness and refinement of nature, and she came to be the one ray of sunshine in Abner Hull's dull and sordid existence. All this had not to be told, anyone could see it, though no one could understand the misery of it, looking from the outside.

Again and again the returned wanderer ossayed to speak, but at last, recognizing the impossibility of the attempt, he turned his wrinkled, still old face, and looked resolutely out of the car window.

Then Hillis spoke:

"Your wife—she's been dead more than a year, hasn't she?"

"So they say—I've heard it from strangers. I haven't let any of the girls know I am back—I want to find 'Mandy, though. I believe she'd like to see me."

"Of course she would. The others are all married and living away from the city, but 'Mandy boards with Comrade Williams' wife, and works at the millinér's trade. Know that?"

Hull's face turned toward Hillis, now, and glowed with pleasure.

"Come," urged Hillis—"tell your story, we'll soon be at Rose Hill, and there won't be any time. Then I'll you more about 'Mandy. My wife thinks a lot of her."

"Of course I ain't got any excuse," returned Hull, in a husky voice, "and I shan't try to make any. It was the roving, mostly, the everlasting moving from house to house. The eternal restlessness and fault-finding I could stand, but the moving—Why, Ash, in the twenty-seven years we lived together we moved more than sixty times—I kept count, after the first five years—I got kind of crazy—sort of unreasonable over it—moving, always moving. The mattress worked—just a day later I was, you know—and I brought every cent I earned home, and twas never enough. And after awhile when the girls grew up they went to work, and then I was less than nothing—used to sit out on the back steps, there wasn't room for me in our little place—too many big strapping women.

"But," said Asher, "there was 'Mandy."

"Yes, there was 'Mandy! She used to come out and cuddle up to me, and then I'd have a minute or two of comfort."

"How was it you got up steam to leave at last?" asked his sympathizing comrade.

"Oh, well—it was in the hard times—I was out of work, and I came home one day a little out of sorts—peexlsh like—you know the way a man feels when he's been turned down about forty times in a day—looking for a job—and I went round the house to the back door, and glanced in at the window. The stove was took down. I knew what that meant. 'Mandy came out and said: 'We're going to move over to Clay street early tomorrow, Pa.'

"'Who's going to pay for carting us around?' says I, kind of gruff.

"'Why, Arabella!' answers Ma, coming on us sudden, and opening the back door. 'Arabella, your hard-worked girl, and you a-doing nothing.' And she went in and slammed the door. Then she opened it again and called out: 'And I don't care whether you come along or not!'

"Somehow, comrade, my heart seemed to rise right up into my neck and I choked. 'Mandy slid her cool little hand into mine. Her face was pale. She was only 14 years old. Mandy—but she had a lot of feelings.

"Then I just sort of shunk out of the back yard gate, and walked away. 'Mandy followed me as far as the gate, and I said to her: 'Mandy, tell your Ma I am going to look for work.'"

"Yes, and that's the last word we ever heard from you," said Hillis.

"I went right west, straight as a beeline, worked as a farm-hand, railroad-hand, anything. Got to Nebraska, and hired out on a ranch. And I never moved again, once on that ranch, till last month, and then I did want to see 'Mandy. So I and then I did want to see 'Mandy. So I came back, and now I wish't I hadn't."

"Well," continued Abner, brightening up, as the train slowed down on its approach to the scene of the day's celebration, "I am glad to be with you, comrade, and with the other comrades. I haven't worn my old button till today, in years. He lovingly fingered the bronze treasure on his dingy brown coat. "I believe I'll get courage to look up 'Mandy now, and I've got all my savings for her. Couldn't spend any money out on that ranch!"

The little battalion formed. The veteran musicians struck up an old-time marching tune, a wailing thing for the fifes, but sharply marked for marching feet by the drums. The colors were to the front, and with heads high, and aged forms erect, the line marched through the arched gateway of the Place of Dreamless Rest. At first sight of the soldiers' graves, each marked by a little flag, every veteran felt a momentary heaviness at his gallant old heart, but on they all marched between the rows of people lining the graveled roadway which led to the soldiers' monument. Marchers and onlookers were silent.

While the railway train had been scudding over the rails, two young people walked across the fields, from the end of the electric road, on their way to the Decoration day exercises.

"Let me carry that big bunch of flowers," said the man to the pretty girl at his side.

"No, Tom," the girl protested, keeping her flowers in her own grasp, but smiling upon the stalwart young fellow with a good deal of friendliness. "You have enough to do to take care of the basket of lilacs. And they are the most important. White and purple lilacs seem just made for Decoration day."

"Do you come out here every thirtieth of May?" asked Tom.

"Yes," answered the girl, "and this time I am so glad you are with me. Before, I had come alone."

"I can guess why you come," said Tom, edging as near to his companion as the peace and dignity of the state—and of the young lady herself—allowed.

"I don't know whether father is living or dead," said 'Mandy. "but it is because of him that I bring flowers out here every Decoration day. I make it a point to put flowers on the graves of the unknown dead, or those with no stone to mark them."

Her eyes filled with tears and she turned her head away from Tom.

"I shall always be with you, after this," said Tom, quietly and earnestly. "And who knows but that your father may be with us, too, another year! Don't cry. I am in hopes that you will see him again, one of these days."

The girl brightened. Hope shone in her face as it turned toward Tom.

"If he should come, Tom, and we should be in our own little home, would you be good to him?"

"I will, 'Mandy, you may be sure of that," said Tom, with a seriousness that was convincing.

As they neared the cemetery gates the two became thoughtful and reverent. The roads that led to it were black with people. All men, women and children were carrying flowers. The lovers entered the gate in silence.

Just as the young couple reached the foot of the mound on the little hill by the soldiers' monument, they heard the throh of drums. They drew aside and stood under the shade of an elm, to see the veterans march by.

"There's father!" said Tom, as his eye encountered, from a distance, that of Asher Hillis. And then, at a warning gesture from the elder Hillis, Tom guided the girl who was with him, as she still watched the little procession, toward the screen made by a clump of lilacs and snowballs, near a little footpath which led away from the crowd surrounding the monument, where the formal exercises were to be held.

"What is it, Tom," she said. "I was going to hear the singing, and the speaking."

"Wait a minute," whispered Tom, "here comes father, and who's that with him?"

Asher Hillis had the stranger by the elbow, and was steering him toward the young people. At the edge of the little plot of grass where they stood, the two veterans stopped.

"Abner," the voice of Hillis was low and a little tense, "look at that young lady, that's my boy Tom. And the girl—"

"Father!" In a moment 'Mandy's arms were around the wanderer's neck, and the grass was covered with 'Mandy's peonies and pansies.

Tom gathered them up for his basket and together he and his father walked away, joining a band of veterans as they started upon their work of decorating the graves of soldiers marked "Unknown."

"Abner shall stay with me," said Asher Hillis, "until 'Mandy marries and settles down." He noted the flush on his son's cheek, and smiled. "We've just got settled in our home," he continued, "and your mother's no mover. Abner shall live in peace what little time there's left to him."

And at evening the chowds were gone; the decorated graves were glowing, unseen by mortal eyes, in the dying splendors of the setting sun. The night came on. The flags and flowers held their brightness as long as there was a ray of light. And then at last the stars in their arching vaults of blackness shone down upon a world of shadowy, colorless shapes. It was night. And the glorious dead slept in peace.

THOUSANDS OF PEOPLE HOMELESS AND UNFED

employes is one big lake, and 500 persons are without homes. There are only eleven houses on a rise of ground which are clear of the water.

In the west bottoms, both on the Kaw and the Missouri, the water during the night had encroached still further upon the parts of the houses, the basement floors of many wholesale houses. At the stock yards a number of pens were flooded and water was beginning to run into the live stock exchange.

At Harlem across the river from Kansas City on the Missouri river, 50 houses are surrounded by water and have been deserted, the families in most cases leaving their household belongings.

Much suffering was experienced during the night but as far as known no lives were lost. The property loss is heavy.

Beatrice, Neb., May 30.—The Blue river has been rising steadily for thirty-six hours. It is now twenty inches above the high water mark of last year. Water is running over Court street. The south and west sides of town are two feet in the center part of town. In some places scarcely more than the roofs of the houses are to be seen. Many people moved out of their homes yesterday afternoon and the day before. Some who did not think the water would reach them were compelled to move during the night, in some instances the escape being made from second-story windows. The electric light plant was shut off yesterday and the waterworks plant was stopped at 4 o'clock this morning, the water having flooded the fire boxes. The Burlington and Union Pacific yards are flooded. The engines were taken out of the round house last night. The Burlington passenger station is flooded. No trains are expected to be able to get into town on any road today. No loss of life is reported.

Topeka, Kas., May 30.—North Topeka, with its 7000 inhabitants, is an island and can be reached by boat alone. Houses with the water below the second story window are the exception in the residence district. Three business houses collapsed early today, the lacy drug store, Hanley Bros., grocers and Mois & Meyers, grocers. They had been deserted and no one was hurt. The Jay-Thomas planing mill was destroyed by fire, started from a live wire. Gas, water and electric lights are shut off, while down Kansas avenue, the main street, water is pouring in a swift stream several feet deep.

Chicago, May 30.—At the general offices of the Santa Fe road, it was stated today that all trains were temporarily held by by the Kansas floods, the east bound at Newton and the west bound at Emporia. Early this morning all the wires of the road in that section went down and they were unable to obtain detailed information.

Ottumwa, Iowa, May 30.—With less than two feet to high water mark, the Des Moines river has flooded the lowet portion of the city, driving scores of families from their homes. Last night merchants in the three blocks nearest to the river cleared the basements fearing a flood.

Taken From an Insane Asylum and Cured By

DR. MITCHELL

A REMARKABLE STORY.

We give in detail the story told by a well-known Minnesota lady of restoration to health by Dr. Mitchell. While it may seem almost incredible, it is nevertheless true, and is vouched for by the lady herself, her relatives and neighbors. This almost miraculous cure can be easily substantiated by addressing Dr. Mitchell, who will give her address.

This lady says: "I was pronounced a helpless case after using medicine for ten years. I was placed in the insane asylum by two physicians as incurable. They said I had nervous insanity resulting from trouble of a private nature. After many months of suffering I was taken out and placed under Dr. Mitchell's treatment. In one month my reason was practically restored, and in four months I was perfectly restored to health and doing the housework for a family of seven on a large farm. When Dr. Mitchell took my case I weighed 100 pounds. I weigh now 163 pounds. Dr. Mitchell I know has restored me to health by his skill and treatment."

This is only one of thousands cured by Dr. Mitchell during the past ten years. Why do you suffer when you can consult the greatest magnetic physician in the world any week day between the hours of 9 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Consultation free. Take no thought of anything else until you have called upon this great healer and obtained his advice.

Harvard Football Player Would Test Labor's Side of Life.

The Love of Adventure Is His By Inheritance.

New York, May 29.—Facts have been learned which make it appear that William Scolley Whitwell, Jr., the Harvard football player, who disappeared Feb. 26 last, when he left Cambridge, ostensibly to visit his home in this city, may have suddenly resolved to gratify a desire which he had long cherished to test by actual experience the condition of the laboring man.

Whitwell had seen a great deal of the world for a man of 21 years. Born in California, where his parents lived until 1891, he came East six years ago to prepare for college. Since then he had not been at home except for an occasional vacation visit. These visits, however, had taken him across the continent a dozen times by various routes, so that he was familiar with all parts of the United States.

Last fall he played right guard on the varsity eleven.

When he vanished so mysteriously last Feburary his relatives recalled that he had been kicked in the head in the course of the Yale game. Though he had seemed to recover from the injury it might have affected his brain, and that overstudy had done the rest to cause a mental breakdown.

They think that if he were wandering about in a dazed condition, penniless as he must be if he has earned no money since he disappeared, he would have been taken into custody before this and his identity would have been discovered.

They scout the idea of suicide, because he had everything to live for—wealth, social position and splendid prospects—and his disposition was the opposite of melancholy.

It is known that young Whitwell, on leaving Cambridge, came to this city by the Fall River route. He was noticed by employes of the line when he came ashore from the boat at the foot of Murray street the following morning. From that time all traces of him are lost. He had told his chum, Mr. Hale, that he was going home for a short visit, but he had not informed his family of this intention.

It was at first reported that he had only about $25 when he left Cambridge. The Post-Dispatch has learned, however, that his father, Dr. W. S. Whitwell, who has since died, had sent him $125 only two or three days before.

Facts which are regarded as strongly supporting the new theory have been learned in Cambridge. It has been ascertained that young Whitwell, in addition to his hard work as student and athlete, had devoted much time to the Prospect Union, an institution under the patronage of Harvard, designed to afford the advantages of higher education to young men who cannot afford to go to college. The union conducts a night school for poor boys of Boston and Cambridge, in which Havard professors and students serve as instructors without pay. Whitwell had devoted himself to this work with much enthusiasm.

There was no special reason which should have impelled young Whitwell to come home at the time he left Cambridge. It has been said that he came on account of his father's illness, but Dr. Whitwell, who had suffered for years from Bright's disease, was then in his usual state of health. He lived until April 7, and it is believed that his death was hastened by worry over his absent son, who had then been missing six weeks.

Mrs. Whitwell is living in the family home, No. 37 West Eleventh street, with her two remaining sons, Cutler, 20 years old, who is connected with the International Banking company at No. 1 Well street, and a boy of 13.

What appeared to be a promising clew to the young man's whereabouts was received last Wednesday through President Eliot of Harvard, who forwarded to the family a letter he had received from Thomas Padgitt, a wealthy carriage manufacturer of Waco, Tex. Mr. Padgitt writes that he had read of the case and that a young man who fitted the description of the missing student and who gave the name of Whitwell, had applied to him about a month ago for aid to reach California. A photograph of young Whitwell has been mailed to Mr. Padgitt in order that he may make a positive identification.

MAY COME HERE.

Rev. Roderick Mooney May Become a Duluthian.

Rev. Roderick J. Mooney, who lectured at the high school this week, may be permanently located in Duluth in connection with the work of the Episcopal church. Tomorrow he will officiate at two churches. In the morning, at 10:30 o'clock, he will preach and officiate at St. Luke's Episcopal church, corner of Nineteenth avenue west and First street. In the evening, at 7:30 o'clock, he will be at the Church of the Holy Apostles, in West Duluth.

Rev. Mr. Mooney is located in the southwestern part of the diocese and while he is somewhat reluctant to break up his home relations there is much impressed with Duluth.

THE TRACK SETTLES

Trouble Experienced In One Block on East Superior Street.

Rails Twice Settle Several Inches—Broken Main Caused Trouble.

The street railway company is experiencing unexpected difficulties in getting its new track between Fourteenth and Fifteenth avenues East on East Superior street set.

Last winter a water main in that block burst, and saturated the earth for a considerable distance. Then the water froze, and the result was an upheaval of the ground.

After the street railway company had got its new rails and the cement had hardened it was found that the track had settled. It dropped two or three inches, and had to be torn up and reset. This had hardly been done before it was found that it had again settled a couple of inches, and a repetition of the process is again necessary.

Laying of asphalt will begin next week and those who are not familiar with that material will be astonished at the rapidity with which it hardens and becomes available for use.

Asphalt laid one day is ready to be driven over the next. It is placed while it is hot, and just as soon as it cools it is as hard as it ever will be.

This means that the longest and hardest work is the laying of the foundation. This work is progressing nicely, and when the work of spreading the asphalt begins next week, the completion of the work will be rapid.

TREASURER'S RECEIPTS.

Enormous Sum Has Been Paid In Today.

Although this is a legal holiday, there has been a big business at the county treasurer's office in the matter of the payment of real estate taxes. The office opened at 8 o'clock this morning and there was a long line of people waiting, anxious to pay their taxes and get way for the rest of the day. Yesterday the tax receipts ran over $100,000, but Deputy County Treasurer Williamson said shortly before the noon hour that the receipts today are running far ahead of yesterday, that he believed it would be a conservative estimate to place the total amount of the last day's receipts at $700,000.

The office will remain open for the payment of taxes until 6 o'clock this afternoon, after which time no payments will be received until Monday morning, when the 10 per cent penalty will attach.

The opening of the county treasurer's office today necessitated the opening of the county auditor's office, but aside from these there were no county offices open for business.

WOULD DELAY A YEAR.

East Superior Street Owners Not In a Hurry.

East Superior street property owners will ask the city to delay paving between Sixteenth and Twenty-third avenues East until next season and also to postpone levying an assessment for this improvement until that time.

A meeting of many interested was held in The Herald building yesterday and the matter was discussed from all sides. In view of the uncertainty of getting the paving down this year a majority of the owners were in favor of leaving the improvement until next year and having a practical demonstration of a Duluth winter on bituminous macadam and sheet asphalt.

The bituminous macadam is being put down on Nineteenth avenue East and the asphalt on Superior street between Eighth and Sixteenth so that the climatic effect on the two pavements can be carefully watched.

The property owners also passed a resolution declaring it the sense of the meeting that the city should take immediate steps to have all gas, sewer and water connections put in to the curb without much delay in order that the ground may be well settled when the paving is started next year.

It is likely that the city officials will be opposed to this latter suggestion, owing to the extra expense that would be entailed in taking up and putting down the present paving, and for the further reason that they do not believe in making water, gas and sewer connections in that district every twenty-five or forty feet until the future of the district is assured.

No Outside Contracts.

Joseph Miksak, of Chicago, whose lumber interests are on the shores of Longyear lake, is in the city and will go to visit his sawmills the early part of next week.

"The mills will just about take care of our cut," said Mr. Miksak at the Spalding hotel this morning, "and we won't have any time to carry outside contracts. The season has been a satisfactory one, all things considered. No large sales have been made within the past week that I know of."

Mr. Miksak is of the belief that the labor situation in Chicago and other cities and in big industries portends of a great financial sag within a short time, and he says that Chicago is feeling it sharply already.

BOY POISONED.

St. Paul, May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Albert Brodhag, 15 years old, is sick of arsenic poisoning at his home, 162 Como avenue. His father, C. F. Brodhag, believes that the poison was administered intentionally in some milk which the boy drank Monday. He thinks some person gained an entrance to the house Sunday night and placed the arsenic.

NEW TRAFFIC MANAGER.

Carl F. Rowe Takes Position With Marshall-Wells Co.

Carl F. Rowe, chief clerk in the office of W. W. Walker, general freight agent of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic railway, has accepted the position of traffic manager of the Marshall-Wells Hardware company.

Mr. Rowe has been in the general offices of the South Shore for several years, and is counted a bright and energetic young man with a future before him in the railroad business.

He assumes his duties as successor to David G. Black at the Marshall-Wells institution Monday morning.

The position at Marshall-Wells is considered one of the most important stations as traffic manager in the West, aside from St. Louis and Chicago, as the company has branches at Winnipeg and Portland, and the traffic of all the houses is under the management of the local manager.

Mr. Rowe is a well known young man in Duluth, and is popular with those who know him. He has been considered a valuable man in the South Shore general offices and the managers are sorry to see him leave.

YACHTS RACING.

Reliance, Columbia and Constitution Start Again.

Matinicock Point, May 30.—When the Reliance, Columbia and Constitution arrived at the starting line today for the fifth and last of the Glencoe series of races, the wind was blowing about eight knots and there was every indication that the wind would hold throughout the day and that the yachts would have a good race. Rapid work had been done on the Constitution, which lost her topmast in Thursday's race and she was at the starting line today with a new upper mast in place.

The preparatory gun was fired at noon. Constitution went over the line ahead of the starting gun and had to return. The yachts started as follows: Reliance, 12:15:00; Constitution, 12:15:18; Columbia, 12:15:27.

The committee selected course No. 3. This meant a dead beat to Eatons Point, a reach across the sound and a run home, a total distance of twenty-five miles.

Before the boats reached the first mark the wind fell off to scarcely three knots an hour. The Reliance held the lead and turned the mark first. The yachts were timed at the first mark as follows: Reliance, 1:56:10; Constitution, 2:00:18; Columbia, 2:02:38.

DULUTH IS LOSER

McCoy, Right Fielder, Was Brought In to Pitch.

Twirled Good Game But Grand Forks Man a Puzzle.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 30.—(Special to the Herald.)—Duluth lost a close and interesting game before a record-breaking Grand Forks crowd this morning. The Cardinals were shy a pitcher and McCoy was brought in from right field. He twirled a great game, holding the Grand Forks team down except in the first and sixth innings.

Slette was a puzzle to the Duluth batters and was given almost perfect support by the Grand Forks team. The score:

SOME WOMEN ARE—WELL!

Two women did similar kinds of work for the Chicago Daily News several years ago, says the Brooklyn Eagle. One of them—let's call her Mrs. B—received $20 a week and the other—Mrs. X, if you please—received $15. Mrs. X seemed contented enough with her salary until she learned that Mrs. B received more. Then there was trouble, and John Ballantyne, the managing editor, was in the very thick of it. Mrs. X haunted his office with complaints about the injustice of this discrepancy. Hardly a day passed that she did not give him to understand she was as able a writer as Mrs. B; that she ought, therefore, to have as much pay; that she was being treated very shabbily.

Ballantyne bore with this as long as forbearance seemed to be a virtue. Then, one day, when Mrs. X had poured out her jealousy in especially violent language, he thought to shame her with fine sarcasm.

"Very well," said he, "I will reduce Mrs. B's salary."

He looked her squarely in the face. He wanted to see the blushing effect of this sharp thrust.

"Well," she answered, with triumphant gratification in her spiteful tone, "I should think it was time you did."

Some women are so funny—as funny even as some of us men!

EFFECTS IN ART GLASS.

There is nothing more effective to be found for the table today than the art glass, which comes in so many tones and iridescent colors, says the Brooklyn Eagle. One especially beautiful piece was of iridescent golden colors, imprisoned sunbeams was all one could liken them to, and the designs were extremely attractive. Some water goblets on a very slender stem, the bowls lily shaped, or perhaps tulip shaped; champagne glasses, wide and rather deep; beer glasses, shaped like sand glasses or old; individual salt cellars, comports, olive dishes, butter plates, fruit plates and all the numerous table accessories one can well imagine.

AT WEST DULUTH

The favorable decision handed down by the supreme court in regard to the Northern Pacific service to West Duluth and the West End was the principal topic under discussion at the West Duluth Commercial club meeting last evening.

A formal vote of thanks was passed by the members of the club expressing their appreciation of the efforts of C. O. Nelson of the West End, who has been very actively interested in the case and to whose efforts and perseverance the carrying of the movement to a successful outcome is due. The motion was presented by H. H. Phelps, chairman of the railway committee of the club. Mr. Nelson was present and replied briefly.

The members of the club are all enthusiastic over the success which they have met with in their efforts and it is likely that when the first train is run through West Duluth it will be the occasion for a celebration on the part of the citizens of the western portion of the city.

The terminal railroad question was also taken up and discussed at the meeting last evening. The railroad committee was instructed to meet with a committee from the West End Business Men's association in order to take steps looking toward a restoration of the service on the terminal road such as was contemplated at the time the franchise was granted by the council.

Messrs. Frey, Merriman and Sang were appointed a committee to investigate the turning down of the delinquent tax settlement by the county auditor. It was believed that a settlement had been arrived at which would meet with the favor of the state auditor and the owners of the land but it was reported to the club that the payment on the proposed plan had been refused.

Mr. Hendricks of the school board was present and explained the position of the board in regard to the change in the length of the school year. A spirited discussion followed but no action was taken.

Superintendent Green of the Duluth Crushed Stone company was present but owing to the lateness of the hour the discussion of the pavement question was laid over until the next meeting.

A number of new members were received into the society last evening. The officers report that the attendance and interest in the meetings of the club have been steadily increasing.

IRVING SCHOOL ALUMNI.

Preparations for the annual banquet of the alumni of the Irving school are nearing completion. The banquet is to be given June 5, in the assembly hall at the Irving school. An elaborate menu is being prepared. The banquet will be preceded by the election of officers for the ensuing year. Dancing will follow the feast. The arrangements for the banquet are in the hands of a committee composed of the Misses Mallory, Lottie Mallory and Marie Tims, and Messrs. Kreidler and Anderson.

FAIRMOUNT ALUMNI.

Fifty members of the Fairmount alumni met last evening in West Duluth. The feature of the evening was a mock trial.

Robert Dun was arraigned on a charge of failure to perform the duties of his office. Phil Conway appeared as attorney for the prosecution. Martin Mallahi acted as the attorney for the defendant. After an exciting trial, in which both attorneys showed themselves to be shining legal lights, Judge John Kenny acquitted the prisoner, after which the court adjourned for refreshments.

JOSHUA EVERED'S FUNERAL.

The funeral of Joshua Evered will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock from St. Paul's Episcopal church. Rev. Dr. Ryan will have charge of the ceremonies. Interment will be made at Forest Hill cemetery.

Mr. Evered was a member of the Central Link lodge of the I. O. O. F., and the other members of the lodge will attend the funeral in a body.

CHURCH SERVICES.

At the Asbury M. E. church tomorrow evening Rev. Dr. Robert Forbes will preach his last sermon in Duluth before leaving for Philadelphia. In the morning the pastor will preach on "Waiting Upon the Lord." Sunday school will meet at 12 o'clock and Epworth league at 7 p. m.

Rev. W. J. Lowrie will preach in the Westminster Presbyterian church tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock.

Rev. R. J. Mooney will conduct services in the Holy Apostles' Episcopal church tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock.

At the Oneota M. E. church, corner of Forty-sixth avenue west and Halifax street, the pastor, Rev. E. K. Copper, will preach in the morning at 11 o'clock on "Unpleasant or Rainy Sabbaths," and in the evening at 7:45 o'clock on "Why Some Say They Don't Go to Church." Sunday school will meet at 10 a. m. The special music will be as follows:

Services will be held in the Norwegian Lutheran church, corner of Fifty-seventh avenue west and Wadena street, tomorrow at 10:30 a. m. and at 7:45 p. m. Sunday school will meet at 9 a. m.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

Go to Nygren's for wall paper.

J. P. Hammill, Miss Hammill and Miss La Fond will leave this evening for a three weeks' visit in Wisconsin.

George Bailey, a prominent lumberman of Aitkin, is in West Duluth today on a short business trip.

H. R. Patterson received a letter today from John Young, a former resident of West Duluth, at present residing at Colorado Springs. He reports business booming in the West and states that he intends moving to Pueblo.

Mrs. C. V. Black and daughter will leave this evening for a visit in Iowa, Mrs. Black's former home.

L. C. Morton, a prominent business man of Anoka, is in West Duluth today on a business trip.

Three picnic parties left this morning for Fond du Lac, to spend the day. Judge Cant and family were among them.

THE LAW VIOLATED.

Minneapolis, May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—F. N. Stacy, the expert accountant, who is examining the public records of Minneapolis, has found where $36,000, which should have been made part of the city permanent fund, was transferred to various other funds and expended in direct violation of the provisions of the Minneapolis charter.

INSULTING QUESTIONS

By Negro Porter Caused Suit Against Pullman Company.

New York, May 30.—Held a prisoner by a negro in a parlor car while on her wedding trip and harrassed by insulting questions that brought on an attack of fright and hysteria are the allegations made by Mrs. Olga A. Beckerle, in a suit for damages brought in the United States circuit court. The defendants are the Pullman company and the Pennsylvania Railroad company. Mrs. Beckerle is 17 years old and the action was brought by her husband of two months, Frederick Beckerle, who has been made his wife's guardian. Mrs. Beckerle asks for $5000 damages.

Frederick Beckerle is in business in this city. He was married to Miss Olga A. Beckerle, a distant relative, at the home of the bride's parents, at Richmond Hill, L. I. The wedding trip comprised a tour to Niagara Falls and thence to Washington, D. C. While en route from Buffalo to Washington, according to Beckerle, he noticed that while his wife was sitting with him, the porter never watched Mrs. Beckerle with unusual keenness.

When leaving the dressing room Mrs. Beckerle says she was surprised by the negro porter confronting her and holding her a prisoner by extending his arms across the doorway. It was while thus imprisoned that the porter is alleged to have placed several questions that so frightened the young woman that she became hysterical and cried. The porter cautioned Mrs. Beckerle not to tell her husband of the occurrence. Reaching her husband's side crying, Mrs. Beckerle told him of the porter's conduct.

Mr. Beckerle reported the occurrence to the conductor of the train and to the Pullman company's conductor. Then from Williamsport he telegraphed to the Pullman company's representative at Washington to meet the train with a policeman. The dispatch was not heeded.

On his return to New York, Mr. Beckerle wrote a letter to Robert T. Lincoln, president of the Pullman company, and another to Mr. Cassatt, president of the Pennsylvania company to which replies that were not considered satisfactory were received. The suit followed.

IN POLICE CIRCLES.

The Usual Quiet of Holidays Prevails.

Customary holiday quietude prevails in police circles today.

A Salvation Army drum soloist fell off the "water wagon" on Lake avenue and made quite a dent in the department routine, but that was all.

George Busha is the name of the Salvationist. Early in the morning he appeared on Lake avenue with his tenor drum rendering a series of tone poems that caused a stampede for the closed trouble shops.

A policeman says that Mr. Busha was so indecoriously intoxified that his use of conflicting themes and rhythms in drumming produced a confusion that was unmusical.

The fallen Salvationist finally tried to go to sleep on his drum and was locked up.

An eminently respectable farmer from near Hermantown evidently took Decoration Day literally. His decorations were black and blue, bunched rather inartistically around his right eye. Nevertheless Mr. Nelson had a lovely time before the police got him, his jokes being impressed on the minds of those that heard them with the flourish of a loaded revolver.

Mr. Nelson spent Memorial day trying to forget the past behind bars of the county jail.

Stephen Murphy and Robert Burns, pugilists, while talking of fighting in a Bowery saloon yesterday, so far forgot themselves that they mixed in a real scrap. Burns realized his mistake after he had been thoroughly beaten and felt his disgrace so keenly that he sprinted through a rear door just as a policeman corralled the winner.

MORE TROOPS FOR JACKSON

Danville County Guard Sent to Scene of Trouble.

Lexington, Ky., May 30.—Twenty men under Maj. Lillard, composing the Danville county State Guard, passed through the city this morning for Jackson in response to a request for more men made last night by Maj. Embry Allen. They will reach Jackson about 11 o'clock. Maj. Lillard did not know why they had been called on and, Allen sent a cipher dispatch to Col. Williams here at midnight and he wired Danville at once for the men to get ready to move at 6 o'clock.

Col. Williams, who is here and has been here fore several days, was seen after the troops boarded the train and asked why more troops were called for. He said:

"Maj. Embry Allen is in command at Jackson in my absence. I have not been there for several days and do not know what the situation is there. I have faith in his judgment and know he knew what he was doing when he called for them. I am at a loss to know what is the immediate reason for the call."

Jackson, Ky., May 30.—During the absence of Col. Williams, the commanding officer here has been Maj. Allen. They were in conference with other officers soon after Col. Williams returned today, accompanied by the Danville troops under Maj. Lillard. Col. Williams and Maj. Allen state that they were in need of more troops for relief. They have had only 120 in all and the new arrivals will not make the total force over 170 all told.

While the situation continues to be most strenuous martial law, hostilities are not directed against the troops or others, but are confined to the opposing local feudists.

THOSE WHO HAVE DIED

New York, May 30.—The death is announced here, says the Herald's correspondent in Paris of Bruce Price, of New York.

Mr. Price, who was president of the Architectural society of America and a member of many prominent New York clubs, was one of the best known architects of the United States. Mr. Price was born in Cumberland, Md., in 1845, his father being William Price, a distinguished lawyer, and his mother a descendant of the Bruce family of Scotland. He early displayed evidence of artistic tendencies, and studied architecture at home and abroad. In 1873 he went to Wilkesbarre, Pa., where he practised his profession four years, then removing to New York, where he has since resided.

Johannesburg, Transvaal, May 30.—Capt. Sir Edward Henry Pulse, who was press censor during the latter part of the South African war, was found shot dead in the bedroom of his residence here today.

TRACK AND FIELD MEET

Greatest Event In Western Athletics On at Chicago.

Chicago, May 30.—The track and field meet of the Inter-collegiate Conference Athletic association, the greatest annual event in western athletics, was held on Marshall field today and was participated in by 195 representatives of twelve of the leading colleges and universities of the middle west. The weather was extremely cold, with rain threatening throughout the day and a strong wind made record-breaking a remote possibility. The university of Michigan headed the list of entries with twenty-seven men, while both Wisconsin and Illinois had twenty-six men entered.

Twenty-three entries were accredited to Chicago and twenty-two to Northwestern. The remaining entries were divided as follows: Minnesota, 17; Iowa, 17; Purdue, 13; Indiana, 9; Oberlin, 6; Beloit, 5, and Missouri, 4. While the excellent all-around team representing the University of Michigan had been generally conceded first place, dark horses in many events made the final result somewhat problematical.

TACT IS NOT NEGATIVE.

"Assume a virtue if you have it not" was the injunction of the Bard of Avon, who could give pointers concerning human nature to any twentieth century student of sociology or any other ology. To the list of virtues that has come down through the ages this century adds the virtue of up-to-dateness, for a woman at all events, no matter how liberally endowed as to the other virtues, must be up-to-date in her dress if she would win recognition and position in the age, says the Brooklyn Eagle. When fashions change with lightninglike rapidity this is no easy task. Thus it is that it becomes necessary at times to assume this virtue, and a bright Brooklyn woman told a stoary the other day illustrative of her success in this direction on one occasion. She walked down the church aisle one Sunday morning wearing a five-year-old gown, but carrying her head so high that she attracted more attention than usual. Coming out of the edifice on the conclusion of the services, a friend remarked: "Another new gown? You are the most extravagant woman in the congregation." "New," was the reply, "this dress is five years old." "Never would have guessed it from the lofty way you held your head going down the aisle," retorted the friend.

"Um-m! That's a pointer," said the owner of the gown. "Hereafter when I do not want the age of my frock to be too apparent I'll carry my head extra high and folk will think I'm the most up-to-date mortal in the vicinity."

FREE BEER FOREVER.

Connected with the Church of the Holy Cross, near Winchester, England, is a charity hospital where "a manchet of bread and a measure of beer" have been given without question or price to every one who has asked it for nearly 800 years, says Leslie's Weekly. The endowment which makes this possible is in better shape than ever today, and the building used for the purpose will no doubt last as long as the old Norman and Transition architecture of the times of the Conquest and later buildings.

Legend tells us that on the site of the hospital there existed a religious fraternity which perished after the Danish ravages. But the earliest records of the place are its mentions in two papal bulls, dated 1127 and 1144 respectively, confirming the endowments, the actual foundation having been made in 1126. The founder was Henry de Blois, bishop of Winchester, brother of King Stephen, their father being Stephen, Count of Blois.

In making the grant De Blois wrote: "For the health of the souls of myself, my predecessors and the kings of England, I have newly instituted without the walls of Winchester, and forever to sustain thirteen poor, impotent men to be lodged, cared for, fed and nursed and properly so, another to be introduced as soon as any one shall be sufficiently recovered as to be dismissed with comfort and respect. Over and above these thirteen, corresponding to the number of Christ and His apostles, a hundred men shall be provided with dinner in the hall daily, and a manchet of bread and a measure of beer shall be given to all wayfarers presenting themselves at the hospital gate to the end of time."

HONOR THE DEAD

Veterans and Citizens Pay Respects to Departed Heroes.

Address of the Afternoon Meeting By Dr. S. P. Long.

Nature was gracious today, and after long stress of evil weather, brought forth a smiling day well suited to the observance of Memorial day.

The day was respected in Duluth with more than ordinary fullness. Most of the stores were closed all day, flags were flying, and a Sunday stillness pervaded the streets. There were few sports to mar the atmosphere of respect.

The exercises were not elaborate, but they were well attended and showed that there has been no less of appreciation of the noble efforts of the soldiers of '61 and '98. For Memorial day nowadays is devoted not alone to remembering the thousands of victims of the war of the rebellion, but to the lesser number of victims of the war for Cuban liberty.

The decoration of the graves of the soldiers was the first thing in order this morning. Details from the local posts of the Grand Army of the Republic visited the various cemeteries, in each of which there are comrades sleeping the long sleep. Over the mounds that shelter their battle-scarred remains flowers were strewn in the customary manner. Afterwards the women of the Relief corps, accompanied by the veterans, went down to the canal to cast flowers upon the waters in memory of the sailor dead.

This noon the veterans were given lunch at the post headquarters by the Women's Relief corps and the Ladies of the G. A. R. After lunch they marched to the High School, where, in the big Assembly hall, the public exercises of the day were held.

There were addresses by comrades and music by Florence Clement and by Sylvian Langlois and George Lyding, of the Metropolitan Opera company.

The principal speech of the day was made by Rev. S. P. Long, pastor of the First Methodist church. It follows:

"Forty-two years ago Abraham Lincoln issued his call for soldiers. In response to that call, during the next four years more than 2,500,000 men left their homes and loved ones, the pulpit, the school room, the desk, the factory and shop, and marched away to the South land to protect the Union, defend the constitution and save the flag. How well they did the work, the success that attended their efforts, is to be found today, not alone engraved in marble or on printed page, but is to be seen in the united country stretching from the gulf to the lakes and in yonder flag with no star missing in her glorious constellation. The task was herculean; only the great, the brave and patriotic could have accomplished it, only a man with 'stout muscles and sinewy heart, a hardy frame and a hardier spirit.'

"The little seam that appeared in the '40s running east and west across the nation along what we call 'Mason and Dixon's line,' which opened yet more in the '50s, became a yawning chasm in '60 and '61, separating the North and South. It was the object of the army of which you are a part to close the chams, bringing together again the dismembered Union.

"The Romans have a story of how the earth opened in the forum and the oracle told them it could only be closed by Rome devoting her most precious possession. The Roman hero, Curtius, mounted his horse, rode forward, saluting the eagles, and plunged into the gulf, when the ground closed over his head. Five hundred thousand men in panoply of war marched from their northern homes to this modern chasm and saluting the stars and stripes, plunged in and the mighty chasm was closed over them.

"Their comrades, ready to do the same heroic act, now came forward with extended hands and embraced their brothers across the line, binding together the North and South by bands of charity, fraternity and magnanimity, which, God willing, will last while time lasts.

"But we are to pay tribute to more than the five hundred thousand that died on the battlefield and in hospitals from wounds and diseases during the war. Since 1865 more than a million of the remainder have died and those that are with us today belong to a vanishing army, whose numbers are larger today than they will be again; who are now old soldiers and old soldiers they will remain until the bugler blows taps, when they will enter straightway into the 'low green tents whose curtains never outward swing.'

"We do well to honor our soldier dead, and honor all alike, whether it be Grant, Sherman, Sheridan, Meade, Hancock and Hooker, whose mausoleums and marble shafts tell of the nation's affection or those who lie in graves unmarked or who have died in straightened circumstances and have been buried, as so many have in this city, by their comrades, from the morgues with no mourner except their old soldier friends. It is well that all should be honored alike for it is only God who, after all, can tell who is first and who last in devotion and patriotism, who gave the most to his country and who suffered most for her sake. While we strew flowers on the graves of our dead, it would be well for us to remember that we are

"'To mourn not the dead whose lives declare
That they have nobly borne their part;
For victory's golden crown they wear
Reserved for every faithful heart.

'They rest with glory wrapped around
Immortal on the scroll of fame;
Their works, their praises, shall resound,
Their name, an everlasting name.'

"Those of you whom God has spared to be yet with us have had an opportunity of rendering a greater service for the country than those who fell during the war. Not only did you have the honor of fighting the country's battles in the '60s, but you have stood for something ever since. Your very presence has taught some of us patriotism; recalled the cost of a united country, and given a nobler reverence for the old flag. The nation has a right to be proud of the soldiers of the '60s, for they have given a good account of themselves. They have at no time been a menace to their country. Never has the question been raised as to what we would do with the old soldier. Laying aside his arms, he took his place at once in the ranks of those who were working for the development of the resources of the land. Wherever he went he was interested in the erection of schools and churches, in upholding the dignity of law. He has been found in all honorable walks of life. There is indeed no profession of which he has not been an honored member. He has been interested in politics and of all the presidents since the time of Andrew Johnson down to the present time, only two were not soldiers during the days of the rebellion—Grover Cleveland and Theodore Roosevelt. Ten governors of the state of Minnesota were enrolled with the army for the support of the nation. Not only has he taken care of himself, but he has during this time helped to take care of the government.

"I think that if the statistics were available, it would be found that the old soldier has returned to the government in taxes as much money as he received in pay during the war and his comrades have received in pensions since.

"Many things might be said further on this occasion, but I will conclude with the wish that God may spare you many days to teach patriotism, to set us the example of holding in blessed recollection our soldier dead.

"You wait for the bugle, the night dews are cold,
The limbs of the soldiers feel jaded and old;
The field of your bivouac is windy and bare;
There is lead in your joints, there is frost in your hair.
The future is veiled and its fortune unknown,
As we lie with hushed breath till the bugle is blown.

"At the sound of the bugle each comrade shall spring
Like an arrow released from the strain of the string;
The courage, the impulse of youth, shall come back
To banish the chill of the drear bivouac.
And sorrows and losses and cares fade away
When that life-giving signal proclaims the new day.

"Though the bivouac of age may put ice in your veins,
And no fiber of steel in your sinews remains;
Though the comrades of yesterday's march are not here,
And the sunlight seems pale and the branches are sear;
Though the sound of your cheering dies down to a moan,
You shall find your lost youth when the bugle is blown."

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Rhea Is Sentenced to Fifteen Years In Prison.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Fargo—Fifteen years in the penitentiary at hard labor is what Judge Pollock gave William Rea. Rea was originally arrested on a charge of enticing a girl away from home for evil purposes, but for lack of evidence the complaint was changed to kidnaping and conviction secured. He was arrested on a similar charge a few months ago and the case was so aggravated that Judge Pollock gave him the limit.

Thomas Martin and James Barry were given a year each for grand larceny, and Tim Nolan two and a half years for burglary.

Theodore Gagnier has been arrested as an accomplice of young Illian in the burglary of the residence of G. S. Barnes.

When the United States court convenes here June 9, the first case to be heard will be that of Miles vs. the Gaar-Scott company. Miles was operating a threshing machine owned by the company, and while on top of the machine in the performance of his duty, fell through into the cylinder and one foot was ground off. He sued for $10,000 and was awarded a verdict. The company appealed and the case was remanded for a new trial.

The state Sunday school workers have adjourned after what they term the most successful meeting ever held. The old officers were re-elected, including John Orchard as field secretary. It is probable the next annual meeting will be held in Jamestown, though the matter is in the hands of an executive committee. Plans were completed for a full representation at the world's conference in Jerusalem in 1904.

Mayville—In the death of Ole Halgims, Traill county has lost one of its old and respected citizens. Mr. Halgrims settled in the county twenty-one years ago. He was 75 years old. His malady was cancer of the face.

William Reinhardt, brother of Charles Reinhardt, well known here for twenty-two years, died Monday and was buried Tuesday. He was 62 years old and a bachelor.

Miss Ida Halvorson has returned from Minneapolis, where she was graduated from the teachers' course at the Northwestern Conservatory of Music.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Webster—The ceremonies connected with the laying of the cornerstone of the new Day county courthouse will take place on June 20. The Masonic lodge has been invited to participate.

The graduating exercises of the Webster high school took place in the opera house. Professor Hartrauft of Aberdeen delivered the address. The following were graduated: Andrea B. Aaby, Augusta C. Christensen, E. Lena Ray, Elsie M. Williams, Frances G. Canning, Jessie E. Hallock, Matilda S. Christensen, Robert Arthur, Rex Harris.

Professor W. D. Burealow, the principal, has given excellent satisfaction and has been retained for another year.

Huron—L. H. Deeters, living six miles southwest, has struck a fine flow of water in an artesian well. It is one and one-fourth inch bore, and is a little more than 500 feet deep. The water will be used for farm purposes.

Eddy O. Minard, an early resident of Beale county, died at a hospital in Rochester, Minn., after a surgical operation. The body was sent to Hitchcok where funeral services were held. Mr. Minard was about 63 years old.

ASSEMBLY CLOSES

Presbyterian Gathering at Los Angeles at an End.

Senate Asked to Expel the Mormon Apostle Smoot.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 30.—The 115th general assembly of the Presbyterian churches of the United States came to a close late yesterday afternoon, Moderator Coyle saying the final words that dissolved the assembly.

The 115th assembly has been one of the most remarkable in the history of the church in as much as it has disposed of important matters of denominational interest and as a commissioner said, "It cleared away all doubts and placed the church ready for a great forward movement."

The Mormon question came to the front as soon as the assembly was called to order yesterday and resolutions were adopted asking the senate to expel Senator Smoot from that body.

Routine business consisting of committee reports and overtures occupied the time of the commissioners up to 4:50 p. m., when the moderator declared the assembly dissolved.

The committee appointed by the general assembly of 1902 to nominate delegates to the eighth general council of the alliance of the reformed churches throughout the world at Liverpool, England, June 21—30, 1904, reported that they had selected the following:

The selections were made on the basis of the comparative strength of the several synods, care being taken by the committee to secure the representation of every portion of the church.

The report of the treasurer of the twentieth century fund showed that the contributions had been $12,029,063—the largest amount ever reported by the church for a single fund. Pennsylvania gave $2,756,155, New York $2,038,990, Ohio $1,026,647, New Jersey $892,773, Illinois $696,271, California $440,611, Iowa $398,467, Missouri $327,574, Baltimore $327,651, Michigan $317,599, Minnesota $299,243, Indiana $255,269, Colorado $195,448, and Wisconsin $112,502.

The larger part of the sum was given to home objects, the amount recommended for the boards of the church being $5,500,000, for the theological seminaries $2,700,000, and for colleges $5,000,000.

The cause of college education needs again to be emphasized. The contributions to educational institutions, including academies, colleges and theological seminaries amounted to $1,543,500.

The efforts put forth for the fnud, within their own bounds, by particular churches is highly to be commended, and has resulted for one thing in the payment of the debts, either in whole or in large part, of 1463 of our congregations. The congregations were never so little burdened with debt as at present. This most excellent condition of things opens the way for enlarged contributions to the boards of the church and other benevolent and educational agencies.

The report of the board of publication and Sabbath school work gave the following facts:

The Sabbath school and missionary department has now in the home field 14 synodical and 93 Presbyterian missionaries who, together with the one missionary in Cuba make a total of 108—an increase of 11 over the number in commission April 1, 1902. The labors of the missionaries have been highly successful. There were organized 1047 new Sabbath schools, and reorganized 363—In all 1410, with an aggregate membership of 44,623 scholars and 4878 teachers.

During the year 155 missionaries, including forty-two summer missionaries, were in the field for longer or shorter periods. The churches organized during the calendar year during 1902 from schools established by the missionaries were 71, of which 25 were Presbyterian.

The grants amounted in value to $8184, and contributions to the amount of $1792 were made to aid in the erection of chapels and other special objects.

The receipts were $144,631, and the expenses $148,562, the net balance at the close of the year being $30,228.

The net profits of the business department amounted to $29,514.

The board received during the year $74,582, of which $49,051 came from the churches Sabbath schools, young people's societies and individuals, an increase of $865 as compared with the previous year. The board paid out to students $23,859. Fortunately the amount received from legacies and other sources has been sufficient to enable them to make up the deficiency and to put $7000 into the reserve fund, which is kept for emergencies. The year has thus closed without debt.

The total number of candidates enrolled during the year is 611 of whom 176 are new candidates and 435 are candidates who have been under the care of the board in previous years. The increase last year was 13; this year it is 36.

Thus far the candidates for the ministry have shown, on the whole, a commendable disposition to comply with the requirements of a four year college course; and yet it must be acknowledged frankly that some come to the seminary very unprepared, notwithstanding the fact they almost invariably have, as our rules demand, a college diploma to show at their matriculation. Notwithstanding oratorical and other forms of contests, manual and other forms of labor made necessary by poverty, and religious engagements, sixty-three per cent of the whole number of men under the care of the board during the year have been marked high, or above medium, in scholarship, and a number have won distinction and borne off prizes for competition.

The special committee on sustentation reported that the total contributions to sustentation and synodical home missions in the nine self-supporting synods in 1901-2 were $90,383, and the contributions to the 2 were $90,383, and the contributions to the board of home missions were $1,026,252.

What constitutes an adequate support, the committee said, is a question the answer to which depends upon the location of churches and the circumstances of the business of the country. But whatever the conditions surrounding churches, the minimum salary of pastors, in the judgment of the committee ought to be at least $800 per annum with a manse. It is believed, however, that the general disposition of congregations everywhere is toward an increase in the sums given to ministerial support, and the benevolent sympathy of the churches in the more prosperous parts of the country with movements in that direction is certain. The situation in the church is such that a concerted effort by the Presbyteries, the synods and the assembly would unquestionably result in decided advance.

The special committee on vacancy and supply reported the following figures, showing the number of ministers employed and the condition of the churches: Pastors, 3523; stated supplies, 1448; home missionaries, 239; foreign missionaries, 214; honorably retired, 422; professors and teachers, 9 evangelists, 442; without charge, etc., 789; ecclesiastical officers, 190; in transit, 74; suspended, 3; total, 7317. Churches with pastors, 3748; with stated supplies, 2864; vacant, 1132; total, 7744.

The number of ministers without regular employment was ninety-nine in excess of the vacant churches. The number available for regular or temporary service was about 400. There was little improvement in the number of self-supporting churches. Only about 2500 contribute sufficient funds for the whole of their support. There was an increase of ninety-six in the number of pastors in 1902 over 1901, and a decrease of forty in ministers without charge.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Conductor and Boy Killed In Accidents at Escanaba.

Escanaba—George Jurgensen, 16 years old, was killed in the Escanaba woodenware factory Friday. His clothing was caught in the shafting and his skull crushed.

David Kirkpatrick, of Escanaba, a conductor on a Northwestern are train, fell under the cars Friday. His head and legs were severed. The accident occurred near Felch, the junction of the Soon and Schlesinger roads. Kirkpatrick leaves a widow and two children. He was 40 years old.

Negaunee—George and Walter Maas, prominent mining men, have gone on an exploring trip for iron in the Thunder bay district of Ontario. They will follow the Nipigon route and will enter districts which are particularly unexplored.

Bessemer—Otto E. Korste was sentenced by Judge Steers to pay a fine of $2000 and costs of prosecution for embezzlement. Public sympathy is strongly with Korste and few believe he intentionally committed the crime.

Mass City—Mrs. Thomas Downing, aged 83, is dead. She and her husband settled in Ontonagon county forty years ago.

Sault Ste. Marie—A 12-year-old boy named Marshall, was shot and killed at Bay Mills Friday by an Indian, whose name is said to be Whiskie. The Indian has been arrested.

Sergt. Martin Schacht, retired, is said to be the oldest army veteran in the state. He first came to the Soo, as one of the military garrison, in June, 1852, being a high private in Battery A, Fourth U. S. artillery, commanded by the late Gen. Getty, then a captain in rank. Old Fort Brady at that time was enclosed by a stockade seventeen feet high and contained two blockhouses, with portholes. The pay of the privates was but $7 a month.

Mr. Sacht served during the entire war of the rebellion in the army of the Potomac and was in many battles. He was retired as an ordnance sergeant in 1889 after thirty-two years' honorable service in the army and has made his home at the Soo ever since.

Houghton—Delegations from the Hancock, Houghton, Lake Linden and Red Jacket lodges met in Houghton and decided to hold an annual reunion of the copper country lodges in Houghton on Saturday, July 25. Besides a large representation from the copper country lodges, Marquette will send a delegation.

Walter S. Prickett, the well known lumberman of Shingw, has purchased from the Menominee River Lumber company 3300 acres of "cut-over lands" which he intends to devote to agriculture and grazing purposes.

VERY HIGH TOWER

Will Surmount the New York Central's Station.

Glasgow, May 30.—Alarming subsidences of the surface of the earth have occurred at Motherwell, which has a population of 20,000, and is the center of the Lanarkshire coal and iron districts. The county hospital has been badly damaged, necessitating its partial abandonment; the high school has a wide rent in one of its walls and the street railway power house and many other buildings have been damaged. The subsidences are attributed to the mines beneath Motherwell.

PREVALENCE OF CATARRH.

Growing Use of Hyomei Will Soon Show a Decrease of of This Disease.

Statistics show that at least 97 out of every 100 persons in this state are suffering from catarrh in some form. While the disease is one of the most common with which the medical profession has to contend, it also is one of the most dangerous. This is owing to its tendency to affect the bronchial tubes, causing consumption and other diseases of the respiratory organs.

Prior to the discovery of Hyomei, every method of treatment for the cure of catarrh had been found worthless. This can be clearly proven by the weekly statements published in every large city by the Board of Health, showing a great increase in the death rate from diseases of the respiratory organs, and the startling growth in the number of persons afflicted with such troubles.

The discovery of Hyomei and its increased use has already reduced the percentage of persons suffering from catarrh. This wonderful remedy is the simplest and most pleasant of all treatments. Just put a little Hyomei in the pocket inhaler that comes with every outfit, breathe through the inhaler for ten minutes four times a day. Relief will be seen from the first treatment; cure will soon follow. It is the true treatment for diseases of the respiratory organs.

Scientific and medical men recommend it. Leading druggists have so much faith in it that they guarantee a cure or they will refund the money. In this city S. F. Boyce is selling it upon that plan, so that any of our readers can use Hyomei without its costing them a cent unless it cures. Can there be a fairer way?

MEMORIAL DAY.

The spirit of Memorial day expands and the event takes on an even higher significance as the causes which called it into existence get farther away in the perspective of the past. While set apart primarily as a day of reverence and honor for the brave soldiers who marched forth in the bloody days of the early '60s and fell on the field of battle in defense of the Union, it has widened in its meaning until now it is a day of tender memories for millions—a day in which those who have lost loved ones go forth to honor their memories and think of them lovingly. But while it has thus become a day of more general tributes to those who passed into "the unseen world," it has not lost its primary significance, and before all else it is a time when the whole nation pauses in the mad rush for wealth and power and social preferment, to think of the heroic dead who gave up their lives to prevent the dismemberment of the Union, and of the gallant deeds which they performed in the terrible internecine conflict. The observance of the day teaches the lesson of patriotism to the young and it leads upward towards a better life those who rightly regard it. Today the fires of patriotism are rekindled and this mighty nation again pledges itself to the maintenance of freedom in fact as well as in name.

With the graves of those who fought for the Union are now the graves of those whose lives went out in the more recent war for liberty and humanity, in which the flag of Spain went down forever from the Western hemisphere. These heroes also receive the tributes which the country pays to the memory of its valiant defenders. Even as the soldiers of the '60s rushed to their country's defense, so these later volunteers responded to the call of the president and went into the army from motives of patriotism, from family circles where love of country is perpetually taught and exemplified. Whether they fell on the field of battle or succumbed to the hardships of the concentration camps, they are alike deserving of the nation's reverence and tender remembrance, and their deeds and spirit remain a cherished heritage and an inspiration for the youth of the land.

ROOSEVELT'S STRENGTH.

Already the Republican politicians are speculating on the strength of President Roosevelt for the coming nomination for president, and the Hanna incident in Ohio and the endorsement of Pennsylvania have served to convince the majority that the present incumbent of the presidential chair is sure of the nomination. Outside of Hanna, Senator Fairbanks of Indiana cuts some figure, but recent events go to show that neither one of them is in the race with President Roosevelt. The president's friends no longer feel a particle of doubt as to the outcome with these two leaders out of the way. According to the president's friends the present situation is this:

States pledged through Republican conventions to Roosevelt's nomination, with vote in national convention, are as follows: Alabama, 22; Arkansas, 10; Connecticut, 14; Iowa, 26; Kansas, 20; Massachusetts, 32; Missouri, 36; Minnesota, 22; New York, 78; Rhode Island, 8; Texas, 36; Utah, 6, Washington, 10; Illinois, 54; Ohio, 46; Pennsylvania, 68; total, 466. In addition thereto the following states are conceded to be favorable to his nomination, through expressions from chairmen of state committees and other leaders: California, 20; Michigan, 27; Maine, 12; Tennessee, 24; Kentucky, 26; Colorado, 10; Wyoming, 6; Wisconsin, 26; Idaho, 6; Oregon, 8; New Hampshire, 8; Vermont, 8; Maryland, 16; West Virginia, 14; Nebraska, 16; Montana, 6; total, 234. Making a grand total in the "Roosevelt column" of 730, or 237 more than the number required to nominate.

Of course it is a little early to bank safely on present conditions, but all things being taken into consideration the chances of the present incumbent of the White House may be said to be excellent.

One interesting feature of the new municipal pawnbroking association of New York, recently mentioned, is the fact that among its incorporators are found side by side Father Doyle of the Paulists, Dr. Burrell of the Collegiate church, President Mulray of the St. Vincent de Paul society, and philanthropists of other communions, emphasizing the non-sectarian and yet Christian character of the enterprise. The proposition is through a group of pawnshops throughout the city to loan at half of 1 per cent a month and, since this probably will not pay expenses, the city is asked to record chattel mortgages, bills of sale and such documents for the company free of charge. The company is, however, authorized to pay dividends up to 6 per cent.

Rev. Dr. Edward M. Moore, professor at Haward, is certainly an optimist. He told a New York audience that there is more religion in Wall street and other business centers and a thousand times more nobility and kind-heartedness than men ever dream of.

Edgar Saltus' tribute to the late Max O'Rell is that he could take a platitude and turn it into an epigram.

SOUR MR. BLACK.

It is impossible not to sympathize with the teachers of the Chicago normal school who have entered the complaint against one Mr. Black, head critic of the school, that he never smiles, and that he enters the rooms with a stony visage and complete disregard of the amenities of life, refusing to pass the common courtesies of every day existence with those with whom he necessarily comes in contact.

Of course it is highly improper to pass judgment on the case of Mr. Black without knowing all his circumstances and environments. He may have some excuse for surrounding himself with an impenetrable atmosphere of gloom and severity. But, generally speaking, there are very few excuses that are valid in such a case, and the man w' chills all the people he meets and refuses to let himself be warmed by the geniality of common courtesy is a public nuisance and an impediment.

It is neither good judgment, good manners nor good sense to assume such an attitude. It accomplishes nothing desirable. If it is done to give others the idea that the offender is a person of deep thought, one who perennially exists on a plane far above the heads of ordinary mortals, it is a fraud that fools nobody. The world-wise old senator who said that "molasses catches more flies than vinegar" certainly knew what he was talking about, and Mr. Black and others of his ilk would do well to take that saying to themselves and live with it awhile.

The man of sour and crabbed visage goes through a community like a lake breeze through a picnic party on the shore of Lake Superior. Whether his displeasure with himself and the world comes from a distorted idea of religion, from an abnormal sense of his own importance, or simply from a sick liver, he has no right to inflict it on others. There is misery and trouble enough in the world without any being lugged in unnecessarily. Humanity gets few enough moments of pleasure, little enough happiness, without being inflicted by people who make it a business to throw cold water on high spirits. A person who brings smiles is an angel in disguise; a person who banishes them is an evil thing, an excrescence on the human family, in other words, a wart.

It is a common enough thing to find men who seek to hide their incompetency and mental insufficiency behind a forbidding mask of gloom and sourness. They are not pleasant people, and it is no source of satisfaction to know them or to be with them. There may be positions where such a manner is valuable. A man hired by a corporation to refuse favors and to rebuff the public would be valueless without it. But anybody in ordinary walks of life, be he high or low in station, will make life more enjoyable to himself and the rest of the world by trying to be as decent as possible and by remembering that courtesy is an unfailing mark of gentility and nobility while discourtesy is an equally unfailing mark of deficiency of some sort.

MR. MORGAN'S ART TREASURES.

In spite of the announcement sent out the other day that J. P. Morgan had gained a residence in England and was going to take advantage of a provision of the law to send over his valuable art treasures free of duty, it is not yet apparent how he is going to do it. The great financier has always objected to the law imposing a duty on works of art, which has forbidden him from bringing his treasures home except on payment of a prohibitive duty. He paid a fortune for his possessions and he objects to paying another to get them into the United States. If he should turn them over as a gift to a public gallery all trouble would cease, but naturally enough he prefers to have them at his own home for the benefit of himself and his personal friends. There are only two ways possible of evading the payment of a fortune in order to bring to this country the Margan collection. One of these covers cases where an American citizen who has resided abroad temporarily and is entitled by law to bring into the United States his "household effects" free of duty. But the law exempts only such goods as have been actually used as household articles. Goods that have been stored abroad do not come under the exemption. If Mr. Morgan were to try this method of escaping the duties, his purpose would be evident and he would be compelled to comply with the letter and the spirit of the law.

The other road to free entry is under that paragraph of the bill, which reads that articles "must be imported in good faith by a free public museum incorporated for no other purpose, for exhibition at a fixed place, by any state or by any society or institution established for the encouragement of the arts, science or education, or by a municipal corporation, and bonds shall be given under such rules as the secretary of the treasury may prescribe for the payment of lawful duties which may accrue should any of the articles be sold, transferred or used contrary to this provision." It is also required that the articles shall be open for inspection at all times, so that the sale or transfer of any of them may be quickly detected.

From this it seems evident that only two courses are open to the king of finance. If he wants his treasures for his exclusive use, he must pay the price. If he is willing that they go for public benefit he can save the duty, which, of course, is very heavy. It is for him to choose.

CHEAP TRANSPORTATION.

Of late years there has come to be a general recognition of the great advantages afforded the people of the United States by reason of lake navigation during a majority of months in the year. According to the American Syren and Shipping the cheapest known method of transportation is by water carriage over the great lakes in the best types of modern steam vessels operated by the several transportation companies, who are associated with the Lake Carriers' association, an organization which has done great things in obtaining the legislation which has resulted in making vessels drawing twenty feet of water possible between Chicago and Duluth and Buffalo. Since the Lake Carriers' association won the first of its series of victories over the agencies which desired to strangle cheap water transportation in the West, lake freightage has been done at an average charge to shippers of 1.3 mills per ton per mile.

The shipments by railways are averaged by the interstate commerce commission at 9.22 mills per ton mile, so that in the past season of lake navigation there was a saving on each ton transmitted by the vessels on the great lakes over the average charges by railroad for an equal distance, of $4.48, which effected, upon the aggregate tonnage moved over the great lakes, a saving to be divided between the producers and consumers of the country, of $143,500,000 in the year 1902. The federal government has not expended upon the great lake channels and harbors, from the beginning of appropriations therefor until the autumn of last year, more than $40,000,000. Hence it is evident that the people of this country received during the past year in the form of cheap transportation for commodities shipped over the great lakes, considerably more than three times the cost to the general government of all the work done upon the channels and harbors of the great lakes from the day when the flag of our country was unfurled over the log stockade named Fort Dearborn around which the settlement gathered which adopted the name of Chicago, until the close of navigation last year.

CHURCH BEGGING SCHEMES.

If there is one thing more than another that makes some people "feel sore," it is the tribute levied from them for the benefit of the church by means of many schemes that are worked in such a way that refusal is practically impossible. These begging schemes are numerous and while the promoters are honest in thinking all things justifiable in a worthy cause, they are of the "stand and deliver" kind that do not permit of denial and at the same time are considered a downright imposition by many people. A storekeeper is offered tickets for which he has no possible use, in such a way that he must buy or run the risk of losing a customer; perhaps he is importuned for a subscription or for an advertisement at fancy prices, but the method is the same. He must contribute or pay the penalty. It may be that tickets, a "sock" to be filled, or some trifling souvenir is sent on the strength of friendship or mere acquaintance, with the feeling that the person addressed will not dare to refuse lest the refusal of so small a gift look mean and ungenerous.

The Lutheran Church, an organ published in Philadelphia, is strongly opposed to these schemes, and in commenting on the matter says: "Now and then it is a pastor, who ought from his own experience to know better, sending to all his friends in the ministry, and out of it, asking for help for his church. Again, it is a well-worded, pathetic appeal, sent broadcast to Christian givers in the hope of working on their sympathies and generosity. It is not always possible to refuse. The amount itself may be small, but the aggregate of all the demands is large, and most people have only a certain amount which they can give. Responding to these friendly demands makes it impossible to give as they would, and as they wish, to their own church work, and to the organized benevolence of the church. Their gifts are frittered away in driblets instead of bestowed where they would do the most good, and where the heart and judgment dictate they should go."

If some way could be devised by which these schemes could be done away with there would certainly be great rejoicing among the afflicted.

DECREASE OF CRIME.

There seems to be a fairly steady decrease of crime in England and Wales, in proportion to population, according to the English blue book. This is not only true of England, but of all of the leading countries. Everywhere official figures afford gratifying assurances that the world is becoming better, at least in a negative way. Now and then this fact is questioned or disputed by some confirmed pessimist or misguided sensationalist. The perverse notion that crime is increasing finds, indeed, some apparent confirmation in a superficial examination of statistics. The number of nominal offences is augmented from time to time by new laws—bicycle ordinances, for example—and the total arrests and convictions is swollen by improvements in the machinery of police and court. To illustrate, the English statistics for 1901 seem on the face of the returns to indicate a slight increase of crime, as compared with the figures for the preceding years. But the increase is nominal, not real; it is accounted for by a law changing the age at which young offenders may be tried by a court of summary jurisdiction. When allowance is made for disturbing factors, criminal statistics are found to warrant the confident inference that criminality is on the wane in all the leading nations. This is precisely what one would naturally expect as a result of the noteworthy multiplication of educational, philanthropic and reformatory agencies which has taken place during the last half century.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"Did you ever hear abut the time President Fitch of the South Shore road fired a baggage smasher at the Soo?" asked a traveling freight man at the Spalding last night, as he put his feet up on a chair in front of him and puffed up his "fragrant Havana."

"No? Well he did, and the moral of it comes after the story, strange to say," he continued.

"You see Mr. Fitch down at Marquette is a friend of everyone. Whenever any of the residents have any trouble about the railroad service, they go right to Fitch. They don't have complaint going through the regular channels, like on some roads, but they hurry over to Mr. Fitch, whether he is at his office or at home, and it don't make any difference what time of the day or night it is.

"The result is that Mr. Fitch comes pretty nearly knowing what is going on around his road.

"One day a Marquette man was going up the road, and had a piece of baggage checked. It had a local check, and when he got off the train at the Soo, there wasn't any accompanying baggage. It had been delayed at the original station.

"He told the baggageman about it, and the baggageman took his check, and gave him another that would claim the baggage when he reached his destination. The baggageman said he would take off the local check and check it through all right, when it came.

"The man went on up the road and stayed about two weeks. Then he came back, but he never got his baggage. When he got to the Soo he went to the baggageman and 'bawled him out,' asking where the baggage was.

"The baggageman said it had not come as far as the Soo and he didn't know anything about it.

"The passenger ran out on the platform, where Mr. Fitch was and told him the story.

"Mr. Fitch came back and started to read the riot act to the man, who was busy with a couple of hundred trunks wrestling them around in a hurry to meet an incoming train.

"Mr. Fitch asked if the man thought he was of any use, and wanted to know where the pieces were. 'They never reached me,' said the man. 'Well, why didn't you wire for them?' asked the worthy president.

"The man dropped a trunk, put his arms akimbo, with his hands resting on his waist, and turned and faced his superior.

"'Now see here, Mr. Fitch,' said the man. 'I'm doing the best I can, here. I ain't handling the baggage at Marquette, and I haven't got the baggage. I don't know where it is; I don't want to know and I don't care. If it had come to me, I'd of handled it all right.'

"Mr. Fitch started to make some comment, but was interrupted by the man.

"'Oh, this road can go to h——,' he said. 'If you can't get anybody to run the baggage end but me, it won't be run,' and he took off his overalls and rolled them up.

"Mr. Fitched ran for the baggage master and insisted that the man be discharged immediately. The plea of the baggagemaster that the room was full of trunks and they would have to be handled, and there was no one to take the man's place, was of no avail. The man was fired.

"Then in came the train, and all that station full of trunks had to be piled aboard, and I think there were some fierce mixups.

"The moral I referred to was: Never fire a man until he gets all absolutely necessary work done for that day."

A traveling man got the worst of it in a tussle on the 9:40 o'clock train last night, and it was said that a train porter pushed his head through a plate glass side window in one of the coaches.

He appeared with a grip and a badly cut head, in the lobby of the Spalding last night bleeding profusely, and causing a furore among the young lady clerks at the desk and cigar stand.

He was able to walk, but weak, and had the house summon a physician as soon as he arrived. A doctor was called, who came and put several stitches in the wound, dressed it and went away.

The injured man did not tell what caused the trouble which resulted in his injury, and left the hotel shortly afterwards.

At the railway station no information could be secured, and no complaint had been made at the police station up to this morning.

May's highest knoll she climbs again,
The age-worn phalanx to survey.
How dwindled are her veterans when
They muster on Memorial Day!
Columbia's stately look grows dim;
Of all the hosts that joined and fought
How few remain! Yet is the rim
A band of brothers, close inwrought.
And each to each the raptures tell
Of those who yet their homes may greet;
For them the native land is sweet,
In unity they dwell.

Now views the childless widows weeping,
Scattered in many a winding group,
Among the graves where they are sleeping—
The sons, the husbands of her troop.
No martial strains that peal along
The women's dirge can overwhelm.
Above the nation's hymn their song
Echoes o'er Freedom's widespread realm.
Columbia hears their accent blended,
Yet smiles: "No bitterness of tears
Doth call for vengeance; vain my fears
The strife of states is ended."

"Well do the patriots today,"
Exclaims the rapt, immortal maid,
"Who pause in pensiveness to pay
Rich honors for the lives down-laid.
Let generous hands deck hall and room
With flowers that kindly Nature gave;
My warriors slumbering in the tomb
Will know I count their kindred brave.
Let generous hands—while trembling mouth
Speaks words of praise—sweet blossoms give
To all the dead, from all that live,
Whether from North or South.

"While thus the living mourn and praise,
Upon this hallowed day, my graves,
Be mine the office dear to raise
The only song that valor craves—
A noble chant, a hero's psalm
Sung as they fell, with clarion voice.
My Northern Pine! My Southern Palm!
Both fell, as heroes fall, from choice.
The victors share the shining crown
The vanquished ones, the greening grave;
Each had the glory each would crave
Yet are my giants down.

"To thy defenders, North and South,
Pour like the ancient Greek the wine;
In my soul's speech be there no drouth
Of words that like the lightning shine.
Whate'er the cause they plied for—all,
Or right or wrong, they bravely fought.
When in the dust defenders fall
Creeds, sins and errors, these are naught.
Heroes, thy light of glory never Shall fade while voice to me shall last;
Thy failings strewn upon the blast,
Thy virtues live forever!"

Columbia spake and downward, mute,
From May's high knoll she smiles to see
A prosperous land where blooms the fruit
Her tears had watered—Liberty!
Gone were misgivings, vanquished fears,
For, of the wound that yawned so wide,
No scar or cicatrice appears
To mar a Union purified.
"Land around whose enchanted shore
Thy eternal song of freedom pealed.
A Union purified has healed
The wound that yawned before!"

DOMESTIC PLEASANTRIES.

Boston Transcript: He—The fact is you women make fools of the men.

She—Sometimes, perhaps; but sometimes we don't have to.

Philadelphia Leader: "Did they run away to get married?"

"No; she was 39, and he had been married before."

New York Sun: Bashful Willie—Aw—aw—Miss Hilda, you must know—er—er—what I want to say to you.

Helpful Hilda—Yes, and I have a bet with a friend that you won't get up your courage to say it.

Brooklyn Eagle: "Skeedicks has named his auto Lillie, after his wife."

"Why?"

"I don't know, unless it's because he expects it to blow him up every once in a while."

Detroit Free Press: Landlord (visiting new tenant)—Well, my girl, is your father in?

Girl—No, he's down among the pigs, but you can find him easily—he's got his hat on.

Chicago Record-Herald: Architect (doubtfully)—It seems as if there should be something on top of your house when it is finished, Mr. Millionaire.

Mr. Millionaire (meekly)—Might I suggest a roof?

Chicago Tribune: Ardent Lover (who has just been accepted)—And now, Gloriana, what is to hinder us from being married tomorrow?

Gloriana—You foolish fellow! Why, I couldn't possibly get ready in less than a month.

Ardent Lover—Make it two weeks, darling! I hate these long engagements.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Ready-made love is seldom ever a good fit.

The consuming passion of humanity is self-indulgence.

No man's income is ever big enough to satisfy his relatives and friends who want to spend it for him.

A woman likes to have her husband sick abed, so he will be glad he is married to some one who loves him enough to make things for him to eat that he hates.

A woman can bear every sort of trouble that she can conceal from her best friend.

Even toads and snails are not unbeautiful to little children until they cease to believe in Santa Claus.

It's curious how the marriage ceremony can infuse commonplace sanity into a couple that are stark mad.

There is nothing at which a widow is such a success as getting advice about worldly things from a beardless boy.

No Spellbinders Needed.

Cincinnati Enquirer: They do not have the trouble in Mexico over the election of a president that we have in the United States. There it seems to depend almost altogether on whether Porfirio Diaz wants to run again or not.

Hard Struggle In Prospect.

New York Tribune: When Russia gets a grip anywhere it is hard to loosen the hug of the bear. Even the British bulldog can hardly fasten its teeth deeper and hold on longer. Both are thoroughbreds in their way, and when the final tussle comes, in this or some future century, the struggle will be long and deadly.

Cunning Schemes of Men.

Baltimore American: It is an odd coincidence that, now that domestic service is such a problem and servants are scarce, women are being told that the best way to preserve beauty and develop graceful figures is by the exercise obtained through housework. The men of the land who like their domestic comfort are learning cunning in the gaining of it.

When Miss Gadder Graduates.

When Gladys Gadder graduates,
It's billed to happen in the June,
The happy time the world awaits
With budding bougin and birds a-tune,
And all the Gadders will be there,
Their collar bones they'll dislocate
To listen to the essay rare
And see Gladyssa graduate.

That essay is a wondrous thing;
The Gladders know it word for word,
For Gladys has been practising
On them, and all its points they've heard
And when she says: "The Past's behind,
The Present here—the Future there,"
They gaze upon her, stricken blind
By genius blossomed unaware!

Her gown's a fluffy, chiffon dream,
With sash of satin, fan of pearl—
A symphony in palest cream—
All for the little Gladder girl.
Now Miss Gladyssa, if you please,
And if you want to see her plead,
Gaze in her eyes when, just to tease,
Her little brother calls her "Glad!"

The cab will call for her at four,
And Ma will cry and look at Dad,
As though it were a wedding or
A funeral or something sad.
The angels on their harps will play
The grand event to celebrate,
And Gadder will stay home that day
To see his Gladdy graduate!

—KATE MASTERSON in New York Herald.

Birds.

Teddy says the robin
Is the bird he likes the best;
It is cheerful and it's pretty,
With the red upon its breast.
But better than the robin,
Singly gayly in the lot,
Is the lovely little birdie
That they bring in hot.

—New York Herald.

Her Ruse.

New York Weekly: Mother—You say your husband no longer spends his evenings at the club?

Daughter—I soon broke him of that.

Mother—How did you manage?

Daughter—Before going to bed I put two easy chairs close together in the parlor fire, and then held a match to a cigar until the room got a faint odor of smoke.

Tammany Coddles the Scourge.

New York Sun: If Attorney Folk, the St. Louis boodler scourge, receives an invitation from Tammany Hall to make a speech on the Fourth of July he might as well accept it. Sooner or later Mr. Folk is destined to greater prominence outside of his own town than he has now, and he had better surrender to calls at once.

A Screw Loose Somewhere.

Indianapolis Journal: The cancellation of 3,096 promotions for postoffice clerks which were to have taken effect next July 1 will carry disappointment to a great many hearts and homes. The fact that a subordinate in the postoffice department, a mere head of division, could order these promotions without the knowledge or authority of the postmaster general shows defective organization or loose business methods.

He Isn't Looking For Trouble.

Interview with Pennsylvania's Governor: "Will you take advantage of the new law yourself, and sue the newspapers which are attacking you in cartoons today?"

"I have been too busy attending to my official duties to look at the newspapers."

"Then I can tell you that the Philadelphia North American printed today a cartoon representing you as an ugly parrot with your feathers pulled out and a bandage around your head. It was much worse than the cartoon you complained of in your message. Do you intend to sue the North American?"

"I do not care to speak of my personal intentions. I am too busy to look at the papers."

TWO SKELETONS

Unearthed In Sitting Position Near Penn Yan.

Penn Yan, N. Y., May 30.—Two human skeletons, one of a man and the other of a woman, in a sitting position, facing each other, and their arms uplifted as if in appeal, have been unearthed on a farm near Gorham. They were discovered by men who were digging a ditch on the farm.

The skeletons were placed in a box and will be sent to some medical college. The bones are unusually large and the teeth of both are well preserved.

MAGAZINES FOR JUNE

One of the most famous mountain climbers is Edward Whymper, who was a member of the first party that climbed the Matterhorn, and who has achieved great feats all over the world and written several notable books about them. In the June number of Scribner's Magazine, Mr. Whymper gives an acount of a new field for mountaineers—the unexplored region of the Canadian Rockies in the country about Banff. He calls it "A New Playground in the New World," and illustrates it with a series of striking views taken by his companion, G. W. Francklyn, and himself. The wonderful Yoho valley, the great Collie's glacier, the Insulated Peak and Hoodoo valley are among the remarkable natural wonders described. The articles by Gen. John B. Gordon, giving his memories of the civil war are continued with a vivid picture of the great battles of Antietam and Chancellorsville. It will be hard to find in war literature anything more vivid than Gen. Gordon's account of a federal charge at Antietam.

The much-regretted passing of the Boston museum is made the occasion of an admirably illustrated article by the dramatic critic, Howard M. Ticknor, which opens the June number of the New England Magazine. Old-time footlight favorites are shown in pictures taken, approximately, at the time of their first appearance at this historic house. Particularly interesting is the picture of Edwin Booth and his father, taken in the year of the former's first and the latter's last appearance on the stage. That negro slavery is not the only one that this country has had to contend against is surprisingly shown in Miss Bourne's "White Slavery in Colonial Times."

In this same number is a third in the series of nature articles by that authority on such subjects, Clarance Moores Weed, entitled "Bumblebee Blossoms."

There are eight short stories in the June Leslie, ranging from a most original baby story, the "Gymkhana at Milkville," which is illuminated by Miss Cory's drawings, to a dreamy tale of an old bishop in a peaceful little town in Spain, by S. R. Crockett. The best story of a college boat race that has appeared for a long time, one thoroughly American in its quality, and the account of the business stratagem of a real estate man, possessed of a sense of humor and a love of dogs, together with a true yarn of a noted band of Western desperadoes, make up a variety of choice in the fiction.

The beautiful girl graduate, whose likeness adorns the cover of the June National, reflects the lightness and charm of the first summer number of the popular Boston monthly. Following "June-time," a picture-and-poem frontispiece by Louise Lewin Matthews, the number opens with Mr. Chapple's "Affairs at Washington," fifteen pages of snapshot sketches and pictures of life at the nation's capital. John Hicks, in "Our Island in the Tropics," depicts life in Porto Rico. Curiously intimate are the "Personal Recollections of Gen. Grant's Life in the Field," by "An Officer of His Personal Staff."

The lover of fiction—especially in the form of short stories—will turn with pleasure to the latest issue of the Cosmopolitan. Here appears a charming love story by Francis Willing Wharton, beautifully illustrated by Thomas Story by R. H. Farnham; a romance of the bus ness world by Trumbull White, and contributions by H. R. Martin and Henry Seton Marriman. In the same number, which is remarkable for the great variety of topics that are discussed, Edward Everett Hale writes on "Old Age Pensions;" Dr. Albert Shaw, editor of the Review of Reviews, discusses "Journalism" as a profession; H. G. Wells advances some more of his ideas on "Love and the Cultivation of the Imagination."

The beautiful magazine, Country Life in America, with its sumptuous and illustrations and wealth of practical information covers an astonishing range of subjects in its June number. "A Plant Hunting Vacation," shows some wonderful orchids and rare wild flowers which have never been so beautifully pictured before. "First Principles of Poultry Raising" has some wise caution and good common sense that beginners should heed. "Discovering a Country Home" is a breezy story by a man and wife who abandoned a city flat, tried a rented house in the suburbs and found happiness in the real country. "How to Grow Cherries" and "Bee Keeping for Pleasure and Profit" are good practical articles. "How to Build a House Boat" and a "House Boat for $2000" are suggestive and valuable for people of moderate means.

The June What To Eat offers an attractive miscellany. The list starts with "Dame Nature's Delicatessen," by Felix L. Oswald, M. D., a gossipy article advising food fanciers to follow nature's methods in the raising of game, rabbits, chickens, etc. The editorials deal with "The Influence of Food on Disposition," "The Science of Prolonging Life," "Why Won't Wild Animals Eat White Flour Bread?" etc.

Marguerite Stabler contributes another charming Mexican tale to the Argonaut of May 25. The scene is laid in the City of Mexico during the spring time fiesta, and is called "Between Love and Duty." It deals with the love of an aristocratic senorita for a Gringo, and of her attempt to elope with him so as to escape being sent to a convent.

The June Century opens with an article, "The Sultan of Morocco Journeys Toward Fez," written and illustrated (in part in color) by Arthur Schneider, an American artist, who lived for fourteen months ith the sultan, and who described in the May Century his efforts to teach his majesty drawing. It appears from this article that the sultan would gladly give up the lod-fashioned ways of traveling in Moroco. He is anxious to have a railroad, but he knows that he cannot allow a European power to build one without exciting jealous rivals. Henry Norman and G. C. Ashton Johnson, the latter a practical stock exchange man, describes the London stock exchange, with pictures by Andre Castaigne. The article is especially interesting in connection with the recent opening of the New York stock exchange.

The June number of Ainslee's appears in another attractive cover, the design of Will Grefe. The novel for the month is by Mrs. Ethel Watts Mumford, author of "A Mercenary Marriage," "The Flash of an Emerald" and "Dupes." Its title is "Partners," its subject is a phase of the New York smart set, and its plot is the rebellion of a girl, one of its feminine members, against the tyranny of its conventionalities. "A Court of French Claims," by Elizabeth Duer, presents in an attractive way, and with a gentle satire, another view of the foreign alliances of American girls. Henry C. Rowland's stirring narrative, "The Blood of His Ancestors," suggests that brute instincts in civilized man are only dormant, and need only the right stimulus to awaken them.

The June World's Work is the annual "World at Play," number with many vigorous and practical articles on timely vacation topics and with perhaps the most remarkable illustrations this magazine has ever published. Outside of the recreation idea are such important and interesting articles as Mr. Carnegie's, "The Secret of Business," Guy Morrison Walker's thoughtful "Railroad Mileage and Wealth," and a resume of the report of the Moseley commission of English workmen who visited America in the winter showing the difference between English and American working conditions.

GEORGE GIBBS,
Author of "The Love of Monsieur."

Miss Jessie Wilcox Smith contributed the "Story Without Words" to the May number of Harper's Bazar. Some of these stories, which are a sucession of pictures drawn by foremost illustrators, have had interesting histories. The subject pictured in the May number was actually seen by the editor of the Bazar, who described it to the artist. The editor, walking in a park in the little town of Lebanon, Pa., noted for its Shaker community, observed an artist who had fallen asleep at his work. By his side a young Shaker girl stood gazing at him with rapt interest, quite unconscious that she had become the heroine of a picture-story which would be seen by thousands of readers. The June "Story With Words" will be drawn by Charlotte Harding. Miss Harding is a young Philadelphia artist who has come to the fore along with Jessie Wilcox Smith and Elizabeth Shippen Green.

The principal features of the June number of the Review of Reviews are a series of four illustrated articles entitled "New Hope for Consumptives," giving particulars of the new methods of outdoor treatment; a paper on "The Renascence of Nonconformity in England," by W. T. Stead, with portraits of the three great Nonconformist leaders at the present time; an exhaustive article on "Wesley and the Wesleyan Movement,' by Dr. J. M. Buckley; a sketch of the late Governor Ramsey of Minnesota, by Warren Upham; an account of the government's latest experiments in "Forest-Making on Barren Lands," by Charles M. Harger; and brief articles on "The College of the City of New York and Its New President," "The Well-Governed District of Columbia," and "An American's Views of Patagonia."

The June number of the Smart Set opens with a novelette by James Branch Cabell, entitled "The Husbands' Comedy." The story is strikingly distinctive, and as clever as fiction may be. It is full of humor that is delicious; but, too, there is very genuine human feeling in these pages, and an undeniable pathos. The merit of "The Husbands' Comedy" is completed by the literary grace which marks the author's style.

You will rarely see as interesting a table of contents as that of the June number of Everybody's Magazine. Beginning with the full-page frontispiece of Thomas Wallace Russell, who has taken Parnell's place as leader in the fight for Ireland's freedom, and ending with "some additional remarks" by Simeon Ford, with his quaint and irresistible humor, the magazine is brim-full of bright, snappy, entertaining work by good writers, some of them well-known, others who are sure to be. "Then Ireland Will Be Free," by Frederick James Gregg, makes romance of Ireland's long struggle for liberty, and at the same time reduces to simplicity the much discussed home-rule question. Justus Miles Forman, in "The Needle of the Damned," weaves a difficult choice into a somewhat strenuous lovce-story.

The Popular Science Monthly for June commences the publication of a series of articles on "Hertzian Wave Wireless Telegraphy," by Dr. J. A. Fleming, F.R.S., professor of electrical engineering at University college, London, and scientific adviser to the Marcom company. These articles are intended to make clear to the general reader the scientific principles of wireless telegraphy, and are said to be the most complete and authoritative statement on the subject hitherto made.

"A Lady of Influence" is the title of the novel in this month's issue of Lippincott's. Caroline Gebhardt, the author, is remembered by an early story published in the same magazine called "A Real Daughter of the Revolution." "A Lady of Influence" shows convincingly how futile are a man's plans—especially those of a widower—when his heart is caught in a contrary current. One of Washington's fair daughters fascinates a New England senator of Puritan prejudice deep and abiding. So out of sympathy is he with the gay life of the capital during Molly Maidscon's reign that he safeguards himself from his love by becoming engaged to a girl of his own people. But this by no means ends the story. Without giving away the plot, it may be said that it insures a joyous memory as well as an hour's pure enjoyment.

Prominent and notable features of the June Atlantic are President Eliot's remarkable address at the Boston Emerson centenary celebration, accompanied by George E. Woodberry's centenary ode delivered on the same occasion. The Atlantic also contains a well-informed and carefully studied paper on the moot subject of "The Negro in the Regular Army," by Oswald Garrison Villard. Goldwin Smith contributes a pungent article on "The Cult of Napoleon, brilliantly and learnedly written from the author's characteristic British view of his country's historical bete noir.

A model magazine for the home is the June Housekeeper, which appears in a charming cover, great red roses supplying a dash of seasonable color. The exceptionally fine literary ment comprises the first installment of "In the Spirit," a strong serial by Louise Betts Edwards. It is a love story of absorbing interest. A sympathic portrayal of life in an American village, characterized by wholesome humor and true pathos, is afforded by the stories which Eliza Orne White has grouped under the title "Spinsters Three," the first story, "Their Nephew John," is published in June number.

In the May 30 issue of Harper's Weekly Edward Cary, writing of the two hundered and fifty years of New York's municipal history, says that the commercial supremacy of the American metropolis is largely an outgrowth of illicit trading methods. Old New York, at the end of the seventeenth century, was, he says, a centre of privateering, which at its best "was not different from piracy." The famous Captain Kidd was a type, and not an extreme type, of a considerable class. Much of the relatively peaceful trade of the city was smuggling and illicit commerce, but it was gainful, and it opened the path to a splendid commercial future.

Tennyson's "sweet girl graduate" occupies the place of honor on the cover of The Pilgrim for June, and it is doubted if a more charming figure than Miss Filer has drawn has ever appeared on a summer magazine. The prettiness and happiness of the girl on the cover give a clue to the nature of the contents, which surpass in interest those of any recent number of the Pilgrim. "Men and Matters of Moment, written each month by the editor, Willis J. Abbot, is especially happy for June, containing, as it does, paragraphs of comment on those incidents of the past thirty days that are of more than passing importance. Apart from the unique animal serial, "Between Two Worlds," so cleverly illustrated by Oliver Herford, another short serial is begun, entitled, "He Stoops to Conquer." Its author, Gustav Kobbe, is well known to magazine readers through his delightful stories. "A Child of the Opera House," "Miriam," etc.

Henry Harland, author of "The Cardinal's Snuff Box," begins a new novel of Italy in McClure's for June. It is called "My Friend Prospero." A beautiful portrait of the heroine, done in tints, by Louis Loeb, is the frontispiece. The other features are "The Barbizon School," first paper, by John La Farge, illustrated in tints; "Peter Cooper Hewitt—Inventor," three great achievements in electrical science, by Ray Stannard Baker: "Indictment of the Standard Oil for Criminal Conspiracy," by Miss Tarbell in her history of the great trust: "The Swimming Hole," the joy of every man's boyhood, by Eugene Wood; "An Ocean Graveyeard," stories of the wrecks and rescues of the Newfoundland coast, by P. T. McGrath, of the St. John's Hearld, illustrated by the famous marine artist, M. J. Burns; "Comedy of the Cathechised," answers given by Civil Service applicants, by A. M. Jones.

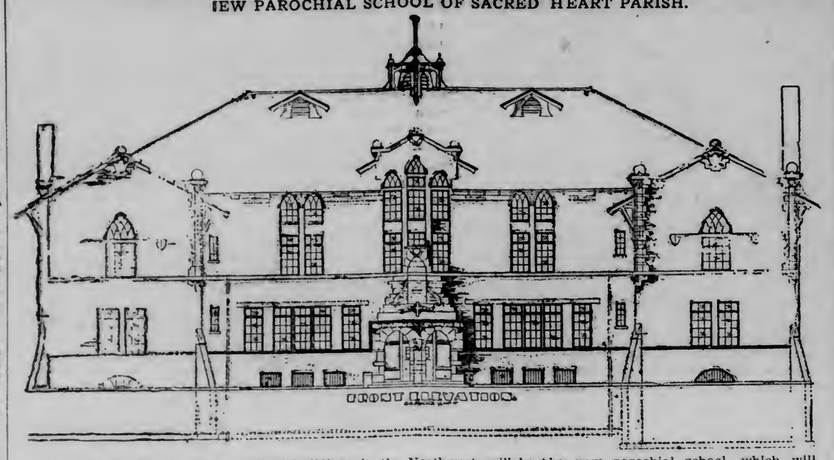
NEW PAROCHIAL SCHOOL OF SACRED HEART PARISH.



One of the finest modern school buildings in the Northwest, will be the new parochial school, which will be constructed this summer by the Sacred Heart parish, at the corner of Fourth street and Second avenue west. The building will cost about $50,000 and the plans, prepared by Hill & Bray, local architects, are now in the hands of the contractors for figures.

The new school building will be of brick and stone and very unique in a part of the exterior decorative design. The roof projections will be five feet and the cappings will be of cut stone. The dimensions are 146 feet by 80 feet. It will be three stories and have the main entrance on Fourth street, with one entrance on the avenue side. The building will have cut stone around the front entrance extending up to the second story, with buttresses projecting out between the archways and a life-sized figure above them. Above the archways will also be a niche for a life-sized piece of statuary. The basement will contain spacious playrooms, halls and the library. The first floor will contain eight large class rooms, the second floor will contain two class rooms and a large assembly hall or auditorium, with a capacity for twenty-five children. The galleries will be located on the third floor.

MODERN FABLES BY GEORGE ADE

The Modern Fable of the Soft Thing and Some of the Things That Were Done to Him.

(Copyright, 1903, by Robert H. Russell.)

Once upon a Time there was a Tapioca. A Relative had died and left him a large Bale of the Carnegie Library Compound. As soon as it was noised around that the Mark was actually carrying Money in his Clothes, every Short-Card Man in the Business began to break through the Crowd, saying, "I saw him first."

In the Twinkling of an Eye the Legatee was transformed from an ordinary, hand-me-down Plug to One of our Prominent Citizens.

Many who had been unable to place him while he was feeding at a $4 Oatmeal Resort on a Side Street now dashed madly across the Car-Tracks to give him the Joyous Mitt and ask him to come up to the House some Evening.

And he, like every other Proud Mortal who is being pelted with Bouquets, fancied that his Popularity was based upon his own Sterling Qualities and did not arise from the Fact that he was known up at the Bank.

Those who doctored up the Bricks for him did not take the Trouble to put any Gold-Plating on the Outside. They nailed his Currency and then promised to deliver the Goods by Messenger Boy, so as to save him Trouble.

He learned that a great many Exclusive Organizations wanted to take in a few Members who were Socially Prominent. Every time that he was handed the Social Prominence Gag he fell and signed an Application Blank.

GAVE HIM THE JOYOUS MITT.

In a couple of Months he had so many Brothers and Fellow Clubmen that he could not turn a down-town Corner without running Into a Hot Touch.

Also he was Pie for the Dignified Gentlemen representing the Eastern Publishing House. Long ago this species of the Hold-Up Man was known as a Book Agent but in these latter Days he is a Special Envoy who brings Glad Tidings of Great Joy to the superior Intellectual Classes who are known to be there with the Coin.

Every Hypnotic Salesman who cornered the Mark sang the old Solo about giving Special Terms to a few Book-Lovers in order to derive a certain prestige from the use of their Names.

Take a Man who never has studied any volume except the Winter Book and tell him that he is a Bibliophile and he will swell a few Inches, whether he knows the Meaning of the Word or not.

In a short time the Prominent Citizen had a Library that was greatly admired by all who visited his Apartments and the Books were in first-class Condition. He never took any of them down, for fear that he could not put them back in the Right Place.

PICTURE OF THE MOUNTAIN.

WOULD LET HIM IN ON THE GROUND FLOOR.

After about 3 Months he became an Art Critic and a sure-enough Connoisseur. He knew it because a great many Dealers took him into the Back Room and told him so.

Then they would throw the Light on a Creation that had been in the Salon or else tenderly remove the Cotton Batting from a Bronze that could not be broken with a Maul. He would try to convince himself that there was a certain Difference between these Masterpieces and the Junk that he saw in the 99-cent Stores. He had to see a Difference or else he could not have got away with the Connoisseur Bluffs.

He became a well-known Collector. Many Friends told him he had Exquisite Taste and he began to believe it himself, so he attended Exhibitions and began to roast the Moderns.

Whereas he had been known in the Old Days as a Parlor Blacksmith, he now discovered that he was a Strong Card at Dinner Parties, especially if he stood for the Check. He got many a laugh out of the antique Wheezes that he had cribbed from the Joke Book and when he arose to spring the prehistoric Toast everybody applauded before he said a Word, because that was the safest time to Applaud.

Among other startling Discoveries made by the Popular Leader of the Smart Set was one concerning his Business Sagacity. He received long typewritten Letters from the Pneumatic Brothers, representing the Smoke Syndicate, offering to let him in on the Ground Floor provided he would rush Check by Return Mail, otherwise it would be Too Late.

It appeared from these Letters that the Syndicate had acquired all the Claims on the East Slope of the Bullion Range and were within 20 feet of the well-known Mine that was turning out $8000 a Minute. Already three Shafts and the Original Capital had been sunk and the Ore was found to contain German Silver, Brass, Gold Fillings, Celluloid, Borax and Pepsin, all in Paying Quantities.

The Expert employed by the Company had just completed his third Dream and estimated that the Lodes somewhere in the Vicinity contained $40,000,000 worth of Something and now it was merely necessary to go ahead and find it. The Stock offered at 8 cents a Share would be advanced to $1.10 on Jan. 1st.

Accompanying the Confidential Letter was a Half-Tone Picture of the Mountain, merely as an Evidence of Good Faith.

The Mark had read somewhere that any one who comes into Property is not considered a True Sport until he takes a Flyer at the Mining Game. He bought a few Bundles of Stock, the Par Value of which made Senator Clark of Montana look like a Piker and although his Cautious Friends warned him to hold out his Money and loan it to them, he persisted in his Wild Speculations.

He put in more than $60 and at the end of the Fifth Year received $1.87 in Premiums and expects to be in the P. A. B. Widener Class if he lives until 1960.

In the meantime he is working at his other Trades of Prominent Clubman, Social Leader and Art Critic.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson, president of the Grand Trunk railroad, in an interview relative to the report that the Grand Trunk will acquire the Canadian Northern, said: "It is possible. Matters, however, are not settled sufficiently to know what will be done."

John Mutton, a farmer about 80 years old living in Bristol, shot and fatally injured his wife at his home in that township. The trouble grew out of property affairs.

An order was issued in the circuit court directing that the Ferris wheel that stood on the Midway at the World's fair be sold after June 10, to the highest bidder. If no bids are received it will be broken up and sold for junk.

George Feeley, the pugilist who was injured in a contest with Jim Jeffords Thursday night, died at St. Joseph's hospital, Savannah, Ga., Saturday morning.

It has developed that Post & Co. have been victimized to the extent of $6,660. It is understood a man giving his name as D. G. Fairbanks sold to the Washington representatives nine Wabash railroad bonds at $740 each, which were subsequently recognized as nine of the ten bonds which had been lost or stolen from a New York firm March 23, and afterwards cancelled.

A jury in the embezzlement case of Finley, Barrell & Co., Chicago, against J. L. Van Wormer returned a verdict of not guilty. Van Wormer was the La Crosse manager for the Chicago brokers and was charged with embezzling $11,000.

The Gans-Fitzgerald bout at Mechanics pavillion, San Francisco, proved an easy victory for the Baltimore wonder. It ended suddenly in the tenth round when the negro put in a terrific left to the jaw, dazing Fitzgerald. The New Yorker tried to fight back, but was too far gone, and a right cross to the jaw put him out for good.

RAINS PREVENT BULL FIGHT.

Madrid, May 29.—Torrential rains have compelled the authorities to countermand the gala bull fight which was to be given in honor of Prince Henry of Prussia, who has left for Vigor to rejoin the German squadron without having witnessed the Spanish national pastime.

FIRE AT MONTREAL.

Montreal, May 29.—Fire early today destroyed sixty houses and a number of other buildings in the town of Mariesville, twenty miles from here. The loss is estimated at $75,000. Four Firemen were overcome by smoke while fighting the blaze. One of them fell through a skylight and was badly hurt.

CHAPLAIN VATTMAN AT ROME.

Rome, May 29.—The Rev. Edward Vattman, chaplain of the Twenty-ninth United States infantry, has arrived here from Manila by way of the United States and has already had long interviews with the members of the sacred college and prominent officials of the vatican about his report on Philippine affairs.

Throughout the state delegates to the coming convention of the Minnesota State Federation of Labor are waiting with considerable interest the meeting of the St. Paul delegation, which, on June 5, will decide whether or not C. E. James will come out as a candidate for the office of secretary treasurer of the Minnesota State Federation of Labor.

There seems to be a general sentiment in favor of Mr. James, especially in Minneapolis and St. Paul, from which cities strong delegations will be sent to the Little Falls convention. Judging from information received from other cities throughout the state, the members of organized labor are somewhat weary of elevating men to positions of prominence and trust in the state councils to have these men make political capital out of their offices. "More work for the cause and less politics," is likely to be the slogan that the delegates will hurl at those seeking office.

Mr. James is one of the leaders of the movement for promoting unionism instead of the individual political graft and if he gets the endorsement of St. Paul's delegation on June 5, he is likely to be quite a factor in the convention. At present he is presiding officer of the Trades and Labor federation of St. Paul and business agent for the Boot and Shoe Workers' union.

S. M. Kielley was re-elected to the Federated Trades' assembly at a meeting of the Carpenters' union on Tuesday evening. It is claimed that his position in not being obligated, under the new constitution of the assembly, was misunderstood, that he had not the slightest intention of refusing to patronize union label goods exclusively, and only declined to take the new oath because he considered it unnecessary, having been obligated once.

* * *

D. McDonald will go to Little Falls as delegate from the Team Owners' union to the state convention.

Newly elected officers of the Lumber Pilers' union are: President, Charles Johnson; vice president, Andrew Anderson; secretary, Henry Jensen; treasurer, Jens Holt; Marshal, Otto Nelson; guide, John Tenderholm; trustees, A. Lund, A. Larson and T. Pearson. Olaf Hanson was elected as a delegate to the Minnesota State Federation of Labor.

A wireless message from Isle Royale says that many of the fish in that part of Lake Superior are suffering from nervous prostration since the announcement that "Bill" Lounsberry, of the Typographical union, was scheduled to arrive there in a few weeks.

* * *

J. H. Tomlin will represent the Lathers' union at Little Falls.

Edward Parrott, of the Plasterers' union, has purchased a home on Duluth Heights.

A. McPherson was elected delegate and Donald McRae alternate to the coming state convention by the Team Drivers' union.

A certain organizer of the State Federation of Labor has been very busy visiting, playing to the galleries and visiting locals since the call for the coming convention was issued. If he had put up the same amount of work all the year instead of playing politics the cause of the laboringman would be better off.

The Retail Clerks' union will probably remove union cards from all stores that are open today.

A number of non-union team drivers are employed by the city, and indications are that the team drivers' union will take the matter up with the council.

A straight 9-hour day will be demanded on May 1, 1904, by all machinists working in contract shops and under the jurisdiction of the International Association of Machinists. The demand will not apply to railroad machinists.

As a result of the strike in New York, the 7500 organized teamsters of that city will join the International Team Drivers' union, reports President Cornelius P. Shea, of the Boston Team Drivers' council, who is in New York.

In anticipation of a strike resulting from a demand for increased wages and shorter hours, all the white-labor laundries in Portland, Ore., posted notices that they will shut down indefinitely. The lockout throws 600 operatives out of work.

Gen. W. J. Palmer, of Colorado Springs, has offered to the International Brotherhood of Bookbinders, a three-acre tract of land adjoining the site of the Union Printers' Home at Colorado Springs as a site for a home for that organization.

Omaha labor unions have secured a sweeping injunction restraining the business men from refusing to sell goods to dealers who employ union labor and restraining the Business Men's association from holding meetings or conspiring against the unions or in any way interfering with the unions in the management of their affairs.

Labor day was more uniformly celebrated throughout Germany than ever before. In Berlin fifty-two large meetings were held and more than 500 others took place in other cities of importance. It is evident that the labor leaders and their followers have realized that nothing is to be gained by violent means, for there was no disturbance anywhere and not a single person was arrested.

The Iowa State Federation of Labor, in session at Davenport, adopted a resolution criticising Carroll D. Wright, U. S. commissioner of labor, for utterances which showed "he held no interest in common with the working class, but was a representative of the exploiting class." The federation will memorialize President Roosevelt to atpoin a union labor man as his successor at the exuiration of uorC etaoin shrdlu cmfwyp vbgkqj xzfiffff his term or "upon his resignation."

According to the state factory inspector, there are somewhat over 17,000 girls in the Pennsylvania mills between the ages of 13 and 16. Of this number approximately 4000 work at night.

BRITAIN IS SUPREME.

Americans Dismissed From Public Positions In Honduras.

New Orleans, May 29.—Letters from Honduras confirm the report that British influence is supreme with the new government in consequence of the assistance given Bonilla in the early days of the revolution. Some prejudices exists against Americans, and all Americans in public positions have been discharged, even the American nurse at the general hospital.

An English syndicate is dealing for a concession which gives to them for a number of years the sole right to take up government lands, open industries, work mines and export woods. It is to be feared that this grant will be given unless the United States interferes.

IS FOUND GUILTY

Murder In Second Degree Is Crime John Tanko Committed.

Jury Returns Verdict After Five Hours---Tanko Badly Broken Up.

Murder in the second degree, was the verdict returned by the jury against John Tanko last evening, after five hours' deliberation. This was Tanko's second trial on the charge of killing George Bolich, at Chisholm, on the evening of March 8 last. In the first trial the jury was out twenty-two hours and could not reach an agreement.

The case went to the jury after 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

When the verdict was returned last evening, Tanko was in court, but as he could not understand a word of English he did not realize his fate until he had been returned to the county jail, and the verdict was explained to him in the Austrain language. Then he broke down and cried bitterly, but had no word to say about the trial or what he thought of the court, judge or jury.

He has been in jail nearly three months and the incarceration together with the worry, has told on him, he having lost his healthy color of face and looking haggard compared with his appearance when first taken into custody.

Tanko was indicted on the charge of murder in the first degree and had the jury found him guilty of that degree his punishment would have been death by hanging. The penalty for murder in the second degree in this state is life imprisonment.

VERDICT IS RETURNED

G. G. Dickerman Gets $1500 For Garfield Avenue Viaduct Damage.

A verdict fixing his damages at $1500 was returned yesterday afternoon for G. G. Dickerman in his case against the city of Duluth in the matter of the Garfield avenue viaduct. The action was the fourth brought against the city by property owners near the corner of Michigan street and Garfield avenue, who claimed that the new viaduct had depreciated the commercial value of their properties.

The case was tried befre Judge Ensign, but as he was not present in court last evening when the verdict was reached, it was returned before Judge Dibell. The jury was out six hours.

There is still another action similar in import to those already tried, that of the Western Land associaton against the city. This will come up for trial next Monday morning, a special venire of jurors having been ordered.

As the cases now stand, the city has won one, lost two and settled one by paying an amount equal to one of the judgments rendered.

In Judge Cant's room the case of A. Hall & Company against Jeanette Palmer, did not reach the jury and the trial will be reached Monday.

DISLIKE THE BLOCKS.

Superior Pavers Object to Them and Go Out.

Paving on Tower avenue in West Superior came to an abrupt stop about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when the pavers went out on a strike. The men are said to be dissatisfied as to the manner in which the cedar blocks are delivered to them and claim that under the conditions they are able to earn only half time for a day's work. The contractors claim that the men were receiving, on an average, $4.25 per day for their work.

After the men quit work yesterday the contractors began telegraphing to the Twin Cities and ther outside points for others to take their places. It is believed, however, that the difficulty will be adjusted without much delay to the street paving.

Young Forger Escapes.

A young Scandinavian, five feet six inches in height, stout build, smooth shaved, dressed in a brown suit and black hat, attempted to pass a fraudulent check on a Tower avenue merchant, in West Superior, yesterday afternoon. The man entered the store and asked to see some clothing. He selected a suit which sold for $10 and tendered a check purported to have been drawn in Carlton, Minn., for $27. The proprietor was wary and calling a relative to look after the store he started across the street to ask another merchant about the check. During the interval the young man disappeared and has not since been located, although the police have been looking for him.

VERDICT FOR COOK BROTHERS.

Marinette, Wis., May 30.—The jury in the case of Cook Brothers, against the Soo Railroad company returned a verdict in favor of the former for $22,783. The case was an action brought by Cook Brothers, to recover the value of timber burned in the yards at Corliss and Van Horne, Marinette county, alleging that the failure of the Soo Railway company to provide cars as they had agreed resulted in the loss of the entire stock of cedar. The case will be appealed.

WAGE SCALE SIGNED.

Detroit, Mich., May 30.—"The iron wage scale for net year has been signed and industrial peace in the iron trade has been secured for another twelve months," said President J. C. Scheffer, of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, last evening, after the committee had adjourned. "Our conference was harmonious throughout," continued Mr. Schaeffer," and one of the most gratifying ones in the history of our organization."

SHOT IN THE COURT ROOM.

Mattoon, Ill., May 30.—Mrs. Jacob Berry was fatally shot by James Rawlins in the court room of Police Magistrate Scott yesterday. The families of Berry and Rawlins had engaged in a free fight and the hearing had justt closed before the magistrate when Berry and Rawlins started a quarrel. Rawlins drew a revolver and Mrs. Berry brushed between the men to protect her husband from injury. Rawlins shot her three times and she cannot recover.

NEARING THE CLOSE OF SCHOOL YEAR

Seniors Getting Ready For Final Features of Their High School Career—Weather Hoodoo Prevails Against the Track Team's Preliminary Field Day.

All but the final touches have been put on to the high school career of the senior class.

All of the advance work of the class has been done and the last week was devoted to review. Next Thursday and Friday the graduates will face their examinations and with them the year of work ends.

A. F. M. Custance has been drilling the class in their music for the last two nights of their high school career, and class songs of unusual excellence have been prepared along with the old ones which it is the duty of each class to perpetuate.

Owing to the fact that Flaaten's orchestra, which has always played the accompaniments for class and commencement, will be occupied and will not be able to do anything for the students this year, Mr. Custance will furnish accompaniment on the piano.

The Zenith is all finished as far as the editors are concerned, most of the proof has already been returned and the book will be ready for distribution on June 6 or 8.

The last spread to be given by the seniors will take place at Oatka beach June 5. This is the first time that a spread has been held at that outing place by high school students. Elaborate plans are being made for a pleasant evening and the other classes of the school will be invited to take part in the dance which will follow the spread.

A WEATHER HOODOO.

One Certainly Exists Against the Track Team.

Armed with instruments of torture, high school track men are about ready to go out in search of the hoodoo which has been playing fancy tricks with the weather since last Saturday when the preliminary field day was to have been held.

That event has been postponed several times already and there seems little likelihood of its being run off for some days to come. The men have been robbed of a week's practice and most of them are badly out of condition.

Four years ago when the preliminary was to have been a more formal affair at which the public was invited to separate themselves from portions of their currency to see the show, the track meet was six times postponed because of the caprices of Jupiter Pluvius. There was an organized hoodoo hunt at that time.

The present case is fully as urgent. If the field day between Duluth, Superior and Cloquet is to be pulled off next Saturday.

No definite arrangement for the meet has yet been made according to last accounts but by Monday when the preliminary will be run off—weather permitting—it will be known whether or not the event will occur.

The inactivity of the last week has seriously affected the condition of the men who were not able to get out for their usual practice. During the next week the athletes will tend strictly to their training, however, and good results may still be accomplished on Saturday.

Both of the teams which it is hoped will enter the contest are in the wet belt and have had the same trouble about the practice, which has affected the Duluth men.

CHALLENGE RECEIVED.

Minneapolis Team Already After a Football Date.

A challenge for a football game on Oct. 1 has already been received from the East Side high school of Minneapolis. Duluth, while not very successful last season made enough stir to advertise herself thoroughly and there will be all the games waiting that the team will be able to take care of this coming season. The trouble will be for the manager to make his selections from so many offers.

As yet neither captain or manager for the team has been elected, usually that is done at the close of the season, but this year there were only one or two men on the team who declared an intention of remaining in school next year. These were not certain so it is probable that the election of a captain will go over until next fall.

It would be of advantage if the election took place this spring so that plans could be made in advance and some preliminary work done before school came together again.

Material for the team this fall seems to serve and it is doubtful whether the team will be as strong as it has been for the last three or four seasons.

IMPROVE SPELLING.

Drill of Past Few Months Has Been Effective.

Spelling lessons which the high school students have undergone twice a week for the last few months were concluded this week and a final examination will be given during the week to come.

Much improvement in the orthography of the school has resulted since Principal Smith decided upon the new course. It will probably be part of the regular work again next year. There is little doubt but that, if it was continued through the four years of high school which all the graduates go through, the spelling would be far above the standard of students who have left the school formerly.

When made to do a little work on the subject of spelling the high school students have proved apt pupils, particularly among the lower classes, where some of the rooms have maintained a higher average than the seniors proved themselves capable of.

In many of the large colleges of the country the bad spelling of the students has produced a requirement that they be able to pass examinations on that subject before they are admitted. Duluth students who go to college will find their knowledge useful.

POSTPONED TO WEDNESDAY

Oratorical Contest Not to Come Off Until Then.

No oratorical contest was held this week as had been expected. The event was postponed until next Wednesday afternoon, sixth period.

So few girls were entered in the event that it was thought best not to have contest for the young women as was planned, and executed in the declamatory struggle which took place some weeks ago.

The young men who are to participat have all been selected and are doing good work. The essays were written a couple of weeks ago and have all been committed and well prepared from a declamatory view point.

The names and subjects of those who are to enter the contest are: Orrou Safford, "The Fupture for Young Men." Albert Evans, "William McKinley." Stanley Strand, "The Philiipine Question" and G. Fitzgerald, "Wnlenstern."

The winner of the contest will be presented with a gold medal.

FRESHMEN VICTORS.

Defeat the Sophomores and Great Joy Reigns.

Great joy came to the freshmen class of the high school yesterday afternoon, when they succeeded in defeating the sophomores at baseball by a score of 10 to 8.

It was the first time the first year men had shown themselves to be superior to the older students. They have been beaten in polo, football and everything in which they tried to humble the pride of the sophomores.

For a class game it was good in spite of the strong northeast wind which made it almost impossible for the players to hit the ball out when they came to bat.

The field was not very dry and that interfered with the work of the players particularly in the infield. The score by innings was:

Freshmen	...5	0	2	0	0	0	2	1	0	10	11	4
Sophomores	.0	3	2	0	0	0	0	0	3	8	11	4

The teams lined up this way:

Freshmen—		Sophomores—
Park	catcher	Deetz
Arsenau	pitcher	McLean
Cranner	first base	Furni
Crassweller	second base	Oppel
Stiacke	third base	Harris
Borgan	shortstop	Fenton
McLennan	left field	Olson

AMBULANCE RUN DOWN.

Almost Demolished By New York Street Car.

New York, May 29.—While responding to a call last night, a Bellevue hospital ambulance was run into by a Third avenue trolley car at Thirtysecond street and almost demolished. The doctor in charge was thrown twenty-five or thirty feet against an elevated road pillar. He was unconscious when picked up. The driver was badly bruised. The horse's leg was broken and the animal was shot.

According to the driver's story the ambulance was just in the middle of the easterly tracks when the car, going at a rapid rate, struck it. The doctor, who was seated in the rear, was thrown against the pillar and the driver landed in the wreckage of the ambulance.

In the car all was confusion. Many passengers had been thrown from their seats to the floor and two or three women became hysterical.

THAYER'S BODY DISINTERRED

Certain Organs Were Removed and Remains Again Buried.

Newton, Mass., May 29.—The grave of Edward M. Thayer, the Newtonville young man who died suddenly early this month while carrying a half million dollars of life insurance has been opened and the body removed to the cemetery chapel. Medical Examiner Frank W. Draper, of Boston, removed certain organs, after which the body was reinterred. Officers were posted in the vicinity and only three other persons beside the medical examiner and the undertaker were permitted to go near the grave or chapel.

Thayer was arrested in Boston last month on the charge of forging deeds of property on which he gave bogus mortgages, securing, it is supposed, considerable money.

A few days after his arrest, bail being furnished, Thayer was found dead in bed in a fashionable hotel. The certificate named acute Bright's disease as the cause of death, Medical Examiner Draper having signed it. When it became known that Thayer carried nearly $500,000 in life insurance, although only 28 years old, steps were taken by the insurance companies to protect their interests. To intimations that Thayer might have killed himself Medical Examiner Draper publicly announced that he saw no reason to change his diagnosis in the case. It is known that Thayer, after applying first for $100,000 in life insurance and later for additional policies, passed the most rigid scrutiny of the doctors employed by the companies at periods not many months prior to his death. After Thayer's funeral guards were placed in the cemetery, presumably by the insurance companies, as the Newton police and the family disclaimed any such action.

MERRITT'S REPLY

To Tulloch's Charges Consists Largely of Counter Charges.

Accuses Former Cashier of Many Illegal Methods.

Washington, May 30.—Postmaster-General Payne yesterday made public the reply of Postmaster Merritt of this city, to the Tulloch charges. The Merritt response makes serious accusations against Former Cashier S. W. Tulloch of the Washington postoffice saying that a transaction in which Mr. Tulloch was concerned in 1898 "appears to comprehend the presentation of a false voucher, which is made a crime by the statutes." Mr. Merritt's reply further alleges that receipts were signed in blank on the payrolls during Mr. Tulloch's regime as cashier and that the files do not indicate any complaint of irregularities against the Washington postoffice filed by Mr. Tulloch while he was in office. Mr. Merritt says the general practice of giving employes duties seemingly incompatible with their positions is no abuse and that the practice of paying certain expenses of the postoffice department out of the Washington city postoffice funds always has existed and is proper.

"Before I became postmaster," says Mr. Merritt, "one of the employes of the postoffice was suspended from duty from May 5 to June 4, 1898, without pay, without any reason of record, so far as I have learned, and without departmental authority. Mr. Tulloch, the cashier retained this man's pay for the time stated, amounting to $140 against his protest, I am told, obtaining his signature to the customary form of pay roll, however, and then sent the account to the auditor for the postoffice department as though payment had actually been made. The cashier probably had the postmaster's order to do it, and it seems that he did not make personal use of the money. But the transaction appears nevertheless to comprehend the presentation of a false voucher, which is made a crime by section 5843 of the revised statutes of the United States. The money thus unlawfully taken was divided by the cashier or by his direction among a number of persons, upon orders signed in the name of the postmaster by his assistant (though in one case no order has been found) until it was all used up except $7.66, which is now in official possession of one of the postoffice bureaus.

Mr. Merritt speaking of his removal of Cashier Tulloch at once after he became postmaster, declares the removal was no mistake and for reason therefore, says:

"Take this incident related to me by James P. Willett, my predecessor a few days after I assumed the postmastership, and fully confirmed by the statements of others, he said that his accounts for the last quarter of his term were in rather tangled condition; that he was very much worried about them; that his cashier should not have left them in this condition; that he regarded it as the cashier's duty to properly arrange and close them; but that after appealing to him for his assistance he, Tulloch, absolutely refused to give it unless he was paid $500 therefor. Upon my advice Mr. Willett indignantly rejected the offer, and Mr. Tulloch never gave him any aid whatever. The work was entirely and satisfactorily done by my own official force.

"Upon looking into the practice of the cashier's office prior to Mr. Tulloch's separation from it, I found that he had been in the habit for most years of making up the quarterly payrolls of the office in blank, getting the signatures of the employes thereto, and filling in afterwards the dates and amounts paid. I do not charge that these amounts were ever improperly filled in; but I need not say, to any business man at least, that such a practice presented an open door to fraud. In going over in April, 1899, the accounts prepared by Mr. Tulloch for the period from July 1 to September 30, 1898, the comptroller of the treasury discovered this grave irregularity and thus commented on it: 'It appears that receipts are signed in blank on your payrolls. By what legal authority is this done? No person should be required to sign vouchers in blank, leaving amounts and dates to be filled in over their signatures. The existence of such a practice makes receipts of little value.'

"As soon as this practice was brought to my notice, I discontinued it.

"The irregularities charged by Mr. Tulloch—though I am not informed as to the details—all ocurred before July 1, 1899, when I entered upon the duties of the office, while Mr. Tulloch was holding the office of cashier, and when, if he regarded them as wrong, he should have officially called attention to them. This he evidently failed to do. As you will see from the comptroller's letter, some of the irregularities to which he calls attention were evidently due to Mr. Tulloch's own neglect or ignorance, and all of them are transactions which he had been habitually taking up for the postmaster as part of his accounts. If there were any serious irregularities, as Mr. Tulloch claims, I think they were nearly all corrected soon after the comptroller called attention to them."

Mr. Merritt denies that the Washington office is tending to become a bureau of the department and says he has disbursed no money except on written authority. He says that appointments, promotions and transfers, with very few exceptions, have been made upon his recommendation, approved by the department. He adds that there are no superfluous employes in the Washington office.

Mr. Merritt says he had discretionary authority to remove Tulloch, whom, he charges with being arbitrary in manner, occupied much of the time with important private business and "a venturesome man in the field of speculation."

Mr. Merritt denies that either the postmaster general or First Assistant Postmaster General Heath, directly or indirectly, influenced Tulloch's removal. Mr. Merritt says that his office is now regularly paying the employes of the third division of the railway mail service, the employes of the departmental mail bag and mail lock repair shops, and making such other disbursements outside of its own needs as the department from time to time orders. Many other large disbursing postoffices, he says, are doing the same thing and there is no impropriety in this practice. It has existed almost from the beginning of the government and is fully authorized by custom and law.

Mr. Merritt says that the practice of giving employes duties incompatible with their positions was in existence when he became postmaster and extends probably to every large postoffice and constitutes no real abuse. He says he has repeatedly called attention to the present absurd and impracticable classification of postoffice employes. Concerning alleged Porto Rican abuses Mr. Merritt says the final account therefor was settled with the auditor without material loss.

Mr. Merritt says that what Mr. Tulloch says were disallowances by the comptroller of the treasury in the Washington account for the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1898, amounting to some $30,000 or $40,000, were not such in reality. They were merely demands by him for explanation as to certain items in the account which the expert examiner had some doubt about, amounting to a very considerable sum, and the objections finally were withdrawn.

The reply of Postmaster General Charles Emory Smith will be given out Saturday. Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow's reply, which will be made public later, according to Postmaster General Payne, denies that he ever asked investigation of the office of the first assistant postmaster general. It is probable that some temporary arrangements will be made with cancelling machine contractors in case the investigation continues until July 1 the contractors have been up and the manufacturers are making inquiry on the subject.

mented death, a period of nearly fourteen years.

Thus his life was spent, his character was formed, his activities were inspired and his magnificent triumphs were achieved in the great Northwest. There, in the golden heart of the continent, at the head springs of the lordly Mississippi, is the affluent domain which is, and is to be, the New England of the twentieth century—that peerless region from which will flow dominating currents of energy, of culture and of civic virtue, which must be to the nation henceforth what her craggy Eastern prototype has been hitherto.

> The New England of the past poured her rich Puritan blood into Senator Davis' veins; the New England of the future moulded and rounded him into the proportions of a fearless patriot, an eminent lawyer, a profound statesman and a resolute exponent of ardent, exultant, unswerving, aggressive Americanism.

His exuberant physical inheritance should have sufficed for much greater length of days. But incessant labor was his unvarying allotment, his vigils were tireless, his recreations were few and infrequent. In tolls incident to the weighty responsibilities of his later years he was uncalculating and unsparing. His consultation thus debilitated, could feebly resist when he was attacked with serious ailments in September, 1900, while actively engaged in the political campaign. He endured bravely the tedium of illness and the pains of two surgical operations. But all curative efforts were in vain, and he died, Nov. 27, 1900, his aged father and mother and his afflicted wife surviving him.

Senator Davis lay in state at the capitol in St. Paul on Nov. 30, and on Dec. 1 the funeral was held, participated in by delegations from the United States senate and the house of representatives, by all the state officials and a great concourse of mourning citizens. He was finally interred at Arlington, and here, with compeers who have likewise climbed from sun-kissed hills of earthly grandeur to crowns and thrones of the life eternal, all of him that is mortality rests.

It would seem that Senator Davis did not lack honor and appreciation in his lifetime. All the reward that distinguished consideration can bring to the faithful public servant came to him gratefully and spontaneously; his fellow-citizens admired and esteemed him. But only after he had gone hence did the full measure of the nation's loss come to be adequately felt. We can almost adopt his own touching language, uttered but a few months before his departure: "Too often the world does not know that it has received largess from a hand of more than imperial bounty until it comes time to lay garlands over a face upturned in the blindness of eternal sleep."

The garlands of eulogy that were woven when he died more than two years ago, the tributes of speech and pen then so lavishly tendered, lie unwithered in the records of the state and nation he served so lovely. Fresh in the hearts of bereaved thousands is the fragrance of his precious memory. And now, participating at his hallowed tomb in what is perhaps the final formality of tangible commemoration, we surrender to the emotions of the occasion and the place.

> This beautiful monument is the testimonial of an undying affection into the sacred pale of which we may only enter with silent reverence and chastened steps. The loss we deplored brought a domestic affliction, the sundering of tender ties and obliteration of mutual hopes, to which the glory we commemorate can offer meagre compensation. In a sense, then, this consecration is a private solemnity.

But in a larger sense no occasion can be void of public interesth and significance which, within the state he loved and honored, or anywhere within the enlarged circumference of the nation he helped enlarge and enoble, pays regard to the character and career of Cushman K. Davis. He is the country's now and fame's. Even the fragrance of nearest and holiest love must mingle with the incense of grateful countrymen.

Unveiling, dedicating, consecrating this enduring memento of true-hearted devotion, with its speaking delineation of the features we knew and loved, its sculptured presentation of the crowning achievement of a grand career, its brief but sufficient rehearsal of his titles to remembrance, we leave it, worthy to stand unabashed amid this forest of marble and granite and bronze, in everlasting homage to the soldier and governor and senator; the lawyer, the orator, the statesman, the diplomatist; the dutiful son, the considerate husband, the steadfast, discriminating, confiding friend.

It is an abiding disappointment that the last resting place of her most illustrious son was not located within the state which loved him so devotedly, and whose annals he had so conspicuously adorned. But if that was not to be, certainly no fitter spot could have been chosen than this majestic Arlington, pantheon of heroes, holy of holies to the hearts of American patriots forever more. His fame was national: his services were for the nation, for mankind, for the whole commonwealth of humanity. In the glow of his gallant youth he fought for the Union, for emancipation, for an unstained flag and an indivisible country. In the splendor of his masterful maturity, he helped in highest spheres of influence to organize, to conduct and to conclude a war, which vastly augmented the nation's prestige, and infinitely extended the horizon wherein it is permissible, nay mandatory, that man shall die for man.

His title deeds to companionship in these Elysian fields with wars' immortals are registered in the archives of the United States department of war, from which this official abstract has been compiled: Cushman K. Davis was mustered as first lieutenant with Company B, Twenty-eighth Wisconsin infantry, Oct. 4, 1862, but legally in effect Sept. 1, 1862, to fill a vacancy. He is reported on the muster rolls of the company Oct. 31, 1862, and Dec. 31, 1862, 'present;" Feb. 28, 1863, "absent on detached service since Jan. 11, 1863, on Brig. Gen. W. A. Gorman's staff;" April 12, 1863, to August, 1863, inclusive, "on detached service as aid and acting adjutant general on the staff of Gen. Gorman;" Oct. 31, 1863, "detailed on courtmartial, Little Rock, Ark." Dec. 31, 1863, and Feb. 29, 1864, "absent on sick leave by order of Maj. Gen. Steele." The regimental return for September, 1863, reports him "present, acting adjutant." He tendered his resignation Feb. 3, 1864, on account of physical disability, and was "honorably discharged in special orders, No. 105, paragraph 37, from the war department, dated March 4, 1864."

> The right of Senator Davis to sepulture in this home and shrine of heroism is therefore unimpeachable. His service as a soldier was completely overshadowed by his subsequent civic renown, but it was redolent of the heroic spirit of the epoch.

He was a typical young volunteer, not loving war or coveting high command, but accepting the dangers and hardships as incidents in the line of a duty loyally assumed. His pleasure in the contemplation of his modest military exploits was testified by the fact that he was a comrade of the Grand Army of the Republic, and a companion of the Loyal Legion; his pride in his heritage of martial ancestry found expression in becoming a member of the Sons of Veterans and a compatriot of the Sons of the American Revolution. He gloried in the cause for which he fought, and tendered no apologies for having contributed to its triumph.

His eulogists have all discerned in these war experiences of his early manhood a preparation for his public life. Of that life a leading characteristic was its versatility. His intellectual endowments and acquirements permitted the prompt grasp and mastery of the largest questions. His talents were varied and his knowledge seemed universal—he exhaled ideas, information, mental vigor, as a blossoming orchard shakes out its perfume on all the atmosphere. No splendor shines so far, fame's. Even the fragrance of nearest and holiest love must mingle with the incense of grateful countrymen.

Unveiling, dedicating, consecrating this enduring memento of true-hearted devotion, with its speaking delineation of the features we knew and loved, its sculptured presentation of the crowning achievement of a grand career, its brief but sufficient rehearsal of his titles to remembrance, we leave it, worthy to stand unabashed amid this forest of marble and granite and bronze, in everlasting homage to the soldier and governor and senator; the lawyer, the orator, the statesman, the diplomatist; the dutiful son, the considerate husband, the steadfast, discriminating, confiding friend.

It is an abiding disappointment that the last resting place of her most illustrious son was not located within the state which loved him so devotedly, and whose annals he had so conspicuously adorned. But if that was not to be, certainly no fitter spot could have been chosen than this majestic Arlington, pantheon of heroes, holy of holies to the hearts of American patriots forever more. His fame was national: his services were for the nation, for mankind, for the whole commonwealth of humanity. In the glow of his gallant youth he fought for the Union, for emancipation, for an unstained flag and an indivisible country. In the splendor of his masterful maturity, he helped in highest spheres of influence to organize, to conduct and to conclude a war, which vastly augmented the nation's prestige, and infinitely extended the horizon wherein it is permissible, nay mandatory, that man shall die for man.

$1500 for a ten-room house in East End, with city water and sewer. Arranged for two families, rents for $16 per month. $200 cash and balance on very easy terms will do.

$1050 will buy one of the handsomest lots in East End, on upper side of Jefferson street between Sixteenth and Seventeenth avenues; is 50 feet front and 185 feet deep. This is the cheapest lot in that section of the city.

$2750 will buy a seven-room house with water, sewer, closet, small barn and corner lot at 231 East First street. The street and avenue are improved and the lot will increase in value every year and is now worth at least $3000.

OFFER We want an offer on 50 feet on lower side of Third street, between Fifth and Sixth avenues East. There is an old dwelling on the property now, 529 East Third street, that is rented.

$20 000 for an investment that will net the purchaser more than eleven per cent per annum for the next ten years. One of the very best properties in the city.

$6000 will buy a double brick dwelling in the best flat district o fthe city; has 55 feet frontage and is 125 feet deep. More than half the frontage is vacant, thus affording splendid location for new flats.

$700 will buy 100x140 feet on Tenth avenue West, near Third street. This corner lies exceedingly well and can be cut into four lots, each 35x100, and sold to excellent advantage. A fine location for moderate homes.

$400 will buy a good lot near Phillips hotel, in West Duluth. This is a great big snap.

RATHER QUIET WEEK IN REALTY MARKET

Weather and Tax Settlements Interfere With Sales of Realty, Though Some Good Deals Are Closed—Complaints Against Acts of Vandals on Houses.

The past week has not been a lively one in the local real estate market. Two things contributed to the quiet conditions, the unfavorable weather and the settlement of taxes. This was the last week for the payment of the realty taxes or of half the taxes for 1902, without the attachment of the 10 per cent penalty, and property owners and agents have been busy getting their tax assessments straightened out rather than attempting to sell anything. But there has been some selling right along during the week, the record of transfers showing a great many smaller priced properties changing hands, while now and then a broker has been able to close up pending deals and secure the earnest money on others.

All the realty dealers predict a much better movement of local property June 1. The rainy weather and the fog prevented many prospective buyers from going out to inspect properties, but with the anticipation of fair weather the coming week a more favorable business is being looked for.

A vigorous protest is being made by local agents for out of town property owners, against the acts of vandalism that are being committed at vacant residence property right in the residence portion of the city. During the past few days there have been two good East End residence properties damaged to a considerable amount by boys living in a locality where such actions were not expected. Owners have been notified of the damage done their houses and there is a strong desire on their part to bring the offenders into police court no matter what their family connections may be.

One residence property on East Third street, which was recently vacated, was the scene of operations by boys who were old enough to know better. Stones were hurled with such force through a large plate glass window in the front and all the side windows with such force as to make dents on the opposite walls on the inside of the building. Doors were broken open by the young miscreants, who entered the building, and, finding a bottle of shoe polish, proceeded to decorate the tinted walls with grotesque figures.

Another house suffering damage is located on Jefferson street, between Fifteenth and Sixteenth avenues east. Here a piece has been broken out of the plate glass front window, leaving an aperture large enough to admit a good-sized man. The inside of the house was decorated in a manner not fit to describe.

This is not the only time that vacant residence properties have been vandalized in the city, but it is said to be the first time that such attentions have been paid residences in the East End.

Mr. Craig, of C. P. Craig & Co., reports a good business this month in Duluth Heights property. His firm has sold during the past few days six properties in that part of the city. It is said that there are few available houses for rent on the heights now and the firm is repairing its properties as fast as possible for sales. A good building movement is looked for on the heights this year.

* * *

Mr. Larson of George Crosby & company reports a very favorable week considering the adverse weather conditions. The firm has closed several sales already reported and has sold among other properties, a house and lot to Anton Kluzenski in block 151 Duluth proper, third division, for $1250; a tract of 160 acres of land in Lake county to A. H. Overman, who has bought the land for investment. It is said to contain large quantities of corundum. Considering its speculative value the land is said to have sold for a low price. The firm has sold to the Globe Investment company, for Henry C. Nelson, lot 156, block 37, Duluth proper, third division, for $750. The property is to be improved immediately. Among other sales were three modern residences, on which the earnest money has been paid.

William Larson, of Lake Mills, Ia., who owns considerable Duluth property, was in the city yesterday straightening up his 1902 taxes and looking over his investments. Mr. Larson is one of those who bought in boom times, but he has faith in the future of the city and holds on. He will also go on to Lake county, where he has other investments.

Thomas Wood has sold the 100 feet on the lower side of East Superior street, just beyond the Patrick residence, for $5,000. The purchaser is a wealthy Duluthian who intends to improve the property with a fine residence.

Mr. Wood has bought from A. Harrington of Minneapolis, six lots on Second street, between Twenty-second and Twenty-third avenues east.

J. A. Wharton of Little & Nole reports a favorable week's business considering the weather and other drawbacks. The firm has sold among others, a business property in the West End, not far from the car barns; closed a deal for Mrs. Lettau for the sale of the residence property at 232 Twenty-seventh avenue west, to Mrs. Aune, for $1000; sold the residence property at 826 East Third street to Angus McDonald, for $2400 and received the earnest money down in a number of other deals.

Hill & Bray, architects, who prepared the plans for the new St. James Catholic church at West Duluth, report the contract for the structure let to Edward Jackson. Work on the new church is to begin right away.

John Grandy has started the work on the new Fowler building on the lower side of First street near First avenue west. It will be a two-story brick, 50x140 feet and will cost about $25,000. Palmer, Hall & Hunt were the architects.

* * *

The demand continues steady for building permits at the inspector's office. The total amount put into new buildings thus far this year will already foot up to a large figure. Following are the permits that have been issued since the last report:

Mrs. E. Hicks, frame dwelling, Lester Park, $1500.

Dennis Moran, frame dwelling, south side Fifth street between Twenty-sixth and Twenty-seventh avenues west, $1500.

Experiments With Devices to Facilitate the Unloading of Ore.

Ceremonies May Disappear In Connection With Launchings on Lake.

Devices for facilitating the unloading of ore from the holds of lake vessels are occupying the attention of dock owners at lower lake ports.

M. Andrews, superintendent of docks for M. A. Hanna & Co., is one of the men who has given the matter attention. He has been experimenting with the ordinary road scraper as an aid in the unloading of vessels.

One of the great problems of unloading ore is to get the ore directly under the hatch where the clam shells may seize it and hoist it to the docks of cars. This is accomplished in part by giving a horizontal extension to the clam shell itself but there are always some parts of the vessel which cannot be reached. Some of the ore therefore, must be shovelled by hand within reach of the clams. A gang of from six to eight men to each hatch is employed for this work.

Mr. Andrews came to the conclusion that an ordinary road scraper could be used to do this work and has been experimenting along this line. The road scrapers were lowered into the hold and operated by means of winches with a cable adjusted to the hatch. Two scrapers were used to each hatch, one being thrust back to the ore by the same force which pulled the loaded scraper beneath the hatch. Five men were required to operate the device, two at each scraper and one at the winch. The results obtained were regarded as favorable.

With some of the newer boats which are fitted with a great number of hatches the entire cargo can be removed without assistance by the clam shells. Such is the case with the steamer J. H. Hoyt which is fitted with nineteen hatches and is specially constructed to facilitate unloading. A good record was recently made with four Hulett clam shell unloading machines working on the Hoyt at Conneaut. The four machines succeeded in unloading 5217 gross tons in four hours or at a rate of 1329 tons an hour.

A new type of ore carrier has been recently launched from one of the English ship-yards which is attracting widespread attention. The vessel is fitted with the unloading apparatus instead of the docks, as in this country. The vessel is of the turret type and proved to be but a fair success at her trials. She could carry 10,000 tons of ore which could be unloaded in 34 hours. While this is considered good time it has been vastly exceeded on the lakes by a number of different vessels. The record made by the Hoyt was at the rate of 10,000 tons in a little over eight hours.

WITHOUT CEREMONY.

New Departure In Launchings In George C. Howe Case.

The launching of the George C. Howe, of the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence River Transit company, of which A. B. Wolvin, of this city, is one of the heavy owners, was marked by an unprecedented event on the great lakes.

The George C. Howe slid into the water of the muddy and slimy river at the South Chicago yards of the Chicago Ship Building company, with no sparkling wine to brighten her course. The time-honored custom of breaking a bottle of wine over the bow of the vessel being launched was dispensed with.

It is claimed that this neglect is without any precedent on the lakes, and the sailors and nautical men are speculating as to what will be the finish in the career of a vessel so shabbily introduced to her sister craft of the inland seas.

It is said that the larger companies are going to break away from the traditions and customs of the old time superstitious mariner, and will conduct the steamship business with the same degree of cold bloodedness that any other corporate transactions are made.

With the launching of the Howe as a precedent, it is believed there will be many of the boats sent down the ways by the big companies this year, which will go unbaptized in the mysterious and inspiring beverage that has made kings of countless folk, and very, very common folks of kings.

THE MAXWELL BROUGHT IN.

Houghton, Mich., May 30.—The tug George Rogers last night brought into Dollar Bay the schooner A. C. Maxwell, which was abandoned three miles off Portage entry during Wednesday night's storm. The Maxwell was picked up unharmed, except for the loss of its steering gear.

THE PALMER UNINJURED.

Ashland, May 30.—After being released from Sand Island the steamer W. P. Palmer came here yesterday afternoon to leave the bag of ore the handlers she had assisted in getting her off and left on her way to the lower lakes at 4 o'clock. Considerable of the ore cargo which was jettisoned before the steamer could be pulled off the beach, was reloaded. The boat seemed to have suffered no damage.

THE MERIDA AGROUND.

Amherstburg, May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The steamer Merida, bound up with coal, ran on the east bank of Lime Kiln crossing about 2 a. m. today. She is out twelve inches forward, and the water is exceptionally high. Unless she is released before the water recedes the whole cargo will have to be lightered. The tug Home Rule and lighter are now at work.

MARINE BRIEFS.

The steamer Palmer, of the Pittsburg Steamship company, which was ashore at Sand Island, has been released by the tugs Inman and Schenck after several hundred tons of her cargo had been lightered. She is not thought to be seriously damaged having gone ashore on a sandy beach under a lee shore.

E. J. Kelly, general freight agent of the Lake Michigan and Lake Superior Transportation company is expected to arrive Sunday on a tour of inspection.

Eighty cents is now the generally accepted rate for ore from the head of the lakes to Lake Erie ports. Several charters have been made at that figure although vessel owners are in many cases holding off for the higher figure.

The tugs Schenck and Inman, of the Great Lakes Towing company, have returned after several days spent in removing the Palmer from Sand Island. The damage to the Palmer is reported to be very slight.

MYSTERIOUS MOVEMENTS

Of Russian Troops and Ships Are Causing Alarm.

Tokio, May 18, via Victoria, B. C., May 30.—The Russian troops have not been withdrawn from Manchuria and the Japanese press shows deep indignation at the delay. Russia, it is said, will not take any decided action until after the arrival at Pekin of Former Minister Lessenr. Meantime Russia is making various mysterious movements of troops and warships, which are considered demonstrative to intimidate China into granting her demands.

The majority of the Russian ships which have been staying in the various waters of the Far East, are now assembled in the gulf of Pe Chi Li. Port Arthur alone there are over thirty ships of various classes. The latest rumor of Russian movements is that 2000 Chinese are engaged in timber cutting for Russian concessionaries on the Yalu and that Russian troops have been sent to protect them.

Russia is reported to be shipping enormous quantities of coal from Port Arthur to the Yalu.

NO CUT IN TAXES

So Says Auditor Iverson With Reference to Recent Applications.

Declines to Approve Those Made By West Duluth Owners.

State Auditor S. G. Iverson has turned down the applications of the West Duluth property owners for an abatement of delinquent taxes on realty that came under the recent resolution of the board of county commissioners. The state auditor showed no discrimination in the matter, but turned down every application. Not only that, but he states positively that he will continue to turn down any other applications of like nature.

The reason he advances for his action is set forth in a letter to County Auditor Halden, in which he says it looks like a wholesale cancellation of taxes in this city, or a settlement for a little or nothing in which the city will get a very short end. A copy of the letter follows:

"St. Paul, Minn., May 29, 1903.

"Mr. O. Halden, Auditor,

"Duluth, Minn.

"Dear Sir:—I have disapproved the applications of the board of equalization and abatement of taxes sent here by you, pursuant to resolution of the board of county commissioners, a copy of which was attached to every petition. I cannot give my sanction to such a procedure, nor do I believe the law authorizes the state auditor to do so. We must look to Section 1662 for our authority in correct assessments, and such a wholesale proceeding, in my judgment, does not come within the province of this office. If any particular taxpayer does just cause to complain of excessive valuation, he shall be heard. I explained to a couple of officers of your city and county, who were here recently, my views in connection with this matter in substance what I have stated herein to you, that I should be very glad to give consideration to any individual case, showing just cause for correction and would gladly approve, if the case were worthy, but the proposition, as it now comes before me, appears like a wholesale cancellation of taxes, or a settlement for little or nothing, in which the city gets but a small portion of the amount of back assessments charged against the property, and the state and county the remainder, which is practically nothing. I shall disapprove every application of like nature that reaches this office based on such a resolution. At the same time assuring you of my desire to co-operate with you in every instance, where there is just cause for correction of an assessment. Very truly yours,

"S. G. IVERSON,
"State Auditor."

The refusal of the state auditor to accept the abatement will hit some of the West Duluth property owners pretty hard, in fact it was of conditions existing in that part of the city that brought about the resolution on the part of the county board to recommend to the state auditor a tax abatement on property in the western part of the city where sewer improvement is greatly desired, but which improvement is held up because of delinquent taxes.

The resolution was for the relief of the property where the delinquent taxes are greater than the assessed valuation of the lots. The matter was brought up by the opinion of the county commissioner by a delegation from the West Duluth Commercial club, who set forth that sewer improvement is much desired, but which cannot be obtained until much of the West Duluth property taxes are straightened up and the property again put on a tax paying basis.

The effect on the auditor's action, it is claimed, will be to put a stop to all plans for sewer improvement in West Duluth this season.

To many of the West Duluth property owners who have made application for tax abatement under the resolution of the county board, County Auditor Halden has shown the letter written by the state auditor and expressions of disappointment have been heard from many quarters.

Some of the people whose applications have been turned down are quite free in expressions of their opinion about the state official.

On the other hand there are other property owners in the city who uphold the action of State Auditor Iverson.

The delinquent owner's claim, in the most part, that their property has been over-assessed in the past years, that street improvements were made in blocks where there were not more than two or three houses, that miles of sidewalk and street paving wre put down in localities where they have been of no practical use, and the taxes piled up on the abutting property until the assessments amounted to more than the property is now worth. Numerous examples have been and are now being cited by the West Duluthians in support of their statement. One example cited this morning was of a lot in the New Duluth division, seven miles west of Central avenue in West Duluth, where the assessment for 1892, 1893, 1894 amounted to about $160 and the lot was assessed in 1902 on the basis of $6.

A strong sentiment has developed in the city favoring the action of city and county officials in taking some steps to bring back a lot of the dead property on a tax-paying basis again, but there is also a strong sentiment on the part of others against any tax abatement as an injustice to those people who have always paid up their assessments in full.

Against this argument the West Duluth property owners have claimed that conditions are different in their part of the city than in other sections.

Another argument is being made in favor of the tax settlement is that some of the delinquent property from 1892 was bought up by second parties on a tax judgment for 1895 and that in case the tax title is perfected the county will lose the 1892-93 and 94 assessments anyway, that it would be far better to effect a settlement and recover at least part of the previous assessments.

At the last meeting of the county board a protest was made by representatives of the West Duluth Commercial club against any abatement of the taxes of the Northern Pacific Railway company's property in this city that is not actually in use for railroad purposes. At that time it was held by some of the commissioners that the West Duluth contingent showed bad taste in petitioning the board for a tax abatement and then coming in with a protest against anybody else getting relief under the resolution. One of the commissioners said yesterday that he would not be surprised to learn that the protest made against the petition of the Northern Pacific company had some influence in causing the state auditor to turn down all petitions presented for tax abatement.

HAS A RIVER BEEN STOLEN?

Kansas Attorney General Says Arkansas Has Been Tapped.

Guthrie, Okla., May 29.—A peculiar case now under consideration is that of the state of Kansas against the state of Colorado, in which the latter is charged with the low tide in the Arkansas river, which has its origin in Colorado, and penetrates both Kansas and Oklahoma in its route to the Mississippi.

As Oklahoma has also suffered from the lack of water, the people of this territory are interested in the outcome of the suit.

It is claimed that the irrigation systems maintained by the state of Colorado along this stream, from which the water is used to supply the irrigation ditches, have lowered the Arkansas until its benefits to Kansas farmers are much less than formerly.

According to the attorney general of Colorado, Kansas has made the claim that there is a subterranean stream, which Colorado has tapped, running underneath the Arkansas. He therefore claims it is up to Kansas to make this declaration good, placing the burden of proof on Kansas.

He says Colorado, therefore, will pass the entire matter until Kansas puts in some definite proof of the existence of such a subterranean stream.

It is the belief of irrigationists in Western Kansas that such a stream does exist, but the first real efforts to demonstrate that fact have only recently been made.

The state engineer of Colorado commenced this week the taking of measurements of the river, as required by the supreme court. He is measuring the flow of low and high tide at various places, and will carefully note all the various peculiarities of the stream.

Particular attention will be paid to the examination of conditions where the river crosses the state line. Just as soon as the measurements are completed the case will be pushed to a conclusion.

The Beginning of Trouble.

A disordered stomach may cause no end of trouble. When the stomach fails to perform its functions the bowels become deranged and the liver and kidneys congested, causing numerous diseases, the most fatal of which are pulmonary. WEDDING PLANS WERE SPOILED

Bridegroom Mistook Flat Lease For His Divorce Decree.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 29.—Arthur C. G. Weld, a New York musical director, is the husband of "Jane Peyton," an actress. Further, he knows the difference between a divorce decree and a lease of an apartment.

His new wife was formerly the wife of Dr. Robert Curtis Brown, of Milwaukee. His first wife was a dear friend of Mrs. Brown. Two divorces made possible the new family ties. Mr. Weld intended to be married on Thursday, as that has always been his lucky day. He was forbidden to marry again in New York state, and to the Quaker City the director came, accompanied by his bride-to-be and several friends.

The couple took their places and the ceremony was about to begin when the minister asked to see the divorce papers of Mr. Weld. He explained that the law makes this compulsory.

"Certainly," said Mr. Weld, fishing in his inside coat pocket. "I nearly forgot to bring them myself. Thought of it just in time to rush back and pick them up."

Drawing a formidable-looking document from his pocket the director smilingly handed it to the parson with the remark that he would find it all right.

The minister unfolded the paper, looked at it and then asked:

"Is this what you got from the court?"

Mr. Weld bowed affirmatively.

"Well, I guess you can't get married on this," said the minister, handing the document back.

"Why not?" demanded Mr. Weld.

"For the simple reason that it's the lease of your flat. Perhaps you've got the decree in some other pocket."

Inside out went Weld's pockets, one after another, while the director perspired large round drops, his bride-elect figured nervously and the guests looked uncomfortable. The attendants helped, but it was useless. No other paper was found.

"What shall I do?" he finally asked in despair.

"Don't know, unless you go back to New York and get the right papers," responded the clergyman. "I can't marry you without them."

The party broke up sorrowfully and back to New York went the principals. Mr. Weld led the Casino orchestra as usual that night and next day came here with the decree sewed into the lining of his waistcoat.

Stomach Trouble Easily Cured

Give nature its freedom and it will do its work without the aid of drugs or any artificial help. The Creator made man self-sustaining in his normal condition. Then why is there any abnormal condition? It is because there is a shut-off somewhere in the nerves that lead to the affected parts, and in that way nature is kept from doing its work. Dr. Riesland removes that pressure with his hands without the use of a knife or drugs. You can find him at 206 East First street. Hours, from 1 to 8 p. m. Consultation free.

GREAT CHURCH GATHERING IN DULUTH NEXT MONTH

United Norwegian Church to Convene Here.

Over One Thousand Delegates Are Expected.

One of the greatest gatherings Duluth will see this year will be the convention of the United Norwegian church of America, which is to be held here in the month of June. It will be in session for nine days, from June 17 to June 25, inclusive.

Preparations for the entertainment of this convention are underway and have been for several weeks. It is no small task to properly take care of the gathering for about 1000 delegates attend its sessions and the interest in the forthcoming one is so great that full attendance is certain. Arrangements must be made for housing these delegates during the period they are in the city and a committee of local church men with Rev. N. B. Tvedt, pastor of the Norwegian-Danish Lutheran church at the corner of First avenue east and Third street, at the head, is working on this.

For the sessions of the convention a large hall is necessary, none of the churches of the denomination in the city being sufficient in size to seat the delegates. The high school Assembly hall has been secured for this purpose and the meetings will be held there.

The head of a Scandinavian-American church association is, to all practical intents and purposes, a bishop. But he is not called a bishop. And thereby hangs a tale. The strong religious movements in the Scandinavian countries during the nineteenth century, were more or less hostile to, or at least prejudiced against, the state churches because these are managed pretty much along the same lines and in the same manner as the purely secular branches of the government. To very many Scandinavians the name bishop suggested a semi-secular ruler, and in deference to this sentiment the Scandinavian-American churches, even the most conservative ones, have abandoned the use of the title bishop, and have adopted the plain word formand (foreman, president) in place of it.

"Formand Dahl, therefore, is the expression by which the head of the United Norwegian Lutheran church of America is known among all Scandinavians.

The Rev. T. H. Dahl of Minneapolis,

is a very interesting personage, and if the following remarks are not to the point it is because there was too much material in the writer's head to choose from.

Formand Dahl does not need to have anyone tell him how the plain man of the Nothwest lives and moves and has his being, for he has passed through the mill himself with the plainest of the plain folks of the farms and villages and cities of the Upper Mississippi valley.

As far back as the year 1868 he accepted a call from congregations in Meeker county, Minn., being the first Norwegian Lutheran pastor who settled west of "The Big Woods. To Rev. Mr. Dahl, skis were not then emblems of youthful sport; they were rugged realities of everyday life; for more than once did he have to skim the prairie snowdrifts on his skis for a distance of twenty or thirty miles in a day to fill appointments.

There were no church buildings, and even the school houses were few and far between. For that reason the services were generally held in log houses during the cold season, and in barns during the warm season. Rev. Mr. Dahl's first confirmation services were held in a barn, which had been decorated with green leaves and branches for the occasion.

For two years Rev. Mr. Dahl lived with his family in a small log cabin, having one room, which served for all purposes.

Formand Dahl served as formand of the Norwegian Lutheran conference for five years in the early '80s, and as vice formand of the United church from 1894 to 1902. One year ago he was elected formand of the latter body, and the position which he now holds is the most responsible one occupied by any Scandinavian outside of the countries of the north. He is compelled to be traveling a large part of the time to attend to the needs of more than 1000 congregations. Recently he has been accompanied by his wife, who is an exceptionally able woman. He is eloquent and his eloquence is characterized by a peculiar ease of its own. Though a man of very broad sympathies, his style is individualistic, and his voice is not so very unlike that of the late De Witt Talmage.

Forman Dahl and his wife have been total abstainers and very active temperance workers for about a quarter of a century and for a period of twenty years the saloonkeepers of Stoughton, Wis., found them to be very troublesome customers. The truth is, that occasionally the saloon business was not in it at all, and this was due in no small degree to the efforts of Formand Dahl and his wie. His firm stand with regard to the use of intoxicants will no doubt be strongly felt throughout the United church.

Hon. Lars Swenson, of Minneapolis, the treasurer of the United church, is a veteran financier. The United church will be only 13 years old on June 13 next. But Mr. Swenson held the same position in the conference, one of the bodies which were merged into the United church, during the years 1878 to 1890, and since the latter year he has been treasurer of the United church; in other words, he has been the financial manager of his church association for a quarter of a century. He is also manager of the publishing house of the association. When he entered upon his duties as such, in 1878, the assets of the concern were $400, now they are $80,000. The growth of this branch, therefore, has been something like 20,000 per cent, and the profits for the past year were about $9000, although the main aim of the business has always been to furnish the churches with the necessary literature at reasonable rates. Mr. Swenson is not wholly a stranger to kicks coming from ministers who think his prices are stiff and his business methods rather rigid; but when they come to the annual meeting and find how magnificently the surplus is piling up, the war paint is speedily dissolved into broad smiles.

A few remarks must also be made about the finances of the association in general. For a few years past it has taken about $20,000 a year merely to keep the necessary official machinery running. Last year the expenses were very large, and Mr. Swenson had to make a great spurt, the result of which was that by May 1 he had secured $30,000 for this department. About $30,000 is raised every year for the home and foreign missions. During the past three years about $200,000 was raised for new buildings at St. Olaf college, Northfield, the theological seminary, at St. Anthony Park, and the normal school at Madison, Minn. There is an endowment fund of $120,000, the interest on which goes to pay the salaries of the theological professors. Perhaps the most remarkable thing about the finances of the United church is that in spite of extraordinary expenditures for several years past, there is absolutely no such thing as debt, and to Mr. Swenson is due a large share of the credit for this satisfactory condition.

Professor M. O. Bockman, D.D., president of the United Church Theological seminary at St. Anthony Park, St. Paul, is a man in the prime of life, a typical Norwegian in appearance as well as in character. He received his theological education at the university of Norway, and served congregations in Goodhue county, Minn., for a number of years. Since 1896 he has occupied chairs of theology, and ten years ago he was elected to his present position. He is a solid scholar of the old school, and new-fangled fandangoes in the line of modern criticism have no charm for him. His power of concentration of mind is a phenomenon. No man can "stick to his text" more relentlessly than does Professor Bockman. But scholarly as his sermons are, they are also alive with the glow of unfeigned feeling. Not only his mind, his heart, too, is vigorous, active, comprehensive, and his sympathies will always be found on the right side. The young men that receive their theological training under his guidance are well prepared for their task; but compared with theological candidates of many other schools they may serve as patterns of modesty.

LARS SWENSON.

The graduation of the first class of the Duluth normal school is a notable event in the educational circles of Duluth, and of much interest to its citizens. The exercises will take place during the coming week and will be held in the assembly hall of the institution. The capacity of the auditorium will undoubtedly be taxed. Seven young women will receive diplomas from the school, and the honor of composing the first class graduated by the school is not lightly esteemed by them. The commencement program will open tomorrow with the delivery of the baccalaureate sermon at 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon by Rev. Robert Forbes, D.D. Tuesday the juniors will tender a farewell reception to the seniors. The formal commencement will take place Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock and the address will be delivered by Rev. A. B. Marshall, of Minneapolis. There will be a musical program in addition, and the presentation of the diplomas will take place. Handsome invitations were issued during the past week by the faculty and members of the graduating class for the exercises. The class colors are lavender and cream. Miss Esther Levy is class president.

CANADIAN RECIPROCITY

New York Journal of Commerce Indorses Minnesota's Stand.

New York, May 29.—The Journal of Commerce indorses the movement started in Minnesota for reciprocity with Canada. It says: "Canadian reciprocity is only a phase of a policy which is not unlikely in the future to have a far-reaching effect upon the domestic trade situation. The acceptance of the Cuban treaty will put South American reciprocity out of the question, while the opposition developed to the French reciprocity treaty demonstrates clearly enough that American manufacturers are too strongly entrenched in congress to permit such agreement from even coming to a vote.

"The Canadian treaty should appeal powerfully to consumers and business men in New England and the northern tier of states beyond the great lakes. In this way it should be possible to secure for such a commercial agreement precisely what other agreements lack, namely, the support of localized interest which will put it in a position to resist with success interests supposedly antagonized by its passage.

"While Eugene Hay does not put much weight upon this phase of the matter in his report, he might well have laid much greater stress upon it, for we believe it to be the crucial point of the situation. That the political possibilities of the case are fully realized by the more astute Republican statesmen is evident from the strenuous efforts of Senator Lodge in opposition to the fishing treaty with Newfoundland. There is great encouragement in the fact that business men of Massachusetts and the Northern New England states, as well as in Minnesota, are really interesting themselves in this matter from a practical standpoint and that consumers are seemingly beginning to recognize what they have at stake.

LIKE HUGE FIREFLIES.

Ordnance Board Tests New Illuminated Shell.

New York, May 29.—Big guns were booming at the Sandy Hook proving grounds after dark last Wednesday night. Persons on passing vessels saw what looked like balls of fire darting over the Sandy Hook peninsula. Sometimes these brilliant projectiles came singly, sometimes in pairs and sometimes in hot pursuit of one another. Men who saw them from a distance described them as resembling huge fire flies moving oin rapid flight.

No information as to the exhibitions was given out by the army officers at Sandy Hook, but it is understood that the flashes were made by an illuminated shell, intended for use at night, with which the artillerists are experimenting.

Tests were made also of two pieces of ordnance which have been under consideration by the United States army and naval board for some time. The weapons tested were the McLean automatic one-pound gun, and the Luger automatic pistol. The McLean gun can fire 800 shots a minute, each pull of the trigger discharging twenty-five one-pound projectiles.

TEAMSTERS STILL OUT.

St. Louis, May 29.—The striking teamsters failed to resume work today, notwithstanding the threatened expulsion from the union for remaining out. They say their action in declaring the sympathetic strike was as individuals and not as a union, and they will absolutely disregard any orders from the national or local officers.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

THE OUTING GIRL AND OUTING HAT

The White Felt Hat Is Seen This Year In Various Shapes—Should Be Bent To Suit the Face.

New York, May 30.—No well-ordered summer maiden is, or ever can be, insensible of the virtues of the summer outing hat. Other hats come and go, blooming forth in freshness in the morning and fading—as do chiffon and roses—neath the dews of evening. But the outing hat remains forever, pretty in the morning and unchanged at nightfall.

The best outing hats are the ones that can be wet with rain, dampened with sleet, coated with road dust and stained with vagrant spots, without revealing their vicissitudes to the beholder.

All of these things should the outing hat be able to bear, yet it should come out of the ordeal unharmed by dust and rain and almost unscathed by the carelessness of the treatment universally bestowed upon the outing hat by the outing girl.

The English, who make a specialty of the outing hat, are showing one which has the approval of Queen Alexandra. Her majesty wears it when she goes out to feed her dogs, and she puts it on for a trampling in the Scottish hills. It is a ready-to-wear hat of felt, slightly mixed in gray and black, rough to the touch and trimmed with a band of gray tweed and a quill of black.

Prettier than a hat of this kind is the French outing hat, which, with the French idea of chic, is made all of white. It is a felt hat, something like a man's alpine, hat with the brim turned down flat, so that the hat looks like a round hat. The top is trimmed with a band of white ribbon and there is a gentlemanly little crease in the middle.

The white felt hat is a hat that is brought out every summer, and it is a hat that wears forever. Its only failing is its tendency to show spots, but as spots can be removed by judicious applications of soap and chalk and magnesia, the hat remains a fixture in popular favor.

The white felt hat is seen this year in the alpine shapes, in the round hats, in the English walking hats and in the Gainsborough design. The Gainsborough white felt hat is hardly worthy the name, for it is too soft to hold its shape and the sides are apt to droop. But they are prettty, no matter how they droop, and the hat becomes a little chassie and a poem and an idol as the day wears on. For there is something about a white felt hat that grows prettier and prettier as its shape changes. You can not despoil its beauty, no matter how you bend it.

But there are a great many persons who can not, or will not, wear the outing hat, in all its severity. They demand that it be bent to suit the face. The stiff felt hat, or the soft felt hat, as the case may be, is always a trying hat. It does not frame the face prettily, and it does not lend itself to the curves of the cheek or the contour of the forehead. On a very pretty young girl it is all right, but it is not becoming to the more mature woman, nor to her whose type is irregular and whose coloring is not clear.

And in this respect women would do well to study themselves. Have you not seen, a thousand times, middle-aged women wearing stiff little outing hats, and have you not been treated to the painful spectacle of old ladies in glasses and gray hair with their placid features topped by a severe little white felt alpine, with an uncompromising ribbon tied around the crown?

Even if one be young, it is no surety that one is of classic mold, nor can it be guaranteed that one can wear the hard, stiff hat. Better by far is it to veil the outing hat with some pretty trimming and to decorate the top with a softening rose or two.

To accommodate their patrons who can not wear the severe type of hats, the milliners have very obligingly provided some samples of outing hats which leave nothing at all to be desired on the score of becomingness. And in this direction one can mention the gray felt outing hat draped with its Persian scarf.

The outing hat, which is soft in the crown, with an irregular flat brim, is trimmed around the edge with a scarf of many colors. This is put on, not severely, but loosely, so that the brim and part of the crown are covered with it. A scarlet quill is stuck in across the front.

The Roman scarfs make very nice outing trimmings, for they do not show spots and seldom do they fade. They are soft and very easily managed, and can be taken off, shaken out and put on again in a fresh manner.

Those who are clever in the small things are buying the white felt outing hat, and wear it through the first spring days in the country or by the mountain side. Then, when its novelty has worn off and the spots have worn on, they take it off the hat, remove the trimming and treat the hat to a coat of dye. The color can be vivid scarlet. And all at once the girl of the summer reappears in a red Robin Hood hat, trimmed with a flaming red scarf, while a little jacket of hunting "pink"—which is a bright red—completes the happy ensemble.

Another pretty and new style of trimming is found in the band of black velvet, which is drawn across the front of the hat and tied under the brim at the back. At the front it makes a band for the crown, while at the back it forms a becoming little ornament for the coiffure.

The fashion of dangling ends still remains and the hats of the season are sure to show something or other hanging down. It may be only a stray branch of hyacinths, a few dangling wistaria or a bunch of the ubiquitous grapes. Or it may be a few roses fastened at the back of the hat or some carnations arranged so that the buds and the leaves touch the neck. But something positively must dangle. And, be it an ostrich feather, a gay flower or lace ends, one will surely see some little indication that the rear-end decoration is still the style.

The severe types of outing hats do not have their dangling ends. But there are many hats that are trimmed with scarfs, decorated with velvet bows or touched with streamers of flying lace.

The lace trimmings are seen not so much upon the actual outing hat as upon the piazza hat. And this is one of the prettiest of all ways to trim this hat. The piazza hat, made of chiffon or of straw, and treated to a top of flowers, is delightfully finished if its edges be veiled with lace.

To arrange a lace scarf around a hat be sure that the scarf is long and that its ends are cut in points, as these make the prettiest streamers imaginable. Now fasten the lace scarf around the hat brim in folds, letting the folds cover the top of the hat if they will. The lace will fall over the edge, just touching the hair, and making a frame for the face that is as bewitching as can be.

Many of the outing hats are of the eccentric type, and in their case eccentricity is pretty. There is the dish shape, round and slightly sloping upward. The top is trimmed with triangles of felt, brought up to the middle of the crown and fastened with pearl buttons. Of course there is a quill somewhere.

Those who are handy with the fingers can adopt the Marlborough type of outing hat. This is nothing more than a plain felt hat, low in the crown, with a very flat brim. As the hat is put on the head daily it is shaped with the hands, taking out this curve or putting in that curve, according as it is bent by nimble fingers.

The summer hat offers a wide field for the use of the hatpin. Hatpins come now looking as though they were rare gems, and the prudent girls will buy them while they are to be had. They cost only a song, and one can really get a supply to last all summer and beyond for 50 cents and less.

The use of the hatpin is a thing to be learned. A certain young woman having a very plain black hat, purchased several hatpins of turquoise, surrounded by rhinestones. These she used in such a way as to form a trimming. She placed two at the back, as sentinels to mark the middle of the back. One she set in under the hat to trim the bandeau. A third and fourth were used upon the crown. The hat was thus trimmed in an impromptu way each time it was put on, and the pins were no more numerous than is necessary for a windy day in summer.

It is surely a season when individual taste plays a prominent part. How many little dress schemes there are and how easily a woman can dress beautifully if she will.

A certain woman who is famous for her taste in dress and who belongs to the ranks of the old Four Hundred, has a practice of picking up turquoise bits. Her turquoises are well known. She has a few real pieces to mix in with the mock ones, but for the most part her turquoises are the light blue stones, set in skeleton settings, and remarkable only for their prettiness. She wears them with blue, with white and with black, and also with fawn color and gold.

There is a determined effort being made to revive green in dress. And it is succeeding remarkably well, for many of the best of evening toilets are in green, running from the deep green of grass to the brighter emerald and on up to seafoam and absinthe and gaslight green.

But green needs gold with it and it also needs a little black, so that it is not good unless it be carefully managed. The woman who is not sure of her own taste should be careful.

Miss Alice Roosevelt wears black a good deal, and, in fact, is seen in it more frequently than in any other color. She wears black etamine with a waist to match—a black shirt waist suit—and she wears a black hat draped with black lace and relieved only by a great pink rose or chiffon and silk. She is frequently teased for this rigid clinging to bleak by her girl friends. But she declares that she likes it best of all. Her next favorite tone is navy blue, and after that comes a ripe brown, called cigar brown.

Mrs. Roosevelt clings to her fancy for wearing white and is seldom seen in any other color. Occasionally she wears a gray of the silver order, but the gray is so trimmed with white that it looks like white itself.

Her hats are of medium size, while Miss Alice wears the very large black picture hats.

And what a season it is of weddings. Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, the latest of the Vanderbilt brides, she who was Mrs. Rutherford, has been planning a trousseau for six months. But the fact has only just leaked out. And in this trousseau are wonderful gowns in rose color, gowns that simply ravish one with their beauty.

Rose color is in the evening the prettiest of all things, and a rose-colored gown with black belt embroidered in roses, and with a band of black embroidery around the low corsage, makes an evening gown that is second to nothing in the color scheme.

One of the gowns in a recent trousseau is made of rose-colored panne chiffon over a rose-colored foundation. The touch of black is found in a beaded passementerie which is very skeleton in its style. The strands of beads are slender and few and are used more as a chasing upon the sides of the gown. The bodice is trimmed in the same way.

The prettiest neck ruffles are made of rose-colored silk muslin and these are edged with rose-colored chiffon, upon which there is a fagotting in black. Black silk fagotting is easily made, and if one wants a rose-colored neck ruffle, one can get the silk muslin, the chiffon and, if possible, a little panne velvet to make a piping upon the foundation of the neck ruffle. Let there be a little black in it and do not forget that it must hang down very long in the front, far below the waist line.

The muslin collar is taking its place in summer dess, not the flat, wide collar which is worn upon the shirtwaist suits, but the fluffy, flappy collar of silk muslin, trimmed with chiffon shirrings and decorated with knots of ribbon, frillings of satin, narrow fringes and what not, for its adornment.

The foundation for these ruffles is always a collar or chiffon which is very deep, coming almost to the shoulders and cut in circular fashion. It is long in the back and there are broad stole ends.

Over the chiffon foundation there is placed a series of chiffon ruffles and ruffles of silk. And in between these there are very narrow bands of black velvet, no wider than a straw, and each side of the band of black velvet there may be a fringe or the tiniest of ruchings. The whole makes a very nice ornament for the neck.

The shops declare that they can not keep these fluffy, flappy neck trimmings in stock, so great is the demand and so rapid the sale. No sooner do they arrive than they go out, and the latest cry is for the collarette, all of white, without as much as a touch of black to relieve it. This is made of white silk muslin, of white chiffon and of white satin, all upon a lining of white chiffon reinforced with a lining of white taffeta.

The making of such a collar is not difficult, but it is what is called puttering work, and requires a great deal of time and patience for its execution. But the result well justifies the time spent upon it, for no more becoming a thing can be worn than the wide collar reaching almost to the shoulders, with plenty of little ruffles and plenty of ruchings and plaitings, not forgetting the tiny bows which seem to connect it, bringing its various parts into harmony.

The shirt waist is losing its last vestige of usefulness and is becoming only a thing of luxury fit for those who wear the things of vanity and frivolity. The newest shirt waists, little things in lawn and thin muslin, inexpensive though they be, are not durable, for they are made with row after row of insertion and with whole yokes made of lace.

One of the prettiest of shirt waists is made upon a French pattern, which provides a lace yoke in the front coming down to a deep point. At the back there is a point not quite so deep. The waist is buttoned down the back, as so many French waists are arranged, giving the wide, smooth front.

Another waist is a mass of tucks running up and down, with lace insertion coming between the tucks, and with a yoke that is overlaid with lace medallions, with the material cut out underneath. This waist is one of the inexpensive ones, presumably for everyday use, but the lace insertion and the delicacy of the design rob it of all durability.

It has come to a pass when every woman must be her own laundress, and when the washing of shirt waists must take up one morning of each week.

Women with time o ntheir hands and an industrious inclination are investing in little tin washtubs, no bigger than dishpans, and are patronizing the small washboards known to childhood. With special soaps and with a nice bluing they are washing out and preparing their own shirt waists, and getting them ready for the little nickel-plated flatiron, which is a part of every summer trunk.

A fancy of the season is the making of handkerchiefs to match the shirt waist. A shirt waist of dotted Madras is provided with a handkerchief of dotted lawn. And both are trimmed with the same kind of lace.

Shirt waists of blue have blue lawn handkerchiefs to match, and so also do the waists of rose color and cream and white. It is a matter of dress detail which women can not afford to ignore.

Still another note of dress, and one that will appeal to all women, is found in the wearing of turn-over collars to match the turn-over cuffs and the carrying of a lace and lawn handkerchief to match both. It takes very little time to get together a set of this kind, and the effect is charmingly pretty. It glorifies an otherwise ordinary shirt waist and makes it look like a thing of dressinesss and skill.

The French are making a specialty of their belts. They do not always wear a belt, for many of the French gowns are cut princess shape, but when the belt is worn it is one of the handsome things of dress. Enormous slides of gold and steel or of gold and turquoise are run upon wide pieces of satin ribbon. The ribbon is brought around the waist in belt fashion and pinned in the middle of the front. A big handsome turquoise pin, or a pin of steel, is fastened in the middle of the front to cover the joining of the ribbon.

Full shirt-waist suits are made dressy by handsome belts, by nice stock arrangements and by attention to the inevitable little turn-over, without which no dress seems complete.

Just what will come next no one dares to predict, but the French modistes are busy planning, and this means more activity in the fashionable world.

THEFT OF ELECTRICITY

Discussed By National Electric Light Association.

Chicago, May 29.—The question of the theft of electric current was treated at the closing session of the convention of the National Electric Light association last night. Charges were made that the largest and most respectable firms which use electricity often need the closest watching to prevent them from tampering with wires and meters for the purpose of obtaining power for which they do not pay. Robert L. Elliott, of Chicago, read a paper on the subject. Other papers were read by William Cooper, of Cincinnati and L. G. Van Ness, Lincoln, Neb.

Officers were elected as follows: President, Charles T. Edgar, New York; vice presidents, S. V. Livermore, of Winona, Minn., and J. F. Lieb, Jr., of New York; secretary-treasurer, Ernest H. Davis, Williamsport, Pa.; assistant treasurer, H. L. Billings, New York; executive committee, L. A. Ferguson, of Chicago, Harry Bottomly, of Fall River, Mass., and Alexander Dow, of Boston.

SAD CONDITION OF AFFAIRS.

Vienna, May 29.—The Croatian members of the reichsrath and the members of the Croatian diet have published a joint manifesto attributing the popular excitement in Croatia to what they describe as the sad condition of affairs in that province, the national rights of which they declare have been violated.

It's the dispenser of cheerfulness, the distributor of sunshine. One sees bright rainbows across the clouds of despair after taking Rocky Mountain Tea. 35 cents. S. F. BOYCE.

RISING BREAST

And many other painful and serious ailments from which most mothers suffer, can be avoided by the use of "Mother's Friend." This great remedy is a God-send to women, carrying them through their most critical ordeal with safety and no pain. No woman who uses "Mother's Friend" need fear the suffering and danger incident to birth; for it robs the ordeal of its horror and insures safety to life of mother and child, and leaves her in a condition more favorable to speedy recovery. The child is also healthy, strong and good natured. Our book "Motherhood," is worth its weight in gold to every woman, and will be sent free in plain envelope by addressing application to Bradfield Regulator Co. Atlanta, Ga.

BEAUTIFUL PARIS FROCKS WORN AT THE RACES

GOWNS OF OLD FASHIONED TAFFETA ARE SEEN

SHORT LACE JACKET FINISHED WITH A RUFFLE

LIGHT GRAY ALMOST WHITE IS WORN

EMBROIDERED LACE IS FASHIONABLE

To wear the smartest of gowns to the races is now so much a necessity in these days that more attention is paid to costumes for the races than to any other gowns in the fashionable outfit, and not only must the gowns themselves be of the latest style, but every accessory, such as parasol, wrap and hat, must also be new and as becoming as possible.

The Parisian woman is fond of the races, but not more so than the American woman of the present day, who feels that there she can wear her best clothing and see the latest s As the races continue for several we readily can be understood that there ty of opportunity for the wearing of gowns and also of many smart wraps. W on the day is cool the light cloth, the veiling and the foulard gowns are seen; if the day be warm then is the time to display gorgeous creations of muslin and lace, net and lace or altogether lace, while in all sorts of weather the cloth, silk chiffon or lace wrap is apparently considered appropriate.

It might be thought that there could be no change in the different styles of cloth costumes, especially those in light colors, but dressmakers and tailors and designers discover every day some new way of making up cloth, especially the lightweight cloths, which are so light as not to be at all too warm for any cool day in summer. As a rule the cloth gowns, when lace is used to trim them, have the heavier qualities of lace, but there are a few, and these exceedingly smart, of laces of finer mesh. One of the newest models has a short jacket, with elbow sleeves, almost a bolero in shape, finished with a deep ruffle of appliqued lace, the ruffle going entirely around the jacket, as well as finishing the sleeves, while the skirt is finished with two deep ruffles of lace. The bands of lace insertion are almost always of a heavier quality of lace, and yet a smart gown that has attracted no end of attention, is trimmed with real Valenciennes lace, put on just as though the body of the gown were of batiste or lawn instead of cloth, and the effect is very good. Embroidered lace has also been greatly in demand for trimming cloth gowns, and now it is the fashion to use colored silk in the embroidery, and not only the delicate colors, but a bright red or blue, which makes the lace look entirely different, more like the Russian lace, although it is a different mesh.

But so smart are the wraps worn with the gowns that often they attract more attention than do the gowns themselves. They are all enveloping, for they are made wide and long, and, while it must be admitted that they are shapeless, they are smart in appearance The pleated chiffon ones are very odd, although the plain chiffon wraps have been fashionable for the last two or three years. They are made in all the delicate shades, as well as in red, black and a dark blue. The favorite pattern is loose from the neck, with wide shoulder capes, and, of course, it adds greatly to the size of the wearer. Another style is the regulation long coat, shaped in at the sides, and with full sleeves gathered into a band at the wrist. As a rule, the chiffon coats have no trimming, but there are a few designs that have bands of lace insertion or are trimmed with cords and tassels of white passementerie across the front. The lining is always of the thinnest India silk, which in itself has very little warmth, but combined with the chiffon makes the wrap warm enough to be of service a cool afternoon.

The taffeta and peau de soie coats are much warmer than these, and are made long, with the big sleeves and with deep shoulder capes of lace, or with stitched bands of satin, with triple shoulder capes, each cape finished with a narrow band of satin. These wraps are smartest when made in half fitting coat shape, and are sometimes lined with white India silk, to make them rather warmer. They are worn with all sorts of gowns, but look much better when worn over light ones. The dark silk coats are no longer considered smart, and are more useful than ornamental. So universal is the custom of wearing light clothes that the dark coats seem too heavy. Never before this year has it been generally popular to wear such light and elaborate clothes to the races or to any public place of entertainment. Only a few did it formerly, and, although in many instances they were smart folk, the more conservative element clung to dark clothes and simple fashions. The only exception was the gown of wash material, made in some simple design, but which bore in every line the sign mark of the best work and the cleverest artist.

It would seem, though, as if whenever any fashion becomes universally popular it is time for it to be changed, and now among all these elaborate light clothes are to be noticed an unusual number of rather plain tailor gowns with the short skirts and long coats, but not made in dark colors, and of the light cheviots. Perfect in cut and fit, with collars, revers and cuffs of embroidered linen and worn with lace and muslin waists of the finest quality, these gowns are most noticeable, many of them being made in different shades of light purple, but more in a light gray, almost white. These are not in the least like the so-called tailor gowns for every day wear with the convenient short skirt, but look like the smartest kind of afternoon gowns, as they are.

Gowns of changeable taffeta are also to be seen at the race track in the queerest old fashioned shades of color. Bluish pinks and heliotropes, what used to be known as ashes of roses and regular dove grays are the favorite colors, and the trimmings are always of the yellowish laces, never white. Gowns made all in one, that is with the waist and skirt joined by a band of lace, instead of a regular belt, are the favorite style for these silks and there is either a yoke of lace with draped bertha or wide embroidered collar of the old tambour muslin or one of the old fashioned sicking taffeta silk wraps trimmed with ribbed ruchings of the silk, while on the skirt are flounces edged with three same ruchings.

The flounced skirt in taffeta is a favorite model also, with flounces from the belt to the hem, or instead of flounces narrow ruffles, each finished with the ruchings or with a narrow fringe of precisely the same color. The waist is tight fitting, with the upper part of the sleeve tight, but with full under sleeves of embroidered muslin and an embroidered muslin fichu, making the wearer look as though she had stepped out of an old story book, especially when a hat of fine crin and lace, trimmed with small flowers matching in color the silk, is added to the costume. These colored silk gowns are for the moment thought more fashionable than white, but, oddly enough, white veiling and white muslin gowns are considered smarter than those made in colors. Entire gowns of lace are not worn now in the daytime—that is, at the races—so much as last year. There must needs be some other material, with the lace to mark the gown as one of this season's, but there need be very little of the other material, just enough to prove the fact that the gown was made this season, instead of last, and is not a made over, which would be quite impossible in these days of luxury.

Color Meals Conducive To Coolness.

Violet, green, white and blue, a color quartet of immense possibilities in meal-serving, have been discovered to be individually not only artistically decorative when employed by an educated hand, but conducive to coolness, an item to be dwelt upon by the housewife during the heated term. Elegance and economy combine in these "color meals," and it is not the woman of the long purse from whose larder these picturesque spreads are of necessity forthcoming.

Take, for example, the violet luncheon. A single cluster of lilacs—expense five cents—or a bunch of clover furnish the motif. For the edibles cold meat, olives, potato salad and a gelatine mould colored with grape juice to the prevailing violet tint and some purple plums, if obtainable. If the day is very warm when this violet luncheon is served, the flowers and fruit can be disposed on a square of ice in the center of the table, under the blossoms resting little cups of violet sherbet.

In the days when souls and bodies are taxed by excessive humidity the green meals appeal with special force. Here peppers, water cress, spinach, lettuce, white grapes, canteloupes, &c., lend themselves most happily to the scheme; a growing fern in a silver dish, or a few green leaves scattered over the white cloth, giving that finishing touch for which the artistic eye is always seeking. The white meals are the simplest of all, for with white cloth and white dishes it is not hard to secure the concomitant accessories in harmony. Chicken with white sauce, cauliflower, potatoes, cornstarch, white onions, pies or puddings, with white meringue or ice cream, and a centrepiece or small plate floral favors of cherry blossoms, daisies, wild carrot, carnations, or any other white flower inexpensive and accessible.

The blue luncheon or dinner, one of the prettiest of the color meals, is, at the same time, one of the most cooling in effect. There are no flowers as effective for this feast of color as the hydrangea, which is specially cheap and plentiful in July and August. Of course, edibles that appeal to the palate rarely take a blue tinge, but if there is blue china the various dishes, if they be white, will prove as appetizing as though they corresponded perfectly with centrepiece and plates.

On a cloudy day yellow effects are very good and so simply achieved that it is a wonder more wise housewives do not attempt them. Buttercups, dandelions even, and honeysuckles furnish a delightful floral keynote to the color harmony. Butter, bananas, yellow beans, custard, a dozen of the simplest culinary offerings, lend themselves most happily to this tone scheme, and until the idea is attempted there are few who realize the zest to appetite achieved by so simple decorative effects.

If flowers are out of the question a bow of ribbon in the approved color can, in conjunction with a vase or bowl, or merely as a trailer on the white cloth, furnish a most artistic centrepiece when deftly handled. The florists need never be visited if homes are adjacent to fields or open lots, where the wildest blooms frequently show the greatest wealth of coloring. These beauties, that can be had for the plucking, will assist the jaded appetite and give to the most ordinary table an air of elegance which all who sit down to it will appreciate.

Language Of Labels.

According to a European traveler, the porters and other employes in the principal hotels on the Continent have discovered a very simple method of letting each other know whether or not they are likely to receive tips from those who frequent their hotels. They communicate with each other by means of the labels which are attached to all luggage when it is taken away from hotels. The code which they use is complete in its way. If a label is attached to one corner of a trunk it means that the owner of the trunk is a charitable soul and never forgets to tip those who do him even a trifling service; if it is attached to another corner it indicates that the owner is close-fisted and that any time spent in attending on him will be wasted.

This novel code, says the European traveler, is now thoroughly understood in all the large hotels and as a result the labels on the luggage of every tourist are carefully examined as soon as it arrives.

Virtues Of Blue Light.

Dr. Minine, director of the Nicholas Military Hospital, of St. Petersburg, has discovered that patients can be greatly soothed by the use of blue rays of light. During a recent surgical operation he placed the patient where a blue electric light would fall on him, and after the operation was over the patient, who was quite conscious during the entire period, assured him that he had not experienced the slightest pain.

If he had not used blue light in this instance Dr. Minine would have been obliged to use chloroform, and the fact that he did not find it necessary to use the drug is regarded by physicians and surgeons as most remarkable.

Authors' Busts Modelled In Butter Served At Dinner.

Butter, that golden mass from the paddle of the churn, that salty product of the farm that may be so delicious, that article of food the French disdain, the English do not care for, but that the American must have just about right, might be one of the emblems in the national coat-of-arms. Many persons remember when Caroline S. Brooks modeled the Dreaming Iolantae in butter for the Centennial Exposition and produced so beautiful a piece of work that the fact that it was made of butter was forgotten.

Butter is again being modeled, shaped and glorified by the hand of an artist, and the models are now served at dinners where men and women gather who may criticise the work and have their sense of taste and art appealed to at the same time.

Not long ago a dinner was given by W. D. Howells at which all the butter on the banquet table was in miniature busts of noted authors and immortals.

The young man who made the busts (Peter S. Biehl) is an artist of no mean capacity, and argues: If the Dreaming Iolanthe was once made in butter, why not the head of a great man?

To cut off one of Mr. Shakespeare's ears, to snip or shave off a bit of his nose or to devour a sliver of his forehead on your bread may seem a bit unusual, or it may, and probably does, appear a bit ridiculous to the diner, but the philosophy with which the host explained his interesting experiment was: "Why not combine the artistic with the domestic and culinary art? Why should not the eye as well as the palate be appealed to? The pleasanter a portion of a meal is to look at the better it usually tastes. Why should we not have 'the great always with us,' even in butter?" So the heads of the immortals were served on plates covered with dainty rose pedals, shading from white into the deepest yellow and flavoring the butter deliciously and delicately.

These heads are made separately. There is no cast from which the heads can be turned out in quantity, but each is molded by the artist who supplies the tables, and then carefully set away on ice. In the refrigerator with them is placed a bunch of fragrant, delicate roses or carnations.

Butter, as every good housewife knows, sometimes to her sorrow, absorbs odor more quickly than anything save milk, and when the roses are placed in the refrigerator the butter, when served, is permeated by a delicate flavor that pleases and surprises.

There are as many ways of serving these unique busts as an ingenious housekeeper may contrive. There is, for instance, the laurel leaves. Nothing can be more appropriate than this for the bust of a Shakespeare, a Milton or a Dante to rest upon, and where these little heads are made is rather amusing. It looks very little like a place where butter should be found. What with the ice, the butter and the flowers, it resembles a butter atelier, or a very disorderly and extraordinary dairy, one that our grandmothers would have looked upon with high and mighty disfavor, and I doubt whether or not they, the dear old ladies, even would have forgiven the disorder for the genius displayed there, but whatever that state of leniency might be, these heads are made with exceeding difficulty and not a little expenditure and exercise of will power, for just as you have a nose well modeled to have it slowly disappear and melt away is not at all conducive to good temper.

When such a thing was first suggested to Mr. Biehl he held up his hands in dismay and looked upon the butter in utter scorn, but, remembering Miss Brooks' achievement long before he was born, he set to work with a good will and a lot of ice and turned out his first set of 12 heads. The dinner was given for 24, one head to two diners.

There are sportsmen in any number who entertain with club dinners for which Mr. Biehl furnishes models emblematic of the diners' sports; there are dinners where warriors as generous and as interesting as the dear old Joey Bagstock with his regimentals gather, and they must all be catered to and new ideas thought out for them.

At a sporting dinner of recent date there was served on a large platter a dog's head almost life size. It was an English bull, and the dog, had it been a real flesh and blood dog, would have taken a prize without a doubt, for a dog that was as under shot and bread nuzzled and as abundant in other good and telling qualities as this dog was could not but appeal to any sportsman.

This dog's head was set on a large tray covered with dogwood blossoms; it was made in relief and the space in back, where a solid piece of butter served as a prop, was concealed entirely by the flowers.

There are musical dinners to be thought of. They could be furnished with composers, but this would be too similar to the dinner with the literary trend, and so the artist as a general thing supplies miniature lyres, mandolins, guitars and other such instruments that lend themselves readily to modelling. This, of course, does not take as much skill, as they are more objects and they are made into individual pieces and served on bread and butter plates when once they are removed from the molding board on which all the work is first made.

In summer the butter figures must be served on ice or there is fear of their losing their shape, and a little cracked ice on the plate is pretty as well as practical. The rose petals glint and shimmer in its reflecting little prisms of light and make the dish more attractive than ever, especially when the light in the dining hall may be of a red or amber tint. When the lights are of the red shade the rose petals would best be of white, the ice reflecting all the color necessary to add to the dish.

A set of heads for a dinner of moderate size will often range into the $40 and $50 scale, and to each head there is usually a pound and a half of butter. This looks rather a good deal when it lies in two one-pound bricks, but when the artist has shaped it into a figure there is so much taken up in the lease and the main body that the two pounds is usually found to furnish a head of good proportions. This head would be served to two or three plates. One smaller would lose shape and identity, as the butter is exceedingly hard to work with.

MR BEALE AT WORK IN STUDIO

Wrote And Illuminated The Bible.

Like the monks of old, Mr. R. B. Johnston, Glasgow, has written the Bible by hand and beautifully illuminated it. His was a herculean task, in this day of rapid achievement and expeditious processes. Mr. Johnston worked seven years over his Bible manuscript, and not long ago put the finishing touches upon the unique book.

One striking thing about the production is that the letter-text does not vary from Genesis to Revelation. The work is done on post quarter paper, and looks like the production of some mediaeval ecclesiastic. The artistic arrangement, the spacing and the alignment of the text are due, in a large measure, to the fact that Mr. Johnston is a practical printer.

"In my work of rewriting the Scriptures," said Mr. Johnston, "I discovered two typographical errors. These, you know, are very rare, and are regarded as statutory offences, for which a penalty may be imposed."

The hand print made use of by Mr. Johnston has commended itself to other London printers, who have prepared types from it, paying him a large sum for the original design. It is Mr. Johnston's idea to have his hand-written Bible issued to the public in parts by the process of photo-lithography. All who have seen this gentleman's wonderful manuscript have commended the skill and artistic merit of his work, and he has received encouraging letters from the well-known men and women who have inspected his work. One minister in Glasgow preached a sermon on the hand-written Bible, drawing lessons of patience and perseverance.

According to Mr. Johnston's own statement he has had no special training either in penmanship or drawing, and alleges that his ordinary business handwriting is not even good, but that he has a natural talent for drawing and slow pen work. Previous to the writing of the Bible by hand he amused himself by writing and illustrating the works of the famous Scotch poets.

THE WEEK IN SOCIETY

The week past has been brighter than any that has preceded it for months. There were no very large affairs but a number of delightful small ones. A large number of picnics and drives and informal outings are going on today, and thus far the weather has been all that could be desired.

With tomorrow begins the commencement season with the baccalaureate sermon of the normal students that will be preached by Dr. Robert Forbes. This opportunity, which will be the last for the general public to hear this preacher, who has been so popular during the years he has been here, will doubtless be taken advantage of by many people aside from those interested in the normal graduation. Tuesday evening the juniors of the normal will give an informal reception in honor of the seven graduates, and Wednesday morning commencement addresses will be delivered by Rev. A. B. Marshall of the First Presbyterian church of Minneapolis.

The next week the high school and the grade exercises occur, and with the class night and commencement and the junior reception will be a busy one not only for the graduates but also for their sisters, mother, cousins and aunts.

Last evening something new in the way of church entertainments was given by the men and boys of the Lakeside Presbyterian church in the vicinity of the church. The affair was an old-fashioned sugaring off and about the town hall, which is just across the avenue from the church a number of bonfires were built. At one a huge pot of sap was placed to boil and when it had just reached the proper point, was taken and dished into cups or saucers or anything else a small boy could get that would hold the sticky stuff and with wooden paddles or a spoon that had seen use four or five times, was stirred and stirred and stirred until one's patience gave out and then was passed to one's friends and stirred a while longer. Then the most delicious thing one ever tasted was ready to be eaten in a tenth of the time it took to prepare it, and it was time to get another saucer full.

At another fire a tin arrangement was kept full of the lightest and flakiest of tiny biscuits and panful after panful were placed on the fire and when taken off piping hot disappeared like magic.

The attendance was immense. Think of everybody at Lakeside and then imagine that everybody there has four children and you will get a fair-sized idea of the crowd that wanted hot maple syrup and biscuits and the wonder of it was that they all got it and all they wanted, and in many cases more. One boy, who had not yet reached the age of discretion, remarked as he started home about 11 o'clock sticky, tired, inclined to be cross: "If I'd only known I had had enough then, I could have gone home an hour ago."

All in all the effort of the men and boys unaided turned out one of the jolliest affairs imaginable.

AMONG THE PLANTS

The past week has been so wet that about all one could do was to swing around once in awhile and make sure that the place was still there. It has been too wet to plant anything and the ground is too sticky to walk on and why so much of it piled up at once is one of the things I don't know. So much dark weather is not the very best for plant growth; true, they look nice, but the growth is watery and the farmer will tell you that even grass grown in too wet a season has not much substance. As the sun dries the ground off all kinds of planting may be done. Get your seeds in as soon as you can, and the plants at your leisure. Someone asked if it was too late to plant asters. No, it is just about right, I grow some 4000 for cut flowers and they are planted from June 1 to 15, and have never failed so far to get a good crop of flowers before frost.

Plants will wilt in the sun on being reset, but it does not harm them if they are properly finned; have seen them wilt every day for two weeks in dry weather and no harm came to them.

As the weather becomes dry potted plants will need more care in transplanting. First, see that the ball of earth in the pot is moist, not too wet, or it won't come out of the pot easily. Plant firmly; always make a deeper hole with the trowel than you need; don't be afraid to go in deeply, you won't fall through. It leaves a lot of soft fine earth under the plant and helps it. Then set in your plant a little deeper than it was in the pot, and leave a depression around the plant some two inches or so in depth. Now, if your bed is dry, pour a quart of water into the depression and then smooth your bed off even, and that is about all you will have to do at present.

Don't let your plants stand around after being bought but plant at once, growing in small pots the roots are all around the edges of the pots, which soon let the dry air to them and once they have brown with heat and drouth it is a slow job to get them in a growing condition again, for white, juicy roots are the ones that feed the plants. The same rule holds good for geranium or heliotropes for house use.

In the vegetable garden remember that cabbage and cauliflower plants must be planted deeply; that is the stem should be under ground as much as possible. Tomatoes also should have at least one half of the stem under ground; then should the frost or a cut worm nip off the top they will again start from the lower buds. I generally plant them sloping, almost lay them down to accomplish this object. They will right themselves in a week or so. I do so because I don't want to put the roots so deep that they are away from the surface heat.

THIRTY YEARS AWAKE.

Then He Quit Coffee and Found Refreshing Sleep.

Coffee causes insomnia and physicians are agreed that this is one of the most distressing of all nervous complaints. It is seldom that a man who has reached the advanced age of 81 years is entirely cured of insomnia of thirty years' standing. An old gentleman of Philadephia says: "I have been a great sufferer for many years from insomnia. I am 81 years of age and can truthfully say that until I quit coffee and commenced the use of Postum Food Coffee I had not known real refreshing sleep for more than thirty years.

"Postum was prescribed for me by my doctor, who made me quit coffee. I have now used Postum for more than 2 years and its good effects are both wonderful and permanent. I regard it as a good friend not only as a remedy for coffee ills, but as a pleasant and nourishing food drink with a fine flavor. Several of my friends are using it to great advantage and think it much superior to coffee.

When the directions for making it are followed closely it cannot fail to give satisfaction." Name given by Postum company, Battle Creek, Mich.

Such evidence supports the scientific theory on which Postum is. There is a reason.

WILL REPRESENT ASHLAND AT MADISON.

Miss Nell Ferguson, Winner of the Northern Wisconsin Declamatory League Contest, a High School Product of Much Promise.

Ashland, Wis., May 30.—Miss Nell Ferguson, who recently won first place in the North Wisconsin Declamatory league contest at Washburn, will appear in the state final at Madison. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Ferguson and is a young lady of much artistic ability, having appeared in previous contests and possessing a thorough training. She is one of the most promising elocutionists the high school has produced, and has grace, spirit and expression, combined with a good voice and much cleverness. Miss Ferguson's winning subject was "How the La Rue Stakes Were Lost."

OBLIGATORY ARBITRATION

Recommended In Platform of the Lake Mohonk Conference.

Lake Mohonk, N. Y., May 30.—At the concluding session of the arbitration conference last night the following platform was adopted:

"The principle of international arbitration has secured the approval of the civilized world. This fact is solemnly recorded by The Hague convention.

"It is gratifying to state that, largely through the influence and example of the United States, which had so much to do with the success of The Hague conference, prestige has been given The Hague tribunal by the submission to it of international differences.

"This conference thanks our government for what it has done in this behalf, especially in the recent Venezuelan controversy, averting war. This convention believes the next step in the steady march forward should be the conclusion of a treaty of obligatory arbitration between the United States and Great Britain, to be followed by similar agreements between the other signatory nations to The Hague convention, to refer disputes to The Hague tribunal. Such treaties would make the present implied obligations of the nations signing them explicit, binding and permanent, instead of leaving them, as now, under The Hogue convention, voluntary, and to be determined from time to time and largely by circumstances.

"This conference believes that the best public opinion of the United States and Great Britain, neighbors and kinsfolk as they are, recognizes the wisdom and justice of such an arrangement, and that the example thus set would be followed speedily by the other powers. It would lead all the nations to The Hague tribunal.

"With deep sense of the fatherhood of God and the consequent brotherhood of man, the conference looks forward to new victories for its cause even more remarkable than those already won notwithstanding the difficulties in the way of extending the application of international arbitration. Many motives may inspire arbitration—fear, horror of war, dread of expense—but justice is the only safe foundation for the world's peace.

"Shall the Alaskan boundary dispute, who should not prefer that justice should prevail, even of we make no gain of hills and harbors? America should conduct its claim with such loyalty to justice as to win the honor of the nations.

"This conference summonses all possible agencies to teach and preach the gospel of justice. Business men and great corporations, teachers in schools, ministers of God, the public press—let our whole country accept the great motto and seek to live up to it; America loves justice; it appeals to every man and woman to aid in increasing and organizing the general sentiment in favor of international arbitration so as to secure by the invincible power of public opinion the employment of it in the maximum number of possible cases, in the hope that wars may cease and that peace may prevail."

DUN'S WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Labor Controversies Still Disturbing Factor In Business World.

New York, May 30.—R. G. Dun & Co's Review of Trade says: Labor controversies are still the most disturbing factors in the situation and it is difficult to anticipate how far distribution of merchandise will be affected. Structural material of all kinds is moving slowly because of strikes in the building trades, which are now exercising more widespread influence than other disagreements. At the East the trade situation is satisfactory as a rule. Railway earnings thus far reported for May were 12.8 per cent larger than last year and surpassed those of 1901 by 25.6 per cent.

After many weeks of discussion the expected transaction in pig iron was completed, involving a heavier tonnage than was generally anticipated and showing but a small decline in prices. Considering the improved conditions as to fuel and transportation, the magnitude of the contract and the ample time in which to make deliveries at $19.35 at Pittsburg was by no means a low price. Some decline was to be expected and only by a readjustment of quotations can this industry maintain the activity for which enlarged facilities provide. Demands for steel rails have again become urgent, particularly from trolley roads and the rail mills that have been making billets will resume their regular business next week. As practically all this year's output has been sold, the question of quotations in 1904 is under consideration. Structural steel is still aversely affected by labor disagreements in the building trades, but in the iron and steel industry there have been numerous semblements and fewer conflicts are in progress. By the new tinplate scale an increased output is provided and the manufacturers are fully provided with numerous orders on hand. Nevertheless, tin declined freely through liquidation.

Nominally the average quotation for cotton goods is higher than a week ago, but actually the situation is hardly altered. An artificial condition exists as to cotton goods, which is complicated by labor controversies and the weather. The very slight improvement in men's wear, woolens and worsteds, is not consistent with reports of a good business in fall clothing.

New England footwear factories are busy on fall contracts, but few supplementary orders have been received. Leather sells freely, hemlock sole being in great demand for Western footwear manufactures. Domestic hides again average higher, with notable strength in Colorado hides. Supplies of winter and early spring satlings are abundant, but there is no surplus of better qualities now coming forward. Increased receipts of foreign hides have not depressed prices.

Failures this week numbered 206 in the United States, against 194 last year and seven in Canada, compared with twenty a year ago.

TO DECIDE MONDAY

Judge Dibell Will Then Rule In Metropolitan Theater Case.

Large Number of Affidavits Are Read at the Hearing.

A theatrical row in court is something of a novelty in Duluth, but when a city gets three theatrical companies in town and only two theaters some such complication is to be expected.

The famous dispute over the occupancy of the Metropolitan theater, which has been the subject of considerable newspaper comment and innumerable passages of repartee over the Metropolitan footlights, settled down in court yesterday afternoon and evening before Judge Dibell.

After a thorough hearing, which involved the reading of voluminous masses of affidavits, as well as other papers in the case, Judge Dibell last night took the dispute under advisement, announcing that he would give forth his decision Monday morning, in order that the public and the parties interested might know which company is to play in the Metropolitan Monday night. After that decision one theatrical aggregation will have to pack up its trunks and speed away, while the other will triumphantly proceed to entertain the Duluth theatergoing public.

The portion of court room No. 1 was well filled with spectators when the case was taken up before Judge Dibell at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. In the crowd were interested members of the local theatrical colony, including Dick Ferris, and the officers of the Metropolitan Building company.

Dick Ferris was represented by W. D. Bailey, of the firm of J. L. Washburn & W. D. Bailey, and by M. Gallagher, of Minneapolis. The Metropolitan company and John T. Condon, its manager, were represented by H. B. Fryberger.

The issue rose in an injunction proceeding brought by Ferris to compel the defendants to refrain from disturbing him in his occupancy of the theater pending the action, which is to restrain them from bothering him until Sept. 1, until which time he claims to have a contract with the theater owners.

The plaintiff claims that he took the theater Jan. 5 on a contract for four weeks, which was extended verbally by W. H. Reaney, then manager of the theater, March 10, and on April 8, by writing across the contract the words "This contract is hereby extended to September 1. W. H. Reaney, Dick Ferris." Ferris claims that on the strength of his extension he obligated himself to pay the salaries of his company of sixteen players during the summer, and went to heavy expenses for costuming and scenery. He says in his complaint that if he loses the theater he will lose thousands of dollars of profits that would naturally accrue, as he would be unable at this time to secure another theater in which to play his company.

The officers and directors of the building company, in a series of affidavits, tell a different tale. They say that at the expiration of the contract they had a meeting with Ferris at which Reaney was present. The company wanted better financial terms with Ferris, which he refused to grant. Then he wanted an extension of the contract for a definite period, which they refused to grant. Finally it was agreed that the contract should be extended indefinitely, subject to cancellation by either party giving two weeks' notice. There it rested so far as they were concerned. May 1 Mr. Reaney was let out and his place filled with Mr. Condon, who went on to New York and made a contract for the Wilbur Opera company.

May 9, they say, was the first time they heard anything about the extension claimed by Ferris. On that date they had a talk with Reaney, in which he first denied having done anything with the contract, but later said he had extended it to Sept. 1. They asked to see the paper and he said he could not produce it, as L. N. Scott had it in Minneapolis. The officers say that Scott is a relative of Reaney's, and a partner with Ferris. May 12 Reaney produced the contract with his extension written across it. On that day they gave Ferris his two weeks' notice, asking him to vacate May 31 to make way for the Wilburs.

They claim that Reaney wrote the extension in after his discharge May 1, and when he had no authority to do it. They claim also that, after having heard the entire directorate refuse to give him a definite extension, he should have known that Reaney had no authority to grant one. They claim also that this is the only instance where he signed any sort of contract without consulting with them. They say that they entered into the Wilbur contract in good faith, without any knowledge of the Reaney extension; that the Wilbur company is here ready to go to work, and that the opera people will suffer irreparable injury if they do not get the house because they will be unable to get dates farther south in warmer climes.

After all the papers had been read and the arguments made Judge Dibell took the tangle under advisement, and gave himself until Monday morning to straighten it out. So it depends upon him whether the patrons of the theater will see opera or drama Monday night. In the meantime the Ferris company is making its usual announcements between acts, and has papered the town for next week. So has the Wilbur Opera company, though as yet it has no stage from which to make announcements.

CRIPPLE CREEK DISTRICT.

Proof That Values Will Increase With Depth.

Colorado Springs, May 30.—The continuation of work by the principal companies and the increasing depth attained by their shafts confirms the prediction om fining engineers that not only will the values in Cripple Creek be found permanent, but they will increase with depth. The latest development of this character is in the Golden Cycle mine. For years this property has been referred to as one of great possibilities in low-grade production. The values ranged from $18 to $20 a ton, and large quantities of ore of this value were extracted. The main shaft has now attained a depth of 1000 feet, and at this depth the average value of the ore is $30 per ton, being from 50 to 100 per cent greater than in the upper levels. A recent shipment of 43 tons returned a total value in excess of $18,000, being at the rate of $420 to the ton. The fact that similar results are being obtained in other properties of depth indicates that this is no exception to the general trend of increase in values.

On both the American Eagles and on the Abe Lincoln, in Poverty gulch, the showing, so far as high-grade ore is concerned, is excellent. In the 1500-foot level of the Eagles the grade of the ore is richer than has ever before been mined on the property. It shows gray copper and assays $2000 per ton. The American Eagles' shaft is the deepest in the camp.

The high grade shoot of ore which was recently entered in the Portland at a depth of 1250 feet is holding out well. Picked samples of the rock showing sylvanite assay as high as $5000 to the ton. New discoveries are being made on Portland ground almost daily, and an average daily production of 250 tons is being maintained.

A steady output of about 20 tons daily is being made from the Conundrum, belonging to the Anchoria-Leland company. This could be greatly increased if means could be devised to free the mine of bad air. The Empire State is proving to be one of the bonanzas of Bull hill, about 25 tons of good grade ore being mined daily.

IRON WORKERS RETURN.

More Than Half Are Back at Work.

New York, May 30.—More than half the iron workers whose places were being held open for them until June 1 have returned to work already, and it is expected by the manufacturers and employers in the iron trades that all the old men will be back before next Tuesday.

"Intimidation and argument on the part of the union men are all that have kept the old men from coming back before this time," said an official of the Building Trades' Employers' association.

ONE PERFORMANCE IN PARIS.

Paris, May 30.—A novel performance is promised for June 8 at the Renaissance theater, when Charles Frohman will transport the entire production of J. M. Barrie's fantasy, "The Admirable Crichton," to Paris by special trains and special boat to give a single performance. The company and scenery will be taken back to London in time to give a performance the following night at the Duke of York theater, where the play is now running.

Farmer Cured of Rheumatism.

"A man living on a farm near here came in a short time ago completely doubled up with rheumatism. I handed him a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and told him to use it freely, and if not satisfied after using it, he need not pay a cent for it," says C. P. Rayder, of Pattens Mills, N. Y. "A few days later he walked into the store as straight as a string and handed me a dollar, saying, 'Give me another bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. I want it in the house all the time, for it cured me.'" For sale by all druggists.

TWO THOUSAND DOLLAR HOUSES

RESIDENCE OF C.R. SMITH EAST HAMPTON, LONG ISLAND, N.Y.

N.R. METCALF'S SUMMER COTTAGE, AT WOODMONT, CONN.

Since the publication in the Women's Department on April 10 of the prize plans for a $2,000 house, hundreds of letters have been received asking that other plans of a similar character be published.

The three that are given today are intended to be suggestive of what may be done in the way of building a house of pleasing exterior for a moderate sum rather than to give mechanical details of construction. These plans have been worked out to suit individual needs, as every house should be. The cost of each house is within the $2,000 mark.

The cottage that is being built in Woodmont, Ct., near New Haven, will cost only $1,800, there being no cellar, which saves a goodly item of expense.

The exterior is of weather boards and shingles, with shingle roof.

The main effect is in the gambrel roof and outline with the shadows of the overhang.

All small detail work, both outside and inside, is omitted. All floor beams are dressed and exposed. Interior is sheathed and wainscoted throughout with North Carolina pine.

The dimensions of the various rooms and porches give the idea of ample space and comfort.

FIRST FLOOR.

Porch 10 ft. 6 in. wide.
Great hall, 14 ft. 9 in. x 21 ft. 10 in.
Dining room, 12 ft. x 15 ft.
Kitchen, 11 ft. 5 in. x 11 ft. 3 in.
Front and back stairs, as shown.
Back porch and pantry, as indicated.

SECOND FLOOR.

Bedroom, 11 ft. 4 in. x 14 ft. 6 in.
Bedroom, 12 ft. x 12 ft. 4 in.
Bedroom, 11 ft. 5 in. x 11 ft. 4 in.
Bedroom, 11 ft. 5 in. x 11 ft. 4 in.
Bathroom, 5 ft. x 8 ft.

Mrs. C. R. Smith, of East Hampton, L. I., says that her house was built for comfort and convenience, and that these ends have been achieved. Her own description of it gives an excellent idea of the details of the house:

"My house is situated in East Hampton, Long Island, N. Y., and was built in 1901, for $2,000, from plans drawn by myself.

"I have a lot containing three-eighths of an acre, which allows me at least 100 feet in the rear of my house for a barn, should I want to build any time. My plan is admired very much by those who welcome a departure from the old-fashioned square type of a house.

"My house has a cellar, 16 by 16, with eight-inch brick walls and a floor of hard Portland cement. Under the main house there is a four-inch brick foundation, and the kitchen rests on six-inch locust posts.

"The house is first covered with rough boards, then with paper, and finally with cypress shingles, making it a very warm house.

"The floors are double on the first floor and single on the second, spruce throughout. The walls are of Windsor cement, with a skim coat of plaster, making it very smooth and white, equal almost to a hard finish, and it can be painted or papered easily.

"The windows are of the latest design, each upper sash having a border of old gold glass which has a very pretty effect from the interior.

"The library has two diamond-shaped window-glass sashes, which always look well in such a corner, and the room itself is large enough to accommodate a desk, book shelves and a couch.

"The front door is what is known as a Dutch door, being in two parts, upper and lower.

"There is an open fireplace three by four, with a neat home-made mantel.

"The main stairway is painted white, with small, slender balusters and a slender home-made newel post. These stairs, leading up from the sitting room, look very pretty, especially at night, with a colored glass newel lamp lighted.

"Two advantages I claim for my house are, first, the dining room can be heated from the kitchen range if desired, thereby avoiding a stove in the dining room, and, second, in going from the sitting room to the kitchen it is not necessary to pass through the dining room, as is usually the case.

"A back stairs to the floor above is another great advantage, as well as the stairs to the cellar from the kitchen.

"By the arrangement of my kitchen with the pantry in one end, the stationary tubs in another, sink in the third and entrance to the cellar in the fourth, it is as near to perfection, as far as convenience is concerned, as one could wish for.

"My sole aim in planning this house was convenience, and I consider I have it in almost every detail. I am sure ninety-nine women out of a hundred would fall in love with this house as it is arranged."

The plan for a one-story cottage will appeal to many persons who like that style of house for a summer home. It has, besides the living room, a dining room and kitchen, and there are two bedchambers, making it sufficiently commodious for a small family. The style of the windows, the character of the porch and the rough stone chimney add to the picturesque effect.

The Passing Of The Stenographer.

Keen competition in every trade, every field of labor and even in the very arts is always felt among the average, but "at the top" of every line of endeavor always survives an envied minority which serenely holds its own, seemingly safe from the fierce struggle of the many and well fortified to meet every device and invention of mechanical science to replace individuals, whether they stand for ideas, theories, facts or control the agencies of produce or nature.

"At the top" of one profession at least, or sub-profession, a stoical bow to the inevitable is in order where the competition has not been felt, as it has been lower down in the ranks. This is the stenographic profession.

Only a few years ago in New York an expert and experienced stenographer could make more money with his notebook and pencil than in any other business which can be engaged in without much outlay of capital. Stenography is seriously practiced as an art by the court stenographers, the men who are under oath to take down and transcribe correctly every word that drops from the bench, bar or witness box. In turn these men, until recently, dictated the minutes of their cases to the equally expert amanuenses and typewriters. And this was a field of strenuous stenographic operations, in its significance known to but few outside of the legal profession. Here only great skill and intelligence are of account; and to attain to the necessary expertness required more than ordinary skill, quickness and training, this fact alone limiting the number of competent ones. And after the necessary training of years to become thoroughly proficient a competent person could always find plenty to do among the busy court reporters, always anxious to get out their cases expeditiously and well, and the demand for such trained assistants was often in excess of the supply.

Introduction of the Phonograph.

But now up at the once apparently unassailable "top" a revolutionary little machine has changed the aspect of this once El Dorado of lightning workers. This has been effected by a heartless, soulless, but neat-looking, small, yellow box. It is attached by a piece of wire to electric power that turns a roller that carries around and around a wax cylinder; a tube placed over this carries the dictator's voice and words, words which, as soon as uttered, are engraved on to the wax cylinder, which repeats them at any rate of speed at the will of an "operator" (flesh and blood this time), who transcribes them on the typewriter. This is Miss Commercial Talking Machine, alias Phonograph, alias Graphophone.

This invention has put the expert amanuensis "out of court" before he got there—to which literal destination all the intelligent male assistants aspired, and from whose ranks nine-tenths of the best court reporters of today were recruited. For only through such training, under a practical court official, writing out his cases from his dictation, was graduated his fully equipped successor. Nowhere else can the necessary training be acquired.

Now that Miss Talking Box is on the scene, and is here to stay, shorthand, so widely useful in its day, will in a few years become, if not a lost art, at least a rare art. This prediction is made at a time when the market seems overcrowded with hundreds of applicants to each and every one of the thousands of positions where stenographers are called for, for even the average will be ousted by this same machine, for it repeats exactly what is dictated to it, never makes "pi" out of sentences, except when an illiterate employer talks into it, and the 20 stenographers who will be replaced by the one "operator," like poor Lo, must "move on."

The Machine Never Gets Tired.

The court reporters themselves, some of whom have spent more than twoscore years dictating their notes to intelligent amanuenses, find the recording machine a most convenient helper. They say it never gets tired or independent in manner, is not afraid of working overtime or going without lunch or supper when crowded for time, and has no oppressive or distracting personality (as the case may be) to obtrude itself between the questions, answers, objections and rulings which make up the court records of cases. The reporter can now sit up all night with his trusty machine, unburdening his hundreds of folios into her waxy breast, and no questions will be asked by his wife as to whether the typewriter is young, pretty, bright or what not, and he will not be nagged at because, unawares, he has betrayed the fact that she possesses alluring black or tender hazel eyes, for the "operator" now, who takes the dictation straight from the cylinders, will no longer have to sit alongside of her employer. He can shut himself up alone with the machine, and will not even have to exchange the day's greetings with Miss Minnie Brown. She can afterward go alone into the room and just transcribe the voice and send the finished work in by the office boy.

There is a little heavy tragedy, however, for "the pretty typewriter" in all this. Below those suspiciously wicked raven locks or Titian tresses are shoulders which have carried heavy burdens, and some of these busiest of busy workers have been the breadwinners of families, carrying others' burdens as well as their own. Cheerfully hastening back and forth, making "L" and trolley connections between perhaps a little Harlem flat and the dingy business office at all hours of the day and night—such were the demands of the business; but no other field of labor offered reward sufficient to cover the expense of one et al. Now these are on the outside: Miss Wind-up Talking Machine within.

GRACE HELEN HARTE.

Poles' Novel Prayer.

In Poland the patriots are now endeavoring to popularize the following curious version of the Lord's Prayer:—

"Our Father, who art in heaven, restore to us the kingdom of Poland. Deliver us from slavery. Give us this day our daily bread, but not steeped in blood and poisoned through the wickedness of our enemies. Pardon us for the sins which are engraved on our swords. Suffer us not to fall into the temptation of becoming traitors to Poland, and deliver us from the domination of a foreign power, since that is our worst evil."

Thousands of Poles have learned this prayer by heart, and invariably use it instead of the old and familiar version.

Poached Eggs.

In poaching eggs, have the saucepan perfectly clean and the boiling water clear, with a half teaspoonful of salt added for each pint of water. If it is desired to have the eggs ball shaped, cook but one at a time. When the water begins to boil rapidly, stir until a small circle is formed, drop the egg in the middle and the rotary motion of the water will form a circle of white around the unbroken yolk.

Supports Family On Fifteen Cents A Day.

Contrasting sharply with the high living which seems to have become a necessity nowadays in this country is the story of a woman who keeps herself and two children on fare that costs barely 15 cents a day.

While clergymen rail at the career in extravagance in living which, according to some of them, we have been following for the last four or five years, and which they predict will end in social and moral catastrophe, and while food experts declare that we eat four or five times as much as we need, this woman rears her little family on the very simplest and cheapest food to be obtained, a fare that to all appearances seems to keep them in good health as well as good spirits.

Neither preachings nor prescriptions are at the bottom of her choice of fare. Dire necessity has, so she asserts, forced her to live daily upon 15 cents' worth of beans, bread, onions and beer. This was the pitiful sum doled out to her each morning by her husband.

The Janssens, for this is the name of the family, have two tiny, ill-furnished rooms in one of the flats belonging to what is known as the Woolsey estate, in Long Island City. The row of tumbledown dwellings is on Cedar street, near Van Alst avenue. They pay no rent for their hovel of a home, Mrs. Jansen says, because her husband worked for several years as a coachman for the Woolseys, and there is coming to him over $1,000 in back wages or in savings invested by his late employer, Edward Woolsey, a millionaire.

Mrs. Jansen is not sure about the money, for she says that her husband never confides in her, and all that she knows about his affairs at the present is that he is working at the powerhouse of an electric light company near Cedar street and must get very good wages, though all she sees of his earnings is the 15 cents he hands her each morning when he goes to work. Then she does not see him again until after supper time, when he returns, having apparently had his meal before coming home.

There is an extremely pitiful side to this story of a hard working life—for Anne Jansen takes in washing when the weather permits her to bring water from a neighbor's well a block or two away—of a penurious and hard hearted husband, and of a struggle to maintain three lives on an amount barely sufficient for one.

Anne Jansen has not the appearance of being starved or ill fed. She is a comely and buxom Norwegian of 28, with a complexion and plumpness that bespeak a beer diet. The children, Ida, aged five, and Henry Bernard, aged one and a half, are sprightly little creatures, healthy and rosy underneath the dirt that usually covers their faces, and with appetites by no means ravenous.

Anne married Carl Jansen, a man much her senior, six years ago, when she was "working out" in the country.

"I have had nothing but suffering in all that time," she said, "for he, my husband, wouldn't let me spend what I earned and he wouldn't give me any money for myself. Almost immediately after our marriage he began limiting me to 15 cents a day, and even after the little girl came and needed fresh milk and other things to keep her well he refused to increase the allowance.

"I tried all sorts of cheap food to see which would be the most filling and the most lasting. There's nothing quite so good as beans, I've found, but we do get dreadful tired of them," she remarked with a plaintive air.

"I buy soup beans, they can be cooked in so many different ways, though sometimes I take a notion to have plain white beans. The children are fond of onions and they like them fried. Cooked that way they are very good to take the place of meat.

"Soup beans cost six cents a quart, and one day I buy a quart of these, a loaf of bread for four cents and five cents' worth of beer for my dinner; then the next day I buy onions instead of beans, which cost just the same a quart. This leaves me nothing for salt and pepper, so the only way I can get these necessaries is to substitute oatmeal for the beans or onions once in a while. Oatmeal is cheaper than either and goes a long way though we get tired of it quicker than we do of the other fare. By buying it I have a few pennies left for salt and pepper.

"We drink water for breakfast and supper, and when I have my mug of beer for dinner I give the children a sip, but they don't seem to care very much for it. I wish the little ones might have milk to drink instead; that always makes children healthy, at least people think it does. My Ida and Henry Bernard don't look thin and hungry, though, do they? Henry Bernard is teething; that's what makes him so pale, but he isn't cross, like most babies at his age."

The child in question was so dirty that his natural color could scarcely be distinguished underneath the layers of grime. His little head was round and his arms and legs were as chubby as those of a child reared in luxury. Though it was the noon hour, when most young mouths are ready and anxious to be filled, this small tot sat and toyed with a dish of oatmeal in a dilatory manner.

A Novel Purse

Looks Into Man.

M. Eykmann, a member of the Royal Academy of Amsterdam, has discovered a novel method by means of which it is possible, through the use of Roentgen rays, to obtain an exact photograph of any interior part of the body, even while the organs in that part are actively at work.

In this way one can obtain a thorough knowledge of the movements of the heart, the stomach and the intestines.

M. Eykmann has devoted his principal attention to the movements necessitated by the act of swallowing, and experts say that his investigations throw an entirely new light on the mechanism of this act, which is so simple, but which no anatomist has heretofore been able to explain clearly.

The biggest price in cash ever paid for a diamond was $625,000, given by the Duke of Orleans for the Great Regent stone. The Koh-i-Noor is valued at $720,000.

SUMMER OPERA SEASON AT HAND

Northwestern Opera Company Will Open at the Lyceum Week From Monday—"A Gambler's Daughter" and "Ole Olson" Coming.

The organization of an opera company is hardly a labor of a day. It is the work that makes directors tear their hair and shudder to think of in the few weeks preceding the opening of the theatrical season—the mere contemplation.

Consequently, it would be strange to see the smiling faces of Stage Director Charles H. Drew and Musical Director Henry G. Hoffman, were it not known that the material from which the Northwestern Opera company is being built up is the most desirable that could possibly be tempted from the sacred precincts of Broadway.

The company will open a week from Monday night at the Lyceum theater in "The Black Hussar," and the production Manager Al. W. Walle is providing will be superior to anything Duluth ever saw in this line, merit alone considered, of this tuneful and enjoyable selection.

The rehearsals have begun, and all the principals are "up in the piece and business" to such an extent that the directors have had but the merest trifles to worry them. The Misses Eleanor Jenkins, Bertha Hayden, Sylvester Cornish, Loulda Hilliard and Harriet Packard, all well-known in operatic work the country over, are here, and of the male contingent there are George Lyding, Sylvan Langlois, George B. Jackson, William Keogh, Dan Young, Stanley Felck and Charles H. Drew.

The names are familiar to all who have followed, even casually, the operatic world in America in the past and current history, and Mr. Lyding, the bell-toned, sentimental tenor, graceful and ratching, bids fair to be the favorite of the season in Duluth.

Mr. Walle's announcement so far is of a formal nature and contains a list of the operas to be given, in part, as follows: Flotaw's "Martha," Balfe's "Bohemian Girl," Wallace's "Marina," Planquete's "Chimes of Normandy," Audran's "Mascotte" and "Pirates of Penzance," "Patience" and "Mikado," Mascagni's "Cavelleria Rusticana" and Jacobowski's "Erminie."

The pride of the organization is the chorus, which is made up of voices from the best comic operatic productions that were the joy of the Rialto last winter, and all the outside members are from operas which made a tremendous hit last season. The members of this essential factor of the opera company have a volume of voice that is not found even in the large companies that come into Duluth during the season, and the whole company will number forty people when the members all get to Duluth.

Manager Walle has contracted for the costuming and picturing of the plays in a most elaborate style. There is nothing cheap or haphazard permitted in the productions to be made, and all will be put on with care and consideration. Mr. Walle, whose reliability and responsibility as a manager, and a manager of experience, is a sufficient guarantee of what the performances will be, and glowing prophesies may be made with safety.

The subscription sale of seats, by which regular patrons may pick out seats for occupation all season, there being two operas presented each week, will open Monday at the Lyceum box office. The management believes it to be the desire of many people to occupy the same seats at each performance, and has made the arrangement whereby regular patrons can choose their locations at that time.

"A GAMBLER'S DAUGHTER."

Coming to the Lyceum next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday is one of the strongest sensational melo-dramas of the day, "A Gambler's Daughter." The piece was written by Owen Davis, the author also of such successful plays as "Lost in the Desert," "Through the Breakers," etc., and this latest work from his pen has proven one of the most popular of all. It is full of excitement and startling situations throughout the four acts. All the scenery is new and elaborate.

In the cast are well known actors and actresses. The leading woman is Miss Clara Thropp. She makes a sweet, lovable and altogether charming heroine, and plays the role with dash and spirit. Fannie Argle Ogden, Arthur J. Pickens, Frank E. Mitchell, Benson A. La Mar, George Lyle Cox, Lavinia Thompson, Allie Willard, are some of the other principals in the piece and are all well-known and popular favorites.

"OLE OLSON."

Ben Hendricks, to whom the mantle of the late Gus Heege came by right of his admitted superior excellence in the assumption of Swedish-American dialect characters, will present "Ole Olson," a comedy-drama that has retained popularity for many years, to the patrons of the Lyceum Saturday next. The company aiding Mr. Hendricks includes Belle Francis, Lorraine Lyons, Mattie Lockette, the winsome and clever soubrette; Ed M. Kimball, Royal Thayer, George Rushbridge, Baby Margery and others, and has a special feature, the Swedish Ladies' quartet, a singing organization of young Swedish lassies, appearing in characteristic costume, and presenting a repertoire that includes popular melodies as well as songs of the Northland. Mr. Hendricks will introduce his latest songs, "Babies and Blossoms" and "Memories of My Swedish Home."

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO.

Miss Bingham's Intended Production Startles Broadway.

New York, May 29.—Many times has Miss Amelia Bingham surprised Broadway by her versatility, but never so much as by her latest announcement that, having thrown Clyde Fitch overboard, she is going to revive Chaucer.

Miss Bingham has frequently expressed her determination to elevate the stage as it has never been elevated before. She has appeared before women's clubs and lectured learnedly upon the sad fact that the English language has been steadily going backwards, until its early purity has become sadly tarnished. All were interested, but none really believed that Miss Bingham was quite in earnest. Now it seems that she is going to produce "The Canterbury Pilgrims" in language as close to Chaucer's as modern society and the police will permit. Percy Mackaye, a son of the late Steele Mackaye has undertaken to turn the "Canterbury Tales" into a spectacular comedy, revolving against the glorified person of Miss Bingham, as the wife of Bath. Old English songs and music will be a prominent feature and this department is now in the hands of a prominent composer.

Miss Elizabeth Tyree has determined to cut loose from "The Earl of Pawtucket" next week, when her contract with Kirke La Shelle will expire. There is no doubt that in this production she had made her greatest success, but, I understand she has grieved considerably because the greater honors have fallen to Lawrence D'Orsay, and Miss Tyree is not so built that she can divide honors with equanimity. She wants to be a star and twinkle all alone, consequently she would not listen to the pleadings of her managers to stay where she is, but prefers to cut loose and go abroad to look for a play of her own. Incidentally she hints that when she comes back she is going to give up some of her time to looking after a coal mine in Virginia that was given her by a thoughtful sister either last Christmas or on her birthday.

David Warfield has been frequently credited with a wonderful knowledge of the Ghetto on New York's great East Side. Many persons familiar with life in that section have declared that Warfield must have been a remarkably close student there. Speaking of this the other afternoon, however, he said: "I have never been on the East Side to study a single character there; the only time I've ever seen that district was in passing through it. If I had stuck to the people as one sees them on the streets, my work on the stage would not have been as funny as the audiences seem to think it. The real types are not apt to be funny at all, and for that reason I have religiously kept away from the Bowery."

Miss Laura Hope Crews will, when the doors of the Murray Hill Theater close this month for the last time under the management of Henry Donelly, sail for London to spend a year on the other side in dramatic study. Whether she returns or not is still in great doubt. She frankly declares that if she can get a London engagement she will remain on that side permanently. For three years she has been the principal feature of the Donnelly Stock company, although she is now only twenty-one years old. Speaking of her career, Miss Crews said: "I was born in San Francisco, and went on the stage at the age of seven as the original Editha, of "Editha's Burglar" on the coast. I left the stage for five years to go to school, and then went back to my early work. Everything was not pleasant in San Francisco, and by chance I wrote one day to Mr. Donnelly, sending him several of my photographs and the press notices I had received. I did not hear anything from him for several months, and then, to my surprise, there came a letter and a contract, which he invited me to sign. My first appearance in New York was as "A Colonial Girl," and since then I have been appearing in a different play every week for three seasons of forty weeks each."

Miss Mamie Gilroy, who has been in retirement for a year, will make her reappearance in New York in the Crystal Gardens, which are to be on the roof of the New York theater. She will play a leading part in two burlesques to be written by George Hobart.

Principals engaged for the support of Miss Blanche Ring in "The Gibson Girl," opening at the Knickerbocker Theater, June 1, are Miss Rose Beaumont, Miss Reine Davis, Miss Vera Hulls, Miss Addie Sharp, Miss Viola Carlstedt, Miss Lillian Hudson, Harry Conor, Albert Hart, Charles H. Bowser, W. L. Bentley, Vernon Lee, Paul Decker, David Bennett, Wheeler Earle, Cecil Sumnr and Max Freeman. In addition to these there will be 30 show girls.

The identity of Dwight Tilton, who wrote the novel, "Miss Pettleoats," a dramatization of which will be Katherine Osterman's vehicle for starring tour, which will be inaugurated in October, has remained a literary mystery for some time. While no prizes were offered to those who might solve the puzzle, a great many opinions were ventured as to who Dwight Tilton really was. Some writers of Boston are known to have tacitly admitted that they wrote "Miss Pettleoats," a lady in New York wrote a letter threatening several varities of trouble if back royalties were not sent to the writer, but the publishers, though as much in the dark as anybody as to who Dwight Tilton was, knew they were already sending royalties to the right author through a third party. Though supplying their publishers with composite photographs of themselves they still concealed their identity. The authors have recently come forward with their identity, and they are Wilder Dwight Quint and Richard Tilton Richardson. The latter also made the dramatization of the book. It will be noted that "Dwight Tilton" is secured from their middle names. Both are college men, both did literary work in college, both were engaged on the Boston Advertiser and Record at the same time, both went to the Boston News at the same time, and both are now on the Boston Traveler—one is dramatic editor and editorial writer, the other as music critic and literary editor.

What does it matter if it has been hot this week, so hot that the average writted New Yorker has divided his time equally between cursing the weather man and praying for rain that would not come. New York had consolation at its own doors, and if the sufferers had journeyed over to the Third Avenue theater they would have cheered up to such a degree that all the trouble would have been forgotten. In this East Side home of the melodrama a company of fiery and undaunted thespians have been presenting "A Working Girl's Wrongs," the author of which is Hal Reid. His manuscript whistled with literary gems, but the one that shone serenely above all others was this statement made by the poor persecuted working girl to the high-toned villain: "Yes, there is a diamond upon your finger. Jack has none except upon a hot day, when he is at his work. Then they are upon his brow like a diadem—diamonds of honest sweat, the gems of labor, which, when they are spent for the woman he loves, fall into the flowers of her heart, and sparkle there as pure and bright as a drop of dew in the heart of a rose."

The fact that the newspapers are filled with glowing descriptions of the persecution of Jews in Russia gave one press agent the chance of his life this week, and he sent out the following effusion: "Miss Louise Beaton, the young and charming actress who is to create the title role in 'Rachel Goldstein, or the Struggles of a Poor Girl in New York,' a new comedy melodrama from the pen of Theodore Kremer, which Sullivan, Harris and Woods are to produce on an elaborate scale next season, has just returned from Russia, where she has been studying the peculiar Yiddish character she is to portray in this new play. During her stay in Russia Miss Beaton spent some time in the Province of Bessrania, and for over a week was in Kishenev, where she found ample opportunity to observe the peculiar and lovable characteristics of the Yiddish girls. 'As early as two months ago,' said Miss Beaton the other day, 'there was such a feeling of unrest in Kishenev that I cut short my visit to the place and left it with a feeling of relief. No one who has not been there can begin to imagine the spirit of antagonism which prevails among a certain portion of the Russian populace toward the unfortunate Hebrews. It was all very awful and very horrible, as I saw it, but I am very glad that I left it when I did, as I really anticipated the virulent outbreak of hatred which has since so disgraced Russia and Russian institutions.'"

Frank Daniels will shelve "Miss Simplicity" at the close of his forthcoming three weeks at the Academy of Music, and Kirke La Shelle has closed contracts leasing the road rights to the musical comedy for next season to E. J. Eddings, formerly an advance agent in his employ.

Miss Anita Bridger, of "A Fool and His Money" company, gave what she called a California luncheon in her apartments, 72 West Sixty-ninth street, on a recent afternoon. Miss Bridger is from San Francisco, and all the viands served had been shipped to her from her native city. Her guests numbered an even dozen, including the young ladies of "A Fool and His Money" company, and Miss Blanche Bates and Miss Ada Lewis, who, with Miss Bridger, call California their native state.

One of the melodramas announced for next season is that of "From Rags to Riches," the star of which will be Master Joseph Stanley, at present the star of the successful melodrama "A Boy of the Streets." Master Stanley, who is a clever young actor, made his first appearance as "Little Lord Fauntleroy," and later pear in a new play by David De Wolf.

Eleanor Kent sailed on May 21 to sing in the leading cities of Germany this summer.

Lulu Glaser will next season again appear in Dolly Varden under the management of F. C. Whitney.

Amorelle, a new comic opera, will be produced by Willie Edouin at the Kennington theater, London, on June 8.

Flo Irwin will next season star in a repertoire of the comedies used during past seasons by her sister, May Irwin.

Kirke La Shelle made arrangements last week to present Checkers at the American theater, N. Y., for a run, next season.

The engagement is announced of Lionel Barrymore to Angela McCaull, daughter of the late Col. John A. McCaull. The marriage will not take place for some time.

"Her Second Time on Earth" goes on at the London Adelphia on Saturday night. "The Worst Woman in London," which finishes there on Friday, has been a huge success.

Kathryn Ostermann's presentation of "Miss Petticoats" will be one of the prominent productions next season. She will have a strong supporting company, numbering thirty-five people.

Sam Bernard will be the leading comedian in one of Charles Frohman's musical comedy companies next season. He will play under Mr. Frohman's management both in this country and in London.

Edwin Holt will next season be starred by John W. Stirling, of Buffalo, in Louis N. Parker's play., "The Cardinal," which E. S. Willard has this season made the principal piece in his repertoire.

John Kendrick Bangs and Roderic C. Penfield are writing a three-act comic opera, entitled Lady Teazle. The work, which is based upon The School for Scandal, is being written for a prominent star.

A. Baldwin Sloane is composing the music.

Lauretta Jefferson, a granddaughter of Joseph Jefferson, last week made her debut as an amateur actress, appearing as Enid Thurston in "Our Regiment" at a performance given at Montclair, N. J., by the Montclair Dramatic club.

The Irish Literary Society of New York will on June 3 and 4, at the Carnegie Lyceum, present three original Irish dramas, "The Pot of Broth," "Cathleen-ni-Hoolihan," and "Land of Heart's Desire." All are the work of W. B. Yeats, the Irish poet.

T. Daniel Frawley and his company having played engagements in Rangoon, Burmah and Colombo, Ceylon, are now in Australia, for a seven-months' season with J. C. Williamson. Mr. Frawley and his company will be away for another year, and will then return to America via South Africa.

It is a curious fact that every time the Emperor of Germany comes to Rome and a gala operatic performance is held in his honor, it is always Verdi's Othello that is presented. It was given in 1889 with Tamagno as Othello, then in 1903 with Tamagno as Othello, and now in 1903, and again with Tamagno as Othello!

Many bands and orchestras have of late, it is said, been employing "dummy" musicians, who, though unable to play, sit clad in uniform among those who really play. A bandmaster who may hire such dummies at a small cost collects the regular charge for their fudis services. To prevent such imposition in Jersey City the City Street and Water Board have appointed an inspector, whose sole duty it is to seek out such frauds in the bands employed by the city.

MR. PAYNE WILL RULE.

Postmaster General's Organ Makes Statement.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 29.—It having been charged by a Washington correspondent, who says he has been making an investigation, that a plot was formed to drive Postmaster General Henry C. Payne from office, the following from a leading editorial in the Milwaukee Sentinel will be of more than passing interest:

"While Mr. Payne has not been in robust health for a number of years, he does not permit occasional periods of indisposition to interfere with his general plans, and he will continue to be the head of the postoffice department as long as he sits in the cabinet of President Roosevelt. Mr. Wynne may accept this statement as authoritative.

"The citizens of the United States may rest assured that whatever irregularities in the postoffice department are disclosed by the investigation now being made, will be corrected.

"Mr. Payne has but one personal political ambition, and that is to make a record as a cabinet officer that will reflect credit upon himself and upon the administration which he serves. To this end he will see that the department is organized upon a business basis, that the efficiency of the service is promoted and that dishonest, careless and inefficient officials are retired."

The reason the quotation is worth more than a glance is that Mr. Payne is a stockholder in the Sentinel and that it contains direct allusion to Mr. Wynne, which he is informed he "may accept as authoritative."

And all sufferers who call on him will receive a free examination, and, if curable, will be treated at a low price. No high fees are asked the sick and helpless and no incurable case accepted.
There is no question of the Doctor's sincerity in his claim that disease can be cured, and one can not doubt his ability to carry out his claim after having talked with people whom he has cured quickly and safely of all kidney and liver disease, lung and stomach or heart trouble, constipation, rheumatism, neuralgia, blood and skin diseases, catarrh, bronchitis, paralysis, diabetis, lost vitality, nervous debility, insomnia, blood poison, anaemia, female weakness, eczema, headaches, backache, nervousness, coughs, asthma and any disease or weakness of the vital organs. It matters not what the disease nor of how long standing, nor how many doctors or remedies have failed; he has repeatedly renewed the youth of old men and women—has often instilled into jaded men and women new vitality, health and strength. To weak, weary women he has brought the light and happiness of health. For worn-out men he has relighted the sparkling vitality of youth. He has cured the crippled and healed the sick, and he has gone about his quietly, unostentatiously, but, nevertheless, with the unbounded success that is winning the gratitude of all sick and helpless men and women.
It should be the ambition of all to ba healthy and happy, but sickness comes and puts a blight upon their lives. This need not be so. It is your duty to consult an expert, and Dr. Hoag's patients will tell you he is the doctor that can cure you if cure is possible, and if you cannot be cured he will not accept your money—not a penny, but if you are curable he will guarantee a cure and his charges will be as low as possible for conscientious, skillful and successful service. A friendly call may save you future suffering; it has made life anew to thousands who had been pronounced beyond hope. Bring sample of your urine for examination.

NOTABLE WRECKS ON GREAT LAKES

Recent Trips of Steamer Suit To Algoma Recall Stories of Disasters—Terrible Fatalities of Years Ago Do Not Happen Now.

The recent trips of the steamer Joseph C. Suit in search of wreckage from sunken steamers on Lake Superior recalls stories of great wrecks that have occurred on the lakes since the little sailing vessel Griffon, the first vessel to sail the waters of the great lakes, was launched near the mouth of Cayuga creek in Niagara county, New York.

In the spring of 1679 the little vessel was launched and the same year she was sailed up the river to Lake Erie, the precursor of the vast commercial interests which now are dependent upon the waters of the great lakes.

Since that day in August the waters of the great lakes have claimed innumerable victims and have proved the graves of thousands of hardy sailors. The icy waters of Superior, the silent deeps of Lake Huron and the turbulent waters of Lake Michigan have all gathered their share of brave men, but Lake Erie, with its shallow, violent waters, holds first place among the lakes as the tomb of ships and sailors.

The great, silent, icy deeps of Lake Superior, the largest and deepest of the lakes, is less feared by the mariners than the treacherous waters of Lake Erie, where there is little sea room, where the waves roll up fast and high, and where the volume of shipping is greater than on any of the other lakes.

There is an old song of the sailors' which reads as follows:

We leave Detroit behind us,
We sets our canvas tight,
Our tug slows up and casts us off,
Old Erie heaves in sight.

She may be just a ripplin',
Or she may be blowin' so
You'd swear that whiff of D. C. feed
Came clear from Buffalo.

So we watch our tiller closer,
We keeps our sheet ropes clear;
There ain't no such thing as stiddy wind
Around Lake Erie here.

One hundred and thirty-nine years after La Salle launched his little vessel the first steamboat stirred the waters of the lakes. She was named the "Walk-in-the-Water," and was built at Black Rock in 1818. Since the arrival of the steamboat on the lakes the number of wrecks has lessened in comparison with the amount of shipping, but the loss of life in modern wrecks is apt to be fully as great as in the days of old wooden sailing vessels, which carried but a limited number of passengers.

Long Point, in Lake Erie, which juts out thirty miles into the track of vessels, is the cemetery of the lakes. Here hundreds of wrecks have occurred. Queer tales are told of the treatment of sailors who went ashore there in the olden days. Then the hand of the law was not as far-reaching as in modern times, and it is said that mariners frequently clung to the masts of the sinking ship until they dropped off from exhaustion, rather than trust themselves to the hands of the vandals on shore.

As a pleasant contrast to this exhibition of the greed of men are the stories of brave rescuers and gallant deeds done by the villagers living along the shores of the lakes.

The old sailors were a gallant race. They accepted the prospect of death as an unavoidable incident in their arduous calling, and when the not unexpected wreck came they went down to their death as only gallant men know how, with their hand on the wheel and a prayer on their lips.

With the arrival of the steam vessel on the lakes came the first of those wrecks whose list of dead appals the reader.

Probably the first of the great wrecks which has been recorded is that of the Washington, which caught fire near Silver creek on July 16, 1838. Fifty lives were lost.

The steamer Erie burned to the water's edge also near Silver creek in 1841 and 250 unfortunate German immigrants lost their lives. Charred bodies were washed ashore for days afterwards. The accident occurred while the steamer was taking a party of over 400 German immigrants up the lake. Captain and crew stuck to their posts in spite of the fierce heat and succeeded in bringing the vessel close enough to the shore so that many escaped.

The burning ship was plainly visible from the shore and many volunteer life-saving parties were organized. The waters were too rough for small boats, but a number of lives were saved. It is believed that over $300,000 in money went down with the ship.

In 1847, on Lake Michigan, the steamer Phoenix burned off Sheboygan and 240 immigrants lost their lives.

In 1850 the steamer Anthony Wayne blew up on Lake Erie between Sandusky and Buffalo and 38 were killed.

In the same year the steamer Griffith, on her way from Cleveland to Erie, burned, and only 30 out of 330 were saved.

In 1852 the Atlantic and Ogdensburg collided on Lake Erie, and the latter sank within half an hour, 250 people losing their lives.

In 1854 the E. K. Collins burned on Lake Erie and 23 lost their lives.

Two years later the Northern Indiana burned on Lake Erie and 30 met their death.

On Lake Michigan in the same year the burning steamer Niagara was responsible for the death of over 70 passengers.

Four years later came the horrible collision between the Lady Elgin and the Augustus on Lake Michigan, in which 285 persons were drowned, including Herbert Ingram, M. P., the founder of the London Illustrated News.

The Sea Bird was burned on Lake Michigan in 1868 and 100 lost their lives.

In 1875 the American steamer Equinox foundered on Lake Michigan and 26 went down to a watery grave.

In 1880 60 last their lives by the foundering of the steamer Alpena on Lake Michigan.

In 1882 the steamer Asia foundered near Sault Ste. Marie and 93 lives were lost.

Then in 1885 comes the wreck of the British steamer Algoma on Isle Royale, in which 48 lives were lost. This was the first of the great wrecks to occur on Lake Superior, and it was this wreck which the Suit recently visited for the purpose of recovering some of the wreckage.

In 1892 the steel steamer Western Reserve broke in two on Lake Superior and the entire crew of 26 men was drowned.

Among the mysterious disappearances on the lakes is the instance of the steamer Dean Richmond. She left Dunkirk on Oct. 14, 1892, and was never seen in port again. She was passed by two vessels bound into Buffalo and was seen to be laboring heavily, but the vessels could give her no assistance, being in danger themselves. Every endeavor has been made to find the wreck, but no sign of it has ever been seen. Floating bodies were picked up on the shore, but the ship had been swallowed by the lake and no one knows her resting place.

Countless other wrecks have occurred in which the loss of life has been less. The wreck of the steamer Thomas Wilson last year just outside the Duluth harbor was a notable example.

From the long list given above it is seen that Lake Erie and Lake Michigan are easily first in the list of disasters.

Of late years no such appalling wrecks as those of the Erie and the Lady Elgin have been recorded. Modern appliances have done much to prevent such loss of life when wrecks occur, and it is believed that such disasters are things of the past.

NO INCREASE OF WAGES

San Francisco, May 30.—The building trades' council of this city has taken important action regarding demands of affiliated unions for increase of wages. By a resolution adopted at the meeting, the council took the stand that henceforth it will not sanction requests for increased pay until such time as the further prosperity of the city warrants such action.

The effect of this action upon the building trades will be very marked. Secretary Tveitmore, who introduced the resolution, stated to the members that continued agitation for higher wages, except where warranted, is likely to influence property owners against making contemplated improvements, and for that reason some assurance should be given that no further demands for advancement of wages will be made until further prosperity should warrant the demand.

The Fastest Warship Afloat.

The new torpedo boat destroyer recently built for the Swedish government is acknowledged to be the fastest warship afloat. Besides its wonderful speed, it is also one of the strongest fighting vessels ever constructed. While such remarkable progress is being made in the production of these life-destroying instruments, it is well to consider the more remarkable progress made in discoveries that save life, the foremost of them being the celebrated Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. By strengthening the system and curing ailments of the stomach, liver and kidneys, it has established a record as a life saver unequalled by any other medicine. Are you a sufferer from insomnia, indigestion, dyspepsia, constipation, liver and kidney troubles, and want to be cured? Then try the Bitters. It never fails.

FOGS HARD ON VESSEL MASTERS

Captain Watched Day and Night on the Bridge, Constantly On the Alert For Danger—Landsman Knows Not the Terrors of Fogs.

The ordinary citizen of Duluth, who has been spitting out torrid reflections on the foggy weather that continued for a week or more lately, probably gave little thought to the individuals that had far more cause for complaint—the vessel masters of the lakes.

A fog is a source of anxiety to the man on whom rests the responsibility for the safety of the ship and its cargo. To the man in town it is merely a source of annoyance and discomfort, and it means only that he is not enjoying life quite as well as he would were the weather fair, the sky clear and the sun shining. To the vessel master it means perplexity, grave concern and even danger.

The fog that prevailed over Lake Superior for a number of days was an enormous tstrain upon the vessel masters who had to sail through it. It meant long hours of tedious watching, without sleep. It means that the captain had to spend most of his time on the bridge, looking anxiously into the thickness ahead to be ready to act should another vessel approach. A few moments of sleep caught on a lounge, without stopping to lay off the heavy oilskins in which he is clad, are precious because they are scarce. The sound of a strange whistle near at hand causes the anxious captain to spring from his resting place and resume his position where he can see what the fog will permit him to see.

The fog ran as far as Keweenaw Point, and while it was clear in the center of the lake most of the course of vessels was shrouded in an impenetrable bank of whiteness terrible in its possibilities.

Vesselmen say that there is a curious difference between the fogs on Lake Superior and other lakes, Lake Michigan, for instance. On the latter body of water the fog usually hovers over the center of the lake, while shores will be clear. On Lake Superior the reverse is true, as the center of the lake is usually clear, while the shores are clouded with fog.

The fact that not one accident was reported during the recent foggy period, which was uncommonly long, shows that the average vessel master of the great lakes knows his business. It means that they have worked with unceasing vigilance and with care that knew no such thing as fatigue. The vessel captains of the lakes are a splendid class of men, and the absence of any accidents during the recent fog is a splendid testimonial to their skill and diligence.

Fog is a terror that discounts storm in the eyes of the sailor. The landsman fears storm, and his heart turns to water when the wind rages over the deep and when the seas rise to beckon him—he thinks—to the regions below. But the sailor thinks lightly of such perils, and his moments of trepidation come when the fog closes down, thick, damp, mysterious, awful. That placid white wall may hide a thousand dangers, and he never knows at what moment the great hull of a monster vessel will emerge from it and crash into him if thought and action are not quicker than lightning.

Often it is impossible to see a single object 10 feet from the bridge. That means that one object may approach to within a third of a boat length of him before it is seen. That is why unceasing vigilance in the sailor's case is the price of safety.

It must be remembered that from the time vessels leave the Sault, they do not necessarily see land until they get to Duluth. It takes good seamanship on such a course, to sep away from collision with shore or ship, and this is particularly true if the fog closes down.

Of course, it means that the vessel must slacken speed. The law says they must, and so does common sense. At the same time there is more than one side to the question. As one sailor put it, the question is about as follows: Suppose you have 300 miles to sail through a fog. If you sail at six miles an hour it will take you fifty hours to make your journey, but if you hit anything you will not hit it so hard, and the danger of serious injury is less. On the other hand, if you sail at the rate of ten miles an hour, you make the trip in thirty hours, and while if you hit anything your damage is more, you have had only thirty hours of danger as against fifty the other way. Which do you prefer?

Such continued fogs as Duluth has experienced lately mean considerable, in the aggregate. They mean slower time and fewer trips, which means fewer earnings and less traffic hauled. But such fogs are to be expected when there is so much rain as there has been this spring, for the atmosphere is saturated with moisture. While it is a consummation devoutly to be wished by a drunkard to be saturated with moisture, such behavior on the part of the atmosphere makes unpleasantness for the mariner.

"The possibilities of the fog are enormous," said Capt. Frank Helmrich, nautical expert in charge of the Duluth hydrographic office, the other day. "There is a little tale in a German history of the war between Spain and the Dutch republic that I read some time ago that illustrates it to some extent. There was a fog in the Mediterranean one night and two Spanish vessels lay side by side, 200 feet separating them, in the fog and darkness. A saucy Dutch war vessel, bawling by a gentle breeze, slid in between them, let go tremendous broadside at each of them, and then slid out again. The two Spaniards then fought each other through the fog for two hours, killing man men and then found out their terrible mistake before they had sunk each other."

So the citizen who faces the fog in his abundantly safe walk along the street must not exaggerate his troubles. There are many men out on the lakes who would gladly change places with him and never make a kick on the fog.

A CONSIGNMENT OF AMMUNITION

Has Gone to Every Store In Breathitts' Feud District.

Louisville, Ky., May 29.—Every general store in the feud-ridden district of Breathitt county has received a consignment of ammunition during the past week. It is impossible to ascertain the amount of ball and cartridges shipped into Jackson and the hamlets nearby, but it was admitted by Col. Belknap, the head of an ammunition store in Louisville, that shipments had been made to all of the region during the past week.

W. B. Hargis, who is one of the principals in the Hargis-Cockrell feud, which has caused the trouble, keeps a general store in Jackson, and it is said a large consignment was sent him early in the week.

Jackson, Ky., May 29.—Owing to the absence from camp last night of Col. Rogers Williams and Capt. Greenleaf, there was much uneasiness and the guards about the jail and court house was doubled. The Hotchkiss gun was in readiness on the camp. And the Gatling gun was in front of the court house in such a position that it could be manned in short notice.

Capt. Maddock was in charge of the jail squad and Maj. E. J. Embry Allen, who was in command during Col. Williams' absence, carried the keys to the bastile. The town is virtually under martial law. The soldiers control every approach to the town. Last night a strong guard was stationed at the bridge across the river to prevent any invasion of the camp from that direction. There was shooting during last night in the vicinity of the town, as on previous nights, but there was no attack, as on Wednesday night. The soldiers who had not slept after their experience of the previous night, although fatigued, feared to relax their vigilance.

RUSTICATION OF THE JEWS

New Movement to Turn Jewish Immigrants to Country.

Chicago, May 29.—The Jews of America are very anxious to know whether the czar's ukase applies to Jews. If it does not, vast numbers will continue to flock to American ghettos and add to the seriousness of a problem which is taxing the best minds of the Jewish people. Already, therefore, an attempt is being made to induce the newcomers to settle in the country.

In Chicago a new industrial removal society, similar to and working with an organization of that name in New York, aims not only to divert as much as possible of the stream of immigrant Jews from thec ities, but also to induce some of the present inhabitants of the ghettos to pull up stakes and start life anew as breathers of the free air of the West. The movement is sustained by an allowance from the trustees of the Baron de Hirsch Jewish colonizing fund of an amount sufficient to pay the expenses of the officers and agents of the society.

Although the attempt has previously been made to evolve independent farmers out of the immigrant Jews, the scheme is still in the experimental stage. The Jewish Agriculturalists' Aid Society of America, a Chicago corporation, which is supported chiefly by voluntary contributions, has achieved some succes on a small scale. During 1902 fifty-six families, consisting of 302 individuals, were thus assisted to establish themselves as farmers. Thirty-four of these families were settled in the Dakotas and in Oklahoma, on government land, for which they filed homestead claims. Ten families purchased farms in Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota. Of the homestead settlers, ten families started upon the venture with some little means of their own—sums ranging from $50 to $200 each, but the remaining families were its poor as Job's proverbial turkey hen. Small loans were made to these homestead settlers, secured by contracts, stipulating that the loans would become first mortgage liens on the property when title was perfected, providing they were not paid before that time. They were further secured by life insurance in favor of the mortgagees. All of the families that purchased farms outright had some means at their disposal and accepted loans from the society, securing them by real estate and chattel mortgages. Good reports have come from nearly all. They are meeting the payments on their loans, and are gradually establishing themselves. But the work of the Agriculturists' Aid society, although it is gradually finding an effective basis that will no doubt bring large results in the future, is present accomplishing about as much in the way of rescue as would a single rowboat when thec rowded liner founders.

Entirely separate from this local Chicago organization is the Industrial Removal society, whose Chicago branch has just been established. Its purpose is similar to the Agriculturalists' Aid society but its aims are a little more comprehensive and general. Agents representing at once both branches of the society will endeavor to find places in Western towns and villages, for such Jewish immigrants as can be induced to settle in rural districts. Many of the Roumanian Jews, who are now coming into this country in unusual numbers, are mechanics, and the attempt will be made to locate these men in small places, where they can still pursue their trades. If an agent succeeds in finding places, say, for twenty families, the plan of the New York and Chicago branches provdes that ten families from each city shall take advantage of the opportunity.

I paid out over $500, writes Mrs. S. P. Jones, Atlanta, for merchandise, but nothing did me any good until I used Rocky Mountain Tea. Made me entirely well. S. F. BOYCE.

One of the essentials of the happy homes of to-day is a fund of information as to right living and the best methods of promoting health and happiness. With proper knowledge, each hour of recreation, of enjoyment and of effort may be made to contribute to that end and are of not less value than the using of the most wholesome foods and the selecting of the best medicinal agents when needed. With the well-informed, medicinal agents are used only when nature needs assistance and while the importance of cleansing the system effectually, when bilious or constipated, has long been known, yet until within recent years it was necessary to resort to oils, salts, extracts of roots, barks and other cathartics which were found to be objectionable and to call for constantly increased quantities.

Then physicians having learned that the most excellent laxative and carminative principles were to be found in certain plants, principally in the leaves, the California Fig Syrup Co. discovered a method of obtaining such principles in their purest condition and of presenting them with pleasant and refreshing liquids in the form most acceptable to the system and the remedy became known as—Syrup of Figs—as figs were used, with the plants, in making it, because of their agreeable taste.

This excellent remedy is now rapidly coming into universal use as the best of family laxatives, because it is simple and wholesome and cleanses and sweetens the system effectually without disturbing the natural functions and without unpleasant after effects and its use may be discontinued when it is no longer required.

All who would enjoy good health and its blessings should remember that it is the one remedy which physicians and parents well-informed approve and recommend and use and which they and their little ones alike enjoy, because of its pleasant flavor, its gentle action and its beneficial effects.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all reliable druggists, at the regular price of fifty cents per bottle, in original packages only, having the name of the remedy—Syrup of Figs—and the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—printed on the front of every package.

Diseases Cured!
PAY NO MONEY IN ADVANCE.

Many sick people have suffered so much from unskilled and unscrupulous specialists that they have lost all faith in doctors. Many have paid large fees and have taken medicine for years to no benefit. They want to get well and are willing to pay a good price to be cured, but they very justly object to paying a large fee in advance. They want a trial treatment. To all such I make this—

REMARKABLE OFFER:

Simply write me, giving your name and address and stating as clearly as possible your trouble. When I have made a careful examination and diagnosis of your case and entered it in my case book, I will send you one package of medicine on trial, which you can take at my risk. If it gives any relief the cost will be $5. If it fails to help you it costs you nothing, and you shall be the judge.

ALL THE RISK IS MINE.

Can anything be fairer than this? I am making an offer which no other physician will make. They can't afford to. I refer to any bank in Duluth as to my financial standing and responsibility. This offer proves that I have great faith in my remedies. I KNOW they will cure, otherwise I wouldn't dare make this offer. It would ruin me, as I ship a hundred packages every day. I have tested this system for twenty years and I know that nine people out of ten are willing to pay where they get any benefit.

NO CURE, NO PAY.

Is my motto. I do this to convince you who hesitate—who doubt all men's claims. I carry a line of specific medicines which cannot be had anywhere else in the state. Their power to cure disease is simply marvelous.

Syphilis, Gonorrhoea, Gleet, Stricture, Skin Affections, Disease of the Kidneys, Stomach, Liver and Bowels, Nervous Troubles, Sexual Weakness, Varicocele and Throat and Lung Troubles cured as if by magic.

Cadet Stories—Roommates.

"Shorty," said Haswell to his roommate one night during the study hour, "why in the name of goodness don't you turn over a new leaf and behave yourself?"

"Well, I'll tell you, I can't. I've got the dickens in me and it's got to come out. Otherwise I'd have indigestion."

Henry laughed.

"Well, I guess there's some truth in what you say, Shorty. Still, some day you're going to get into serious trouble. The 'jug's' empty at present, I understand."

"Indeed! When are you going to move in?"

"I'm not thinking about myself," said Henry, laughing. "I was wondering about you. Have you ever been in a dungeon, Shorty?"

"Rather. You know we call it the 'brig' aboard ship. The first voyage I made they wanted to make me cook and when I refused they put me in irons for a week. I didn't cook, just the sauce, though."

"I shouldn't think it would be much fun to be locked up, is it?" said Haswell, with an involuntary thrill of respect for his friend's superior experience in life.

"No, it ain't," admitted the former sailor. "Still, you get used to it, like everything else, as the cook said to the eel when she skinned him. I shouldn't mind for myself, but I'd hate to get fired on Aunt Jenny's account."

"Aunt Jenny—why, who's she?"

"She's my mother's sister. She's all right, done everything in the world to give me a chance. And if I wasn't such a thankless dog I'd appreciate it and make her happy by showin' it."

"Yes," continued "Shorty," bitterly, "Aunt Jenny's just about as fine as you make 'em, and I'm no good. I know it. I guess you never felt so ashamed of yourself you didn't know where to hide your head, did you?"

"Well, I don't know," replied Henry; "I've felt pretty small sometimes."

"Oh, I don't mean small. I mean so confounded little that you can't find yourself with a magnifying glass. That's the way I felt when Aunt Jenny came aboard ship with the order for my discharge from the navy. You asked me if I was ever locked up. Well, I was in irons that day."

"What for?" asked Henry, breathlessly.

"Well, it was this way. You see, I'd been at sea three years at that time, ever since my mother died. Couldn't stand it at home with Pa's second wife. So I ran away and shipped with a sailing vessel. I was aboard her 10 months and then I jumped ship in China. That captain was the Old Boy himself and don't you make any mistake about it. My real reason for skipping, though, was because he knocked me down for not understanding an order. I grabbed a marlin spike and gave him such a whack over the head as he's not likely to forget in a hurry. Then I sauntered down the gangplank as dignified as you please, exchanged my trousers and jumper at a second-hand clothes dealer's and went aboard one of our warships lyin' in the harbor and enlisted for four years. It's dead easy getting into the navy; the difficulty is in getting out."

"How did you get out, then?" asked Henry.

"How did I get out? Why, Aunt Jenny got me out. It was this way. You see, after we'd been cruising round for two years—Japan, Australia, India, Egypt, Greece, Italy and all over the blooming show, we came back to America to go out of commission. That is, the ship was going out of commission, but the rest of us was going to the receiving ship, the old Wabash, up in Boston Harbor. It was while we were getting the ship ready to go out of commission that the little trouble I spoke of occurred. Our regular executive officer had been transferred to shore duty, and the acting executive was down on me, so he hustled me into the brig and clapped the irons on me. There wasn't any use makin' a row about it, so there I sat chewin' my cud and wishing I'd chose another day to get locked up when there wasn't duff for dinner. Suddenly, though, in rushed Jimmy Legs, crying out":

"'Jimmy Legs'—who's he?" interrupted Henry.

"Oh! the master at arms. Who'd you think he was? The President of the United States? Well, in he comes, cryin', 'Get up out of this! Your aunt's aboard, askin' for you! Lay aft!' By this time he'd got the irons unlocked and I was at liberty to go on deck. 'My aunt?' I kept repeating to myself, as I walked aft toward the quarter deck. 'How in goodness' name did she find out where I was?' But sure enough there the dear old lady was waiting for me in the waist of the ship. When she caught sight of me she came running up, and, throwing her arms round me, she burst into tears. 'Oh, Edward!' she cried, 'my poor, dear Nellie's child, how could you run away and leave us all?' I didn't say anything, though; I couldn't, there was such a big lump in my throat. 'But now you're comin' right home with me,' she said, 'and stay with me and not run away any more to sea. I've got your discharge in my pocket. And so she had, the dear old soul. She'd been down to Washington and seen the Secretary herself, and got him to order my discharge. You ought to have seen the executive's face when he saw that paper. He wanted to hold me for court-martial, but the Old Man—that's the Cap'n—ordered my discharge made out, and half an hour later, after bidding good-by to the boys and dividing $50 among 'em for Aunt Jenny, I was ridin' up town in a cab as proud as a lord, and Aunt Jenny was sitting there holding my hand and half crying for joy and telling me how glad she was she'd found me at last. That's the kind of an aunt she is. And this is the way I repay her. Don't it make you sick? It does me."

"I see," said Haswell, after a pause. "And Aunt Jenny sent you here to school, I suppose?"

"You've guessed it."

"I wish I could brace up," began "Shorty," after a long pause. "I'd give my head to please Aunt Jenny, but every time I try to—"

Suddenly the door was thrown open and a cadet aide appeared on the threshold.

"So you're loafing again, are you, in study hour, Carson?" cried the official spy. "I guess you'll amuse yourself walking guard next Saturday afternoon, young man. You seem to like it."

"There, didn't I tell you it wasn't any use?" said "Shorty," when the intruder had withdrawn. "Nobody believes in my good intentions, so I might's well be killed for a sheep as a lamb."

Selling Forfeits.

This is a game with lots of fun in it. The leader should be a good talker, and not one easily embarrassed, for he has to act as auctioneer, and can add much to the interest of the game by his manner of conducting the sale.

The forfeits consist of orders to do certain absurd or ludicrous things, and these orders should be prepared in advance, as many as there are players. They are written on slips of paper, and the slips are put into envelopes, which are then sealed and numbered, from one up. No one must see the forfeits or orders but the person who writes them; this work would naturally fall to the leader.

The players take seats in a circle, or a semicircle, and the leader stands in the centre, with the envelopes in his hand. He then offers them for sale, saying that they contain something of great value!

Each player is supposed to have $100 at his command for buying, and as the leader offers the envelopes, one at a time, they bid against each other for them. No one is allowed to buy more than one envelope.

All the envelopes are kept sealed until the last one has been sold, and then are opened, when the reading of the forfeits will be sure to make a good deal of amusement.

At the end of the sale the forfeits are to be paid in the order of the numbers on the envelopes.

Here are a few suggestions for forfeits:—

Yawn until you make some one else yawn.

Kiss your image in the looking glass.

Recite one stanza of "Mary Had a Little Lamb" backward.

Put a lighted candle on the mantelpiece, stand with your back to it, then close your eyes, walk five steps away from the mantelpiece, turn around, walk back to the candle and blow it out.

Guess blindfolded who gives you a spoonful of water.

Crow like a rooster.

Sing a song, playing the guitar in dumb show as an accompaniment.

The Telegram Game.

This is a simple little game, but it is instructive, for it gives boys and girls practice in quick composition.

Give to each player a sheet of paper and a pencil, and then ask them in turn to name a letter of the alphabet, until ten letters have been so named. If there are not ten players, some of them may be asked to name two letters.

Each player writes these letters, one after another, at the top of his sheet of paper, and is then asked to write a telegram of ten words, the words begining with the ten letters in their regular order.

Suppose, for example, that the letters named are J, T, O, R, B, H, A, S, D, I. Here is a telegram that might be formed on them:—"Johnny tumbled off roof; broke his arm; send doctor immediately."

When the telegrams have all been written—which should be done within a certain time, say within ten minutes—the leader reads them aloud and awards a prize.

Baa, baa, sheepshead—have you any scales?
Yes, sir; yes, sir; down to our tails.
Some for the fish store, some good for glue,
Some make the gelatine the grocer sells to you.

The Rival Dinners.

There had always been the keenest rivalry between the Brook King and the Pond King, and when the former heard that the latter was about to give a dinner on the very same night as that for which he had already sent out invitations he was so excited and angry that the very brook in which he had made his home swelled with rage, so that the people living along its banks marveled and said, one to another, that there must have been a terrible storm in the mountains the night before, the brook was so swollen.

The Brook King, having sent out his invitations first, felt justly that his dinner party should have the precedence, but alas! the home of the Pond King was so much more spacious, and the subjects whose duty it was to fulfil his orders so much more numerous that all the appointments of his banquets could not fail to be as they should be, while as for the quarters of the Brook King, cramped as they were between two banks, decorate and beautify them as he might, it could not be denied that they were small. And then, most important of all, he was giving the dinner principally in the hope of pleasing a particularly lovely little naiad who had long since won his heart by her beauty and grace, and now he could not doubt that she would go to the dinner which promised to be the finer of the two.

The poor little Brook King thought it all over until even the cooling waters of the brook could not keep his head from aching, and he finally wrote a note to the Pond King telling him how matters stood and begging him to defer his dinner. This missive he sent by a minnow, who was to wait for an answer. He was not kept waiting long, for the Pond King at once wrote a note in which he declared that he was truly sorry things had happened as they had, but as by the greatest exertions he had made the pond lilies, which were to be his sole decoration, promise to be in bloom during the dinner, he could not possibly change the date.

The Brook King was in despair. He was positive that if the two dinners were given on the same night his would be a complete failure. And suddenly, as he was brooding over his troubles, a wicked thought came into his head—if his dinner was not to be a success, why could he not do something to prevent the one given by the Pond King from being a success? This idea was no sooner thought of than he took the first steps to put it into execution. He remembered that lilies were to be the only decorations for the other dinner, and he made up his mind that these lilies should be spoiled. It would be an easy thing to do, and there was little danger that he would be suspected. Calling in two turtles who were swimming past, he ordered them to go to a certain secret crevice among the stones which lined the bottom of the brook, pick out from among his collection of drugs a certain phial which contained a peculiarly disagreeable odor, and then on the day of the dinners proceed to the home of the Pond King and sprinkle some of its contents on each of the lilies, thus making them smell so badly that no one could bear to remain near them.

The turtles did as the Brook King bade them, but, unfortunately for his plan, they somehow managed to take the wrong bottle—one containing a most delicious perfume, which they sprinkled lavishly upon the pond lilies, thereby making them more attractive than ever.

As the hour for the dinner drew nigh the Brook King began to tremble with nervousness and excitement. He expected his guests to be late, for he was sure that they would one and all repair at the appointed hour to the home of the Pond King, but he had never a doubt that the disagreeable odor would drive them away, and that they would shortly appear at his table, so he got all ready and sat down to wait for his guests.

Half an hour and then an hour passed and still no one came; some part of his plan had gone wrong, and he made up his mind that he would see what it was. Cautiously he crept up the brook and into the pond, at whose entrance never a sentinel was left to ask his errand, for one and all of the pond inhabitants were busy feasting to their heart's content. And what was this delicious odor which, as he advanced into the pond, came to the Brook King's nostrils? He recognized it as one of the rarest and most costly scents which he had had among his collection of drugs, and at once he realized the mistake which had been made, and he set his teeth firmly together and inwardly vowed vengeance upon the two turtles who had so carelessly fulfilled his orders when he should again come across them.

While he stood there, filled with rage at the thought that his attempt to spoil his rival's dinner had ended in making it all the more attractive, the Pond King, happening to glance around and catch sight of him, came toward him with outstretched hands of welcome, and after him trooped his guests, gathering around the bewildered Brook King and telling him how they had enjoyed the delightful surprise which he had prepared for them.

"I caught your servants, the turtles, while they were busy perfuming the lilies, and made them tell me all about it," said the Pond King. "And now you must come and sit down with us, for, although you're very late, we've not half finished dinner yet."

And as they all sat down to dinner once more, the astonished Brook King found himself next the lovely little naiad, and under the tablecloth she gently squeezed his hand and whispered that she knew he had done it all to give her pleasure.

On the way home, whither he escorted her much later in the evening, the little naiad at last gave her promise to marry the Brook King, for he had long since declared his passion to her; and at their wedding, which took place a year or so later, the happy Brook King's whole palace was fragrant with pond lilies, for ever after the famous dinner given by the Pond King those flowers retained the delicious fragrance which we still find in them today.

FLORENCE A. EVANS.

Trick With A Plate.

Here is a way to balance a china plate on the point of a needle, and even to cause it to spin steadily upon this delicate support: Cut two corks down the middle, and in the ends of the four halves thus obtained insert forks, inclined to the smooth sides of the corks at a little less than right angles. Place these four corks, as in the illustration, around the rim of the plate at equal distances from one another, and see that the teeth of the forks are in contact with the rim, to prevent them from swaying.

With a little care this plate can now be balanced on the point of a needle whose eye has been buried in the cork of an upright bottle. By giving it a gentle rotary motion the plate may be made to spin around, which it will do for quite a long time.

Mother Cod Jingle.

BY C. B. GOING AND M. O. CORBIN.

The eel's a very greedy fish,
The pangs which he must feel
Should make us never, never, wish
That we might be an eel.

The eel outside is plain and black,
Devoid of beauty quite;
Inside, he's just an empty sack
And one huge appetite.

This appetite and emptiness
Extend from tail to head;
The things he eats, I must confess,
Are often very dead.

Then let us all a warning take—
'Tis better to incur
The pangs of hunger than to make Ourselves a sepulchre.

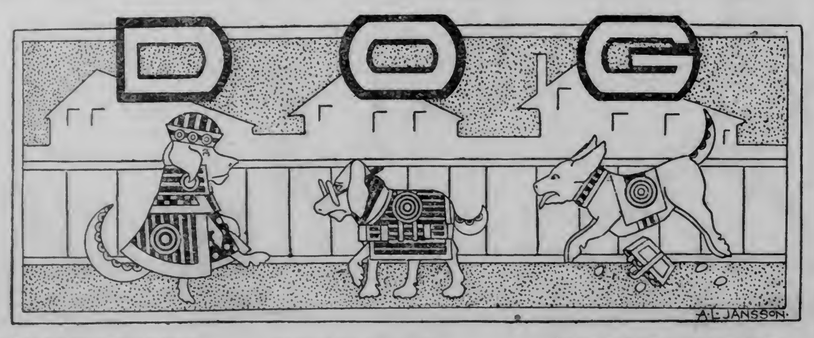
Little Nan Etticote in a white petticoat—with a red nose, the longer she stands, the shorter she grows.

Can you guess what it is that "the longer it stands the shorter it grows?" It surely isn't the little girl in the picture. But if you look carefully you will find the answer in seven places—seven little Nan Etticotes that grow shorter with each minute that they stand.



D was a dog who learned to dance
And wear a hat like the King of France.
He wore a cape and a collar, I find,
But yet his tail stuck out behind.

O's the old dog I met today,
Who had to wear glasses to see his way.
He looked as sad and he walked as slow
As a very old man I used to know.

G's the good dog that Mistress Meggs
Sent to the grocer to buy her some eggs.
When he found they were bad he threw them away,
And went back for others, the grocery men say.

DULUTH'S NEIGHBORS

Tower.

Tower, May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Superintendent Oliver H. Gates of the Lake Vermilion Indian school at Sucker Point, has lately received official notification that he is soon to be transferred to another school to act in a similar capacity. The exact date of the change has not been made known, nor has the name of his successor been given out, but it is understood that the transfer will be made shortly. Mr. Gates has held the position of superintendent of the Vermilion lake school ever since its erection, some four years ago and has made a host of friends who deeply regret his removal.

Lewis Mason, of Two Harbers, visited with friends here a couple of days this week.

Lewis Baker and George Donahue left Monday morning for 65-21 to complete the work of putting in spring crops on their homesteads. They expect to be gone about three weeks.

Max Huh has gone to Ely to take a position as compositor on the Ely Miner during the absence of Editor Schaeffer.

Leslie Bend, of Eveleth, was among Tuesday evening's arrivals in the city.

Attorney James W. Osborne, of Ely, paid us a professional visit Tuesday last.

S. S. Childers was down from Ely between trains Tuesday.

Thomas Canning, of Portland, Ore., visited with his sister, Mrs. John Penchly, a day or two last week. Mr. Canning was a resident of this place during the early days.

Mrs. W. H. Congdon, Sr., left Monday morning to spend the summer with her daughters, Mrs. Dr. de la Barre, of Minneapolis and Mrs. W. N. Shepherd, of Whitewater, Wis.

Mrs. A. D. Fuller and daughter, Miss Beatrice, are expected home tonight from a two-weeks' visit with relatives and friends at Cumberland, Wis.

William Voss is doing business in the Zenith City this week.

President G. A. Whitman of the First State bank, was in town a day or two this week from Eveleth.

J. C. Bliss came up from the new town of Nashwauk, Wednesday evening, and is making arrangements to remove his family thereto. Mr. Ohles intends to engage in the lumber business at that place soon.

McKinley Park is undergoing extensive improvements these days in anticipation of the picnic which is soon to be given there by the Soudan Finnish Temperance society. No date has as yet been set for this event, but it is understood that it will be given soon after July 4.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Williams, of Linden, Wis., are in the city this week making arrangements to repair their building which was severely damaged by the wind storm last week. They are guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kellew.

Orin W. Brist is again in the city after an absence of several months, and has taken a position in the Tower Lumber company's mill. Mr. Brist spent a greater part of the winter in the Southern states.

Frank Umbright, engineer on the steamer Oddfellow, was in Duluth Wednesday.

The local Aerie of Eagles are planning to give a picnic some time in August.

Principal E. O. Loveland, of the public school, did business at the Duluth land office Saturday.

Frank Cargill, editor of the Virginia Virginian, spent Sunday last at Soudan, the guest of Capt. Paul Chamberlain.

Mrs. P. F. Chamberlain, of Soudan, was a visitor to Virginia several days last week, the guest of Mrs. D. E. Cuppernull.

Charley Mike left Monday morning for a three months' visit to his native home in Finland. The friend who intended accompanying him found the walking too poor after getting as far as Allan Junction, so returned to work until the roads dry up a little.

Gus Thompson visited with his brother, Matt, in Duluth last Monday and Tuesday.

John Cameron came up from Minneapolis Saturday evening and will spend the summer months with relatives here.

Earnest Merrill has recently purchased a stylish new driving horse.

Mrs. E. E. Barnidge entertained a number of friends at the Vermilion hotel Saturday evening, in honor of her guest, Miss Nellie Mesky, of Duluth.

Rev. West, of Kasode, Minn., preached at the Presbyterian church both morning and evening last Sabbath.

Miss Julia Johnson is spending the week with Duluth friends.

Bell Burgess left for Duluth Monday morning to resume work after a month's enforced stay in the city.

Herb Gud, of Ely, was in town Friday evening to attend the party given at the Vermilion hotel that evening. Guess Herb had a good time.

Rev. Watson A. Young, of Kalamazoo, Mich., has been engaged as permanent pastor of the Presbyterian church.

Neil Wilson, agent at the Duluth & Iron Range depot at Tower Junction, was an Ely visitor Tuesday.

L. Bentson, was a business viiter to Sparta last Monday.

John T. Joyce was in town Monday from his stopping place at the head of Lake Vermilion.

L. Bentson has resigned his position as clerk at the Boston Clothing house, and left Monday morning for Minneapolis.

M. Harlow and Peter Oberbillig were Virginia visitors last Saturday. Mr. Harlow intends to open a saloon at that place about July 1.

Frank Fritzko has gone to Milwaukee, where he expects to remain.

Peter Oberbillig left Thursday morning for Chicago, where he will spend the summer.

Albert Aringleri returned home Tuesday from a week's visit with his parents near Minneapolis.

M. J. Segal, who has been seriously ill for the past three weeks, with brain fever, was taken to one of the Duluth hospitals Thursday.

The Tower and Soudan schools were closed Monday for the usual summer vacation. Many of the teachers have left for their homes. Miss Baden going to Poplar, Wis., Miss Klerner to Litchfield, Minn.; Miss Hopkins and Miss Westaway to Duluth, Miss Chamberlain to Madison, Wis., Miss Brown to Winona, Miss McClure to Lansing, Mich., and Miss Wedmark to Faribault, Minn. A number of the teachers who taught here the past term have been re-hired.

Walker.

Walker, May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—W. H. Hallet is probably the most satisfied man in Northern Minnesota today. He has succeeded in reducing the passenger rate on the Minnesota & International railway from 4 to 3 cents a mile.

Information comes from Brainerd that attorneys representing the railway have consented to judgment being entered in the case against the company in which it was ordered to show cause why the rate should not be reduced to the same figure as on other roads in the state. A hearing in the matter as between the state railroad commission and the Minnesota & International was to have been held in Brainerd Thursday before Judge Spooner, but on Tuesday the judge received a telegram announcing the decision of the company as above stated. The new rate will become effective July 1.

Examinations have been held in the Walker schools this week prior to the closing of the school year a couple of weeks hence. The year, under the principalship of Miss Feltus, has been a very successful one, and good progress has been made by the pupils in all grades, Miss Feltus has had able assistants in her sister, Miss Josie Feltus, and Miss Spencer, and regret is felt that they are not to continue the work after the summer vacation. One very noticeable feature in connection with the schools during this year has been the development of the library which now contains 190 volumes of first-class literature, embracing the "Heroes of History," Chambers' Encyclopedia, a reference library series and a number of the standard and classical novels.

By virtue of an arrangement entered into some years ago with Mr. Walker, of Minneapolis, P. H. Proctorknott.

Proctorknott, May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The ladies of the Catholic church ice cream social was a success, despite the bad weather that prevailed in the evening. There were about eighty people present.

Our town is getting to be quite critical as to music. The musicians who furnished the music at the town hall for the dance Saturday evening were proved too incompetent to play for a Proctor dance. After they had played two selections, the dancers refused to dance to the music and demanded a new set of musicians to be put in place of the offending orchestra. The committee in charge granted the demand, and the dance went merrily on. How is that for Proctor?

Assistant Foreman William Sturgeon will take General Foreman McMurtrie's place till he returns from his trip to the East. Robert Fraser will act as round house foreman.

V. Rollin has resigned his position as machinist in the Duluth, Missabe & Northern shops here.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Shunk, Tuesday, May 26.

Mr. and Mrs. McMurtie and family left for a trip to Canada, Wednesday.

Mrs. H. O. Smith has returned home from her trip.

The Proctor fire department is in a bad way if fire broke out in the village. The department has not had a fire practice drill for a year. There are about eight members that would respond to an alarm of fire, and if they did so, they would be badly handicapped for want of equipment, as all the equipment, with the exception of a hose and reel, belongs to the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railway, and it would, in case of fire, take an hour to gather it together. Numerous protests are heard about town the way the council lets this important matter go on as it it. Active steps will have to be taken or Proctor will soon be without a volunteer fire department altogether.

There should be some action taken about the way householders have of throwing garbage away. On several lands and out on one street, piles of refuse have accumulated from the garbage thrown out during the winter, and is now rotting in the hot sun, causing the neighbors no end of annoyance. Behind one hotel on the etast side, a dead animal has been lying for a month, and the stench coming from it is almost unbearable. As suggested some means should be taken to stop this neglect on the part of these parties who perhsist in doing this, and to remember the public health.

A decided improvement on the west side is the grading between the bridge and the railroad track, and the new sidewalk, which has stout guard rails on both sides.

The young people of this town will begin practice next week on Goldsmith's "She Stoops to Conquer." They expect to have it ready for production on July 15. The play will be given in aid of the First M. E. church. The piece is a difficult one, and the young people realize they have some very hard work ahead of them. They have secured a good instructor and have high hopes of doing justice to the play.

Tuesday evening, a number of brakemen got in a heated discussion at the European hotel, of which D. McIntosh is proprietor. The men got too noisy in their arguments and Mr. McIntosh thought they had better finish the discussion outside. One of the brakemen, W. F. Wimpy, raised an objection to this suggestion, and started in to clear the house out, with the result that he found himself outside in short order. He then brought a sledge to his assistance, and tried to throw it through one of the windows of the hotel, but missed the window and struck the side of the building, where it glanced off and struck a bystander, cutting a nasty gash. Mr. McIntosh appeared against Wimpy in court Thursday morning. Wimpy was found guilty of disturbing the peace, and fined $5 and costs.

Ed Rodgers accused Charles Keefe and James Douglas of stealing his watch, while on the way from Hibbing, where the three men were employed as brakemen. Rodgers claims that while he was sleeping, coming down on the passenger train, Keefe or Douglas (he does not know which) took a fancy to his watch and stole it from him. When he appeared before Justice of the Peace Dennis, he hardly made his arguments convincing, with the result that the case was dismissed.

Rev. E. R. Stevenson gave a lecture Thursday evening, his aim being to introduce the new hymnal which the First E. M. church has lately been using. He gave several phonograph selections of the most popular of the hymns. Quite a number were present.

Hibbing.

Hibbing, May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dr. H. M. Bracken, of St. Paul, secretary of the state board of health, has been here on an official investigation of the smallpox contagion. His interview which has appeared in both Duluth dailies is a statement of affairs just as things exist. The quarantine on the Cox block is to be raised Monday. The remaining patients numbering five are confined at the isolation hospital one and one-half miles from town.

John Hilliard, the Duluth contractor, is in town.

Attorney Hughes went to Grand Rapids yesterday on legal business.

E. C. Kiley, editor of the Grand Rapids Herald-Review, was a business visitor here yesterday.

The Proctors of Duluth defeated the local baseball club here last Sunday, 11 to 3. The game at the sixth inning stood 3 to 2 in favor of the locals. In the seventh with the bases full Harney of the visitors made a home run, which seemed to unnerve Thomas, the local pitcher, who allowed three more scores in this inning. A. Cummings, the Duluth school pitcher, did good work in the box for the visitors and the locals earned their three runs. Cox and Olson making home runs in the third and fifth innings, while in the sixth Kleffman's double, followed by Ulrich's two-sacker, netted the other run. Today and tomorrow the locals play Bells Eagle Drug company's team.

Mrs. T. J. Brophy, who has been on the sick list the past week, is recovering.

The Universal Millers, of Duluth, play here June 7.

R. S. Danforth, of Minneapolis, spent a few days here on business this week.

Notwithstanding the comforting report given out by Dr. Bracken, of the state board of health, there is a great deal of uneasiness here as regards the smallpox situation. Eveleth has escaped so far this season, but with so much communication between the range towns and with the disease at Hibbing it was hoped some more radical means would be taken to stamp it out.

W. C. Colbrath was in town from Duluth the first of the week.

Miss Abigail Sheehy and John H. McWhirter were married at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning at the Presbyterian church, in the presence of a large number of friends. A wedding breakfast followed at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sheehy. Mr. and Mrs. McWhirter left on the noon train for a short wedding trip.

Dr. Paul Sibert, of Chicago, succeeds Dr. Day as assistant at the More hospital.

Beatrice Murnik won the perfect little toy stove given away by A. C. Osborn to the child who made the greatest number of words out of the phrase, "Buck's stoves and ranges." She made 2500 words.

At the first meeting of the new school board it was decided to make sewing and cooking a part of the regular school work. Last year manual training was added and found very beneficial, and with these three subjects the Eveleth schools will be to the fore in the new century idea of teaching what is most needed in the daily life. Another change that will be much appreciated by the teachers is that instead of having the foreign children who enter wholly unacquainted with the English language join the American children, there is to be a teacher who will have them separate from the primary department.

Cass Lake.

Cass Lake, May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Memorial services for the departed soldiers promises to be very interesting and will be held in the First M. E. church on Sunday evening at 8 p. m. George Stein, president of the village council, will preside and will be supported by Revs. A. C. Woodcock, Congregationalist, and Rev. Brabner Smith, of the Methodist Episcopal church. The oration will be given by City Attorney E. M. Stanton, who is an orator of great force and has studied the subject. The music under the charge of Miss Ella Johnston and H. GIANT PRESS IN COUNTERFEITERS' DEN.

This is the inside of a room in which counterfeiters practiced their trade in Philadelphia. The huge machine in the middle was used for minting silver 25-cent pieces. The coins were good imitations, and it was sometime before the government detectives ran down the gang engaged in manufacturing them. So ponderous was the apparatus employed that it required the muscular effort of two strong men to revolve the great horizontal bar which screwed down the massive iron block that served as a press.

The Bank of France can compel customers to accept one-fifth of withdrawals in gold coin.

Ingenious New Hatpin.

Very different from the ordinary hatpin, which, it must be acknowledged, is decidedly primitive, is the new hatpin shown in the accompanying picture.

It is composed of a needle, a head, a spring tongue and an open sleeve or slide. The spring tongue is attached to the needle, and is designed to keep the latter in proper position, and on the sleeve are a stop-and-finger grip, which are intended to prevent the needle from being inserted into the hat further than is necessary. Owing to this simple but effective mechanism, a pin of this kind, when put into a hat, cannot change its position.

As a weapon the ordinary hatpin has become rather notorious, but it is unlikely that much serious warfare will be waged with the new device, for, in the first place, the needle is encumbered with a spring, a tongue and a slide, and, consequently, cannot prove very harmful, and, in the second place, because when it is once in position it evidently requires a minute or two to remove it, and hence it is not so available as the old primitive hatpin.

The duty on paper imported into Germany is about $22 a ton.

Test For Children.

Hand a person two objects which are of exactly the same weight, but of different dimensions, and the chances are ninety to one that he will pronounce the smaller to be the heavier of the two. The reason evidently is because it is natural, though erroneous, to suppose that the more compact a body is the more heavy it is bound to be.

Dr. Demoor, a well-known Belgian physician, recently tested several children on this point. He gave them two black bottles, each containing a similar quantity of heavy powder and one of which was much larger than the other, and of the 380 children whom he examined 370 said promptly that the smaller bottle was the heavier. Only 10 answered correctly, and Dr. Demoor soon found out that they were idiots.

Prof. E. Mararede applied the same test to a class of backward children in Geneva and discovered that it was an admirable method for discovering the exact amount of intelligence possessed by each child. Four of his pupils invariably picked out the bottle which was really the heavier, and these four were the dullest and in all other respects the most unpromising in his entire class.

The Smallest Watch.

There lives in Cincinnati the proud possessor of the smallest watch in the world. It measures less than one-quarter of an inch in diameter, and the face is about the size of the head of a large tack or nail. The case is made throughout of gold. The face is covered, the case being opened by pressing the stem as is ordinarily done. The length of both hands, if placed end to end, would not be more than five-twenty-fourths of an inch. The second hand is one-sixteenth of an inch in length. The numerals are in Arabic and are engraved in red, to be more easily discernible. The works and hands are made of the finest tempered steel, and the works are set throughout in diamond chips.

An Amusing Toy.

One of the most difficult things to invent is a toy which will amuse children, not for a day or two, but as long as they remain children, and those persons who are competent to speak with authority on the matter maintain that those toys which represent animals in motion, or of which animals are the principal parts, are more likely to become popular than any others.

If this be true, the toy shown in the accompanying picture ought to be hailed with delight by children, since an animal plays the most important role in it; indeed, without the animal it would be an uninteresting and lifeless affair.

The toy is egg-shaped, and in the upper part is an animal, which can be covered if desired. The animal is held in position by a spring, and another spring comes into play when the cover is to be removed. It is evident, therefore, that the toy in its normal condition looks like an ordinary egg, and that the child who receives it as a gift does not realize what a treasure it has obtained until the cover slowly disappears and the cunning little animal shows itself.

VASE RESTORED FROM 638 FRAGMENTS.

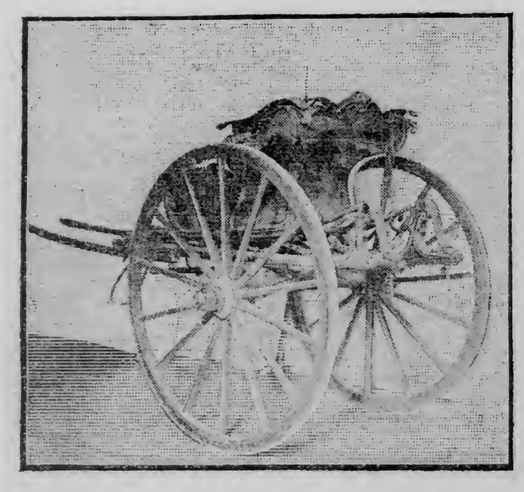
To the great delight of the art world, the famous Francois vase, the most important monument of the temples of Solon and Pisistratus and the most precious example of Grecian art in the sixth century before Christ, has after years of toil been restored and again placed on exhibition in the Florence Archaeological Museum.

Connoisseurs are of the opinion that this most valuable and noted antique ceramique is more to be admired than ever before, since the 638 pieces into which it was broken have been so ingeniously put together.

Student, artist and traveler, when visiting the museum, are always sure to enter the Palace of the Crocetta, tarrying long in the center of the gallery, where since 1826 until the time of the great catastrophe which befel it in 1900, and which it was feared was irremediable, stood the celebrated Francois vase. This rare old specimen of art has a most remarkable history. Signor Alesandro Francis found the vase in October, 1844. It was inside a vault located within an apartment belonging to the Grand Duke of Dolciano, at Fonte Rotella, near Chiusi, or, to be strictly accurate, he found only two-thirds of the body of the vase, with only one of the handles, in the first place. A year later he came across some other remarkable pieces, among which was the second handle.

Years afterward another fragment came to light, and was handed over as a gift to the museum in 1866 by Marquis Charles Strozzi, when the parts previously found were put together and so firmly fixed that the vase remained undeteriorated until smashed into fragments by the blow received three years ago.

FINE OLD DUTCH COUNTRY CHAISE.



Nothing recently brought to this country from out the Old World treasures can quite eclipse in unique style the elegant "old Dutch country two-wheeled chaise" pictured here, and owned by a well-known society woman of New York. It was built about 1749-1750 by the celebrated carriage builder Mulder, of Holland, and is the only example of his splendid work in existence.

It is as strong in every part as on the day the builder turned it out. The body of the vehicle, a rich golden brown, has profuse hand carving. The Holland seasons are represented on the panels in softened tints; the wheels are green, with carved and gilded spokes; the curving springs at the back are curiously ornamental, and it is used for two horses, tandem.

TYPES OF PHILIPPINE HEAD HUNTERS.

A private letter to a gentleman in New York who recently returned from the Philippines gives an account of a curious discovery just made a few miles from the Town of Baguio, in the Province of Benguet, in the northern part of Luzon, the principal island of the archipelago. Native miners, working with pick and shovel, found in a gravel hillock a stone-built coffin about four feet and a half long, two feet and a half wide and two feet and a half deep. It had no other bottom than gravel, the sides being built of several stones and the cover being one entire stone.

The body was not lying at full length, as by the size of the bones, it appeared to have been about six feet long. There were found among the bones three flint stones, the largest of which is about nine inches long, resembling the point of a halbert, the edges and point sharp like a spear, and the other end round, as if fitted for a handle; another of a circular form and sharp in the edges, about three inches in diameter.

There was likewise found a kind of a ring, neatly carved, about three-fourths of an inch thick, in which were two small holes, by which it seemed to be hung by a string. It admitted a man's finger, being two inches and a half in diameter.

It is the opinion of those who have viewed the discovery that the stone coffin was the resting-place of an Igorrote chief. At certain seasons of the year the Igorrotes rouse themselves from their lethargy and go out on what are called head-hunting expeditions. The warrior bringing in the largest number of heads of enemies slain is declared chief until the occasion of the next expedition.

Modern Sun Worshippers.

In Europe several persons now sedulously pay homage to the sun, and in a learned journal, entitled "L'Ecole Nouvelle," one of them maintains that the sun should be especially honored at Christmas.

"Christmas should be regarded as a festival for the benefit of humanity," he says. "In this way we can once more become united with the Aryans, our ancestors, who worshiped fire and who celebrated the birth of the divine constellation, who is the father of light, of heat and of life."

He then suggests that the following prayer be said daily:

"O thou, who causest lies to vanish, who drivest away the evil influence of prodigies, of malignant predictions, of dreams and of wicked apparations; O thou, who bringest to naught the plots of the wicked, to thee we pray, Lord Sun, since thou art the light of the world."

His Own Grandfather.

Beppo Bruzoni, a Neapolitan sailor, is a living proof of the fact that a man can be his own grandfather.

"I married," he said, "a widow, and she had by her first husband a handsome girl named Silvietta, with whom my father fell in love and who became his second wife. Thus my father became my son-in-law and my stepdaughter became my mother, since she had married my father. Soon afterward my wife gave birth to a son, who became my father's stepbrother and at the same time my uncle, since he was my stepmother's brother.

"But that was not all, for in due time my father's wife also gave birth to a boy, who was my brother and also my stepson, since he was the son of my daughter. My wife was also my grandmother, for she was the mother of my mother, and thus I was my wife's husband and at the same time her grandson. Finally, as the husband of a person's grandmother is naturally that person's grandfather, I am my own grandfather."

Man-Like Root.

The remarkable resemblance to the human figure which this root bears has caused the Chinese to regard ginseng with a superstitious reverance. They believe it is a panacea for all the ills to which human flesh is heir.

The root was photographed just as it was dug from the ground in a ginseng garden near Cuba, N. Y. As will be noted, its resemblance to the human form is wonderful, for it it has a waist, head and neck, arms and legs. It is one of the most valuable products which grows from the soil, and a large quantity of it is used in America for medicinal purposes.

CHARACTER TOLD BY SHOES.

Scarpology is the name of a novel method of divination which is now attracting some attention in Europe. It was invented by a scientist of Basle, and it is based on the assumption that the character of any person can be told from his shoes.

Here are a few of the principal rules:

"When a heel and sole are worn equally, meaning thereby when neither is in a worse condition than the other, one may be confident, if a man wears the shoe, that he is energetic and is endowed with excellent business ability, and if a woman, that she is loyal to her husband and a good housekeeper.

"The outer edge of a sole, if much worn, is a sure token of a fantastic, wayward spirit, but, on the other hand, if the inner edge is worn, the wearer is timid and irresolute.

"When the shoes are much worn along the outer edge and the leather around the toes begins to look shabby, the other parts of the shoes meanwhile being almost as good as new, one may be confident that the wearer is a rogue."

Eyesight And Electricity.

Hitherto it has been supposed that electric light is more injurious to the eyesight than any other artificial light, but Russian oculists who have been closely studying the subject now maintain that, on the contrary, it is less injurious than the light either of gas or candles or any other material. As a reason for this statement they point out that diseases of the eyes are in proportion to the number of times the eyes blink or wink when subjected to artificial light, and that after numerous tests had been made it was found that the eyes blink about seven times a minute when exposed to candle light, about three times when exposed to gas, twice when exposed to the sun and only once when exposed to electric light.

Mechanical Novelty.

A new form of Noah's ark is one of the latest mechanical toys. The animals are attached to arms on a rotating shaft; a turn of the crank sets the shaft spinning, and the child looks through the doorway to catch a glimpse of the animals, which it cannot see properly till the shaft stops. Only one animal can be seen at a time at each stoppage, and the chances against the same animal stopping opposite the doorway twice in any given time are very small. Thus the child is always wondering how many animals are in the box.

In London each day 400 children are born and 250 enter school for the first time.

His Remedy.

Recently a hotelkeeper of Nyitria, in Hungary, was informed by his guests that it was impossible for them to sleep on account of the concerts which were kept up in the lower part of the building until a very late hour, and that they would be much obliged to him if he would provide them with some remedy. A few days later every guest found in his bedroom a small package containing a night cap, some cotton wadding and a printed notice which read as follows: "If the musicians make too much noise all you have to do is to stuff your ears with the cotton and draw the night cap down over your face, for then you will fall asleep very quickly."

WOMAN IN MINIATURE.

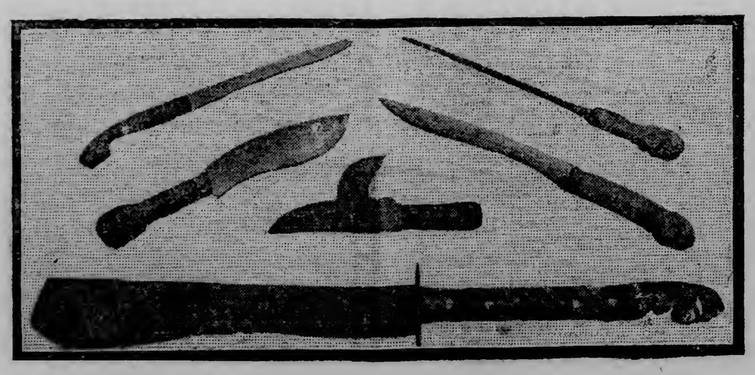
Much curiosity has been felt regarding the woolly headed black dwarfs of our newly acquired archipelago in the Southern Pacific. The photo presented herewith shows what very little people they are, the woman being full grown and about 19 years of age. She does not reach much above the elbow of the white man standing by her side. That she is of full Negrito blood is shown by her hair.

The 210,000 acres of British orchards yield yearly 85,000 tons of fruit.

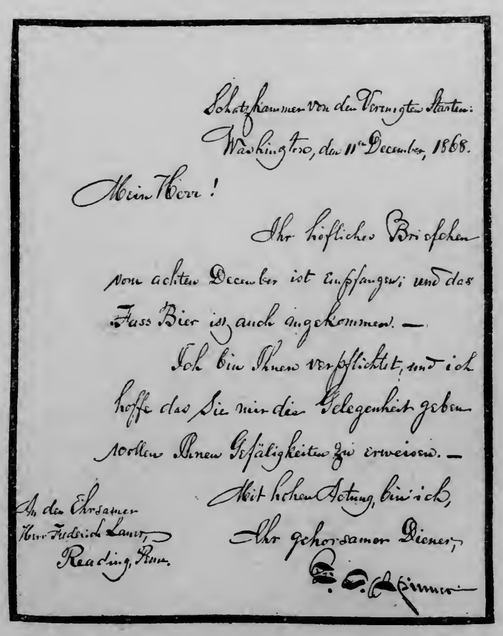
KNIVES OF THE CHINESE HEADSMAN.

For centuries the murderous-looking weapons shown in the accompanying pictures have been used in China for the purpose of putting criminals to death, and as no country is more conservative than China the outlook is that for a long time they will continue to be used for this purpose.

Every headsman or executioner is provided with a full supply of such weapons, and he takes pride in keeping them bright and sharp. Each weapon is designed for a particular purpose, and at least two or three weapons come into play whenever an execution takes place. Many harrowing stories have been told about the manner in which criminals are put to death in China, and, viewed from a Western standpoint, such executions are not a very pleasant sight. It is generally admitted, however, that in almost every case the executioner does his work skilfully, and that it is not his fault if the sufferings of the victims are unduly prolonged. He knows how to deal blows which will kill swiftly or slowly, and if he does not always kill swiftly and mercifully it is because he has received instructions to the contrary.



MR. SPINNER APPRECIATED BEER.



Schatzkammer der Vereinigten Staaten:
Washington, den 11ten December, 1868.

Mein Herr!

Ihr höfliches Briefchen vom achten December ist empfangen, und das Fass Bier ist auch angekommen. —

Ich bin Ihnen verpflichtet, und ich hoffe das Sie mir die Gelegenheit geben werden Ihnen Gefälligkeiten zu erweisen. —

Mit hochachtung, bin ich,
Ihr gehorsamer Diener,
C. O. Spinner

An den Ehrsamen
Herr Friedrich Lauer,
Reading, Penn.

The name of Spinner has appeared upon millions of dollars of United States banknotes, and the signature is one of the most curious among the collections of chlorographical enthusiasts. This Treasury official, it is told, could write his signature with amazing speed, and encompass so great a number during a day that a like amount of work would cripple the fingers of an ordinary man or make them fruitful in corns. The letter given herewith shows that Mr. Spinner wrote a fine German text, and was keenly appreciative of good beer, which never at any time caused his hand to deflect a hair's breadth in the certainty of his curious signature.

TWENTY LIVES LOST IN FLOOD AT TOPEKA

None Burned, Early Stories Being Untrue.

Property Loss About One Million Dollars.

Topeka, Kans., June 1.—It is now believed that the total number of lives lost in the flood here will not exceed twenty.

No lives were lost in the fires, and only eight buildings were destroyed by fire.

Early reports were unavoidableley exaggerated. The burning of lumber piles gave the impression that the whole of the north part of the city was going, and no one was found who placed his estimates of the loss of life under the hundreds.

With the smoke cleared away, the Kaw falling and communication by boat less difficult, additional light on the subject was received this morning and the reduction in the estimate in the loss of life followed.

About 200 people are still at North Topeka, 150 of them being in the upper story of the woolen mill. They are well fed, but extremely uncomfortable.

The following is the list of the known dead:

HENRY JORDAN, colored.
MR. WARD, an aged man.
ARTHUR SPITT.
Five-year-old son of Mr. Garrett.
Child of George M. Story.
MISS LOUISE SEAHAVEN.
MRS. JACKSON, a widow.
HENRY LUDDINGTON.
JOHN L. ADAMS.
MISS IDA MONTGOMERY.
KARL AND AMELIA RUTT, both children.
ANDREW PRETZEL.
FORST KUTZ.

Among the missing are Dr. H. C. Miner and his son-in-law, A. C. Keating. The rescuers of the Miner family took the women and children on the first boat. When they returned the doctor could not be found. They lived in a one-story house. Two miles down the river a shirt marked "A. C. Keating" was found afloat.

President Roosevelt telegraphed today from Cheyenne to Governor Bailey offering the assistance of the federal authorities, if needed, as follows:

"Cheyenne, Wyo., May 31.—Hon. W. J. Bailey, Topeka, Kan.: Am inexpressibly shocked at reports of dreadful calamity that has befallen Topeka. If there is anything the federal authorities can do, of course, let me know.

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

The message reached the governor at 11 o'clock this morning. Only one railroad line can get in or out of Topeka today, and that is the Santa Fe, by way of Emporia. A train was sent to Emporia this morning at 5 o'clock and another will be sent out at noon. From Emporia the train will try to go west via Ottawa, on the Missouri Pacific.

The property loss from the best estimates now possible will amount to approximately $1,000,000. The whole of North Topeka is still under water seven feet deep. While the 200 people penned up in the second stories of various houses have plenty of food, they are in great need of good drinking water, which is being supplied as rapidly as possible in barrels and cans.

The great fear at present is that some of the buildings in North Topeka may collapse because of their foundations being undermined by the water. There is no immediate apprehension that the woolen mill will go down, but at the same time every effort will be made to extricate people from that point as quickly as possible to avoid any further loss of life.

Topeka, Kas., June 1.—At 8 o'clock this morning the Kaw river is almost at a standstill with a slight tendency towards falling. There is no rising water from above. The rain has fallen without cessation for the last seventy-two hours, but at no time has it been in the nature of a cloudburst. The situation at North Topeka is improving. There is but little more danger of death from drowning. Except in isolated cases the refugees have been cared for. Many are wearing insufficient clothing. Hundreds are sleeping in improvised beds, but it is believed that all have been cared for.

Boats have crossed from the south-side to North Topeka, with abundance of provisions. The north approach to the Melan bridge is out, and boats are unable to cross the river at that point. A number of people have been pulled across from the stricken district over a wire cable, where the Melan bridge stood. A sand dredge was operated after the manner of a breeches buoy. It is impossible to obtain anything like an authentic list of dead at present.

Today more boats have arrived and in addition the Chicago Lumber company has constructed a rude boat propelled by a gasoline engine. This additional transportation expedited the work of relief very much today. In addition to these boats, the Rock Island, the Union Pacific and Missouri Pacific are trying to ship in some steam launches.

FIVE THOUSAND HOMELESS CARED FOR IN DES MOINES

Believed That the Worst Is Passed and No Further Trouble Expected.

Des Moines, June 1.—The flood situation in Iowa is improving and the Des Moines river has been falling rapidly eight feet being reported at Boone in twelve hours. In Des Moines 5000 are homeless and are being cared for by local committees. Provisions and clothing have been contributed in large quantities and it is believed by all here that the worst has passed and that no further trouble will be experienced. From ten miles up the river to ten below all the bottoms are covered and fully 2000 homes are under water. No lives have been lost and no fires have been reported.

Chicago, June 1.—E. A. Hackett, of Fort Wayne, who arrived this morning from Ottumwa, Iowa, in an interview, stated that last night the tracks at the depot were under water and about 1000 people were homeless. Citizens were arranging to care for the families who have lost their homes by the flood in the city hall and other buildings. At a mass meeting $1700 was raised for the destitute. The river was rising when he left and no trains were running on the Burlington west of Ottumwa. The part of city affected by the flood is the southern portion, occupied by packing houses and factories. The water supply is shut off. There had been no deaths reported. Citizens generally were throwing open their homes for the use of the sufferers.

Des Moines, June 1.—The Des Moines river is now back to the mark which was its maximum last year and constituted the record prior to the present flood. The river is declining at the rate of an inch an hour and indications point to a more rapid decline from this on.

Extreme cold continues and the flood victims are still without sufficient clothing. Pitiful appeals are made for dry garments for women and children. The most alarming reports were received this morning concerning the epidemic of pneumonia and kindred disorders. Doctors are unable to get sleep, so numerous are calls, and scores of fatalities resulting from exposure seem inevitable.

The smallpox hospital was surrounded by water and the coal and food supply was cut off for two days, but the anxious inmates have been reassured by the declining of the river. The general food and fuel famine that was threatened yesterday is now believed to have been averted as teams and boats have succeeded in reaching freight cars that were stranded at the outskirts of the city. The Northwestern, Minneapolis & St. Louis and Rock Island roads are operating trains irregularly, boats and hacks being employed to transport passengers to and from the trains beyond the flood district. Other railroads are still tied up. The river has begun to decline at Ottumwa and Eddyville, below here, leaving a terrible trail of ruin. Conditions at these places are exactly as they were thirty-six hours ago.

FIFTY PERSONS DROWNED IN THE KAW VALLEY REGION

Affected District Two Hundred Miles Long.

Submerged In Water One to Five Feet Deep.

Manhattan, Kan., June 1.—Not since the Galveston flood has water created such terrible havoc and wrought such terrible destruction of life and property as has just been experienced in the Kaw valley of Kansas. The territory affected stretches from Brookville, Kan., to Kansas City, Mo., a distance of 200 miles in length by from three to fifteen miles in width. Almost the entire territory is submerged in water from one to five feet in depth. The loss of cattle, horses, barns, fences and crops will run into the millions.

Boatmen who have reached here report many persons missing. Probably fifty persons were drowned in the country around here.

Manhattan is in the very center of the flood's fury. The Blue river from the north and the Kaw river from the west carries the waters from Republican, Solomon, Saline and Smoky Hill rivers, besides several large creeks, meet at the eastern edge of the city. For the past five days great volumes of water have rushed together here, which only the strongest iron bridges have so far been able to withstand. Ten miles of water pass Manhattan at a given point of less than two miles. The high railroad banks of the Union Pacific and Rock Island alone have saved the city from being completely submerged. Most of the inhabitants have moved to the hills and are being taken care of in the Kansas agricultural college buildings.

The rain has descended here almost steadily since Thursday. To add to the calamity all wires are down and at night the city is dark. At noon Friday the water subsided slightly but rose in the evening at a rate of one inch every five minutes. Men, women and children were carried in boats and wagons to the hills. Those who were unable to secure transportation waded through the water waist deep. Over 1500 people were housed in the college buildings. Four births were reported to have occurred during the night, one of the little babies being drowned in the engine room. Every business store is filled with water from one to ten feet deep. All passengers are being properly cared for by the railroads.

Hutchinson, Kan., June 1.—Cow creek has fallen since last night, but the water is still two feet high in Main street, and every business house is flooded one foot. The Midland hotel, banks, postoffice, the Home theater, Carnegie library and Bee office are flooded. The electric plant is flooded and lights went out at 11 o'clock Saturday night. The city hall and court house are under water and the fire department has moved to a livery stable.

All railroads are flooded. No trains are moving. Two thousand people in fifty blocks are homeless. Hundreds of boats and rafts are rescuing women and children. The Home theater foundation gave way and the walls fell. The morgue is flooded and corpses are removed to the second floor to prevent their floating away. Hutchinson is in a lake five miles square, and but 500 houses are above water. The Western Union office is a foot deep under water. Thousands of acres of wheat, corn and alfala are ruined. Hundreds of truck farms are six feet under water. The Hutchinson & Valley property loss is estimated at $2,000,000.

LOWLANDS COVERED BY GREAT LAKE

Great Anxiety Is Felt For the People of Kansas City, Kansas.

Kansas City, June 1.—The desolate aspect of the flood situation here showed no improvement this morning, except that the fires which it was feared last night would spread were put out by the rain and the flood itself.

So far as rail communication was concerned the city was almost an island. The only communication, and that very uncertain, was by a road running southeast.

Business all over the city was suspended. Manufacturers on high ground were compelled to shut down owing to the almost total shutting off of water supply. No street cars were running, nor were any railroad trains going to or from the city north, west or south. The blockade at the outlet to the southeast was so severe that traffic in that direction was practically at a standstill.

Great anxiety is felt for the safety of the people of Kansas City, Kan. There has been no communication with that city since yesterday and exhaustive efforts to get word from there this morning failed of any result. Five reporters, who crossed the Kaw yesterday before the flood had become so serious, have not been heard from since. Telegraph and telephone wires north, south and west were down and there were only a few wires in shape to do business east.

The river gauge this morning showed 35 feet, having risen from 30.7 during the night. This is nearly nine feet higher than the previous high record, made in 1881. There were eight feet of water in the Union depot.

A great, swirling lake, dotted with floating cottages, trees, telegraph poles and other wreckage covers the lowlands as far as the eye can reach. Similar floating objects came rushing down the Missouri river, some of it possibly from Topeka. The committees having in charge the work of relief and rescue were busy early and a special meeting of the city council was held during the forenoon. The refugees at the convention made their breakfasts from the liberal rations issued by the relief committee.

The police have been ordered to shoot on sight anyone caught plundering. The number of lives lost in this vicinity cannot be learned for some time, and probably never will be known definitely. However, there seems to be ample cerification of reports which account for the loss of more than a dozen lives in the bottoms. The keenest anxiety is felt over the situation at Kansas City, Kas. One rumor circulated during the perished in that city, but owing to the night was that scores of people had fact that there has been absolutely no communication with that place since yesterday, there is a general disposition to discredit this and other sensational reports.

That there has been some loss of life there, however, is regarded as probable.

At 9 o'clock this morning it was reported at police headquarters that there had been no further loss of life during the night as far as was known. All along the bank of the river wagons containing ropes were stationed during the morning in order that any emergency could be promptly met. Early in the morning it was announced that there were a number of people on the Milwaukee bridge, and it was decided to send the ferry boat to their rescue. An additional call was made from a hotel situated at the intersection of Fourteenth and Genessee streets, where a number of people were reported to be held in the upper stories of the building. The ferry was also ordered to take them off at the earliest practicable moment. Word came up from the stockyards that there were twenty or thirty people caught by the flood in that district. They were said to be in no immediate danger, however, and will probably not be taken off until late today or tomorrow.

Word was brought to police headquarters this morning that a number of men were looting houses in the east bottoms. They had improvised rafts from boards and by propelling them with poles were making their way into the houses through the second story windows. As soon as this word was received by Chief of Police Hayes, he ordered a detachment of officers to the place, with strict orders that if the story was found to be true, the thieves should be shot down at once.

At 11 o'clock the weather bureau issued the following:

"There will probably be a slight change in river conditions at Kansas City during the next twenty-four hours. Slight fluctuations mean but little in the way of relief so long as weather conditions remain unsettled. A storm area is central in the middle Mississippi valley, from which the West has not emerged, and the threatened development of another storm area in the Southwest carries no assurance of immediate relief.

"Light to moderate rains have fallen in the Kaw and middle and lower Missouri valleys in the past forty-eight hours, and rain is falling over the great part of Kansas, Iowa, Missouri and Nebraska this morning."

Stage of the river at 7 a. m.: Kansas City, 35 and still rising; Omaha, 14.4; at Sioux City, 11.3, a fall of .7. No reports have been received from points on the Kaw river.

At 10:30 the Bluff street bridge was torn out and its wreckage went crashing up against the buildings close to it, battering some of them badly. This bridge was entirely in Kansas City, Mo., and spanned the Burlington tracks at Fifth street. It has been out of use for some days and its fall at this time occasions no additional inconvenience.

Emporia, Kans., June 1.—The north fork of the Neosho has fallen eleven inches. Reports from the country have begun to reach here and indicate that the valley of Neosho, above here, is a desolate waste.

Thousands of dollars' worth of farm property and crops were washed away and hundreds of head of cattle, hogs and sheep were drowned. No loss of human life is reported near here yet, but in Council Grove fourteen bodies are said to have been found in houses since the water subsided.

Rains fell here almost constantly. Temperature, 40 degrees.

WAR DEPARTMENT WILL AID THE SUFFERERS BY FLOODS

All Technical Questions as to the Power of the Department to Act Put Aside In the Face of the Great Emergency.

Washington, June 1.—The war department is exerting its full powers and going to the extreme warrant of the law in aiding the flood sufferers. Putting aside all technical questions as to the power of the department to move in this matter, without violating the law prohibiting the expenditure of government supplies without direct order of congress, Acting Secretary Sanger has assumed full responsibility for the extension of relief, where it is necessary to save human life and, if necessary, congress will be asked later to approve this exercise of authority.

By direction of the department the military officers in the distressed region will not only provide tents to shelter the homeless, but will be allowed to exercise their judgment as to the issue of such military supplies here, as tents can be spared from the posts. It is expected that judgment will be shown in the issue of these rations, and that there will be no wholesale and indiscriminate support of entire communities. In addition to this, Gen. Gillespie, chief of engineers, has not only authorized the use of all boats and pontoons at the river and harbor works within reach of the flooded section to save life and property, but upon his inquiry, Maj. Leech, the engineer officer in charge at Fort Leavenworth, has stated that he can very soon build 1200 feet of pontoon bridges and these will be transported as quickly as possible to the places where it is needed to reopen communication.

A SCIENTIFIC SURVEY OF THE BAHAMA ISLANDS TO BE MADE

Expedition Starts From New York Under the Direction of Dr. George B. Shattuck—Many Other Scientists Are In the Party.

Baltimore, June 1.—An expedition organized for a scientific survey of the Bahama islands under the auspices of the Geographical society, of which Dr. Daniel C. Gilman, of Carnegie Institution, is president, will sail from this port this afternoon on the William H. Van Nance, a schooner chartered for the purpose, which is well supplied with all the scientific apparatus and machinery necessary for the objects of the voyage.

The vessel is commanded by Capt. C. B. Flower, and Dr. George B. Shattuck is director of the expedition and chief of the geological staff. The other scientists in the party are: Dr. Oliver O. Fassig, section director of the United States weather bureau, chief of the staff for climatology and physics; J. E. Routh, Johns Hopkins university, assistant in climatology and physics; Dr. B. L. Miller, professor in Bryn Mawr college, geologist; Dr. Clement A. Penrose, vice director and surgeon of the expedition and chief of the medical staff; J. A. Eyster, H. P. Cole, E. B. Beasley and T. H. Coffin, Johns Hopkins medical school, assistants to Dr. Penrose; Dr. W. C. Coker, university of North Carolina, chief of the botanical staff; C. A. Shore and F. M. Haynes, university of North Carolina, botanical assistants; Barton A. Dean, curator of fishes in the United States national museum, chief of staff for marine zoology; Q. R[illegible]tis and J. A. Lewis, John[illegible]s, assistants in marine zoology; J. H. Riley, curator of the United States museum, chief of staff for land zoology; H. E. Erickson, assistant in land zoology; C. M. Mooney, United States department of agriculture, chief of soil survey; J. C. Britton and E. C. Hughes, United States department of agriculture, assistants to Mr. Mooney; William Wright, Johns Hopkins university, historian; A. H. Baldwin, of Washington, artist. Sir Gilbert Carter, the British governor of the Bahamas, will accompany the expedition on a part of its explorations.

Among the adjuncts taken along is an 18-foot gasoline launch, to be utilized along the inlets and estuaries of the islands, and a glass-bottomed boat. The latter is a large dory, the interior being painted black and the bottom covered with two plates of clear glass, through which objects below the surface may be observed. The expedition will erect a bench mark monument, a granite shaft five feet long, at Nassau, to determine whether the land surface is rising or falling. Its height will change with oscillations in the earth's crust.

Several large kites will be used to carry self-registering apparatus above the trade winds and into the anti-trades. Magnetic instruments to measure the dip and the inclination of the needle at the various stations throughout the archipelago will be used.

The medical staff is equipped with many chests containing medicines, antiseptic materials, disinfecting apparatus, surgical instruments and everything needed for general medical research. The diseases of the island will be treated and studied by Dr. Penrose. Mr. Coffin will undertake a special study of the different mosquitoes along the route of the expedition, with special reference to their capacity for spreading disease by carrying and distributing germs.

WOULD TRANSFER CASS LAKE LAND OFFICE TO BEMIDJI

Representative Steenerson and Tams Bixby Will Wait on the Secretary of the Interior to Urge That the Change Be Made.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, June 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Representative Steenerson is here and tomorrow he announces that he will accompany Tams Bixby to see the secretary of the interior to protest against the establishment of the new land office at Cass Lake and urge the secretary to transfer the office to Bemidji. It is said that Representative Buckman also favors the transfer from Cass Lake to Bemidji. The selection of Cass Lake was made upon the recommendation of Mr. Richards, the commissioner of the land office, and as he is out of the city and will not return till June 20, it is not thought that Secretary Hitchcock will take any steps without consulting the commissioner. It is also pointed out that in order to transfer the land office from Cass Lake to any other point an executive order from the president would be necessary. It is not thought here that Secretary Hitchcock will seriously entertain a proposition to remove it from Cass Lake, but Steenerson and Bixby are going to make a strong effort to secure the change.

RIVER RISING AT ST. LOUIS.

General Exodus of Farmers From the Lowlands.

St. Louis, June 1.—The danger line on the Mississippi river at this point will be reached tomorrow, according to the local weather bureau. This morning the gauge registered 27.8 feet less than three feet of the danger line. Rain is falling today and this, added to the heavy precipitation of the past two days, with the flood coming from the Missouri and other tributaries north, is causing the river to rise rapidly. No damage has resulted at yet. On the east side Cahokia creek is backing up at a lively rate.

Farmers along the banks of Horse Shoe lake report their crops ruined and that they will probably have to vacate their premises today. Their reports indicate that the rise will reach more than thirty feet and, as a consequence, a general exodus of the farmers of the lowlands is expected today.

At St. Charles, where the Missouri river is rising at an alarming rate, the high elevation of the city gives it security, but great damage has been done to farms in the valleys and on the islands. Many islands containing rich farms have been inundated. In the neighborhood of Augusta much damage is reported. Missouri Point is also in great danger of a general flood. Many farms are already covered by water. Piling driven in the river as anchorage for the piers of the highway bridge now under construction are being washed out by the raging torrent and the piers are threatened.

ALL RECORDS BROKEN.

London, June 1.—Alfred Shrubb ran a mile on a grass track at Tilford Saturday in 9 minutes 11 seconds, beating all records for both grass and cinder tracks.

PORTAGE LAKE WINS AT LACROSSE

Houghton, Mich., June 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Portage Lake lacrosse team defeated the Algonquins of Port Arthur, Ont., seven goals to three in a hard-fought game at Hancock Saturday. The contest was witnessed by a crowd of 2000 people, 200 having come over from Port Arthur and Fort William to root for the Canadians. The game was replete with fast spectacular work, but both sides displayed lack of science in the fine points of play. Jones and Hartney, formerly of the St. Paul team, did the star playing for the home twelve.

LABOR TROUBLES IN PORTO RICO

San Juan, Porto Rico, June 1.—The Federation of Labor has formally requested Governor Hunt to investigate at once the condition of labor on certain large sugar plantations of the island. The federation claims that poverty-stricken laborers, paid about 40 cents a day, are compelled to accept "chips" instead of money, and to trade at plantation stores, where goods are sold at 40 per cent profit and where the provisions disposed of are sometimes injurious to health. The further allegation is made that no rights of the workingmen are respected; that their little houses are burned down if they are unable to work for a few days, leaving them without a home, and that the working days are too long. An eight-hour day is urged. Governor Hunt will, it is said, cause a thorough investigation of the matter to be made.

NINETY THOUSAND WORKERS AFFECTED BY TEXTILE STRIKE

The Ingrain Carpet Weavers at Philadelphia Are Demanding a Fifty-Five Hour Week and Ten Per Cent Increase In Wages.

Philadelphia, June 1.—A general strike of textile workers was inaugurated in this city today, involving about 90,000 operatives. Of the 600 firms engaged in the textile industry here forty-seven have granted the demands of the union, and their plants, employing about 15,000 hands, are in operation. All of the sixty-three ingrain carpet mills are idle, affecting directly 3000 weavers and 10,000 hands in other departments. All of the dyers, who are said to control the situation, are on strike, with the exception of those of the Berkshire mills, in the northeastern section of the city, which has conceded the 55-hour week and increased the wages of the men from $12 to $13 a week. The ingrain carpet weavers are asking, besides the 55-hour week, a 10 per cent increase in wages. The mill of John and James Dobson, employing 2000 hands, was closed indefinitely today. The workmen were notified that they could return to work at the present rate of wages, otherwise the mill would remain closed.

Thirty-nine branches of the textile trade are affected by the strike, and the capital invested in the mills is estimated at $100,000,000. The daily loss in wages will amount to $125,000.

The manufacturers admit that the operatives are in a position to close all mills not granting their demands. This is due principally to the importance of the dyers branch of the industry.

Their work is of a character not generally understood or readily learned, and while the dyers continue on strike the mills must remain idle, no matter what the other textile workers might do.

A member of the manufacturers' executive committee said: "The large manufacturers are a unit in opposing these demands to the extent of keeping their mills shut for a year, if necessary, and as this is the decision, there is no particular need of making any moves."

TWO BOYS BURNED TO DEATH

London, June 1.—Two boys, both 14 years of age, were burned to death in a fire which gutted one of the masters' houses at Eton college today. There were thirty-three students in the house and the survivors had great difficulty in escaping, clad only in their night clothes, many of the boys scrambling from the windows down the ivy-covered walls of the house. The work of rescue was considerably delayed owing to some of the windows of the house being barred. The incineration of two students is attributed to this fact. The annual celebrations June 4 have been abandoned. King Edward, Queen Alexandra and the prince and princess of Wales, all of whom were at Windsor castle, were greatly concerned and sent frequent inquiries about the boys.

Baseball Games Will Not Be Called Until Four O'Clock.

Interest High In Winnipeg —Duluth and Superior Strengthening.

All league ball games will be called at 4 o'clock at Athletic park.

This was decided during a conference between President Bryan and Manager Van Praagh this morning, and is undoubtedly a popular move with the fans that find it difficult to leave their work to attend a game earlier in the afternoon.

It is probable that when the days get longer the games may start as late as 5 o'clock in the afternoon on week days, the extra hour being a great convenience to those that can not get to the grounds at 4 o'clock.

Secretary J. M. Lamb of the Winnipeg club says that it is not infrequent that they play games starting as late as 6:30 in the evening during the midsummer months, always having time to finish the nine innings before darkness and the scheme has not only paid, but made the management popular with the baseball fans.

But then baseball is quite a function up in the metropolis of Western Canada. The Canadians will know more about the games in Duluth than the Duluth fan that does not attend the games, for the reason that every inning is telegraphed that city just as soon as played.

Lagger, the Cardinal left fielder, has been purchased by Superior and made manager of that team, succeeding Tim Keefe. There is probably no man at the head of the lakes that is so capable of building up a strong fast team.

To begin with Manager Lagger has purchased the release of Olmstead, the Duluth third baseman, and he has lines out already for a number of steady, reliable players. He has a wide acquaintance among players both old and young, and this will prove an advantage to him.

Manager Van Praagh this morning received word that Martin, the college catcher signed several days ago, would report for duty at once. He is to be second catcher and general utility man.

Despite the fact that Duluth has secured the services of Shaw from the Milwaukee American association leaders, the managers are still after another first-class pitcher to work in with Gehring and Mueller.

Speaking of Mueller, a Duluth traveling man that saw his work Saturday afternoon when Grand Forks was shut out 3 to 0, says that his cross fire of curves and speed and his change of pace was about the finest thing in the pitching line he had witnessed in ten years' experience.

WORST OF EXPERIENCES.

Can anything be worse than to feel that every minute will be your last? Such was the experience of Mrs. S. H. Newson, Decatur, Ala. "For three years," she writes, "I endured insufferable pain from indigestion, stomach and bowel trouble. Death seemed inevitable when doctors and all remedies failed. At length I was induced to try Electric Bitters and the result was miraculous. I improved at once and now I'm completely recovered." For liver, kidney, stomach and bowel troubles Electric Bitters is the only medicine. Only 50c. It's guaranteed by all druggists.

Large Ore Body Opened.

The local stockholders of the Rapid Transit Gold Mining company, of Arizona, of which there are a considerable number, were pleased this morning by a message received from the mine. A telegram came from Dennis Burke, mayor of Prescott and financial agent of the company, stating that he had just heard over the telephone from Superintendent M. Ryan, to the effect that a rich and wide portion of the vein on which the company had been working had just been reached, opening up a large ore body.

SUSPECTS ARRESTED.

Pittsburg, June 1.—An official investigation of the race riot and murder at West Liberty yesterday is being made by the county authorities. All suspicious negroes are being arrested by the police and county Detective Robinson has the names of eight men, alleged to be leaders in the riot, who, he says, will be charged with murder. With the exception of the negro, Davis, who narrowly escaped lynching, all the injured are doing well. The condition of Davis is critical and it is thought he will die.

MAY DELAY OPENING

Assertions That Twentieth Avenue Decision Is Not So Peremptory.

Supreme Court will Be Asked to Modify the Order.

Word reached Duluth today indicating that the supreme court's decision in the Twentieth avenue depot case was not so sweeping as it appeared at first sight.

It seems that the supreme court affirmed the decision of the lower court only so far as opening the depot, but leaves the matter of passenger train service open, to be settled by the state railroad commission.

The supreme court decision also allows a delay in re-opening the Twentieth avenue depot until such time as the railway commissioners announce their decision, and this proves exceedingly dissatisfying to the West End merchants who desire a speedy opening in order that they may have the transportation advantages they enjoyed in their business under the old St. Paul & Duluth passenger and freight service.

In a letter received by C. O. Nelson this afternoon Attorney Pratt of the attorney general's office, it is announced that the recent supreme court decision is not all that had been anticipated in that it admitted of a delay and left the passenger service open to adjustment by the warehouse and railway commissioners instead of strictly affirming the decision of the lower court and returning the service as it was before the St. Paul & Duluth merged with the Northern Pacific.

Mr. Pratt also intimated he would appear before the court on Monday seeking a modification of the order so that there would be an immediate opening of the freight depot at least.

HIGH SCHOOL FIELD DAY

Weather Permitting, the Event Will Come Off Tomorrow Afternoon.

The much postponed preliminary field day of the high school tract team will take place tomorrow at Oneota Driving park. It would have been pulled off today but for the fact that most of the men were anxious to attend the opening of the league baseball season, which takes place today.

Nothing has been heard as yet from either Superior or Cloquet, and it is probable that neither will have their teams here for Saturday. This means that there will be no more track events and the season will close with an informal track preliminary as the only event.

The work of the boys will not be up to the standard which it would have reached were it not for the bad weather which kept them from working on the track and gave their ardor time to cool.

The great contest of the day will be the race for the silver cup trophy, which is given into the custody of the class which wins in the relay race.

When the freshmen and sophomores gave their exultant yells in chapel this morning the juniors joined in and then challenged a picked team from both the freshman and sophomore classes. The seniors went them one better and challenged a picked team from the whole bunch.

The games will probably not be played, however, as the approaching examinations demand strict attention in other lines.

COLD BOODED MASSACRE.

Constantinople, June 1.—In spite of official statements to the contrary the consular reports maintain that there were no revolutionists a Smerdesh, south of Lake Presba, May 21, at the time the Turkish troops attacked that place, and assert that two hundred of the inhabitants, men, women and children were massacred in cold blood by Bashi Bazoukes. The porte has appointed a commission of inquiry to investigate the consular statements.

NO POLICE FORCE.

Erie, Pa., June 1.—The resignations of all but three members of the police force were accepted today and the city is without police protection. The patrolmen threatened to resign if their salaries were not raised $15 per month. Mayor Hardick took them at their word. He is advertising today for eligible men. Trouble is expected from the central labor union.

W. P. Hurlbut Tells How Lewiston, Idaho, Is Becoming Large City.

Development of Agriculture Responsible For Growth of Business.

W. P. Hurlbut, up to five years ago a resident of Duluth and a prominent business man here at one time, arrived here yesterday from Lewiston, Idaho, where he now resides.

The strong, though modest, enthusiasm which is a characteristic of every patriotic Duluthian, and which develops with continuous residence here, is still with Mr. Hurlbut, though he has transferred his allegiance to Lewiston, which, he says, is the coming commercial center of the mountain states.

As for Duluth, where he spent several busy and strenuous years, Mr. Hurlbut expresses surprise at its growth and general improvement, as noted casually. He has been spending the day around calling on old friends and renewing acquaintances, and will leave for home tomorrow, after conducting some business at Superior relating to Lewiston property.

"Lewiston is an old, old town, established forty-four years ago," said Mr. Hurlbut, "but up to five years ago it amounted to nothing much. It is at the junction of the Snake and Clearwater rivers, and was the headquarters in the old days for placer miners, when the gold finds were numerous there.

"The place was at a standstill for many years until the agricultural country became the subject of a development, and today there is one of the richest agricultural spots in the country at the city limits. The climate is like that of Southern California, excepting that there is a little winter, and we get a zero day once or twice in a winter.

"Since the development of agriculture the city has become a jobbing center, and with the railroads and the river, which gives a boat connection to the sea, is in a fair way to be the commercial center of the mountain district.

"The government is preparing to do some work on the Columbia river at the rapids, which will make the waterway navigable to Lewiston. We have boats there every day from the ocean now, but there is a break in the run at the rapids.

"The building of railroads now is at a standstill, but the work will be done soon. The city is on the branches of the Northern Pacific and a line of the Oregon Navigation and Transportation company.

"Main lines have been surveyed into Lewiston and grading has been done part of the way, but about a year ago a truce was declared between the two roads and the work has stopped. These main lines will be built in before very long, and it is awaited with interest by the people there.

"Within ten years, when the transportation and government work is finished, Lewiston will be a town of 25,000 people. It handles all the jobbing in that territory now, and the volume is too large for the railroads as it is.

"A great work that is started in the vicinity is the irrigation of 30,000 acres of land just outside the city limits. The property has borne large wheat crops every other year, but now it will be made into a fertile plateau, and means a great deal for the city.

"Another public work is the construction of an electric freight and passenger line eighty miles to Grahville. The steam roads cannot run over the country there, but electric roads can be operated over it nicely. There are several large sawmills to be built at Lewiston, and in a couple of years she will duplicate her growth of the last four, from 2000 to 6000.

"It is impossible to get houses to rent there, though building is going on rapidly all the time. I see that Duluth is afflicted in the same way. The real estate values here do not seem to be active, and there is something apparently drugged about them. However, they may pick up, but that's the only criticism I have to offer on Duluth of today."

Mr. Hurlbut is now the president of the Idaho National bank at Lewiston, and one of the leading citizens of that place.

AWAY WITH TICKETS.

This the Last Day For Milk Man's Infected Card.

Green and yellow streptococcus laceolatus and small pink predegrosus bacilli are not allowed to ride on milk tickets after today.

Some time ago the board of health adopted a resolution abolishing the festive milk ticket as a menace to health and a promoter of disease on and after the first day of June.

This morning the milk men were supposed to come around with neat little coupon books or a commutation ticket to be cancelled with a punch. Many did and others did not.

The board of health will now urge that Duluthians only patronize those milk men that comply with the rules and regulations of the health department in order that there will be less danger of milk carrying sickness from family to family.

It is said that a dollars' worth of milk tickets in one infected home can spread scarlet fever, diphtheria or smallpox bacilli in twenty other families, and in other cities as well as Duluth strenuous efforts are being made to abolish the milk ticket for the coupon system.

Where the coupon or commutation system has been tried, the milk dealers are said to favor it as against the old ticket system, but in Duluth there seems to be a number of milk dealers that for some reason or other do not wish to make the change.

The report that one of the deputy health inspectors counted 226,789,987,527 streptococcus laceolatus playing tag on a stopper of a beer bottle taken from milk of a cow that had been fed brewery mash is not confirmed, but the health authorities are of the opinion that that number of bacilli could ride into a happy home on a milk ticket and do a great deal of damage.

ALL FOREIGNERS SAFE.

Washington, June 1.—The following telegram has been received at the state department from Consul General McWade at Canton dated today: The viceroy of Teson informs me that he has received telegraphic advices from viceroy Ting of Yunan to the effect that all foreigners are safe at Yunan Fu. This is supposed to refer to the American engineers on the Canton-Hankow railroad, who were deserted by their Chinese guard and were threatened by rioters.

PRAISE FOR A LOCAL ARTIST

David Ericson's Painting Highly Praised by New York Critics.

The New York Commercial Advertiser, in a recent issue, contains an article by a well-known critic on the pictures shown at the Society of American Artists, in which exceedingly complimentary reference is made to a picture by David Ericson, of Duluth. The reference is as follows:

"Finally, to close this first review of the exhibition, attention must be called to the work of the newcomer, quite unheralded, but whose personal way of working and views of nature give immediate distinction to his one contribution, which is a moonlight view of an old wharf at Pont Aven, that ancient artistic haunt in Brittany; which one would have thought had already been worked out. Yet this new man, David Ericson, has revamped the old sketching ground and given his theme so seriously and with so much originality as to have made it one of the best of the contributions to this display. The tone is of much reserve force, the drawing is characteristic of the place, and all is presented directly and frankly to the end that the canvas seems an entirely new presentation reminiscent of the old on close examination, but refreshing in its personal note."

Mr. Ericson has received a number of very flattering letters from New York artists on this picture, which was hung in the place of honor in the Vanderbilt gallery, the finest in the exhibition.

Mr. Ericson has lately sold two of his best-known paintings, C. d'Autremont, Jr., has purchased his celebrated "Orpheus," which was hung in the Paris Salon, and J. L. Washburn has purchased his large sheep painting.

CAUTION IS ADVISED

By Henry Clews In His Weekly Financial Review.

Big Mass of Securities Overhanging the Stock Market.

New York, June 1.—Henry Clews says in his weekly financial review: Renewed liquidation again unsettled values on the stock exchange and further postponed recovery. Tuesday's and Thursday's breaks in the absence of unfavorable news were a surprise and naturally inspired fresh caution among those optimistically inclined. Several very plausible theories were offered in explanation; but whatever truth there may have been in these the true reason lies back of them in the inevitable reaction following the excessive inflation which culminated in 1902. It is perfectly true that the financial situation is much stronger than six months ago; that liquidation has already been severe; that business and general industry continue on an active scale; that the crop outlook is fairly satisfactory, and that there is no occasion for alarm. All these things must be admitted; but on the other hand there is still a big mass of securities overhanging the market and seeking buyers. Some of these stocks are held by strong men, perfectly able to abide their own time for selling, while considerable amounts have been locked up in syndicates or pools which must expire and liquidate. In some instances these new creations have been held by rich but inexperienced operators until sheer exhaustion has forced them to sell.

Not only is the present supply of securities greater than the market is capable ob absorbing, but at this awkward juncture we are headed to an enormous increase in the supply. The Pennsylvania has recently announced an issue of $75,000,000, and it is known that other leading railroad systems are contemplating heavy issues made imperative by the urgent demands for improved transportation. These new securities of standard corporations are sure of a market at a price, and as long as public buying power is limited they force the selling of less desirable securities. Moreover, the financing of these operations involves large sums of money; and though there is no immediate scarcity of funds, still the inchastic condition of our currency systems necessitates a policy of extreme caution if we are to escape difficulties when the autumn crop and business demands are at high level. Next month government receipts are likely to considerably exceed expenditures; so a further absorption of the treasury may be looked for; possibly obliging Secretary Shaw to take further steps for counteracting the ill effect of government operations.

These are some of the most distant influences that will have to be considered. The more immediate cause of recent declines seems to have been the forced liquidation of some of the newer financiers who had rapidly accumulated large fortunes and embarked in a series of questionable ventures, which the underlying conditions just referred to have simply brought to a crisis. Unquestionably the market will be much improved and strengthened when these elements of weakness are eradicated; but until they have been, values are likely to be unsettled and may drift to still lower basis. There is no occasion to fear a panic; simply because the material for a panic is not in sight. Business continues on a large scale and a lower range of prices for both commodities and securities should be a reason for strengthening not impairing confidence. It is remarkable that so extensive a decline as that witnessed in th last six months should be endured without disaster. Stocks are steadily passing from weak into strong hands; many good securities have shrunk 20 to 40 points and over, and when liquidation has run its course there will be only these obsbtacles to a good recovery: viz., the crop, money and labor situations.

At present there is more or less perplexity regarding all three. The agricultural outlook has been materially affected by the unusual backwardness of the season increasing the danger to corn and cotton from frost; and the industrial outlook is still unsettled by labor agitation. Under these circumstances we can only advise a continued spirit of caution. While there are many reasons for looking on the hopeful side of affairs, there are others indicating that a still lower level, accompanied by sharp reactions, may be touched before the turn can be called.

COTTON MILLS' GATES OPENED

Lowell, Mass., June 1.—The gates of the Massachusetts, Merrimac, Tremont and Cuffolk, Hamilton and Appleton cotton mills, which have been closed for nine weeks by reason of labor trouble, were opened today. The Lawrence mills, which were partly closed, also resumed. Only about 4000 out of the 18,000 operatives responded. President Conroy of the textile council said that not 9 per cent of the skilled organized help went into the mills. All the mill agents say that the response of the operatives is satisfactory.

NEW WISCONSIN OFFICES FILLED

St. Paul, June 1.—A Madison, Wis., special to the Ditspach, says: John M. Winterbotham was today appointed deputy state railroad commissioner by Commissioner Thomas to succeed J. H. Stuck. F. M. Buzzell, of Chippewa Falls, was today appointed state food inspector by Dairy and Food Commissioner Emery, a position created by the recent legislature. E. L. Aderhold, of Neenah, was appointed expert agent for the inspection of cheese factories. J. F. Moore, of Albion, was appointed expert agent for the inspection of creameries. Both these places, were also created by the last legislature. The appointees will be paid by the Wisconsin Dairymen's association.

RUSSIAN JEWS ARE GRATEFUL

St. Petersburg, June 1.—The American subscriptions for the relief for the sufferers at Kishineff are gratefully recognized by the Jewish community, which recognizes that the United States has taken the lead, both in material and moral sympathy. The Jewish journal Voshkod voices the sentiment of the Jews as follows: "The land of the dollar, as Europe terms America, has displayed more humanity towards the victims than Europe, with its vaunted idealism, though Europe was unusually generous. American sympathy in this terrible crisis will render that country infinitely dear to our hearts."

RAILROADS TIED UP.

Never Was Traffic So Completely Prostrated.

Kansas City, June 1.—Never in the history of the West has there been a more complete prostration of railroad traffic than exists now west, south and north of Kansas City.

The approaches to the bridge of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul at Sheffield, ten miles east of Kansas City, went out this morning, although the bridge proper is intact and is high enough to stand any possible stage of water.

The Santa Fe, at Sibley, twenty-five miles from here, is the only structure of the kind still standing. There is no danger of this going down and unless the water blocks the tracks leading to it, this line will manage to keep up its service to Chicago without interruption.

At the office of the Santa Fe, it was stated this morning, that one train had left for the West, going over the Missouri Pacific tracks for Paolo, Kans., thence to Ottawa, and then on to California. At the Missouri Pacific office this was denied, the statement being made that no trains had gone over their line today and the prospects were not bright that any would be able to.

The Wabash announced this morning that they would have a train East at 10 o'clock, but as this train was expected to leave over the Milwaukee bridge, the Wabash's hopes were blasted and the line for the time being is out of business. The Chicago, Burlington & Quincy ran a train out for Chicago at 4:30 this morning. It carried a number of St. Louis passengers who will make connections at some point on the line. Another train over this road came in from Chicago during the forenoon and it is expected to send out another train. No trains went West. The Burlington is using the Santa Fe tracks out of the station at Twenty-second street and Grand avenue to Bucklin.

The Missouri, Kansas & Texas is operating the usual number of trains, but not from the city. The present terminus is at Rosedale.

Rock Island officials reported absolutely no traffic in any direction.

The Chicago Great Western has had no trains for two days and sees no prospect of any. Their bridge over the Kaw is gone. The roundhouse at Kansas City is inundated and a number of engines which stood in it are buried.

The 'Frisco, according to an official, is "trying to work trains out of Rosedale." The prospect of success is dubious.

The Chicago & Alton ran trains out of Independence, Mo., last night, with Kansas City passengers. It was hoped that this course might be continued today, but serious doubts of success were entertained. The Alton's local force of dispatchers is at Independence.

PHILADELPHIA OFFERS AID.

Philadelphia, June 1.—Mayor Weaver of this city has sent the following telegram to Mayor Burgenthal of Topeka, Kas.:

"Mayor of Topeka, Kas.—Philadelphia sends sincerest sympathy for your people suffering from flood. Send me word at once if we can help you.

"JOHN WEAVER,
"Mayor of Philadelphia."

Mayor Weaver states that if assistance is needed he will at once call a meeting for the permanent relief committee, of which he is chairman. He said:

"It seems to me that the reports of the disaster at Topeka and other Kansas towns warrant Philadelphia in asking if she can be of assistance. Our city has always been quick to reach out a helping hand and the present case appears to be one where we can aid."

REBELLION SPREADING.

Paris, June 1.—A dispatch from Saigone, capital of French Indo-China, says Governor General Beau has been detained in Tonquin by the serious conditions prevailing in the adjoining Chinese province of Yun Nan, where the rebellion is spreading. Two hundred French subjects are surrounded at Yun Nan, and the Mong Tse railroad works are interrupted.

THEY PLEAD GUILTY

Two Defaulting Officers Admit Their Guilt In Court.

B. J. Campbell and Charles L. Clarke Are the Men.

Benjamin J. Campbell and Charles L. Clarke appeared before Judge Dibell, in district court, this morning, and entered pleas of guilty of grand larceny in the second degree. Both men were indicted on the charge of grand larceny in the first degree, there being three indictments against the former, and had previously entered pleas of not guilty.

Campbell was the former chief clerk and head bookkeeper of the Imperial council of the Modern Samaritans and he is alleged to have appropriated funds of the society passing through his hands in the amount of $2800. The shortage was made good by a bond company that had furnished the defendant's bond.

Charles L. Clarke is the former accountant for the village of Hibbing and he is alleged to have embezzled funds of the village in the amount of about $1700. Clarke was arrested some weeks ago at Great Falls, Mont., while on his way to the coast, the complaint being sworn to by Frank Dear, the village president of Hibbing.

Clarke was bonded by the American Surety company, which corporation has pushed the charges against him.

SALE OF SEATS FOR THE OPERA

Reservations For Season of Northwestern Company Can Be Made.

The subscription sale for the Northwestern Opera company's summer season opened this morning at the Lyceum theater, with a brisk sale, a large number of people taking advantage of the offer of the management which permits them to pick out the same seats for one performance of each opera.

Manager Al Walle has arranged to let regular patrons of the summer company pick out their seats for the whole season. The idea has been proved a popular one, as many people desire to secure a location that gives them a certain range of vision and hearing, and as idiosyncracies of different people in this respect vary, there is little conflict.

The management will set aside seats for one performance of each opera, and these will be held until the last night of the preceding engagement, there being no obligation on the part of the subscriber, for if he does not call for the tickets, they will be placed on public sale at a certain date.

The company has finished its rehearsals of "The Black Hussar," which opens the season next Monday night, and rehearsals of the "Mikado" are now going on under the direction of Charles Drew and Musical Director Hoffman.

MARBLE IS HERE.

Hallway of Wolvin Building Can Be Finished.

After a delay of six months or more, the marble for the stairs and front hallway of the Wolvin building has arrived and is being put in. The building is closed in front to the public, and a sign invites visitors to the building and employes to go around the side way.

It is not certain yet as to how soon this work will be finished, but it is not expected to require more than another two weeks.

The stairs will be in by that time, and the second floor may be gained from the front corridor, which has been impossible since the building was opened.

The tortoise-like slowness of the work has become a great joke by employes of the Steel corporation around the building, and the fact it is to be finished is a still larger one apparently.

KILLED THE BURGLAR.

Cleveland Doctor Shot Intruder at Close Range.

Cleveland, June 1.—Late last night, Dr. Maurice D. Stephe, of No. 7 Minnesota street, was awakened by a burglar in his house. The doctor fired at the intruder at close range. The burglar yelled and jumped through a window. The police searched the neighborhood, but found no trace of him. Early today Dr. Stephe was called to a nearby house to attend a man, who, it was said, had been accidentally shot. The doctor found the man with a bullet in his side. Later the patient died while en route to a hospital in an ambulance. According to a statement made by the physician, the man confessed, before he died, that he was the burglar. His name was Henry Miller.

LIEUT. BURBANK'S CASE.

Inquiry Into Claims of Alleged Filipino Wife.

Washington, June 1.—On the recommendation of Judge Advocate General Davis, commanding general in the Philippines has been instructed to investigate the case of Lieut. Sidney S. Burbank, of the Sixth infantry, stationed at Fort Leavenworth, Kas., who is charged by a Filipino girl, who claims to be his wife, with desertion. It is alleged that the marriage occurred in the Philippines several months ago, when Lieut. Burbank was there with his regiment. The girl filed a copy of what she claimed was the marriage certificate. Lieut. Burbank denies the marriage and characterizes the alleged certificate as a forgery. Lieut. Burbank is reported to be engaged to marry a young woman of Leavenworth, Kas.

They've sold from a dollar to eighty-five cents a yard, but we've put them all in one lot at 59c a yard.

Alexandria Royal.

Is the new weave for shirt waist suits, or those hose outside wraps which are so much in vogue. It is the Champagne color and has a little cord running through like an Eolienne cloth—is 27 inches wide and was bought to sell for $1.25, but owing to its late arrival, we've cut the price to $1.00 a yard.

At Exactly Half the Regular Prices! Remarkable Selling of Tailored Garments!

Suits—Costumes—Coats—Jackets and Wraps.

Women have been quick to respond, for they appreciate the fact that—Half Price here means half price—it is a clearance and re-adjustment of stocks at a time when you want them most—barely at the season's start. Our business has been immense—the largest we have ever known and it has necessitated the carrying of large stocks—which we clean up now—it is our absolute rule that we carry no garments over from season to season. What's the use of naming low prices on cloth garments when the weather is too hot to wear them—we prefer doing it now when you can get plenty of use out of them. We've had an immense stock and it is still in good shape and offers a splendid chance, in most every size and color. No garments on sale will be laid by without payment of half. None will be reserved. None will be exchanged or taken back. Alterations will be charged for.

Summer Underclothes of White in the Sale—
Second Floor.

If you can recall the way our mothers used to make underclothes—how every loose end of thread was finished off—and the even, neat stitching, regular and exact—you will know about the sort of underclothes we are selling under price.

There's not a hurry-up, carelessly-made piece in the lot, and nothing so cheap that it can't be good. These prices are but suggestions of what the stock offers.

MAY YET BE BUILT

Good Outlook For the Early Construction of Aerial Bridge.

Robeling Interests and Others Expected to Be After It.

A fact instead of a joke is what is positively predicted of the aerial ferry bridge within four or five months.

A city officer, well posted, says there is every evidence of keen competition for the contract, which will prove very beneficial to the city's interests.

From another source it was learned that the Robeling interests—the largest suspension bridge building concern in the country—is much perturbed over the action of the council in declaring the contract of the Duluth Canal Bridge company at an end, and, within a few days the Robelings will come forward with a long expected but much delayed plan for building a suspension bridge similar to the aerial ferry over the Seine at Rouen, France.

In the meantime a Western bridge building plant has taken up the plans of C. A. P. Turner, the St. Paul engineering expert, and is preparing a proposition for building a stiff truss aerial bridge making it possible to carry on the work during the season of navigation by using the cantilever system of construction.

Representatives of both concerns say they will be prepared to rush the project along without any more delays and that news is apparently pleasing to the trans-canal citizens and property owners, for many of them that claim to have inside information on what is going on in the bridge fight are wearing smiles that will not come off.

AT WEST DULUTH

At the close of the service in the Asbury church last evening there was an informal reception tendered Rev. Dr. Forbes by the members of the congregation and other friends present. The members of his old congregation crowded around him to bid him farewell and congratulate him on the honor which has been conferred upon him.

It was the last sermon Dr. Forbes will preach in Duluth before leaving for Philadelphia to fill the duties of his new office, and what was probably the largest audience which ever gathered at the Asbury church filled that building. Even the chair of the preacher was occupied during the course of the sermon, and the platform and aisles of the church were crowded with those who were unable to obtain seats. Scores were turned away from the doors unable even to obtain standing room.

In spite of the fact that Dr. Forbes had already preached twice before during the day, at Endion church in the morning and at the normal school in the afternoon, he seemed unwearied by his efforts and many of those present claim that his farewell sermon was one of the most inspiring that has ever been delivered in that church.

LOSS VERY HEAVY

Twenty-Four Days of Labor Warfare In New York.

Deprived Homes of Workingmen of More Than $12,000,000.

New York, June 1.—Twenty-four days of labor warfare in New York has, according to the Herald's figures, deprived the homes of the workingmen of more than $12,000,000 and has entailed a loss many times greater to capitalists and workers.

It has left hundreds of buildings unfinished skeletons in all parts of the city, and has caused delay in the completion of schools, which may shut out thousands of children from school during the coming year.

Delegates from several building branches have reported to the central federation union that their men also will strike this week if demands are not met.

The only possibility for settlement, from the employers' standpoint, is the withdrawal of the united board of building trades, support from the recently organized teamsters' union, which precipitated the present trouble. There is said to be a growing feeling on both sides to resume work, however. A delegate from the marble machinists reported to the federated union that his union will call a strike this week against those employers who refuse to grant $3 and an 8-hour day for outside jobs, with 9 hours for inside work. It was announced that 5000 clothing cutters in this city, who threatened to quit today, have reached a compromise on their demands for eight hours and extra pay for holidays.

WILL BAR FOODS

From Foreign Countries That Are Impure and Adulterated.

Millions of Dollars Worth of Goods May Be Excluded.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, June 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—One of the most important subjects with which the administration will have to deal during the next fiscal year is the question of adulterated goods from Europe. Twenty years ago some af the Chicago packing houses sent to Washington a very able and shrewd representative commissioned to secure, if possible, legislation which would bar foreign goods from American territory, provided they were adulterated, as a sort of retaliation for the discrimination made in Germany and France against American meat products. This gentleman put up a very vigorous fight, but he was unsuccessful for the reason that public sentiment was not in harmony, at that time, with his views. Last winter the same interests made a quiet onslaught upon congress, which resulted in the incorporation in the agricultural appropriation bill of a single clause which threatens to be far-reaching in its effects. This particular clause will enable the department of agriculture, with the aid of the treasury officials, to turn back millions of dollars' worth of German and French products on the ground that they are deleterious to health. Really the object of the clause in question is to give the agriculture department a club with which to force European countries to treat fairly American meat and agricultural products. It reads as follows:

"The secretary of agriculture, whenever he has reason to believe that articles are being imported from foreign countries which, by reason of such adulteration, are dangerous to the health of the people of the United States, or which are forbidden to be sold or restricted in sale in the countries in which they are made or from which they are exported, or which shall be falsely labelled in any respect in regard to the place of manufacture or the contents of the package, shall make a request upon the secretary of the treasury for samples from original packages of such articles for inspection and analysis; and the secretary of the treasury is hereby authorized to open such original packages and deliver specimens to the secretary of agriculture for the purpose mentioned, giving notice to the owner or consignee of such articles, who may be present and have the right to introduce testimony; and the secretary of the treasury shall refuse delivery to the consignee of any such goods which the secretary of agriculture reports to him have been inspected and analyzed and found to be dangerous to health, or which are forbidden to be sold or restricted in sale in the countries in which they are made or from which they are exported, or which shall be falsely labelled in any respect in regard to the place of manufacture or the contents of the package."

There is no question that thousands of dollars' worth of adulterated foods and wines are annually imported into this country from France and Germany. A strict interpretation of the clause above alluded to will, without question, result in barring from American markets thousands of dollars' worth of German and French products which have, up to the present time, enjoyed freedom of our ports. In the minds of the people best posted there is no question that the strict enforcement of the law above quoted will result in preventing the importation of hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of French and German goods annually into the United States. The result of a rigid enforcement of the law enacted by the last congress will be to deprive France and Germany of a great market, which they have heretofore enjoyed without question. Indirectly, it will result in opening up a wider market for American goods, especially wines, than they have heretofore enjoyed.

A strict enforcement of the law will, without question, lead to diplomatic negotiations which are expected to result in opening up to American food products a better market in Germany and France than they have enjoyed in many years past. In other words, the secretary of agriculture has by the law above quoted a club placed in his hands which will enable him to secure for the American farmer more consideration in European markets than has been accorded him for the past twenty years.

It took the secretary of the treasury a long time to pick out the man he wanted for his assistant when Mr. Alles resigned. But at last he has chosen, in the person of Charles Hallan Keep, of Buffalo, a far better man for a minor place in the executive departments than is usually available. Mr. Keep, besides being a man of independent means and of unusual education, is admirably well fitted for the office to which he has been appointed. If he could have been selected for assistant secretary of war and placed in charge of all work pertaining to river and harbor improvements, it might have been said of him that he was peculiarly well fitted for this place. The reason for such a statement is that Mr. Keep was for many years the secretary of the Lake Carriers' association, and that in that capacity it was his business to investigate the subject of deep waterways between the head of navigation on the lakes and the foot, which resulted in giving him a better knowledge of lake transportation than perhaps any other man in the United States enjoys. Mr. Keep is, however, admirably fitted for the executive position to which he has been appointed. He is a man of wide knowledge of national affairs, well posted upon subjects directly appertaining to the office which he has been called upon to fill, and is besides a college man, a lawyer and a man who has acquired, through contact with the world, a knowledge of national affairs which will be invaluable in his new position. The only surprising feature about the appointment is that the secretary of the treasury should have been able to induce such a man as Mr. Keep to sacrifice his personal interests for the benefit of the federal government.

During the last session of congress a great many new federal buildings were authorized to be built in the city af Washington. Among these was a structure for the war college, which is to be located on the arsenal grounds at the foot of Seventh street, in this city. The officer in charge of the construction of this new building is Capt. Sewell of the engineer corps who was given charge of the work because of the great success which he made in erecting the new building for the government printing office. The latter work is virtually completed today, and it is a monument to the skill and ability of Capt. Sewell, who had entire charge of the work from its inception to its finish. The new government printing office, besides being the most extensive structure of its kind in the world, is a model of convenience and a testimonial to what can be done by a man with the ability to design a building and the funds to carry out his ideas.

The culmination of the postal inquiry came with the arrest of A. W. Machen, on Wednesday of last week. For many weeks, Mr. Bristow, fourth assistant postmaster general, who has had direct charge of the postal inquiry, has directed the force under him, which means the postal inspectors, to inquire into the alleged shortcomings in the postal service and particularly into the methods of the men who have made the rural delivery service a power in the land. Gen. Bristow accepted the conditions placed upon him by the postmaster general reluctantly. Before he accepted the office of inquiry he stated to the postmaster general that he would do the best he could in the way of clearing the department from outside attack. The arrest of Mr. Machen is the first result of Gen. Bristow's inquiry. It is assumed here that the fourth assistant postmaster general, who is charged with the work of ferreting out the latches of those connected with the first assistant postmaster general's office, will not stop until every man accused of crime is prosecuted. Gen. Bristow established his reputation as an "old sleuth" when he investigated the postal affairs in Cuba, and convicted Rathbone and Neely. Postmaster General Payne, out of his subordinates, heads of departments, selected Mr. Bristow to inaugurate an inquiry into the methods pursued by the superintendent of salaries and allowances and the superintendent of the rural free delivery service. Mr. Beavers, the former superintendent of salaries and allowances, resigned when the pace became too hot for him. Mr. Machen, the superintendent of rural free delivery service, decided to stay by the game. The arrest of Mr. Machen, under a federal statute is the beginning of what promises to be the most important inquiry into the manner in which governmental contracts are let since the whisky ring scandals, almost a generation ago. Now that Postmaster General Payne has started upon the lines of inquiry, it is confidently expected that he will hew to the line, no matter on which side the chips will fall.

AMERICAN EQUITY LEAGUE.

Object Is to Reconcile Capital and Labor.

New York, June 1.—It is announced that the objects of the American Equity league, recently organized, are to reconcile capital and labor and interest thinking men in this object.

Thomas H. Cochrane is its president. Charles M. Schwab will hold a conference with leading men this week and will formulate the proper lines on which to work.

The league declares for the right of contract and of every man to sell his labor at terms satisfactory to himself, and while not inimical to trades' unions, is hostile to the unreasonable demands whereby the average citizen's cost of living is unduly increased.

Can Be Consulted Privately at the HOTEL WEST SUPERIOR,
West Superior, Wisconsin,
Tuesday, June 2, 1903, and in Ashland, Wis., at the Athearn, Wednesday, June 3,

And all sufferers who call on him will receive a free examination, and, if curable, will be treated at a low price. No high fees are asked the sick and helpless and no incurable case accepted.

There is no question of the Doctor's sincerity in his claim that disease can be cured, and one can not doubt his ability to carry out his claim after having talked with people whom he has cured quickly and safely of all kidney and liver disease, lung and stomach or heart trouble, constipation, rheumatism, neuralgia, blood and skin diseases, catarrh, bronchitis, paralysis, diabetis, lost vitality, nervous debility, insomnia, blood poison, anaemia, female weakness, eczema, headaches, backache, nervousness, coughs, asthma and any disease or weakness of the vital organs. It matters not what the disease nor of how long standing, nor how many doctors or remedies have failed; he has repeatedly renewed the youth of old men and women—has often instilled into jaded men and women new vitality, health and strength. To weak, weary women he has brought the light and happiness of health. For worn-out men he has relighted the sparkling vitality of youth. He has cured the crippled and healed the sick, and he has gone about this quietly, unostentatiously, but, nevertheless, with the unbounded success that is winning the gratitude of all sick and helpless men and women.

DR. HOAG.

The most reliable specialist in America.
6362 Minerva Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

I will be in West Superior, Wis., at Hotel West Superior, Tuesday, June 2nd, 1903. Office hours, 10:30 a. m. to 9 p. m., and in Ashland at the Athearn hotel Wednesday, June 3.

It should be the ambition of all to be healthy and happy, but sickness comes and puts a blight upon their lives. This need not be so. It is your duty to consult an expert, and Dr. Hoag's patients will tell you he is the doctor that can cure you if cure is possible, and if you cannot be cured he will not accept your money—not a penny, but if you are curable he will guarantee a cure and his charges will be as low as possible for conscientious, skillful and successful service. A friendly call may save you future suffering; it has made life anew to thousands who had been pronounced beyond hope. Bring sample of your urine for examination.

EDITORS PLAN BIG EXCURSION

Head of Lakes May Be Visited By Scandinavian Publishers.

A mammoth excursion to the head of the lakes, bringing a large number of business and professional men representing the Scandinavian population of the Northwest, is planned by the editors of the leading Scandinavian newspapers of Duluth and Superior.

They have perfected an organization, and will go ahead at once to lay plans for the excursion, the object and end of which is to advertise the head of the lakes among the Scandinavian people of this section.

At the first regular meeting of the association Saturday a number of plans to advertise the cities about the bay were discussed, and it was concluded that the most promising one was that providing for a big excursion to bring the people here to see for themselves. It was thought that no amount of talk or writing could lay the advantages of Duluth and Superior before them so clearly as this. The plan decided upon, the members prepared to give all their energies to its success, and they expect to make it a large affair.

Those interested in the movement are as follows: John L. Erickson, editor of the Superior Tidende; N. L. Bendz, editor of the Northwestern Herald, of Superior; Oscar Lonegren, editor of the Nordvesterns Handelstidning, of Duluth; S. J. Turnblad, of the Svenska Amerikanska Posten, of Minneapolis; F. C. Listoe, of the St. Paul Nordvestern.

The influence of the Scandinavian press will be large, and if they all take it up, as they are expected to do, the success of the excursion, with the co-operation of local merchants and jobbers, is assured. The Scandinavian newspapers reach fully 150,000 people of the Scandinavian races, scattered throughout the West.

OATKA BEACH OPENING.

Large Crowd Out Saturday—Lester Park Popular Also.

The opening of the season at Oatka Beach Saturday drew large crowds there both in the afternoon and evening. The entire running equipment of the Park Point street railway service was called into service to take care of the crowds. La Brosse's orchestra appeared for the first time in the natty new uniforms, and the music was excellent, the dances being well attended, especially in the evening. Yesterday another large crowd visited the Point to hear the band concert.

Lester Park was another popular place of rest and amusement both Decoration day and yesterday, and the street cars both ways were crowded to their capacity from early noon until evening. Large crowds attended the dances at the park Saturday afternoon and evening.

WILD WEST SHOWS.

Luella Forepaugh-Fish Aggregation Coming Here Soon.

The Luella Forepaugh-Fish wild west shows will appear in Duluth, Saturday, June 13, at Twenty-ninth avenue west and Superior street. The time has come when civilization and the march of progress, led by the great motors steam and electricity, have nearly obliterated from the face of nature on this continent those features which were its distinctive characteristics and furnished beside employment and livelihood for a fast expiring race—the Red Men of North America.

The Indians are disappearing; the buffalo has almost entirely departed; the prairies have become farm lands fenced in by the hands of old world wire workers and agriculturists; the cowboy is little more than a common herder; the trapper who dealt in peltries, the skins of beavers and beasts, the denizens of western forests and who at the risk of life amid countless hardships obtained those articles of merchandise, which enriched the early settlers, is almost as mythical now as the yager of the Black Forest in Germany. The vaquero of Mexico is no longer the caballero of splendor, and antelopes, mountain elk, Indian ponies, Mexican burros and other creatures once numerous in the Wild West, North and South, are as scarce as bear in Massachusetts.

Of all these this show is said to have selected and secured at great expense and trouble the best. It has been its aim to obtain at any cost the most famous of the Western, Mexican, Northern, Southern and far distant lands of Vaqueros, Cowboys, Scouts, Frontiersmen, Red Men, Trappers, Riders, Animals, Prairie Schooners, and all the appurtenances and almost obsolete gear, machinery and utensils of the pioneer and aborigines available.

JUNE WEATHER.

Average Temperature of the Month Is 58 Degrees.

June during the past thirty-two years has had an average temperature of 58 degrees. The warmest month was in 1894 with an average of 54 degrees. The highest temperature for a June day on record here is 92 degrees on the 6th in 1897.

The average precipitation for the month is 4.66 inches. The heaviest rainfall in any June was in 1874 when a total of 10.80 inches was reached and the lowest in 1900 when the total was only 1.65 inches. The greatest amount in any twenty-four hours was on the 23rd and 24th in 1901, when 3.58 inches fell.

The average number of clear days during June is only 8, partly cloudy 13, and cloudy 9.

The prevailing winds have been from the northeast and the highest velocity forty-eight miles from the northwest on the 24th in 1889.

Pleasing Program.

The Memorial day exercises at the Lakeside school were the best that have been given there. The attendance of visitors was large, and the selections assigned the pupils were exceptionally well rendered. The singing especially was delightful. "My Old Kentucky Home," "Ring, Ring the Banjo," and "Hard Times Come Again No More" being the favorites. Some of the grades were arranged on the stairs, and made a pretty picture. Mr. Clements and Mr. Green were the G. A. R. delegates, and in the course of his remarks Mr. Clements complimented Miss MacArthur and the other teachers on the successful entertainment, and said he had no doubt whatever that the boys and girls of the Lakeside school would be heard from in the future.

A Social Evening.

The Lester Park Literary club, will give a social evening at the home of Mrs. W. G. Joerns, 4511 Cambridge street, this evening. Mrs. Joerns will give an interesting talk on phrenology. Rev. Mr. Davis will speak on the subject of Art. There will also be a choice selection of vocal and instrumental music.

KILLED BY EARTHQUAKE.

Nearly Nine Hundred Perished In Asiatic Turkey.

London, June 1.—The British consul at Erzeroum reports that an official estimate places the number of persons killed in the earthquake in the Von district of Asiatic Turkey at 850, while the loss of cattle was incalculable, as, owing to the lateness of the spring, a large majority of the animals were indoors. Nearly a score of villages were completely destroyed and many more were partially demolished. The center of the seismitic disturbance was in the neighborhood of Mount Gipan.

ACQUITTED OF MURDER.

Henry Stegald Held to Have Been Insane.

Sioux Falls, S. D., June 1.—Henry Stegald, who was charged with the murder of Frank Bowen, a grain buyer, has been found not guilty by a jury in the state circuit court. The jury in their verdict declared that Stegald was insane at the time of the committal of the murder. Stegald was agent for the Illinois Central road at Boncaire and had an altercation with Bowen over some freight charges.

MARKET IS QUIET

Lumber Prices Firm But Little Interest In the Trade.

Some Predictions of Decline But Manufacturers Discredit Them.

No new features of interest have developed within the last few days in the local lumber trade. The situation remains about as it was a week ago. The trade is rather quiet, but with prices firm. The condition of the Eastern markets, as was stated a week ago is not such as to encourage new orders just at present owing to the labor troubles. The attitude of building trades in other important lumber centers, as Chicago, is said to have caused many people who intended building to defer their plans until later this year, or, perhaps, until another year.

A few predictions have been made that northern pine will show a decline in prices next fall, that many of the dealers have been filling up their yards to such an extent that the demand will leave them with a large stock on their hands and tend to reduce the prices. This is, however, strongly denied by the manufacturers. Certain it is that the local manufacturers are not worrying over the outlook of an over-supply in the lumber market for the mills on the harbor front are running with full crews and most of them on day and night shifts.

Lumber shipments, which were quite brisk a few weeks ago, are rather slower for the reason that the consignees do not care to fill up their docks at the lower ports and crowd their dock room, especially in those districts where the labor troubles have affected business.

Temporary shortages in logs have caused some of the local mills to curtail their cut to some extent within the last few days. The logs are now beginning to arrive from the north and south shore points in fairly large numbers. The wet and threatening weather of last week delayed several large rafts that were ready for towing, but the indications are that the rafting business will be lively this week.

The country mills are doing a great business this season. Some of them are having a larger cut than ever before since they were built. At Chisholm the mill of the Longyear Lake Lumber company is turning out 150,000 feet per day. The Mschek Lumber company has about 12,60,000 feet of logs in the lake now with 6,000,000 feet yet to come. The circular saw will probably be run later for two or three hours into the evening.

Railroad logging is more active in the western part of the state than around the head of the lakes, just at present. The South Muscatine Lumber company has begun to haul logs from a point near Black Duck to the Mississippi river, where they are floated down to the mill.

Gen. C. C. Andrews, state fire warden, is sending out copies of the new forest fire law to all the fire wardens and is getting out some 11,000 cloth posters to warn people against setting fires adjacent to timber lands. Malicious setting of fires is punishable by $500 fine or ten years' imprisonment. Careless handling of fire near timber lands, use of combustible gun wads, or refusal to assist the fire wardens in putting out fires is punishable by $100 fine or three months' imprisonment.

The Scanlon-Gibson Lumber company, which was the defendant in a damage case on account of alleged false imprisonment, brought against it by Frederick G. Cross, won out in a Minneapolis court this past week. Cross' brother, it will be remembered, was a former confidential clerk of the lumber company, who was arrested and convicted of forgery over a year ago. The damage was brought in connection with the forgery case.

TEMPORARY ABERRATION.

Young Vesselman Has Lapse of Reason—Becomes Violent.

Samuel Anderson, a young fireman on the steamer Roumania, created some excitement Saturday by a sudden and violent fit of insanity, during which he threatened his own life and that of others until he was placed under restraint. In jail he apparently recovered and said he had no recollection of anything that happened during his fit.

It appeared that unrequited love for a girl in Finland was responsible for his mental trouble. Saturday Anderson left the boat and went uptown, returning in the afternoon. He had been drinking somewhat, but was good-natured. In a playful wrestling match he was thrown, and suddenly pulling a knife he went after his shipmates, who fled. Then he jumped to the dock and from there into the water, from which he was rescued by the engineer. Several of them bore him, struggling, to the cabin, and dressed him in dry clothes. He was busily engaged in trying to beat his brains out by knocking his head upon the floor, so the police were called. When Capt. Resche and Patrolman Link responded they found three men holding Anderson down. It took five of them to carry him to the waiting patrol wagon. On the way he attempted to escape and dash his head against a railroad track. He was taken to the county jail and put in the padded cell.

Yesterday Anderson appeared to recover fully, and talked rationally, saying that he remembered nothing that happened after he left the city and started for the vessel. It was the intention of the officers to release him if his recovery seemed permanent.

SAM NELSON'S BODY FOUND

Near Ely—He Committed Suicide By Taking Prussic Acid.

Ely, Minn., June 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The dead body of Sam Nelson, an employe of Cole & McDonald, the diamond drill firm, who had been missing since last Monday, was found on the outskirts of the city last night. The remains were almost unrecognizable and were identified by the clothing. An examination showed that Nelson committed suicide by taking prussic acid. He was a native of Sweden, about 35 years old and unmarried.

SIMCOE CHAPMAN DEAD.

Expires Suddenly In Street Car In Portland.

Word has reached this city of the sudden death of Simcoe Chapman, formerly a well known timber and mining man of Duluth, in Portland, Ore., where he dropped dead in a street car. He was about 60 years of age. His wife, who was Miss Crawford, of Duluth, and two sons, survive him. They have lived in Oregon for several years.

Mr. Chapman came to Duluth from Bay City in 1886. He had long been associated with E. M. Fowler in the lumber business. He was wealthy, and at once began lumbering on an extensive scale, also becoming interested in mining. A bad coal mine deal in Tennessee lost him considerable money, and from that time on his fortune declined. The depreciation of Duluth real estate after the boom hurt him further, as he carried a good deal of real estate. He has been logging in British Columbia and Oregon since his removal from this city. At one time Mr. Chapman was equal owner with E. M. Fowler in Eveleth mining property that is now bringing Mr. Fowler $500,000 a year.

Mr. Chapman had many friends in Duluth who sympathized with him in his misfortunes and who will hear of his death with keen regret. He was a man of very high character and sterling integrity.

What Is a Man to Do?

To the Editor of The Herald:

What is a man to do? This is a question; just now a very serious one with me and with very many others. It has become so serious that I have actually wondered whether we are living in the Twentieth century and in the United States, or in the land of the unspeakable Turk some 200 years ago. I have a large family to support—the size of which should meet the approbation of Mr. Roosevelt. The people of the state of Minnesota have enacted very strict laws by the application of which I will be imprisoned if I neglect to support my family; but, although there is plenty of work in Duluth, I must not ask for work from my employer anywhere without first securing the consent of some walking delegate, and if I should go to work without doing so, some "good union man" will spring upon me from ambush, or rather two union men will knock me down with a club, beat me when down with said clubs within an inch of my life, after which they walk off, not caring whether I regain consciousness or not, and to make my way as best I can to some doctor's office to get sewed up and mended. I met three men on Superior street one day last week with their heads all bandaged up as a result of having made the mistake of thinking they were living in a free country. I have myself come in contact with "unionism" on two occasions during the month of May. On the ninth a grievance committee of a certain union convinced the manager of a concern I had been working for for eleven years that I was incompetent and that I ought to be removed. Instead of calling me up "on the carpet" to discharge me in a business-like and gentlemanly way, the manager lies himself off some miles away, calls me up by telephone in the middle of the night to tell me he had decided to make a change."

The arguments used to establish my incompetency were as follows: "This man Cayo is not in accord with our ideas of unionism; therefore we want you to discharge him, and put in his place another man whom we shall name." These arguments, it will be seen at the very first glance, were beautifully short, quite clear, and could not be more convincing, and the whole thing was accomplished with neatness and dispatch.

A few days after this episode, the thought struck me that I had better be looking for another job; accordingly I approached another employer and secured work at the first try. I worked for this new concern one whole half day, and after leaving the works at quitting time and wending my way home, I found I was being followed by two men. After following me about ten blocks one of them accosted me and began to lay down the law of unionism to me. They seemed to have a very strong notion to maim me on the spot, but I suppose they were restrained by the fact that it was daylight, and also that the locality was so public, some one might have caught them at it. They gave me to understand, however, that, "seeing it was me" they would let me go this time, but if I went back to work the next morning I would surely get hurt. "I don't want you or anyone else to go to work down there." "We don't care a damn about you or your family." "That is OUR job." "When we want you to go to work we will call on you." "Damn the police." "Damn the government." All these expressions are quotations from the law of anarchy that was propounded to me on the corner of Fifth avenue west and Fourth street, about 7 p. m. of the twenty-sixth day of May, A. D. 1903.

If I knew of a way to make a living without work, "union men" would certainly not be troubled about my taking "their jobs;" but I know of no such way, consequently being compelled to go to work, I hereby notify the people of Minnesota, especially the police and judiciary departments of Duluth, that I intend to seek work wherever I think I can find it, and while thus engaged I do not want to be molested by "lawless and irresponsible" individuals. I think I have the right to demand the protection of the state of Minnesota while engaged in the performance of an act which the state of Minnesota will punish me if I leave unperformed. The state of Minnesota cannot hold a club over me and tell me to support my family, and, at the same time, allow another man to club me if I attempt to do so.

Being a wage earner myself, my sympathies are naturally with the working man. I do not oppose but freely admit the proposition that organized effort is frequently necessary on the part of the toilers to better their condition, to obtain all the rights which properly belong to them, to secure redress of grievances where and when they exist, and a just measure of recompense for labor; but when it comes to hanging on to a job I have freely quit, to compel an employer to keep me on the payroll whether he has work for me or not, or when I have committed some act against his interest deserving of discharge, that my employer must dismiss that man and hire this one, or that he must manage his business according to my notions regardless of the resulting increased cost of operation, or to feel pleased when my employer meets with a substantial loss, or to feel that I can do as I please because my union will not allow the employer to discharge me, to act towards him as if I were more beholden to my union than to him for the work he gives me, to do as little work as possible between pay days, etc., etc. All these are frills and fur-belows, bric-a-brac and ginger bread work which unionism must eliminate from its constitution if it would continue to exist and have a career.

E. C. CAYO.

COATS, COLLARS AND HATS

To Be Discussed By German Baptist Conference.

Bellefontaine, O., June 1.—Twenty-five thousand people attended yesterday's meeting incident to the annual conference of the German Baptist brethren of the world. Ministers from all parts of the United States spoke at the various churches during the day.

The business sessions of the conference will open Tuesday. Some of the questions to be considered are:

Does the church consider that the sack coat with the standing collar is in the order of the brotherhood?

Can members of the church of Sweden become members of labor unions?

Shall the use of tobacco in any form by officers be forbidden?

Shall sisters who persist in wearing hats instead of bonnets be dismissed from the church?

All ladies and children who cannot stand the shocking strain of laxative syrups, cathartics, etc., are invited to try the famous Little Early Risers. They are different from all other pills. They do not purge the system. Even a double dose will not gripe, weaken or sicken; many people call them the easy pills. Sold by all druggists.

Kodol gives strength by enabling the digestive organs to digest, assimilate and transform all of the wholesome food that may be eaten into the kind of blood that nourishes the nerves, feeds the tissues, hardens the muscles and recuperates the organs of the entire body. Kodol digests what you eat. Sold by all druggists.

$500 REWARD

We will pay the above reward for any case of Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Indigestion, Constipation or Costiveness we cannot cure with Liverita, the Up-To-Date Little Liver Pill, when the directions are strictly complied with. They are purely vegetable and never fail to give satisfaction. 25c boxes contain 100 Pills, 10c boxes contain 40 Pills, 5c boxes contain 15 Pills. Beware of substitutions and imitations. JOHN C. PRINCE CHING WOULD RESIGN

But Emperor and Empress Dowager Refused to Accept.

Victoria, B. C., June 1.—Advices received by the steamer Tartar from Pekin state that Prince Ching tendered his resignation on the ground of ill health, but the emperor and empress dowager refused to accept it and instructed him to recuperate his health. The prince is suffering from a throat complication.

The department of war at Pekin has given instructions to the attorney general of Sin King to go to Pekin to report the existing conditions of the Russian military movement in Manchuria and also to decide upon further administrative policies.

Several mass meetings of Chinese students have been held at Shanghai at which protests were drawn up regarding Russian action in Manchuria and against Governor Wang Chih Chun of Kwang Si in securing French troops to suppress troubles in that province. Telegrams were sent to Pekin urging that China declare war against Russia to protect her rights. The students, 1200 in number, offered to form a battalion of volunteers. Nikolas Kolessoff of the Russian legation at Pekin, in an interview, says that Russia intends to ship 2000 troops in Manchuria as guards, a town being built along the Yalu and military centers established.

News from Ho Nan says an official at Hwai Chih prevented a massacre of foreigners following the hoisting of the placc of the daggers who had posted placards saying they intended to kill all foreigners.

An uprising has taken place in the northwestern part of Chung Ping, in Chi Li province. An application has been received for the despatch of an expeditionary force. The Shi Sing river boat, while being lined up the west river, swamped near Sam Shui after the line broke and over 300 passengers on board, but seventy-five were saved. The Shanghai Mercury says it is stated on good authority at Pekin that Chang Lui committed suicide.

Are you thin? Would you like to get fat and plump? Tried "laughing," wouldn't work, now take Rocky Mountain Tea—twill do the business. 35 cents.

PRESIDENT WENT TO CHURCH

At Cheyenne and Listened to Sermon on "Strenuousness."

Cheyenne, Wyo., June 1.—Although Sunday was supposed to be given over to rest of President Roosevelt, he was on the go most of the day. In the morning the chief executive and party attended the First Methodist church, where special services for the president were held. The Rev. M. Forsythe preached a beautiful sermon on "Strenousness." At the close of the service carriages were taker to the residence of Former Senator Carey, where luncheon was served.

Secretary of Agriculture Wilson, Secretary to the President Loeb, Assistant Secretary Barnes, Surgeon General Rixey, Capt. Seth Bulloch, Senator Warren, Gov. and Mrs. Chatterton, Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Carey and Robert Carey were guests at the luncheon. In the afternoon a long procession of carriages, head by the president and party started for Senator Warrens ranches, fourteen miles south of the city. Here the routine on one of Wyomings biggest ranches was shown the president. An elegant supper was served, after which the start for Cheyenne was made. When the president reached his hotel tonight, he was in jubilant spirits and remarked he was looking forward with great pleasure to the frontier exhibition to be held tomorrow morning.

Previous to starting for the Warren ranch, the Eagles lodge of this city presented President Roosevelt with a life membership in the order.

Secretary Moody, who has been with the presidential party since it entered California, left yesterday for Washington.

SUICIDE AT L'ANSE.

Mrs. William B. Mason Shoots Herself In Head.

Houghton, Mich., June 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. William B. Mason, wife of the prosecuting attorney of Baraga county, committed suicide by shooting at her home in L'Anse, near Houghton, on Saturday. She stood before a mirror and sent a bullet into her brain at the temple, the ball emerging at the top of her head and penetrating the ceiling. Despondency on account of ill health was the cause. She is survived by her husband and a grown daughter. Mason was appointed prosecuting attorney recently to succeed Philip R. McKernan, deceased.

SNAP, PUSH AND GO

Is What One Should Get From Food.

A young St. Louis lady learned a food lesson she won't forget. She says: "I suffered from indigestion for nearly ten years, and although I tried all kinds of foods for breakfast, I could not eat any of them until one day I discovered Grape-Nuts, and now I wonder how I ever did without it.

"I am a stenographer in a business office and need all the energy possible, but I formerly spent the greater part of every morning wishing I had gone without breakfast, for I was continually reminded of it by the uncomfortable, distressed state of my stomach. How much ability I lost through this I could not tell you, but now all is different, for I eat some fruit and a saucer of Grape-Nuts and work hard all the morning, and never think about my stomach until lunch time comes.

"I feel the good effects of Grape-Nuts in a sharpened brain, better memory and increased thinking capacity. The only difficulty I have about it is that I never want to limit myself to the required amount, for I love it so." Name given by Postum company, Battle Creek, Mich.

There is a reason why Grape-Nuts sharpens the brain.

It's fun to make new and delicious deserts by the recipe book found in each package of Grape-Nuts.

FIRE AND FLOOD.

It is pleasing to learn that the first reports regarding the loss of life by fire and flood in the neighborhood of Topeka, Kan., were greatly exaggerated. Yet the loss is large enough to excite the sympathy of the whole country and to enlist the aid of charitably disposed people for the hundreds of persons whose homes have been destroyed by the floods which were of unusual severity. No lives, it now appears, were lost in the fires at Topeka, and not to exceed twenty persons perished in the floods at Topeka. In other sections of the Southwest, however, the loss of life and property has been large, and Des Moines, Iowa, has also been a heavy sufferer by floods.

The earlier reports from Kansas gave the impression that it was the most calamitous event since the Johnstown flood, but reliable reports today show that the stories were exaggerated to a considerable degree, the burning of lumber piles having given the impression that the whole northern portion of Topeka was being wiped out and that the residents had met a horrible death in the flames and flood.

Several large cities have already taken steps to raise funds for the relief of the flood sufferers, and no doubt there will be a generous response to the appeals for aid.

INSTRUCTION IN HYGIENE.

It is a rare thing, and as far as known, an unknown thing for any state or municipality of the United States to advise the public in matters of hygiene. It would naturally be considered an affront to the people; an infringement on their rights, and for that reason is unattempted. However, it is different in the countries of the old world. The German government, for instance, publishes an official guide to hygienic living which for simplicity and thoroughness far surpasses the ordinary popular expositions on the subject. In England it is a frequent thing for borough councils to warn parents, by means of posters, of the unnutritiousness of skimmed milk for infants and inform the inhabitants of other dangers to health. In France they go farther. A recent official poster in Paris deals with alcoholism and its dangers. The document is signed by the director of the general administration and is marked as seen and approved by the prefect of the Seine. The poster defines alcoholism as the "permanent poisoning which results from the habitual use of alcohol, even when such use does not produce drunkenness," and proceeds: "It is a mistake to say that alcohol is a necessity to workingmen engaged on exhausting labors; that it stimulates to work, or that it repairs waste. The artificial excitement it gives rise to is quickly displaced by nervous depression and loss of strength. * * * The habit of drinking spirits leads rapidly to alcoholism; but the drinks said to be hygienic (wine, cider and beer) also contain alcohol, and there is here only a difference as regards the amount of this ingredient. * * * Those drinks which are called appetizers (absinthe, vermouth, bitters), aromatic liqueurs, are the most mischievous, as they contain, besides alcohol, essences which are violent poisons. * * * The habit of consuming alcohol leads, to say the least, to the hospital; for alcoholism produces the most varied and the most fatal illnesses—paralysis, insanity, stomach and liver complaints, dropsy; it is one of the most frequent causes of consumption. * * * A case of typhoid fever, pneumonia, erysipelas, which would leave unharmed a sober man, rapidly kills the consumer of alcohol. Neglect of the laws of hygiene in parents revenges itself on their children; if these survive the first few months, they are threatend with idiocy or epilepsy, or they are carried off a little later by tubercular meningitis or phthisis. For the health of the individual, for the existence of the family, for the future of the country alcoholism is one of the most terrible scourges."

This is a veritable temperance poster and a strong sermon at the same time. Still it is a scientific statement and will benefit the people if heeded. It certainly is for the good of the public and they should profit by it. It would be well for the people of this country to profit by it also.

The performances of the Reliance and Constitution are a triumph for their designer that was two years ago deferred. When the Constitution in 1901 was beaten out by the Columbia for the honor of defending the cup, Herreshoff seemed to have reached his limit. But the racing so far this year indicates that the designer's old success in producing an improved boat in each new creation is to go right on. Each trial of the Reliance makes Sir Thomas Lipton's chances look smaller.

The death of R. C. Bowman, the well-known cartoonist of the Minneapolis Tribune, will cause deep sorrow among a multitude of friends and admirers. Intense application to work caused a temporary abberation of mind, when he asphyxiated himself with gas.

The sympathy of the whole country will go out to the flood-stricken districts of Kansas and other parts of the Southwest. People who grumble about the present cold winds off Lake Superior should be thankful they live here.

Many Indiana farmers who own small oil wells are feeding the oil to their hogs so as to turn it into pork. There is more money in pork than in oil.

The Boston papers are protesting against drunken men being allowed to travel on street cars. This nuisance is not confined to Boston.

HOUSECLEANING EXPERIMENT.

The attention of the entire country has lately been directed to the successful effort made by Circuit Attorney Folk at St. Louis to break "the cohesive power of public plunder," but while he has been probing into the political filth, other citizens of St. Louis have been making a brave effort to get rid of ordinary dirt which has always been abundant in their city. What they have been doing and are doing should be of interest to the citizens of Duluth, which also is much in need of better housecleaning than it has received in the past. The Civic Improvement league, whose motto is to make St. Louis "as clean, healthy and beautiful as it is busy," has taken a leaf from the New York experience and seeks to enlist the aid of the children. To this end a Junior Civic league is being organized on a somewhat novel plan. Boys and girls between 6 and 18 years of age are eligible for membership, and are organized into "block leagues," formed by the children living upon each side of the street on each block. The officers of the block league are a president and secretary, who must be members of the parent body and more than 18 years old. The duty of the secretary is to obtain written reports from each member in his block and send them to the Civic Improvement league. He must also prepare an annual statement relative to the condition of the streets and alleys in his block, and describe the garbage disposal. It devolves upon the president to get every child in his city block to join the movement. The block leagues belonging to each school district of the city are united into district leagues, each with its president and secretary, who supervise the organization and make reports.

Sufficiently varied are the subjects in which it is hoped to interest the children. They include planting and care of trees, shrubs, vines and flowers; care of lawn; keeping free from filth and litter the home yard and the streets and alleys near the home; proper garbage receptacles and the proper care of the same; care of public property of every kind, and condition of vacant lots on the block. The "annual dues" of each member of the Junior Civic league are paid by filling out and sending in answers to questions like these: Has your home yard been kept free from garbage, ashes, litter and filth of all kinds? Have you a garbage receptacle of the proper kind? How often has the garbage collector failed to collect your garbage, as required by law, etc., etc.? Copies of the city ordinances and other information are furnished each child.

The difficulties in the way of keeping together so extensive an organization as this movement calls for, can be readily seen. In fact it appears to be almost over-ambitious, but with a great event like the coming World's fair to spur them on, the people of St. Louis may accomplish more than seems at first thought probable or even possible. It is certain that this general enlistment of forces in a very necessary enterprise must have a great educational effect, and perhaps accomplish its purpose by compelling the city authorities to do their full duty. The experiment will be watched with interest. Should it prove successful, the residents of other cities may be prompted to daopt the plan. Why not try the experiment in Duluth?

MONTANA'S HEAVY LOSS.

The losses sustained by the sheep and cattle-owners of Montana during the recent cold and stormy spell of weather are simply appalling. If reports are true, 1,000,000 sheep died, which represents a fifth of the entire flocks of the state and the loss of cattle must be added to that. The loss is enormous, but the fact that such a loss can be met and not overthrow the enterprise, calls attention to the resources of the commonwealth. Montana, next to Texas and California, is the largest state in square miles in the Union. In other words Texas has 265,780 square miles, California 158,360 and Montana 146,080. The next largest state in the Union in area is Nevada—with 110,700 square miles.

The last statistical report of the products and industries of Montana gave in round numbers the following results: The value of products in 1901 in the state was $65,000,000. The wholesale slaughtering of the state slightly exceeded $1,000,000. The output of malt liquors made in Montana reached $1,500,000 in 1901. It is claimed that Montana barely makes a high quality of beer. The product of lumber slightly exceeded $3,000,000 in value. But it is in the productions from the earth that Montana mostly excels. Her total product of metals of all kinds for 1901 exceeded $70,000 in value. Of this, scarcely more than $4,000,000 was in gold, while nearly $10,000,000 was in silver—and the value of copper reached $40,000,000 value. The output of coal in Montana, all of a bituminous nature, scarcely reaches $3,000,000 per annum—while the amount of coke is less than $350,000 in value.

Of course Montana is famous for her mutton the world over—and it has become customary to reckon Montana cattle as the best "grass-fed" beef in the land—and when the same are sent to the private farms in Illinois and Iowa and receive special treatment with grain and oil, the result is the finest steaks and roasts which can be produced in the land. The total number of sheep in Montana in 1902 had reached 5,000,000 head—and the aggregate amount of money paid for wool and pelts from Montana sheep reached nearly $5,000,000.

It is probable that the loss of Montana cattle was less than that of sheep. The former being more hardy could withstand the weather better and probably a much larger proportion survived. However, the loss is serious enough as it is and must be accepted as one of the unaccountable visitations which cannot be known or guarded against.

Article 8 of the constitution of the American Press Humorists, recently organized at Baltimore, reads: "The annual expenditure shall not exceed the annual receipts." If all the members live up to Article 8, they will always feel like joking.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

The Rev. R. J. Mooney, of Minneapolis, who is stopping at the Hotel McKay, preached sermons at St. Luke's and at Holy Apostles' church yesterday.

He is enthusiastic regarding work to be done at the West Duluth church, and he believes missionary work is essential to bring it up to the point conducive of good results.

"We are much interested in the congregation," said he. "It is small, but it can be made a strong and important one in this community. My recommendation will be that some effort is made by the church toward the establishment of more extensive work in that congregation, and I have the faith that it will become a large one soon.

"I have been very much impressed with Duluth since I came a few days ago, and was gratified at the congregations which heard me preach yesterday. It is evident that hard work in that field will result in benefits to the community and to the church also, and some activity there may be looked for soon."

Dr. Mooney will leave this afternoon for various points where he is scheduled to deliver his lectures on "A Trip in Ireland."

Frank Johnson, of the Johnson Nickel company, is through with Duluth.

He believes he has not been treated with a proper and encouraging spirit here in connection with his proposed new steel plant, and as a result he will not build it here.

Mr. Johnson, accompanied by the secretary of the company, Mr. Munson, were at the St. Louis hotel this morning. Mr. Johnson is not talkative about plans for his pig steel process or plans for the development of the idea and building a plant.

At any rate the plant will not be built here. That Mr. Johnson was positive this morning.

"I have not come here to beg," said he. "I went to the Commercial club and stated the proposition I had, and told what I desired done. The members of the club were attentive, and promised to push the proposition, and secure for me what I asked. Nothing has been done, so far as I can find out.

"I am not begging, as I said, and I believe I have met the city half way. If the city does not want the experimental plant, why then, I know where I can place it, and will go there.

"I am going away this morning, but will be back tomorrow morning. When I come back I may have something to announce through the newspapers."

This is the first visit by Mr. Johnson in some weeks to Duluth, and he says he has not been doing anything in particular with his proposition lately, as he was waiting for developments here.

The negotiations for the leases of large amounts of the titanic ore property, he says, are about ended, and within a short time he epects to close with the contingent contract with the furnace people who are interested in the East.

"I have seen a great many characters," said L. W. Richardson, of Saginaw, who is a member of the firm of Richardson & Avery, and is in charge of the company's business here now.

Mr. Richardson was referring to an hysterical business man who had been talking to him within a day or two about some land tract sales.

"This man reminded me of a person I used to know at Saginaw. He was a corker in his way, and a hustler as a business man. He used to promote all kinds of schemes over there and he would talk them to a finish.

"He looked like a winner when he first came, and succeeded in talking one or two propositions into money. He was sailing along fine, but he forgot to shut off the talk.

"Well, he kept on talking and talking, and the people he had interested and enthusiastic began getting tired of him, and he actually talked himself out of his original position, and in every case his schemes fell flat.

"He first talked his man into the plan and then as regularly talked him out of it. His schemes went to pieces, one by one, and he couldn't find out what the trouble was. He finally went away. That was one of the most peculiar characters I ever knew."

Du Chaillu's Suggestion.

Kansas City Journal: The late Paul du Chaillu was a man of indomitable bravery. Nothing perturbed him. In the most desperate crises his air was calm and somewhat humorous.

One of the veteran conductors of the Pennsylvania railroad said of him on the announcement of his death: "Mr. Du Chaillu was a man whom you couldn't frighten. Danger seemed to enliven him. I'll never forget a ride he once took with me. He sat in the last car of the train, a parlor car, and we came near having a rear-end collision.

"Mr. Du Chaillu, from his seat, could see the other train approaching us—could see that a collision was pretty near inevitable. He said to me, as I took my stand beside him:

"'Conductor, have you got a piece of chalk?'

"'Why, it looks,' he answered, 'as if our legs and arms would be flying about in a little while, and I think it would be a good thing to mark them so that we may identify them later.'"

Tear-Stained Missouri.

Philadelphia Press: A witness before the grand jury in the Missouri boodle cases shed a great many tears while testifying to the bribery of members of the legislature. This flow of grief came rather late in the enterprise—in fact it was so late that the statute of limitations protects those against whom he was testifying and for whom he was so copiously weeping.

BUSINESS AND ALTRUISM.

Wall Street Journal: J. J. Hill states that he does not care to make any money out of the Oriental trade that he is trying to establish from the far Northwest, but to establish it for the benefit of the public he is going to build up a business that will give him a loaded haul both ways and "build up the agricultural districts and encourage manufacturing."

This remarkable statement coming from the man who has revolutionized railroad rates and established a new basis for railroad operations in this country, is worthy of a good deal of attention. Generally, when a railroad builder or owner says that he is building his railroad or operating it for the benefit of the public he is politely laughed at, and it is generally believed that his altruism is at least founded upon very good business principles, in other words that it is the kind of altruism that pays dividends.

The long and honorable record of Mr. Hill as a pioneer of territory and a builder of cities entitles him to somewhat different treatment at the hands of the critics than would ordinarily be accorded to a man that claimed to be doing business for the good of the race. His railroad record proves at least that if the benefit of his constituents was not his first object it was at least a very important incidental. Whatever may be said of his business success, it cannot be denied that his transportation plans in the Northwest have been uniformly toward a reduction of freight costs to farmers and shippers and toward the opening of new markets for the products of his country. He is therefore, in a position to claim, as he does most decidedly, that his roads have worked uniformly for the benefit of the territory they serve.

We have frequently stated the above dictum of Mr. Hill in another form, namely, that he believes his railroads should pay 7 per cent dividends, to their stockholders, and that any further profit of the road should go back into the pockets of the shippers and producers of the Northwest in the form of reduced rates. We happen to know that this is the principle upon which Mr. Hill is conducting his railroads, and that he hopes to see all the lines of Northern Securities paying such dividends before the Dakota is in commission. He does not expect to be able to fill his great ships with Oriental freight on the present schedule of rates. He expects, with the kind consent of the interstate commerce commission and other gentlemen at Washington, to fill these boats by making rates from Chicago to the ports on Puget Sound that will bring to them a far greater share of the products of the South and East than now trends by the Northern roads.

A Sure Cure.

Baltimore News: "Our social system is all wrong!" exclaimed the frenzied orator. "Our social system is all wrong and something must be did!"

A man in the rear of the hall walked quickly up the aisle.

"I have a suggestion," he remarked.

"The brother has a suggestion," shrieked the orator. "Let us listen to the words of the brother!"

And the brother passed up a card, which read:

When your system is wrong take Blinkam's Tonic. It cleanses the system!

"GENTLEMAN JONES"

By Harry Laurence Baker.

(Copyright, 1902, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

He was a queer fellow, was Jones, no one seemed to understand him 'tall—that is, 'ceptin' old Griffin. Come board ship one mornin' when we was a lyin' to waitin' to take on the "commodore," that's what we called the young skipper o' the yacht Reina, and a fine little craft she were. She were as pretty a steam yacht as ever belonged to one o' these Newport millionaires, which, by the way, the "commodore" was; and gay larks we used to have, when he come aboard along with a crew o' them s'ciety friends o' his; an' the way they raised Ned, when we got out o' sight o' land was worser nor the yells and cusses o' a slaver's cargo o' niggers. But that ain't got nothin' to do with Jones. As I was a sayin' he come aboard one mornin' and called for the master, which was Griffin, who was as jolly a old salt as ever sailed round the horn; but his days of long v'yges was over, seein' as how he lost a pin by fallin' in the water off Key West, an' a shark happenin' to think o' the nearness o' lunch time an' the proxim'ty o' lunch, nipped Griffin's right leg off at the knee. Howsomever, he managed to git 'long with the use o' a timber peg.

But that ain't got nothin' to do with Jones. Told Griffin he wanted a berth, said he was a good sailor, understood handlin' a vessel, an' could take a turn at the wheel with the best o' 'em. He was such a genteel lookin' chap, with soft hands an' fine speech an' manners that all the boys nicknamed him "Gentleman Jones," an' none o' them took him seriously, or thought he knew a gib top'l from a figure head—that is, none o' them 'ceptin' Griffin.

Well, to make a long story short, he always held himself aloof from the rest o' us fellers. Not a man as thinks himself above his mates, but more like one with some great sorrow with which he wished to be alone. Never talked 'bout himself an' never told yarns with the rest o' the men, but in his off hours read books, or sat alone up in the for'ard end, lookin' out to sea in a kind o' far away manner an' there he'd stay for hours without movin a peg, as though he were the figure-head. The boys tried to play some pranks on him but somehow never seemed to work jist right. 'Member once, while he was takin' his turn at the wheel, the day bein' wet and foggy, the boys all gathered in the fo'cs'le an' smoked an' spun yarns, and things wuz mighty slow, till Barker suggest'd we find out what treasure Jones kept so precious careful in the little cedar box under his bunk. The gang all hatied it with glee—that is, all 'ceptin' Griffin, who shook his head an' walked away. Well, what do you think the galoot had? Nothin' but a pictur' o' a woman (devilish stylish looker, too), a big auburn curl o' hair, wrapped in tissue, a big red rose all faded, and a bundle o' letters, tied with a pink ribbon. Barker was jist for untyin' the ribbon and readin' the letters when we heard a growl like a bear and 'fore we knowed it there was "Gentleman" Jones a poundin' Barker's head on the floor 'an swearin' in the choicest language. And when some o' the boys started to put in a word, he let Barker up and squared his shoulders (which same were werry broad as I had not noticed afore), and he lit into that gang and cleaned 'em. Yes, cleaned 'em. Yes, me too—handed me a wallop on the smeller 't—I can feel yet. Yes sirree, licked the whole darned lunch—that is, all 'ceptin' Griffin. Well, we didn't trouble Jones much arter that. Queer how a wholesome drubbing 'genders respect, don't it? After that the boys fell to wondering who he was, an' what he was; for common sailor-men don't carry pictures o' the sort o' women that he did. None o 'em seemed to be able to figure him out 'xactly—that is, none o' 'em 'ceptin' Griffin. He told us one night 'twas his belief that Jones was some swell galoot that had either lost his chink or been given the mitten by some petticoat, an' that he was tryin' to forgit an' be forgotten. Anyhow, Jones was a gent, if there ever was a gent. Allus give the boys his share o' grog and tobacco. Said he never used it. 'Nother time Tom, the cabin boy, was sick. Jones nursed him like a mother; an' many a time in a gale when some o' the boys would be seasick an' tired out, Jones 'ud come up 'fore time an' lend a hand an' send some o' us to bed. Yessirree, Jones was sure a gent if ever there was one.

What become o' him? Oh, never thought you'd care to hear that, seein' as how it don't 'mount to much, still 'twas kind o' queer how he left. Well, 'twas this way. As I said, the "commodore" was one o' them swell fellars who had been sowin' his wild oats, and guess he decided he'd sowed enough. Anyway the news came aboard that he was to get married an' take his wife on a honey-moon tour in the Reina, which turned out to be named after the girl o' his choice. (An' by the way, while I think o' it, Jones said the reason he applied for a berth on the yacht was 'cause Reina was the name o' a friend o' his'n which he had lost, least wise so Griffin said.) Well, anyway, we set to a cleanin' an' a paintin' the craft from stem to stern an' from keel to mizzen, an' my she did shine. Well, the great day was at hand; everything was ship shape an' awaitin' for the "commodore" an' his blushin' bride. Every man Jack was dressed out in new blue an' white uniforms, and Jones did certainly look handsome in the bosn's uniform which he wore, but he seemed kind o' quieter today if anything than usual and more friendly to the boys. Fact is, he remarked to me, that he felt as if somethin' were agoin' to happen' to him. I laughed, told him he was gettin' superstitious, an' to take a horn o' grog, but he shook his head kinder mournful like, and walked away. After a while we could hear the big old bells in the church clanging away as though bedlam had broke loose, an' we knowed the "commodore" was hitched tighter'n a sperm whale to harpoon. An' directly here they come down to the pier with a great party to see them off an' wish them God speed. They put off in a steam launch and we all stood at places, waitin' for them to come 'long side. All of us was a strainin' our eyes to get a glimpse o' the new made bride, an' as she came trippin' up the accommodation ladder, I thought I'd drop, for as sure as I'm a sinner, 'twas the same woman as the picture in Jones' box. I looked at Jones; he was kind o' pale, his eyes starin' wide, an' he was mutterin' somethin' in amazement. An' the bride, she caught one glimpse o' that face an' keeled over in a faint on the deck. Well, we all were so tarnal busy about her we forgot all about Jones an' when we looked for him he was gone. We searched high and low, but no Jones nor no Jones' box could we find. An' the bride? Oh, well, she came to, and looked 'round in a confused sort o' way an' kept a mutterin', "I never meant to do it, Jack; it was all in fun; I didn't know you cared." An' she kept a sayin' o' this over and over and lookin' kind o' wild as we put out to sea. The commodore looked worried an' thought maybe after her nerves were kind o' quiet she'd be all right, but after we'd been out to sea 'bout four days, there came an awful storm, a regular old scu'easter, an' for a while I thought we were all bound for the briny deep for keeps. The last night she raged a hurricane. The water poured over the decks, the sky was as black as ink, 'ceptin' when the lightnin' in forked tongues split the heavens. The wind howled like a thousand demons. An' suddenly the "commodore's" voice could be heard a-cryin' out, "Come back; come back" an' he yelled. The bride had slipped from her state room an' we set a search for her from stern to bulk head. In a lull o' the wind we heard her moanin' up for'ard, but didn't see her till a tongue o' lightnin' lit up, an' there, 'twas out on the end o' the bowsprit we saw her. Her long brown hair blown abot by the wind, her snow white night dress hangin' round her like an angel's robe, and the angry spray dashin' over her, drenchin' her to the skin. An' while we watched the "commodore" was ravin' out an offer o' a thousand dollars, ten thousand, anythin' to the man who'd save her, but no man volunteered, for it was certain death. That is no man, 'ceptin' Griffin. He started but got no further than half way when he came nigh goin' over, and we pulled him back half dead, an' sent him below. An' the seas rose higher an' the storm grew fiercer an' it seemed as if all the storm gods had centered their anger on that one little craft. An' as the lightnin' flashed again an' again, we could see the poor little girlish figure out there with her arms extended, and we could hear her say, "I didn't mean it, Jack; 'twas only a joke—I didn't mean it." And then as we watched a great wave swept over, the for'ard end dipped into the sea, an' she was swept away. We strained our eyes an' in the fitful glare we got one glimpse o' that beautiful face, wreathed in the floating hair, one last fleetin' sight o' the terrified eyes, an' all was over. We picked the "commodore" up an' bore him below; he was unconscious. Next mornin' the storm cleared an' we strained our eyes every way but no sight o' the poor girl we had. We put back home, a sad, quiet crew, with a jibberin' maniac for a "commodore." The yacht was sold by the "commodore's" people, an' all o' us turned loose with a month's pay,—that is all 'ceptin Grimes. He was kept to attend the master who used to go out on the bluff in stormy weather an' strain his eyes and cry to the sea to send back his wife. But he never was jist right after that night on board the Reina. Yes, we sailor men have some queer kind o' experiences. Yessirree. Drink? Don't mind if I do. Great stuff, this, to put life into the bones o' a old salt like me, yessirree, Jones? Oh, yes; forgot to tell you. Well, they found him tossed up by the waves a couple o' days after. Deader'n a pickled herrin'. Under his arm was grasped tight the little box, an' inside was the picture, the hair, the rose, and the letters. They buried him in the potter's field an' the box with him. Sad eh? Well, yes. But we fellers got used to them little things. Guess all the fellers has forgot Jones but me—that is all 'ceptin' Griffin.

CANADA DESERVES NO SLURS

The Commercial West: It seems to be a habit with many Americans never to talk of the greatness of the United States without incidentally casting a mean fling of some sort at Canada. Even such a big-hearted man as Andrew Carnegie, whose benefactions have not been confined to the United States, has recently, in a published interview, made remarks very unjust to Canada.

In discussions of the subject of assets currency, we notice frequently arguments to the effect that the system must be bad, since it is a product of Canada. In the Chicago Tribune, for instance, we notice this: "It is indeed amusing that the United States should be asked to remodel its financial system with reference to a Canadian scheme, which has been amply demonstrated to be a bad one. We do not need to import any theories of banking from Canada."

There is no part of the world which has lately been making greater or more substantial progress than Canada. The splendid financial system of the country, as well as the laws encouraging immigration, is helping to make the Canading development the marvel of the present time.

Canada now has a trade of over $400,000,000 annually. Its trade has grown 10 per cent in seven years, or twice as fast in proportion as the trade of the United States. Proportionately to population the immigration into it for the last several years has been very much larger than the immigration into the United States, and what is still more important, its quality has been much better. The Canadian Northwest is being populated by persons who have made a success of farming or of trading in Great Britain, and in Illinois, Iowa or Minnesota, Canada is now taking many of our best farming element.

Canada is a well-governed nation. It affords good security for property, and for life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, as long as they are not incompatible with the rights and happiness of other people. The judicial system of Canada is as creditable to the country as its financial system. Notwithstanding Canada is a country with a comparatively small population, it has shouldered burdens that would have driven less thrifty and financially well-managed countries into bankruptcy. The building of railroads to develop the resources of the country, has entailed enormous cost, yet there is a large surplus in the Canadian treasury.

When it is considered how Canada has been handicapped by hostile United States tariffs, and has been forced to make Great Britain the chief market for its agricultural products, it seems amazing what the country has accomplished. Supposing Massachusetts, or New York, or Illinois, or Minnesota, had been isolated by tariff walls from their natural markets in adjoining states, under such circumstances, could they have done as well as Canada has done? The enterprise of Canada, whose small population has built great railroad systems, is beginning to show forth fruits of wonderful prosperity. In proportion to its population, Canada is much stronger financially than the United States. In case of panic in the United States, the branches of Canadian banks in this country would be rocks of strength. The only "runs" on them would be runs of people who wanted to deposit their money with them.

Instead of slurring our neighbor to the north, it would be more sensible to study the policies which have enabled it to do so remarkably well, notwithstanding our hostile tariffs. And instead of refusing, ostrich-like, to notice the marvelous development of Canada, it would be better business policy if we not only noticed it, but made up our minds to be benefited by it, through trade reciprocity.

My Jennie.

My Jennie was a dairy maid,
She dwelt in yonder leafy glade,
No girl was ever sweeter.
Farm work to her was all good sport,
But making butter was her forte,
And none on earth could beat her.

To see her on the milking stool,
Or in the dairy dim and cool,
To watch her fingers flutter;
It was a sight that well might move
An anchorite to fall in love,
My Jennie patting butter.

With graceful art she slowly churned,
Until the cream to butter turned,
And then manipulated
The golden mass, with fingers white,
To rolls and pats, a pretty sight,
As I before have stated.

But oh! One day when skies were fair,
A wandering billy goat came there,
And Jennie, all a-flutter,
With ribbons red and Sunday gown,
As was her habit, bended down,
To gently "pat the butter."

Alas! Alack! None knows for sure
What happened by that dairy door,
The butter must have tossed her;
For Jennie, much to her surprise,
Went sailing up toward the skies,
And that is how I lost her.

How the Preacher Proposed.

Detroit Free Press: On the subject of neat and clever proposals of marriage Prof. Moore of the weather bureau is credited with the following story:

A bachelor preacher had occasion to drink tea with a maiden lady of his congregation. She regaled him with the bitterness of her life and surroundings and expressed a longing to be of some service to her neighbors.

The preacher listened attentively. At every pause in his parishioner's bewailment he asked for another lump of sugar. After at least a half dozen squares of sugar had been added to the tea, the maiden lady said inquiringly, "Why, doctor, you'll have more sugar than tea if you keep on."

"But it's not sweet," protested the doctor.

"Then stir it," suggested the lady.

"That's what I've been waiting for," began the doctor. "You are the sweetness lying idle in this community. For want of stirring your sweetness cannot communicate itself to others."

"Yet, doctor," said the maiden, demurely, "it required a spoon to stir your tea, the sugar would not act of itself."

"And would you be willing," faltered the reverend, approaching the seat of the other, "to take such an old spoon as mo to stir—"

And then followed the same old story.

Opening of the Northern League Baseball Season In Duluth.

Duluth Shuts Out Grand Forks—A Grand Lacrosse Game.

NORTHERN LEAGUE.

Clubs—	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Winnipeg	10	1	.909
Grand Forks	8	2	.800
Crookston	8	4	.666
Fargo	1	7	.200
Duluth	3	8	.274
Superior	1	10	.090

Sparkling baseball weather gave promise that a large crowd would turn out to the opening game between Duluth and Winnipeg at the new Athletic park this afternoon.

Before the game there was a parade participated in by city officers and members of the two teams and the Third Infantry band.

This morning both teams were very confident. Winnipeg players reasoning that they should take the game without much difficulty in view of the fact that they beat Duluth four straight up in Canada and then beat Fargo four straight after the latter team had taken three out of four from the Cardinals.

To off-set this "dope" of the Maroons it was announced by backers of the Duluth team that Winnipeg would be up against a more strenuous proposition than in their last meeting. The Cardinals did not strike their pace till the Grand Forks series, winning two out of the last three games played there. There will be four new hard-hitting players in the Duluth line-up, with whom the Canadian twirlers are not familiar. They are Kennally, at first; Quillan, at second, Murphy, at third, and Pilcher, in left field.

It was announced that the two teams would line up as follows:

Duluth—	Winnipeg—
Kline ..... catcher	Rogers
Gehring ..... pitcher	Cornett
Kennally ..... first	Lynch
Quillan ..... second	Kelly
Shepard ..... short	Annis
Murphy ..... third	Egan
Lambert ..... center	Sullivan
McCoy ..... right	Randall
Mueller ..... sub-pitcher	Bartos

The management celebrated the team's return home by signing a much-needed pitcher. The new man is Shaw from the Milwaukee American association team and he is said to be exceptionally speedy. He is due to arrive this evening and may pitch the third game of the Winnipeg series.

The Cardinals splashed whitewash all over Grand Forks in the afternoon game Saturday. Mueller had superb curves and speed and the Grand Forks men were only able to find him safely four times.

Perry Sessions, one of the best in the league, pitched for Grand Forks and was hit hard when hits were most needed, Lambert and Quillan finding him for doubles.

Eighteen hundred North Dakota rooters saw the game and went home wondering where Fargo and Winnipeg got the license to beat the Cardinals in the two series preceeding.

In its account of the game the Grand Forks Herald says:

"Mueller was a puzzle to the Grand Forks hitters, and while nearly every man to bat took a punch at the ball, but four of them got on record as hits and they were so well scattered that nothing resulted. It is certain that there has not been a steadier game pitched by Mueller, and he walked but one man during the entire nine innings. The best of support was given him, and it appeared that there was a fielder on hand at the right time and right place when the leather was found, several ordinarily good hits being relegated to the column that figures against the batting averages by really clever fielding.

"Concisely stated the shut-out was largely due to too much Mueller, and the game was lost through inability of the men in green to land successfully on the twisters served up by the universality man. But two errors were behind him, one by McCoy at first, when he dropped a ball at the base, and another by Sheppard at short, who fumbled a ball long enough to allow the base runner to make safe. Neither of these cut any figure and the support aside from these instances was of the best.

Sessions delivered a deceptive ball to the dwellers of the lake, but they managed to land an even half dozen times and the hits were so arranged that they brought something. Four errors back of the pitcher had something to do with the score-getting, and Scharnweber was given his first mark in a season in which he has played remarkable ball. This was in the second inning, when he overthrew first base and allowed Klein to make first. He afterwards scored. Mullane dropped the ball at the plate, as Lambert scored; Hanrahan missed a fly and King fumbled one, making the total of four. With all of these errors cut out, Duluth would have won the game, for they were playing the kind of ball that wins and were doing a clouting stunt that would make good in any game in the country. Hall, of Superior, pitched a magnificent game against Crookston in the first Memorial Day exhibition, holding Lycan's hard hitters down to four hits in eleven innings. In the eleventh Crookston won out by a score of 3 to 2.

The afternoon game went to Crookston with ridiculous ease, the score being 11 to 1.

The Big Duluth clothing store team won two splendid games at Aitkin. With Lowe pitching the Memorial Day contest went to Big Duluth by a score of 12 to 7. The score by innings:

Big Duluth	1	0	1	2	3	0	2	0	—12
Aitkin	0	0	0	0	0	4	0	3	0—	7

Pitchers—Lowe and Krelwitz.

Yesterday with Lovell in the box the local amateurs won a most exciting game despite the fact that they were outplayed in the hitting and fielding departments. The score:

Big Duluth	0	1	0	0	1	0	0	0	—2	5

Pitchers—Lovell and Danderot.

The News Tribune team, said to present with colossal perfection and verisimilitude utterly impossible by any other team, the real way to play ball, beat a team known as the Athletics yesterday by a score of 15 to 14. The victors expect to work up a reputation in a few weeks that will entitle them to an attempt to break into the same class as the Herald team, which has not been scored on this year.

Seventeen to three is the score by which the Lake avenue team won from the Crescents yesterday. Nichols, pitching for the Avenue aggregation and the batting of Fortin, of the same team, were the features.

GREAT LACROSSE GAME.

Duluth Loses But Contest Is a Fine One.

After the gamest kind of a struggle and one of the most exciting finishes that has been seen in a sporting contest in Duluth for many moons the Duluth lacrosse team went down to defeat before St. Paul's husky twelve Saturday afternoon in the first game of lacrosse that has been played in Duluth for many years.

The game showed pre-eminently the superiority of team work over individual play. The St. Paul men have played together for one or two seasons and have been thoroughly coached by competent men in the intricacies of team work. The Duluth men while showing brilliant individual play showed a sad lack of team work due to the few practices they have had together and the lack of coaching. There is an abundance of good material and a winning team should develop before the season closes.

An enthusiastic crowd of over 800 watched the game with eager interest in spite of the fact that the majority of them were in ignorance as to the rules of the game. If the interest which was shown in the game Saturday is any standard by which to judge lacrosse will become as popular in Duluth as in many towns in the dominion to the North.

Shortly before 4 o'clock the ball was faced by Towers and Oehme. The play during the early part of the game was somewhat in favor of the visitors. Their strong aggressive work kept the ball in Duluth territory during the greater part of the time although the stonewall defense of Frank Gilson and McDonald kept the boys in blue from scoring. Fabel in goal also made some sensational stops.

Just two minutes before the end of the first quarter St. Paul notched its first goal.

Duluth made a strong rally in the second quarter and started off with a rush. They were unable to score, however, and the ball drifted back into Duluth territory Allan securing it and scored by a beautiful shot. Six minutes later Elliott notched the third.

The visitors were playing a magnificent game at this stage and the fourth goal followed after one minute of play. Duluth men seemed unable to get together although they were doggedly defending their goal.

The third quarter showed the visitors elated at their success and playing a strong offensive game while Duluth seemed content to keep the score down. After eight minutes of the quarter had elapsed Oehme scored the fifth and last goal for St. Paul.

The fourth quarter started off with a rush. The Duluth men seemed to have taken new heart and went after the visitors with a vim that soon carried the ball into dangerous proximity to the nine and white goal. Wink had the honor of scoring the first point for the home team and the crowd was on its feet with a yell. Seven minutes later after the hardest kind of aggressive work during which the ball had been continually in the St. Paul territory Grant scored by a pretty shot from the field.

With a score of 5 to 2 against them and but seven minutes to play the home team went into the uphill fight with a vigor that drew cheer after cheer from the well-filled grand stand. After four minutes of the prettiest kind of work on the part of the home team Towers scored the last goal for Duluth leaving the final score 5 to 3 in favor of the visitors. Although the ball was continually in the St. Paul territory during the last two minutes of play, the home team was unable to place the elusive sphere in the net again and the game ended with the ball in the hands of the Duluth men.

Dr. Burdett of St. Paul gave excellent satisfaction to both teams in the few decisions which he was called upon to give. The game was entirely free from rough play and the principal work required of the referee was to start the game and call time.

The line up is as follows:

Duluth	St. Paul
Fauble ..... goal	Barkley
Frank ..... point	Armstrong
Gilson ..... cover point	Cowe
McDonald ..... 1 defense	Guiseford
Penfound ..... 2 defense	McAuley
McMillan ..... 3 defense	Raymond
Towers ..... center	Oehme
Sanders ..... 3 home	Allan
Wink ..... 2 home	Mosson
Grimes ..... 1 home	Elliott
Grant ..... outside home	Brown
Prouix ..... inside home	White

Gray-Tallant Co

The Merchandising Event of the Summer Season

Gray-Tallant Co

Celebrating Our Third Anniversary

The past year has added remarkably to the increase of the business of this store, which in three years has had a greater growth than any of the dry goods stores of Duluth at the commencement of their business career. We value this evidence of your appreciation and this week we throw the gates wide open and give better values in every department than are offered at any other period, inaugurating the summer with a vigorous shaking down of prices. Our advertisements present only absolute facts, without sensationalism or hysteria—no doubts or exaggeration—follow them this week.

Suits at Half Price.

Throughout the entire season our store has been conspicuous for its splendid offerings of ready-to-wear garments, but this week's offerings will eclipse them all. You will best appreciate them if you will first visit other stores and compare advertised bargains with our prices—enough said—see the garments for the proof.

BRILLIANT WEDDING AT ROME OF A NIECE OF MRS. MACKAY

Edna Telfener Married to Signor Gino de Martino In the Gabrielli Palace, Which Was Magnificently Decorated With Flowers—Presents of Value.

Rome, June 1—Edna Telfener, daughter of Countess Telfener and niece of Mrs. John W. Mackay, was married today to Signor Gino de Martino, son of the former under secretary for foreign affairs. The civil ceremony was performed at the capitol by the mayor. The bride's witnesses were Lewis M. Iddings, secretary of the United States embassy, and Count Macchi. The bridegroom's witnesses were the duke of Terrano and the duke of Sermoneta.

The religious ceremony took place in the private chapel of the Gabrielli palace, where the Telfeners live. Monsignor Stoner, canon of St. John Lateran, officiated. The bride's witnesses at this ceremony were the former premier, the marquis di Rudini, and Prince Colonna. The bridegroom's witnesses were the duke of Grazioli and Count Von Quadt, former secretary of the German embassy at Washington. The palace was magnificently decorated with flowers. The presents were numerous and of great value.

Many members of both the clerical and liberal aristocracy of Rome were present.

WAITE ADMITS ALL

Except That He Embezzled $9000 From Bank.

Seattle, Wash., June 1.—Deputy United States Marshal John Stringer has arrested Edward L. Waite, who is wanted in Manila for embezzlement. Waite left Manila May 2, taking with him, it is alleged, $9000 from the Colonial bank, of which he was cashier. He was traced from the Philippines to Hong Kong, where he boarded the steamer Tartar for Vancouver, and the authorities at Washington were notified. At Vancouver Waite boarded the Canadian Pacific train, and when the international boundary was crossed Stringer arrested him. The prisoner admitted everything except that he took the money.

SERIOUS FIRE AT RACINE

Fifteen Thousand People Panic Stricken—Loss Over $300,000.

Racine, Wis., June 1.—For more than hours yesterday afternoon the entire section of the city southwest from a point east of Metide street bridge was in danger of being wiped out by a fire which started in the plant of the Racine Boat Manufacturing company, and 15,000 people were panic-stricken. Help was asked of the Milwaukee and Kenosha fire departments, and engines were being loaded on the cars at those cities, when Fire Marshal James Cape countermanded the order, having placed the fire under control. The losses are as follows: Racine Boat company, $125,000; J. I. Case, Threshing Machine company, $150,000; Standard Oil company, $25,000; John Roberts company, $10,000; J. I. Case Plow company, $5000; making a total loss loss of $206,000.

The fire started in the Racine Boat Manufacturing company's plant. A 30-mile gale was blowing at the time. The fire jumped from the place where it started to the large three-story machinery shop and house for building the large steel yachts. Then the wind carried the flames to five large wooden sheds of the J. I. Case company, filled with traction engines and threshing machines, thence to the lumber yards and sheds of the boat company. Just a short distance to the west was the Standard Oil company's plant, and there was great danger of the large tanks of gasoline, kerosene oil and lubricating oil exploding. The immense J. I. Case Plow company's building was also in danger. At this time the Standard Oil company plant and the roofs of the J. I. Case Plow company caught fire. The warning went out against explosions of oil and thousands of people rushed back pell mell. In one of the tanks of the oil company was 10,000 gallons of gasoline, in another 13,000 gallons of kerosene, in a third 5000 gallons of naphtha and 2000 gallons of lubricating oil.

Half an hour after the fire caught the explosions came, two in rapid sucession. Flames shot 300 feet in the air and the heat was terrific, driving the firemen and crowds back. The boat company's plant was now in ruins, also one shed of the Case plant, and the oil plant, with dozens of lumber piles, were burning fiercely. At this time Fire Marshal Cape said he had the fire under control and countermanded the request for assistance from Milwaukee and Kenosha. With the exception of a few firemen being scorched no one was injured.

F. Lee Norton, manager of the J. I. Case Threshing Machine company, said that in the sheds burned there were 200 separators, about 100 engines, lumber and other goods. He estimated the loss at $150,000, fully covered by insurance in possibly 100 different companies. D. Heath, of the Standard oil company, estimated the loss on his plant at $25,000. The Racine Boat company's loss is partly covered by insurance.

MURDER AT SEA.

Vineyard Haven, Mass., June 1.—News of a murder at sea became known here today when the United States revenue cutter Seminole arrived with Second Mate Johnson of the Bath, Me., schooner Edward E. Briery on board, charged with having shot and killed J. French, a West Indian mulatto member of the crew of the schooner, yesterday, for refusing to obey the orders of the mate. The cutter also had French's body on board.

EXPLOSION MAY OCCUR

In Jackson, Kentucky, at Any Time, Says a Resident.

Leington, Ky., June 1.—The Herald publishes an interview with a citizen of Jackson now here, in which he gives his views as to what may be expected when the troops are withdrawn from Breathitt county. After reviewing conditions, he argues that no permanent good will result from the presence of the troops and the pending trials, but on the contrary that they will only aggravate the troubles that have cursed Breathitt county. For the accused to be tried in Breathitt county under present conditions, he says, will be a "farce," and continues: "When the troops are removed, there will either be an exodus of anti-Hargiss men or a feud much bloodier than any that has heretofore happened in Kentucky."

He thinks that the trials will serve to only align a large majority of the population on one or the other side. He claims that certain county officials are interested in seeing the acquittal of the men accused of murder and predicts that they will be acquitted, the troops withdrawn, and "then God only knows what will happen." He says that what was told before the grand jury was nothing and that "more have been marked."

He says that the information that White had been indicted was known to White's friends before the warrant had been drawn. A messenger was sent to warn White, but the soldiers outrode him. He says B. J. Little, the soldier, has won the mortal enmity of the Hargiss faction and that "Jackson is a powder magazine, lighted matches are everywhere burning now and any time an explosion may occur."

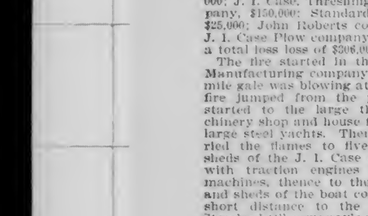
RHEUMATISM

An All the Year Round Disease.



Rheumatism does not come and go with winter time always; in fact some suffer more during the Spring and Summer than at any other season. When the blood is charged with Uric Acid, Alkali and other irritating poisons, then the system is in the right condition for Rheumatism to develop, and an attack is liable to come at any time, Winter or Summer.

Rheumatism, because it attacks different parts of the body, and is sudden or slow in its action, is given various names such as acute and chronic, muscular, articular, inflammatory, mercurial and sciatic, but it is the same old acid blood that causes all. Some are constant sufferers, while others have only occasional spells of Rheumatism, but either kind is wearing upon the constitution, and in time produces stiffness in the muscles and joints, and sometimes the acids thrown off by the blood settle upon the valves of the heart and ends suddenly and fatally.

It won't do to let Rheumatism run on. It is a dangerous disease, and you can never tell where it is going to strike. Home remedies, plasters, liniments and such things as produce counter-irritation, are soothing and may relieve the pain temporarily, but the polluted, acid blood cannot be reached by external applications.

Rheumatism must be treated through the blood, and no remedy brings such prompt and lasting relief as S. S. S. It attacks the disease in the blood, neutralizes the acids, and removes all irritating poisons and effete matter from the system.

S. S. S. strengthens and enriches the thin acid blood, and, as it circulates through the body, the corroding, gnawing poisons and acid deposits are dislodged and washed out of the muscles and joints, and the sufferer is happily relieved from the discomforts and misery of Rheumatism.

SSS

S. S. S. is a purely vegetable remedy, does not contain any Potash or mineral of any kind, and can be taken with safety by old and young.

Rheumatic sufferers who write us about their case will receive valuable aid and helpful advice from our physicians, for which no charge is made. We will mail free our special book on Rheumatism, which is the result of years of practical experience in treating this disease. It contains much interesting information about all kinds of Rheumatism.

THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

Portland, Ind., Jan. 10, 1903.

After being terribly crippled for three years with Rheumatism, and having tried well known remedies I could get no relief. And having read of the wonderful effects of S. S. S., I concluded to try it, and am happy to say that I was entirely cured, and am ablo to work as well as I ever did.

I cheerfully recommend S. S. S. to all sufferers of this terrible disease, and will say that if they will continue the treatment, as per directions, they will find a permanent cure.

A STRONG SERMON

Dr. Forbes Delivers Baccalaureate Address to Normal Graduates.

An Inspiring Address On the Unchangeability of Christ.

Seldom has a Duluth audience listened to a grander or more inspiring sermon than that delivered by Rev. Dr. Robert Forbes at the normal school yesterday afternoon.

It was the baccalaureate sermon to the first graduating class of that institution and the assembly hall was crowded with students and friends of the school. For over thirty minutes scarcely a sound was heard in the hall but the deep tones of the speaker as he clothed in the finest of English the most beautiful thoughts, never pausing for a word and never using any but the most fitting. The deepest of impressions were made on the large audience.

The plaform of the hall was decorated with potted plants and flowers which, combined with the fluttering colors of the students, formed a very gay and pretty scene. The students, including the members of the graduating class, occupied seats at the front of the hall.

Among those present on the platform were Rev. John W. Powell, Jr., J. L. Washurn of the state normal school board and Judge J. D. Ensign. Rev. S. P. Long and Dr. T. H. Cleland were also present in the audience.

The services were opened with the singing of the hymn, "Holy, Holy, Holy," by the normal school pupils, after which Rev. Harry White, of the First Unitarian church, offered a short prayer.

Mrs. James McAuliffe rendered the beautiful solo "Heavenly Father," immediately following the sermon Miss Ella Mason rendered the solo part of "Zion Awake," the students singing the chorus. Rev. R. Ames Montgomery closed the services with the benediction.

After a few brief remarks by President Bohannon, of the normal school, Dr. Forbes was presented with the remark that he needed no introduction to a Duluth audience.

Dr. Forbes' text was chosen from the epistle to the Hebrews i-13: "Jesus Christ, the same yesterday, today and forever.'

"George Washington was not a nation," said Dr. Forbes, "but Jesus Christ was and is Christianity. He is the central theme of the whole religion and it seemed fitting to me that at this the first graduation exercises of the school the theme chosen should be Jesus Christ.

"We live in a world where everything is constantly changing. Change is written on everything about us. The sea encroaches on the land and the land encroaches upon the sea. Mountains spring up where once the sea rolled and the sea now rolls where once mountains stood. The farmer tills the field where once the tall pines sang. Cities rise where the wigwam of the lonely Indian was pitched. Railroads stretch across the country where once there was nothing but a path through the boundless forest.

"Everything is in motion. The worlds are rolling on their courses. This old globe is now thousands of miles from where it was when these exercises opened. We ourselves are changing. We are not what we were and we shall be what we are not now. It is a wonderful mystery how we change so much with the course of years and yet preserve our identity.

"There are changes in our government, changes in our scientific theories, changes in our religious theories. We have advanced from the old tribal form of government to the republic. The old text books of science which we as children studied are now laid upon the shelf and the dust of forgetfulness is deep upon their covers. The old infinite tyrant of our former religious belief has come to be the infinite Father.

"And yet there are some things that relatively do not change and it is in these that we are most interested. When we revisit the scenes of our childhood, it is not the marble palace that may have been lately erected that attracts our attention. It is the little cottage with the window at the east 'through which the sun comes peeping in at morn' that first attracts our attention. We pass by an immense orchard '-- full bloom which has recently been planted in order to see again the old tree in the yard where once we swung as children.

"Jesus Christ does not change. You ask me who Jesus Christ is. I cannot tell you. The question is too large for me. Genius always defies definition. What is poetry? I cannot tell you, and yet while I am reading the grand works of the Bard of Avon or Bryant or Whittier I know that I am reading poetry. What is eloquence? I do not know, and yet while we are being swayed by the words of a great speaker we know that he is eloquent. What is home? It is indefinable. Time is more to home than is contained in the mortal lines of John Howard Payne. Genius is always laughing at our attempts to define it. These things beggar our attempts at definition. One of the great blunders of theologians is that they have attempted to define Almighty God. They cannot do it. He is too large for them to comprehend.

"Do not tell me that Jesus Christ was only a man. Leave out the 'only.' We never yet have seen a man. We have seen only partially reconstructed wrecks of men. If He was a man He was more than either you or I have ever seen. Before Him kings trembled, and yet children were not afraid.

"It is no small thing to be a man, a man made in the image of God. A perfect man is the image of God, and God is in the image of perfect man.

"It is well not to pay too much attention to the discussions of theologians as to whether Christ was 'human' or 'divine.' The two terms do not exclude each other; they include each other. A perfect man is the best revelation of God afforded us. If any man push me further for an answer to this question, I will first demand of him a definition of the terms 'human' and 'divine.'

"Christ is the revelation of God, not the Bible. The Bible is only the history of the revelation.

"Christ was perfectly divine, therefore perfectly human; perfectly human, therefore perfectly divine. He was unchanged and unchangeable in his teachings. Our constitution has changed and needs more changes. A great religious body has recently met and enacted changes in its rules and thereby earned the respect of mankind. But the teachings of Jesus Christ need no change. They abode forever. Take away from the Bible everything but the fifth chapter of Matthew and you have there enough on which to build a church that will fill the world with a truth that is everlasting.

"He is the same today in his attitude toward sinners that he was hundreds of years ago. 'Neither do I condemn thee. Go and sin no more.'

"He is the same in his attitude toward children. We are all children of God. Some of us have been in this world a little longer than others, but we are all his children, and upon his treatment of children we must rest our hope for the life to come.

"I present to you, then, pupils of the graduating class, and you who yet have work to do at this school, and all you other friends of the institution and the public at large, the name of Jesus Christ; the name that is above all other names, whose teachings are adjusted to all walks of life, as a source of strength in all emergencies and all of life's trials.

"May the blessings of high heaven be with you as you leave the institution, and may we all so obey the teachings of Jesus Christ that we may walk through life right down to the edge of the grave with a firm, manly step, rejoicing, and be able to say, 'All is well.'"

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Mrs. Roosevelt, wife of the president, who went to Groton, Mass., to attend the exercises at the Groton school, passed a very quiet Sunday. With her two sons and Mrs. Cowles, her sister-in-law, Mrs. Roosevelt attended the morning service at St. John's chapel, where Professor Stoker, of Yale, talked on the capacity for work, for friendship and faith. In the evening Mrs. Roosevelt and her sons attended the May services at the town hall and listened to a sermon by Rev. Leighton Park, D. D., of Boston.

President John Mitchell, of the United Mine Workers of America, held a conference yesterday with three of the miners' representatives on the recently organized board of conciliation. The board of the union is to pass on any dispute that may arise in carrying out the award of President Roosevelt's commission appointed to settle the coal strike. Different constructions of the provisions of the award have led to disputes between miners and owners.

PLUNGED DOWN EMBANKMENT

Train Partly Submerged In Sea and Forty People Injured.

Santa Barbara, Cal., June 1.—A Southern Pacific passenger train was derailed at a point about a mile south of Rincon Saturday night. Four cars plunged down an embankment forty feet high, two of them being partly submerged in the sea. About forty people were injured, some of them seriously. Many sustained broken bones and were badly bruised. A woman whose name was given as Mrs. J. C. Smith, had both arms crushed so badly that they will have to be amputated at the shoulder. A special train which left this city last evening returned at midnight with all those who had been injured, physicians having dressed their wounds on the way to this city. The wounded were taken at once to the Cottage hospital and every physician in the city was on duty last night. Many of those whose injuries were not severe were taken by a special train to Los Angeles.

It is a matter of the greatest surprise that none was killed, as many people were buried beneath the wreckage.

FOSSTON SCHOOLS CLOSED.

List of Teachers Engaged For Next Year.

Fosston, Minn., June 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Fosston schools have closed for the year, and the teachers who do not live here have departed for their homes. The old force of instructors, with the exception of two, have been reengaged for next year, as follows: Principal, Prof. C. S. Yeager; high school assistant, Miss Alma Lundgren, graduate of the U. of M.; grammar grade, Miss Bertha French, graduate of the advanced course of the Moorhead Normal; fifth and sixth grades, Miss Gladys Young, graduate of the Winona normal school; fourth grade, Miss Nellie Phinney, who has already taught here for two years previous; third grade, Miss Katie Owen, who has been here for a year and a half; second grade, Miss Nettie Midgarden, third year here; first grade, Mrs. A. Babcock, who has taught in the Fosston schools during the past eleven years, and is probably the most popular teacher of the entire corps.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.—Default has been made in the payment of the sum of seven thousand two hundred and ninety-eight dollars ($7298.00), which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Ronald M. Hunter and Josephine C. Hunter, his wife, mortgagors, to William E. Lucas, mortgagee, bearing date the seventh day of January, 1897, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for the county of St. Louis and state of Minnesota, on the 28th day of January, 1897, at 1:30 o'clock p. m., in Book 141 of mortgages, on page 112.

Which said mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said William E. Lucas, mortgagee, to the undersigned D. A. Burke, by written assignment dated the 28th day of January, 1897, and recorded in the office of said register of deeds, on the 28th day of January, 1897, at 1:30 o'clock p. m., in Book 168 of mortgages, on page 475; and no action or proceeding has been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, situated in the county of St. Louis and state of Minnesota, viz:

An undivided one-half of lots numbered twenty-five (25) and sixty-six (66), St. Louis avenue; one hundred thirty-six (136) Minnesota avenue; one hundred twenty-five (125) and one hundred thirty-one (131), Lake avenue, Upper Duluth; also lots numbered two hundred seventy-one (271), one hundred sixty-nine (169), one hundred seventy (170), fifty-six (56), St. Louis avenue; three hundred and sixty-five (365), Minnesota avenue; fifty-three (53), sixty-four (64), one hundred thirty-eight (138), one hundred seventy-seven (177), two hundred twenty-six (226), two hundred forty-one (241), two hundred sixty-one (261), and three hundred and twenty-six (326), Lake avenue, Lower Duluth, according to the recorded plats thereof, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the sheriff of said St. Louis County, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Duluth, in said county and state, on the 16th day of June, 1903, at ten o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said mortgage debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty ($50) dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated May 1st, A. D. 1903.

GROWTH OF EXPORTS

Of Manufactures Shown By the Figures For April.

Nearly the Largest In History of Our Export Trade.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, June 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Exportation of manufactures in April was larger than in any preceding month in the history of our export trade, excepting the months of March and May, 1900. The total value of manufactures exported in April, 1903, was, in round terms, $40,000,000, against $26,000,000 in April, 1898; $21,000,000 in April, 1896; $16,000,000 in April, 1895, and $14,000,000 in April, 1893. Thus, comparing April, 1903, with April, 1893, the total is nearly three times as great. On only two occasions in the entire history of our export trade have the exports of manufactures during a single month reached as high a figure as that of April, 1903. The 10 months which show a larger total than April of this year are March and May, 1900. In March, 1900, the total exports of manufactures was $44,767,139; in May, 1900, $40,460,367; while in April of this year the total was $39,846,659. An examination of the details of the exports of these two months, which exceeded April of this year, shows that the higher figures or those two months are due almost exclusively to the fact that iron and steel exports on those occasions were much larger than at present. The total value of iron and steel exported in March, 1900, was $11,858,387, and in May of that year, $12,026,681; while in April of the present year the total exports of iron and steel was $8,926,233.

The total exports of manufactures in the ten months ending with April, 1903, are $5,000,000 in excess of the total for the corresponding ten months of last year, and practically the same as the total for the corresponding period of 1901, making it probable that the total exports of manufactures in the fiscal year which ends with this month will about equal those of any fiscal year except 1900.

The following table shows the total exports of manufactures in April of each year from 1893 to 1903, and indicates in some degree the growth in the exportation of manufactures during that term

1893	$13,202,937
1894	14,563,916
1895	16,804,411
1896	21,386,757
1897	24,614,425
1898	25,902,552
1899	33,015,917
1900	39,424,269
1901	34,416,279
1902	38,961,301
1903	39,846,569

THE FRIENDS SCHOOL

At Providence to Celebrate Its Anniversary.

Providence, R. I., June 1.—The Friends school at Providence, R. I., is to hold its 118th anniversary on June 25 next, on the school premises. Dinner is to be served in a large tent on the green. A fine new gymnasium is to be dedicated. The principals for more than half a century will be in attendance. Notable orators are expected. The games of early days will be played over. Fares will be extensively reduced.

Stop Taking Drugs.

Why should you take them when they are not doing you any good? Stop and think for yourself. In what way can a strong, corrosive drug impart health and strength?

Have the cause of the trouble removed and you will find that the effect will stop in short order. Dr. Riesland, at 206 East First street, does that by replacing the misplaced vertebrae in your spine, and in that way relieves the pressure that is on the nerves through which nature runs the human mills.

SMITH'S REPLY TO TULLOCH

Made Public By the Postmaster General—Further Replies.

Washington, May 31.—Postmaster General Payne has made public the reply of Former Postmaster General Charles Emory Smith to the charges of Former Cashier S. W. Tulloch of the Washington city postoffice regarding the postoffice administration. Mr. Smith says he investigated the allegation of irregularities when they were made and that the evidence adduced in most cases was believed to have been a justification of the transactions complained of, adding that the criticisms betrayed a lack of knowledge incidental to the Spanish war and the measures necessary to meet the requirements.

Mr. Jayn said that Mr. Smith's letter practically closes the Tulloch incident, although other documents on the subject will be made public later. These include the replies of Former First Assistant Postmaster General Heath and Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow, the report on the former investigation of the Tulloch charges, to which Mr. Smith refers, and the reports of the postoffice inspectors and civil service representatives who investigated the Washington postoffice. Owing to the great volume of the documents, Mr. Payne said that all of the documents except Mr. Heath's report will be briefed, although the documents themselves will be open to public inspection, if wanted.

RIOS CAPTURED

Manila, June 1.—Rupe Rios, the fanatic leader, has been captured and sentenced to death. Twenty-seven of his followers also were convicted and sentenced to various terms of imprisonment.

A detachment of scouts has defeated and scattered the Oaniguf island insurgents, killing eighteen of them. This, it is believed, will end the opposition to the government in that place.

SOUND AT HEART

Are the Economic Conditions of the Country at Present.

Hard Facts Quoted By Leaders In Trade and Finance.

New York, June 1.—While leaders in trade and finance in different sections of the United States do not agree on minor points, their views concerning existing conditions as expressed to the New York Commercial representatives show well grounded confidence in a continuance of present prosperity. It is not a question of theory with these men, for they quote hard facts.

Freight rates, land speculation and reciprocity with Canada are holding the consideration of the Northwest. Attention is being concentrated on these matters, because prosperity is so abundant that the thought of the merchant and financier can be given unhampered to the matters which must be sucessfully arranged to prevent a step backward.

New England sentiment, despite the labor troubles in the mill towns, is buoyant. The efficiency is not in selling goods, but in procuring them to sell. In the Southwest the belief prevails that prosperity is to continue, while the hope is expressed that the next congress may enact needed currency reforms. Underlying all, in every section, is the firm belief that the economic conditions of the country are thoroughly sound at heart.

John Washburn, of the Washburn-Crosby company, the great milling firm, and former president of the Minneapolis chamber of commerce, says:

"We of the Northwest are not pessimists, nor have we time to be pessimistic. It is impossible for anyone in close touch with business conditions in our section to be otherwise than hopeful. The Northwest is doing its share and more than its share in the great march of progress. Have we reached the end of our expansion? Not in the least. Indeed, we have scarcely begun to develop as yet.

"Twenty-five years from now the Northwest will have grown so that in looking back the comparison will be as surprising as the comparisons now made with conditions twenty-five years ago. Three great questions confront us here, first, the possibility of overdoing the speculation in lands; second, the problem of obtaining and maintaining equitable rates on our manufactured product moving East; third, reciprocity with Canada. These are the live questions in the Northwest today.

"For several years there has been a steady advance in lands, this extending from the Southern Iowa line to the international boundary line, and far beyond into the province of Manitoba, and even into Assiniboia and Saskatchewan. The Canadian Pacific has settled up millions of acres of its lands in the last few years. I am speaking now of Canada. Do not imagine that we are getting too far away from the subject. To the Northwest there is no foreign country here. The cities of Minneapolis, St. Paul and Duluth send enormous quantities of merchandise into this magnificent country, and but for the artificial barrier which every Northwestern business man hopes and believes will eventually come down, the trade with the Canadian Northwest would be increased enormously.

"The greatest industry in the Northwest is that of flour milling. Very recently all the mills of Minneapolis were obliged to close down, owing to the fact that while the railroads maintained high rates on flour, the boat lines were moving wheat out of Duluth at very low rates. This discrimination in rates was a sad handicap, but the trunk line managers gave us a 2-cent reduction in rates east of Chicago, which was a help, and the Minneapolis milling industry is today operating at the average rate, with the outlook favorable on the whole.

"There is likely to be a moderately quiet period in the land business, pending the outcome of the crops. The spring wheat and coarser grains went into the ground, with conditions very promising, and all we ask is a season of fair growing weather, and we will harvest a bountiful crop.

"The new settlers are for the most part people of some resources, who ask only a fair show to get along. And a settler does not need much more than a show in a country where there are instances of men having come in and planted flax on a new breaking, and cleared up enough on the yield to pay for his land. With several good years in succession, the older settlers are in position to stand a reverse, should one come.

"In this section there is no anticipation of any immediate let up in the great prosperity. The people here realize that expansion cannot go on indefinitely; that a quiescent period may come, which to them would mean little more than a healthy resting spell. We believes that economic conditions in our country are thoroughly sound at heart, and look forward to a good period of business for the remainder of this year, beyond which time the Northwest is not concerned at present.

William F. Farley, one of Boston's leading dry goods jobbers, made this statement:

"I only know the business of Farley, Harvey & Co. and I am prepared to say that never since we have been in the business have we done as large business as we have this year. We bought heavily of all goods in our line when they were for sale at reasonable prices, and the only complaint I can make is that we are not able to get all of the goods that we engaged.

"The going out of business of a large New York house soon, which is forcing these goods on the market at prices below the market in many instances, is more or less demoralizing to those who desire to keep in business, and have to come into competition with these goods. We are selling the goods that we have got and are not buying ahead because we are unable to find anybody who dares to take chances on the future. Some call it dull, but I can't see it, and what is more our retail customers are also having an excellent business.

"One of the largest retail stores in Boston claims that its business the previous Monday was the greatest it ever did in one day. What do the proprietors care what calamity howlers and croakers call the market, as long as they find a demand for their goods? If they sell out what they have got they will do. Present business conditions are satisfactory as far as they go, but I would like to be able to look ahead.

"In April last year we had our spring cottons practically all bought, but as yet this year we have done nothing for next spring. Collections have been excellent, with few losses, and we have had no trouble to get all the money we needed, even at the most stringent times. I look for the consumption of supplies to hold up well, if crop conditions are favorable, as this is the keynote of the country's prosperity, and the balance more or less side issues. If the farmer is prosperous, the chances are in favor of business also being good."

J. E. McAshan, president Texas Bankers' association, Houston, Tex., thus expresses his views:

"The cause of the dullness in Wall street as it appears to me is this: There are no surplus funds in the country to invest and Wall street business seems to me to represent the trading which is done with the surplus money not needed in commercial enterprises.

"There is still another reason for dullness in Wall street. The public feels that the future has been mortgaged by promoters in flonting their enterprises to such an extent that moderate conservatism demands that at least a portion of the promises be realized before going further. I do not think that the government's attitude toward trusts or the steps taken against large corporations has had much to do with Wall street dullness.

"I believe that every reasonably intelligent person who ever thinks at all concerning the question feels sure that in time the trusts will be controlled by the government and that the large corporations will at least reach a point in arrogance where it will be necessary to draw the line in the interests of the public. I believe such control will prove most wholesome in the end. It is rather a humiliating confession to make, but human nature seems so constituted that no man or set of men can be trusted not to do something either foolish or criminal unless a certain amount of supervision is maintained over them.

"The country seems prosperous. I think this condition is likely to prevail for some time to come. Bank credits are so extended that in my opinion both in the interes tof the banks and their borrowers something should be done in the way of devising a safe and elastic credit currency. I believe this would be comparatively easy of achievement. If the men who lead in this record would for the moment sink their theories and go at the question in a business like and patriotic manner."

PROGRESS OF A PROVINCE

In the Philippines Reviewed In the Governor's Report.

Washington, June 1.—The bureau of consular affairs, war department, has received the annual report of Senor Alfonso Ramos, governor of the province of Tarlac, P. I., for the year 1902, in which he states:

"This province is formed by the pueblos ceded by the contiguous provinces, and the people still preserve the customs and dialects of those tribes from which they sprang. So that those who belonged to Pampanga speak Pampangan and observe their customs; those of Nueva Ecija, Tagalog, and those of Pangasinan, Pangasinan. There is also a considerable contingent of those who came originally from Zambales and both the Ilocos provinces, and these speak their respective dialects.

"Notwithstanding the diversity of dialects and the uncultured state of these people, in the year covered by this report, there has been no violent nor disturbing interruption of the peace and public order which this province has enjoyed since the implantation of the civil regime, with the exception of carabao stealing, which is the natural consequence of the lack of these animals; some two or three homicides resulting from personal quarrels and revenge, and certain disturbances of a religious nature, between municipalities and the parish priests of the same, owing to the prevalent religious excitement and the occasional appearance of fanatical women who delude the ignorant people with their supposed miracles, which acts, however, the court of first instance is undertaking to disclose and punish. This tranquility is the more noteworthy owing to the fact that the province has been visited by a long series of the worst calamities, which are usually productive of political and social disturbances.

"Public instruction in this province is advancing perceptibly, thanks to the zeal and activity of the superintendent of the seventeen pueblos which constitute this province, the seven most important of which have good and permanent schools, are provided with American teachers; seven others, with Filipino teachers, most of them from the normal institute of the capital. These have attended the public schools of all the municipalities in the province during the year covered by this report 2930 boys and 1252 girls. Besides the leading residents of the town, a large number of municipal and provincial officials and employes attend the night classes of the provincial capital.

"At the initiative of this provincial board, there has been established in this capital a high school, the pupils of which after terminating the course of study prescribed, will be prepared to enter any college or higher institution of academic or professional study. This high school is supported from the provincial treasury, and the provincial board has authorized the construction of a larger building acording to plans of the provincial supervisor.

"The principal wagon roads of the province have been repaired and drains and bridges built of strong materials between Capas and Concepcion, between Tarlac and Victoria, and between Gerona and Pura. Certain municipalities have themselves undertaken and completed many improvements of a local character, such as the construction of school and municipal buildings, street lighting, repairs to highways and village streets.

"The province is now free from the terrors of the cholera with its accompanying quarantine and sanitary precautions, and has been restored to its normal state of healthfulness. Vaccination has been practiced in all the pueblos of the province as a result of the interest of the president of the provincial board of health and the activity of the municipal boards of health."

BIG BULGE IN WHEAT

St. Louis Market Up Nearly Three Cents at One Time.

Rains and Floods In Southwest Cause Great Uneasiness.

The Duluth, Minneapolis and Chicago wheat markets were closed today but St. Louis and New York were open and there was a curb market in Minneapolis.

The heavy rains, floods and storms which have prevailed in the southwest for several days have done much damage to grain according to the reports from wheat sections and there was a wild market in St. Louis. At one time that market was 2¾c up from the closing price of Friday for July wheat and the close was at an advance of 2¼-½c. New York was affected by the bullish sentiment at St. Louis and July advanced 1½c. The curb traders in Minneapolis were not as greatly perturbed at southwestern reports but there was an advance there of 1¼-⅝c. The opening of the other markets tomorrow morning bids fair to be rather wild and at considerably higher prices.

MOVEMENT OF GRAIN

Receipts and Shipments In May and In Crop Year.

Total For Crop Year Thus Far Is Ahead of Last Year.

The grain movement to Duluth fell off greatly during the month of May as it always does. The receipts, however, were larger than during the same month last year. Every grain except barley showed an increase and in that grain the movement which has been very large during the crop year fell off to almost nothing. Flax receipts were more than five times what they were in May of last year. The total receipts for the month in both years were as follows:

	1903.	1902.
Wheat	302,642	235,295
Oats	73,702	48,85
Barley	2,295	2,54
Rye	2,500	2,00
Flax	232,306	43,131
	608,594	335,461

The shipments were large, running to 1,470,064 bushels above those of last year. They were as follows:

	1903.	1902.
Wheat	2,274,836	3,414,701
Oats	98,874	14,402
Barley	283,977	51,090
Rye	1,338,576	768,111
	4,909,128	4,470,064

The receipts of grain on the crop year thus far, which means from Aug. 1 last to May 30, have been something more than 3,000,000 bushels above those of the previous crop year, but every other grain except corn has run ahead of the movement of corn was so light in both years as to make no material figure in totals. The figures for the two crop years are as follows:

	1902-03.	1901-02.
Wheat	35,352,842	40,897,318
Corn	1,796	70,109
Oats	2,667,226	623,457
Barley	5,869,425	3,047,952
Rye	825,873	764,755
Flax	18,131,852	14,231,670
	62,923,855	$74,639,671

There was in store in Duluth at the close of business May 30, 2,198,479 bushels time the amount in store was 7,628,508 bushels.

Flax tells a different story. There is now in store 3,689,289 bushels and a year ago the amount was only 372,824 bushels.

NEW YORK GRAIN.

New York, June 1.—Wheat—July 86⅝c. Corn—July 53¼c.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, June 1.—The cotton market opened 3 points lower to 6 higher and ruled quiet in the absence of cables from Liverpool where the market was closed. The general temper of local sentiment was firm on bad crop news and toward noon the old crop months showed a net gain of 16@3 points and the new crop months a gain of 9@13 points, or practically the best figures of the morning. Rumors that the rainstorm now prevailing over the north central belt was working its way down the Mississippi valley caused active covering, offsetting the bearish movement and unsatisfactory trade accounts.

At noon the market was steady with prices net 2 to 8 points higher on light covering and scarcity of offerings. Spot, dull; middling uplands, 11.95. Estimated receipts at the ports today 6000 bales against 4217 last week and 1630 last year. For the week 30,000 bales against 32,912 last week and 21,085 last year. Today's receipts at New Orleans, 775 bales, against 233 last year and Houston 452 bales against 425 last year.

Cotton spot closed quiet; 20 points lower. Middling uplands, 11.50; middling gulf 11.75. Sales 300 bales. Futures closed steady. June, 11.10; July, 11.13; August, 10.71; September, 10.36; October, 9.86; November, 9.53; December, 9.54; January, 9.54.

NEW YORK MONEY.

New York, June 1.—Prime mercantile paper closed 4¾@5; sterling exchange firm at $4.88.25 for demand and at $4.85.15 for 60 days; posted rates $4.85½@4.86 and $4.88¾@4.89; commercial bills $4.84⅝@4.85. Bar silver 53¼c; Mexican dollars 42c. Government bonds steady, railroad bonds heavy. Money on call firm at 2½@3 per cent; highest 3; closes 2½@2¾. Time money firm; 60 and 90 days 4 per cent; 6 months 4½@5.

GOLD SHIPMENTS.

New York, June 1.—Kidder, Peabody & Co., of Boston, through their New York agents, Baring, Magoun & Co., have engaged $500,000 gold for shipment to Europe on Thursday.

In every city there is one paper favored by local advertisers. In Duluth it is The Herald.

ALLIANCE LIKELY

Duluth Churches Will Federate Evangelistic and Reform Work.

The Ministerial Association Is Now Considering the Matter.

An alliance between the churches of the city to present a united front to the forces of evil and unbelief is proposed by the Duluth Ministerial association.

It was considered this morning at the regular monthly meeting, and after some discussion, which was not altogether unanimously in favor of the movement, it was referred to a committee of nine, which will report to the association at a special meeting next Monday forenoon. The committee will meet Wednesday night to consider the proposition, and there is little question that the plan of a federation of religious and reform activities will be approved by the committee and taken up by the association. The sentiment of the meeting was very largely in favor of it, leaving little doubt as to the outcome of the discussion, even though it was not finally settled today.

The question of the advisability of such a movement was made a special order of business for this morning, the regular program for the day being set aside. Rev. C. S. Davis, pastor of the First Baptist church, gave a paper in favor of the idea, and there was considerable general discussion of the subject.

The sentiment of the majority of the members present seemed to be that the old idea that in union there is strength would certainly apply to religious and reform work, and that very much more could be accomplished by a federation of effort, in which all the churches could join instead of working individually and collectively than there could be by the old style of scattered, sporadic, infrequent and conflicting work. In the old manner of doing, where each church sought to get worked if it saw fit and generally without regard to what others were doing, there was much waste of time, money and efforts. It was felt by those in favor of the plan that a permanent organization, through which the churches could be informed of all the work that was being done, and join with in the regardless of creed, in work for the cause of Christianity and reform, would be most effective.

The idea would be for this federation to take up all branches of religious and reform work. For instance, it is proposed to have a tent evangelistic campaign during the coming summer. Gospel tents will be put in convenient locations in different parts of the city, and evangelists as well as local ministers will hold meetings in them continuously. Spountz, who has lately come to the city to take charge of the religious work for the Bethel, will be a leading factor in this work. This morning he was made chairman of the advisory committee from among its members, with which he can consult on city mission work. This matter, like all others of a kindred nature, was left in abeyance pending the action of the committee.

The committee is made up as follows: Dr. T. H. Cleland, pastor of the First Presbyterian church; Rev. S. C. Davis, pastor of the First Baptist church; Dr. S. P. Long, pastor of the First Methodist church; Rev. N. B. Thvedt, pastor of the Kindred Norwegian-Danish Evangelical Lutheran church; Rev. Harry W. Knowles, pastor of Grace Methodist church; Rev. L. S. Stapf, pastor of the Chr. C. R. Sine, pastor of the First Chrustian church; Phil Beyls, of the Y. M. C. A., and Rev. W. E. Spountz, in charge of the Bethel's religious work.

It has been the custom of the association to adjourn during the summer, and according to this system today's would have been the last meeting until October. It was decided, however, that this was not necessary, and there will be a meeting in July, and perhaps every month during the summer just as in winter.

The new officers of the association took hold at this morning's meeting. They are as follows: Rev. C. R. Sine, pastor of the First Christian church, president; Rev. A. J. Hoag, West Duluth Baptist church, vice president; Rev. H. B. Sutherland, Lakeside Presbyterian church, secretary and treasurer. The following program committee was announced by President Sine: Dr. A. W. Ryan, Dr. J. J. Gorby and Rev. C. F. Davis.

MACHEN'S CASE TO GRAND JURY

Names of Witnesses Summoned to Appear Kept Secret.

Washington, June 1.—The case of August W. Machen, former general superintendent of the free delivery system of the postoffice department, who was arrested on the charge of receiving a percentage of the profits of a concern furnishing supplies to the postoffice department, will be presented to the grand jury next Wednesday. Witnesses have been subpoenaed not only from this city but from Westminster, Md., Mr. Machen's summer residence, and Toledo, Ohio, his former home.

Precautions have been taken to keep the identity of the witnesses secret. The public record of the case in the district attorney's office appears under the title: "The United States vs. John Doe."

Postmaster General Payne today called attention to the published charge that the amounts paid by the government for rentals of postoffices in New York state exceeded what they should be by over $500,000. "The fact is," he said, "that the total amount of rentals for postoffices in the state last year aggregated only $466,877.46. This includes rentals, light and heating."

'Tisn't safe to be a day without Dr. Thomas Eclectric Oil in the house. Never can tell what moment an accident is going to happen.

DECLINE IN STOCKS

Liquidation From Start and In Afternoon on Large Scale.

The Bear Party Was Active—The Close Feverish.

New York, June 1.—There were some heavy transactions in the principal leading stocks at the opening today, but the general market was dull and the number of different stocks dealt in was limited. The average of prices was a fraction lower than Friday and Missouri Pacific, Canadian Pacific and Copper showed the largest fractional losses. One hundred shares of United States steel sold at an advance of ⅛, but the next sale of 400 shares carried it back to Friday's level. St. Paul showed an advance of ⅜ and American Ice a point. Union Pacific and Rock Island were heavily dealt in at declining prices. Colorado Fuel dropped 1¾.

The lightness of the selling orders which appeared at the opening, despite the unfavorable character of the flood news, led to some buying on the decline, and the losses were pretty generally recovered. Renewed selling began at the highr level and active stocks were forced under the opening range. Rock Island, Atchison, Union Pacific, Missouri Pacific, Southern Pacific and Reading displayed the most weakness, the first named two declining a point and establishing new low records for the movement, as did Union Pacific. Canadian Pacific, Consolidated Gas, Sloss-Sheffield steel and leather preferred fell 1½ each and Sugar, Denver & Rio Grande, Mexican Central and Kansas & Texas 1. Toledo, St. Louis & Western preferred, Minneapolis, St. Paul & Soo preferred, Erie second preferred and Rock Island preferred advanced about a point. Prices again rallied before 11 o'clock, but recoveries were slight.

There was some evidence of support for St. Paul which held it slightly above the Friday level and Copper rallied a point, but other stocks continued to come on the market in light volume. Losses reached a point in Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Reading, Norfolk & Western, Colorado & Southern, Delaware & Hudson, Smelting and Brooklyn Transit. Iowa Central lost 1¼, Northwestern 1½, United Fruit and Leather preferred 2, St. Louis Southwestern preferred 2½ and Detroit United Railway 2¾. Bonds were heavy at noon.

The market was virtually at a standstill, but there were some light offerings which affected special stocks. Leather preferred extended its loss to 3 and Twin City Rapid Transit to 2¾, while Missouri Pacific declined a point.

The selling pressure against the standard stocks converged on Missouri Pacific for a time and yielded gradually to 103¾. Other stocks became affected by this selling and the active stocks all were lower than in the forenoon. Canadian Pacific and Sugar lost 2½ in all. Leather preferred continued to give way and lost 4 and there was a 3 point loss in Sloss-Sheffield steel, 2¼ in Anaconda and 1¼ in Wabash preferred, Hocking Valley and Gas.

Missouri Pacific and Sugar rallied a point but yielded again, the former losing 2¼ in all. The Canadian stocks were weak. Sloss-Sheffield steel losing 5¼, Canadian Pacific 3, Soo 1½, and the preferred a point. Leather preferred dropped 2½ and the preferred 6, Lang Island 3; Virginia-Carolina Chemical 2¾, United Railway preferred 2½, Denver & Rio Grande preferred 1½ and Southern Railway and New York Dock preferred about a point. Covering by room shorts rallied the market. Northwestern was responsible for 2¾, Virginia-Carolina Chemical 1¾, Delaware & Hudson, 1½; Missouri Pacific, Sugar and Leather preferred about a point. The closing was feverish and unsettled.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Harris, Gates & Co.: The labor trouble outlook is more encouraging. However, the general impression seems to be that the bears will make a determined drive at the market today, inasmuch as there will be no support from the other side. The price of sterling exchange will make it easy for them to force gold shipments and affect prices. We do not see where the liquidation will come from when the shorts desire to cover their contracts. There has been excellent buying on a scale down and we have every reason to believe it will continue. We fell reason to believe it will continue. We feel confident no money will be lost in buying our favorites, viz: The Erles, Wabashes, Manhattan, New York Central, Pennsylvania, Rock Island pfd and St. Paul.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The tone of the market is still heavy. There are indications of fair support in a few stocks, while others are sharply lower. On the whole, the conditions show no improvement in the general tone or tendency. There is probably a considerable short interest in the market, but so far, nothing to make them cover except at their leisure. The outlook does not encorage the buying of stocks.

* * *

Town Topics: According to rumors floating about Wall street, the bear party has planned a demonstration for today or tomorrow and as it is a strong element wise traders will prepare themselves to sustain and take advantage of a drop in prices should one occur. Whether or not a bear demonstration will be successful is problematical, for the Standard Oil party is steadily absorbing standard dividend paying stocks on every break without bidding for them. Good issues should be bought and not sold on breaks. The dark blue aspect of Wall street sentiment is a sign that the turn is near. "Unreasoning pessimism, like rampant optimism, is the quintescence of folly," says an editorial writer, in speaking of the stock market, adding that resolute conservatism is the supreme need of the hour. Sentiment as expressed in the New York papers this morning is somewhat mixed but rather leans to the bull side because of the big decline and heavy liquidation.

Walker Bros. to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market today was weak and with little support. There was liquidation from the opening and in the afternoon it was on a big scale. Union Pacific was the point of attack, and it broke sharply. The Steel stocks were very weak and this affected the whole market. Traders caught many stops and the whole list declined. There was no news of importance and ever low point reached seemed to bring out a lot of stocks. The close was irregular, but with slightly better tone. We look for a continuation of this sort of a market.

Clark, Dodge & Co. to Paine, Weber & Co.: There was much less liquidation in market today from commission houses, but the bear party has been active in trading stocks down in view of small buying demand. Some good buying in certain stocks, apparently by large interests and from this it looks as if the market might receive support on any recession from present prices. There is good buying in Erie, St. Paul and Rock Island.

* * *

F. M. Dick to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market has been feverish and heavy today. Some stocks showed rather good support, but most of them yielded under the pressure of professional selling, most of which was for the short account. A sharp break in Leather stocks looked like the result of liquidation induced by the new plan. U. S. Steel held well. Amalgamated Copper and Sugar were both under pressure. Some very heavy selling was seen in Missouri Pacific, which was one of the weakest features. Canadian Pacific was also hammered by the bears.

AMALGAMATED COPPER.

New York, June 1.—The stockholders of the Amalgamated Copper company held their annual meeting in Jersey City today. The old board of directors were re-elected with the exception of Robert Bacon, who was succeeded by George H. Church. Herman S. Graves, representing 500 shares of stock, asked for details of the litigation in which the company has been involved. Mr. Graves wanted to know the facts about the alleged offer by Charles E. Clark, son of Senator Clark, to pay Judge Harney $250,000 for certain purposes and of the attempted impeachment of Judge Harney by two attorneys of the company.

THE SECURITIES CASE

Will be Argued In Supreme Court, Dec. 5.

Washington, June 1.—The United States supreme court today granted the motion made by Solicitor General Hoyt two weeks ago, to advance the case of the Northern Securities company. The court fixed Dec. 14 next as the date for argument.

RESTAURANTS MAY CLOSE.

Chicago, June 1.—The proprietors of lunch houses and restuarants, through the Chicago Restaurant Keepers' association, submitted to their employes an offer of arbitration and if the offer is rejected all the restaurants in the downtown district will be closed. The only question over which there is any likelihood to be any serious objection is that of complete unionizing of all restaurants, but if this obstacle can be surmounted there is little danger of a strike among the employes.

IN MARINE CIRCLES

Large Increase In the Arrivals of Vessels Carrying Coal.

Nineteen Reach Here Since Saturday, Carrying About 60,000 Tons.

After a short period of inactivity the coal receipts at the port again show a large increase over the figures of former years. The season started with a rush of coal-laden vessels for the head of the lakes and the receipts promised to break all records. Grain vessels, ore carriers, even lumber carriers and package freighters were pressed into the service. Then came a decline in the shipments and for several weeks the receipts were disappointing considering the depleted condition of the stock piles of the different coal companies at the head of the lakes.

A renewed activity is now apparent in the trade. During the past forty-eight hours nineteen vessels have arrived through the Duluth entry coal-laden. The total cargoes amount to between 50,000 and 60,000 tons.

The crowded condition of the ore docks and the delays experienced by the ore carriers from this reason have had the effect of increasing the number of coal carriers. The jam at Cleveland shows no sign of a let-up and the delays promise to be frequent and of long duration. It is not expected that vessels there will secure good dispatch until next week.

There is a good supply of coal on the docks at Cleveland and other lower lake ports and reports from the Lake Erie cities indicate that the shipments will be heavy during the next week.

BILLS OF SALES.

Papers Transferring Some Vessels Are Filed.

The bill of sale of the steamer John Lambert has been filed at the local marine customs office.

The Lambert is a new boat recently constructed by the American Shipbuilding company for the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence Transportation company. She is the third of the fleet of ten vessels which is being put into commission by this line this summer.

The Lambert was built at the Chicago yard of the shipbuilding company. She is a steel vessel of 1550 gross tons, 241 feet in length, 41 feet in beam and 15.6 feet in depth.

The Lambert will be put in the grain and general merchandise trade between Duluth and Quebec. The Keefe and Parent, new vessels belonging to the same line have already made their first trips on this route. The Lambert is expected here in the near future. Several of the remaining seven ships are nearing completion at the different shipyards on the lakes and will be ready for sailing within a few weeks.

The bill of sale of the steamer Easton which was recently purchased by the White Line Transportation company, has also been filed at the local marine customs office. It records the transfer of the steamer from the H. W. Williams Transportation of South Haven to the White Line Transportation company of Duluth. The consideration is not mentioned in the deed.

THE MERIDA RELEASED.

Amherstburg, Ont., June 1.—The steamer Merida, which grounded Saturday on the rocks on the east banks of the Lime Kilns Crossing, was released yesterday morning by the tugs Home Rule and Peerless after lighting about half of her coal cargo. The cargo is now being reloaded and the boat will proceed on her voyage, as she is apparently uninjured.

VESSEL MOVEMENTS.

INJUNCTION IS VACATED

Dick Ferris Must Get Out of Metropolitan.

His Relief Lies In Action For Damages.

The Metropolitan Building company and John T. Congdon, the manager, have won out in the injunctional proceedings started in district court last week by Richard Ferris, proprietor of the Ferris Comedians.

Judge Dibell this afternoon filed an order discharging the order to show cause why a temporary injunction should not be issued in the action, and vacating the restraining order. This means that the Ferris Comedians will have to vacate the Metropolitan Opera house.

With the order vacating the restraining order, Judge Dibell filed the following memorandum:

"The plaintiff, Ferris, claims to have a contract with the defendant company, whereby he is to present plays in its opera house until Sept. 1, 1903; and he asks a temporary injunction restraining the defendants from interfering with his performance of the contract, from interfering with his property now in the opera house, from permitting any other performance or rehearsal therein, and from entering into any contract therefor.

"On the 21st day of November, 1902, Ferris and the defendant, through its manager, Reaney, entered into a contract whereby Ferris was to play his Comedians at the defendant's opera house for a period of four weeks, commencing Jan. 5, 1903, and whereby the defendant agreed to furnish therefor its opera house, heated and lighted, and to provide an orchestra, stage hands and other employes. The company also agreed that during the engagement it would permit no other rehearsal or performance in the theater.

"Ferris performed this contract, and has continued to present his plays up to the present time. After the expiration of the four weeks' engagement, Ferris continued the presentation of his plays, without any definite arrangement, until Feb. 21, 1903, or March 10, 1903, the former being the date claimed by the plaintiff and the latter the date claimed by the defendant, when a meeting was had between Ferris, Reaney and some of the directors and officers of the company, and some others interested. At this meeting a talk was had relative to the division of the receipts, the company claiming that it should have a greater percentage than provided in the contract of Nov. 21, 1902, and Ferris refusing to accede to their demands, and the division of profits was finally left as originally provided.

"There was some talk about the company being given the right to terminate the engagement upon two weeks' notice, the original contract giving Ferris that right, but not giving a like right to the defendant. Ferris consented to this arrangement, but says that in the general hand-shaking following the meeting, several interested in the company told him that no such provision was necessary; and he claims that the general understanding was that he should continue during the summer months, that at some time between March 12, 1903, and March 18, 1903, he told Reaney that it was necessary, in order to procure the necessary actors and actresses, that his engagement should continue until Sept. 1, 1903, that it was thereupon agreed that the original contract should be so extended, and that on April 8, 1903, Reaney endorsed across the face of the original contract a statement to that effect. The defendant claims that this endorsement was fraudulently made after Reaney ceased his connection with the company, and it claims that Ferris was informed, between March 10 and April 8 that he must transact all of his business with the company's directors, and not with Reaney, all of which is denied by Ferris.

"On May 1, 1903, the defendant company, by its secretary, notified Ferris to close his engagement at the opera house on May 31, 1903.

"On Dec. 11, 1902, the defendant company, through Reaney, entered into agreement with the Wilbur Opera company, whereby the latter company was to play in the defendant's house for a period of eight weeks, commencing June 1, 1903, with the privilege on the part of either party to terminate the contract on a thirty days' notice. There is no sworn testimony that this contract was ever cancelled, although a letter from Reaney to Ferris, dated April 16, 1903, stated that it had been cancelled more than a month previous to that date.

"Under date of May 2, 1903, the defendant company entered into a contract with the Wilbur Opera company similar to the one just mentioned, except that the period of performance was to be for ten weeks, and a 5 per cent advantage in the division of the receipts, over the other contract, was given the defendant company; and the latter contract is claimed by the defendant company to be merely a modification of the former one. The defendant's president claims that about March 15, 1903, he had a conversation with Ferris, and talked over the first Wilbur contract, and that Ferris knew that the Wilbur company had an existing contract. This is denied by Ferris.

"The defendants oppose the granting of the injunction upon three grounds now to be stated.

"1. Because a court of equity cannot by an injunction in effect enforce the specific performance of the contract between the plaintiff and the defendant company.

"This ground of objection assumes the existence of a contract as claimed by the plaintiff, and is, in effect, a claim that the complaint does not state a cause of action.

"I do not think the complaint states a perfectly good cause of action. It is, of course, true that a plaintiff cannot by injunction or otherwise compel an actor to act, although he has entered into a perfectly valid agreement with him to do so, and has agreed not to act or sing except for the plaintiff; but a court may enjoin an actor from acting in violation with his contract. A court of equity cannot by injunction enforce the performance of contracts which require the performance of varied and consinuous acts, but it can restrain the breach of negative covenants. So, in this case, conceding that Ferris has a valid contract, the court cannot compel the defendant to furnish an orchestra, and make it play, or to furnish ushers, employes, scenery, etc.; but it can restrain a breach of its covenants not to play another company in its house during the continuance of the contract. The principles stated are supported by numerous authorities.

"If plaintiff's contract were conceded to be as he claims it, I would feel no hesitancy in granting an injunction restraining the defendant from producing another play during the life of the contract.

"2. Because a court of equity will not enjoin the execution of a contract previously entered into with an innocent third party.

"The contention of the plaintiff upon this point is that the Wilbur Opera company's contract of Dec. 11, 1902, modified by the contract dated May 2, 1903, antedated the claimed extension of the Ferris contract, and that if the injunction were allowed, the Wilbur Opera company, innocent of any wrong, would be injured. There is some authority for the defendant's contention. The reasoning which supports such a result is not wholly satisfactory; and if plaintiff's contract were conceded, considering the somewhat equivocal character of the circumstances surrounding the execution of the second Wilbur contract, and the provision for a termination upon thirty days' notice, I would feel little hesitancy in granting the injunction.

"3. Because a court of equity will not issue a temporary injunction when the answer denies the equities of the complaint.

"The general rule is as claimed by the defendant, but it is not inflexible. If the court deems it quite probable that the material statements of the complaint will turn out to be true, it may grant the injunction. It is, however, an exceptional case, which warrants the granting of an injunction under these circumstances, and the relative inconvenience and injury to the parties are to be considered. In this case a wrong definitely fixed is a serious injury to one of the parties.

"Something like 100 pages of verified pleadings and affidavits have been carefully gone over in the case that suggest grave suspicions that the defendant company has not acted fairly, and that it may be attempting to exercise an arbitrary power regardless of the rights of Ferris. One of the greatest aids to a court in ascertaining the truth is the opportunity of hearing the testimony of witnesses and seeing them when they are testifying, and one of the greatest instruments for the assertion of truth afforded by the law is the right of cross-examination. The court has not the benefit of either of these in a preliminary hearing upon affidavits. The parties are at direct variance. The sworn affidavits are in direct conflict. Charity will overlook some discrepancies; but it is not uncharitable to say that in this case one or both parties, for some temporal advantage, are producing testimony which is wilfully false. The burden of proof is somewhat upon the plaintiff, and under the rule as to the issuance of temporary injunctions I am, with considerable hesitation, brought to the conclusion that an injunction should not, in the exercise of a proper discretion, be granted. If it were not necessary that a decision be made at once, I should be inclined to hear oral testimony.

"The plaintiff is not left wholly remediless. To a considerable extent the damages claimed by him are special, and can be recovered in an action at law, if his contract is as he claims it to be. He is not precluded from recovering for a loss of profits, although legal proof of such loss may be difficult.

"The parties should be left as the court found them. Neither plaintiff nor defendant is restrained from doing anything and they may protect their legal rights in such manner as they deem best."

THE GAUSS IS SAFE.

Antarctic Steamer Reported on Way to Capetown.

Berlin, June 1.—A dispatch received here from Durban, Natal, today, announced that the German Antarctic steamer Gauss, concering whose safety considerable apprehension was felt, passed Durban yesterday, on her way to Capetown.

QUIET AT JACKSON.

SHIPMENTS OF ORE

Traffic to Date Is Ahead of That of Last Year.

Two Roads Make Up Their Losses of Month of April.

The ore shipments from mines in this county to docks, took a spurt for the past month, and the two range roads are ahead of their tonnage a year ago May 31.

The comparative statements of the three roads carrying ore to the docks in tonnage, showing the amount carried last month, a year ago last month, and the total amount up to June 1, in each year, are as follows:

Following were the shipments of each road during the month of May in the past two years:

	1902.	1903.
Duluth Missabe & Northern	616,448	702,646
Duluth & Iron Range..	704,498	893,569
Great Northern	472,937	651,985
	1,793,583	2,278,199

The shipments by the same roads for the season up to June 1, have been as follows:

	1902.	1903.
Duluth, Missabe & Northern	931,155	1,002,591
Duluth & Iron Range ..	1,148,424	1,111,699
Great Northern	687,178	789,254
	2,766,757	2,902,532

Despite the heavy gales and thick weather on the lakes in May, which caused a great deal of hampering to shipping, the ore shipments at all docks were larger than in May a year ago and all but the Iron Range road made up the losses for the month of April, when the strikes retarded the shipments of this valuable commercial article.

Up to date, June 1, the total amount of iron ore shipped by the mines to the docks at the head of the lakes amounted to 2,902,532 tons of ore. The total June 1, 1902, was 2,766,757 and the increase to date is 135,776 tons.

The Iron Range road footed up 37,000 tons short of the season's work up to June 1 last year, though for the month of May the road carried 180,000 tons more than a year ago in that month.

The Great Northern road exceeded the amount of ore carled a year ago in May by 178,000 tons, but the April shipments were larger on both roads in 1902 than this year.

Officers of the steel corporation believe that July will see the shipments greatly increased, as the navigation is open and rail in that month.

The train on all the roads are being run up to their capacity at present, and will continue to do so, unless lake transportation becomes blocked by bad weather.

WILL REFER TO COUNCIL

Desire of East Superior Street Owners Will Be Submitted.

As a result of the vigorous protest against paving East Superior street east of Sixteenth avenue until next year, the board of public works adjourned today without making the proposed assessment of $354 a lot for that improvement.

Without any recommendations, the board will present the facts of the case to the council this evening, and it is likely that some action will then be taken and the board will either make or postpone the assessment at a meeting tomorrow.

There was a large delegation of interested property owners at the city hall when the time for the first hearing was announced at 10 o'clock this morning. They urged the board to let the improvement which they petitioned for go over till spring, by which time they would be in a definite position to say which was the best paving—bituminous macadam or sheet asphalt. The members of the board could easily have given the desired information, for, with all city officers, the members of the board have made considerable of a study of street paving, and it is the consensus of opinion about the city hall that asphalt is the poorest kind of a paving for Duluth, while bituminous macadam is considered about the best, providing it can be obtained at a sufficiently reasonable price.

There was a delegation of Lake avenue property owners at the meeting, bent on a mission directly opposite—the Lake avenue people wanted their improvement made as speedily as possible, and were given every assurance that it would be. This assessment was made and will be confirmed within a week or ten days.

SHOT NEAR POOR FARM.

Wolves Are Found Close to City Limits.

Wolves are being found very close to the city limits. This morning George Aldridge brought to the county auditor's office the pelt of a full grown male wolf. He shot the animal near the poor farm. Under the recent state law the male wolf bounty is $15, one half being paid by the state and one half by the county. Under the old law a male wolf's pelt was worth but $8.30.

Mr. Aldridge says that he has seen a number of wolves in the vicinity where he shot the one he brought in this morning. Wolf hunters cannot resort to poisoning with any degree of sucess at this time of the year, for the reason that a wolf, as soon as the poison begins to work in his system, makes off at full speed, and when about to sucumb, crawls into some thicket to die. In the winter the hunters had no trouble tracking a poisoned wolf to his last resting place.

Now Pleads Guilty.

Jacob Zimmerman, of Chisholm, who was one of those indicted by the last grand jury of permitting a gambling device to be operated in his building, and who entered a plea of not guilty in district court, appeared through his attorney this morning and changed his plea to guilty. Zimmerman was given a fine of $200 or the alternative of four months in the county jail. The fine was paid. This brings the total in fines from range gamblers this term of court up to about $800.

ONE HUNDRED PERSONS DEAD

Gainesville, Ga., Struck By Fearful Tornado.

Cotton Mills Destroyed and Hotel Unroofed.

Atlanta, Ga., June 1.—A long-distance message from Gainesville, says: Shortly after the noon hour today the city was struck by a tornado, killing, it is claimed, 100 persons, unroofing the City hotel, and other large buildings and destroying the Gainesville cotton mills.

The death list will not be known until the debris is cleared away. The greatest loss of life is reported in the destruction of the cotton mills, where about eighty are believed to be killed and a score injured. Eighteen persons were killed. There were 500 at work in the cotton mills when the storm came.

The mill was a three-story building. The roof of the city electric car barn was blown off.

The tornado struck the town in the southern portion. It came with a frightful roar and the day was turned into night. As the people fled they were caught by the wind and blown in all directions.

Some houses were torn into fragments. Others were lifted from their foundation and carried in the air for blocks, roofs sailed like leaves in the air and many persons were picked up by the storm and carried over houses and trees. The Bell Telephone company and the Western Union company lost all their wires, but the Bell company got a wire working shortly afterward and the Western Union put a wire into service. Both these wires were turned over to the city to be used in calling for physicians. Every town that can be reached has been urged to rush surgeons to Gainesville.

It is now believed the death list of 100 is a conservative estimate.

Such wounded as have been rescued are being cared for and everybody who is uninjured is at work relieving the suffering.

The property loss cannot be estimated at this hour.

At 2 o'clock the Western Union, in the Journal office, was cut through to Duluth, this side of Gainesville, and later reached Gainesville. The operator says estimates now place the dead and wounded at 200 at the cotton mills alone.

DAM BLOWN UP AT PINE CITY

Disguised Men Overpowered Watchmen and Exploded Dynamite.

St. Paul, Minn., June 1.—A Pine City, Minn., special to the Dispatch says: The Chengwatana dam was blown out at 1:30 o'clock this morning by a party of disguised men, who, after overpowering the two watchmen, exploded five charges of dynamite, destroying two of the main gates, greater damage being averted by the failure of several charges to explode. The watchmen were used rather roughly after they surrendered and their lives threatened should they reveal the identity of any of the dynamiters. Feeling against the dam has run high among farmers for months past, and several anti-dam meetings had been held of late where the abolition of the dam had been strenuously advocated.

IRON WORKS REOPENED.

New York, June 1.—The Hecla iron works, in Brooklyn, which have been closed by a strike of workmen, were reopened today and many men returned to work.

BOILERMAKERS' STRIKE.

Milwaukee, June 1.—The boilermakers in every contract shop in Milwaukee went on strike today. They demand a nine-hour day, recognition of the union and a minimum wage scale of $2.75 per day. About ten shops and 180 men are affected.

VESSELS TIED UP.

Norfolk, Va., June 1.—Thirty-seven steam vessels are tied up at this port today as the result of the refusal of owners to grant the new scale of wages adopted by the marine engineers beneficial association. Most of the vessels are tug boats in the river, harbor and bay service. Many owners have complied with the demand of the engineers, including the Norfolk & Western Steamboat company, Merritt Wrecking company, Bennett's Line, West Norfolk Ferry, Atlantic Coast Line and the Chesapeake & Ohio. Commerce has been badly crippled.

DECISION WILL STAND.

Washington, June 1.—The report of Capt. J. V. Blueker, acting commandant of the Bremerton navy yard at Seattle, relative to the immoral conditions in the vicinity of the yard, has been received by Acting Secretary Darling, and in view of its contents the navy department declines to alter its decision. The department has also received from a San Francisco firm a proposition to dock the New York free of pay, and, if necessary, the New York will be docked there.

NEW NATIONAL BANK.

Washington, June 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The application of Toltef Jacobson, of Alexandria, and Rev. Jacobson, Nels M. Evenson, H. A. Leroy and M. N. Koll to organize the First National bank of Osakis with $25,000 capital has been approved by the comptroller of the currency.

WILL BE RECOGNIZED.

Washington, June 1.—It is probable that the United States government will recognize the legality of President Castro's decree closing a number of ports in Venezuela now in the possession of the insurgents.

CRUISER AGROUND.

Paris, June 1.—The German cruiser Ariadne, flagship of Admiral Prince Henry of Prussia, which arrived at Brest with the rest of the German squadron, May 14, grounded amidships today on the extension of the breakwater, now in course of construction at Brest.

WHITAKER WRIGHT MUST GO.

Washington, June 1.—The United States supreme court has refused to grant a writ of habeas corpus, in the case of Whitaker Wright, the financial operator, who is in custody in New York awaiting extradition on charges made in England. The opinion affirms the decision of the United States circuit court for the southern district of New York.

PROFESSOR HICKS DEAD.

Wooster, O., June 1.—Professor John F. Hicks, assistant botanist of the Ohio agricultural experimental station, died today from the effect of a pistol shot fired by an unkown man last night, as he was leaving the home of his fiancee, Miss Mary Gill, of this place.

WILL REFER TO COUNCIL

Desire of East Superior Street Owners Will Be Submitted.

As a result of the vigorous protest against paving East Superior street east of Sixteenth avenue until next year, the board of public works adjourned today without making the proposed assessment of $354 a lot for that improvement.

Without any recommendations, the board will present the facts of the case to the council this evening, and it is likely that some action will then be taken and the board will either make or postpone the assessment at a meeting tomorrow.

There was a large delegation of interested property owners at the city hall when the time for the first hearing was announced at 10 o'clock this morning. They urged the board to let the improvement which they petitioned for go over till spring, by which time they would be in a definite position to say which was the best paving—bituminous macadam or sheet asphalt. The members of the board could easily have given the desired information, for, with all city officers, the members of the board have made considerable of a study of street paving, and it is the consensus of opinion about the city hall that asphalt is the poorest kind of a paving for Duluth, while bituminous macadam is considered about the best, providing it can be obtained at a sufficiently reasonable price.

There was a delegation of Lake avenue property owners at the meeting, bent on a mission directly opposite—the Lake avenue people wanted their improvement made as speedily as possible, and were given every assurance that it would be. This assessment was made and will be confirmed within a week or ten days.

SHOT NEAR POOR FARM.

Wolves Are Found Close to City Limits.

Wolves are being found very close to the city limits. This morning George Aldridge brought to the county auditor's office the pelt of a full grown male wolf. He shot the animal near the poor farm. Under the recent state law the male wolf bounty is $15, one half being paid by the state and one half by the county. Under the old law a male wolf's pelt was worth but $8.30.

Mr. Aldridge says that he has seen a number of wolves in the vicinity where he shot the one he brought in this morning. Wolf hunters cannot resort to poisoning with any degree of sucess at this time of the year, for the reason that a wolf, as soon as the poison begins to work in his system, makes off at full speed, and when about to sucumb, crawls into some thicket to die. In the winter the hunters had no trouble tracking a poisoned wolf to his last resting place.

TWO HUNDRED ARE DROWNED

At Kansas City, Kans., By Crushing of Four Bridges.

St. Joseph, Mo., June 1.—A telephone message from Kansas City, Kan., says 200 people were drowned at that place Sunday afternoon by the crushing of four bridges across the Kaw river by a tank of the Standard Oil company. The tank which had been surrounded by the raging water broke loose and swept against the bridges, upon which there were many people watching the flood. The bridges, with the exception of that of the Missouri Pacific, were crushed and 200 people were drowned. The flood has rendered 20,000 people in Kansas City, Kas., homeless. The town is cut off from Kansas City, Mo., and relief is being sent from Leavenworth.

Col. Miner, commanding the post of Fort Leavenworth, has sent troops and tents from the post to assist in caring for the homeless and aid in the rescue work at Kansas City, Kas., where conditions are constantly growing worse. Many people are in houses that are surrounded by water, and unless they have help soon, many of them will perish. The Kaw river, above Kansas City, has fallen within the last eight hours, but the Missouri is making matters wrose by rising. Many relief parties and provisions went to Kansas City, Kas., from Leavenworth.

MANY REPORTED DROWNED.

Kansas City, June 1.—According to the statements of flood sufferers, which generally are exaggerated, from the east bottoms, about fifty Belgians, men, women and children, were drowned near the Crescent hotel, on Sycamore avenue, early today. They were laborers and their families, who lived in small frame houses along the railroad tracks. Another refugee reported the drowning of twelve persons in a skiff. None of these stories have been substantiated. Many people are yet imprisoned by the waters in the west bottoms.

THE FIOD AT LO CROSSE.

La Crosse, June 1.—Thirty-five homes on the north side of this city are now surrounded by water to the depth of four and five feet, and many families have been forced to move out during the past twenty-four hours. The river is still rising, and at noon today had passed the 12-foot stage. All day yesterday a large crew of men worked on the erection of a dike to prevent Pettibone park from being completely destroyed by the river, which threatened to wash away the driveway at the northern end. Several mills and factories are surrounded by water, and employes are using boats. The situation is critical.

THOUSANDS HOMELESS.

Ottumwa, June 1.—With nearly one-half of South Ottumwa under water, which contains 4,000 houses and business blocks, a large part of West and East Ottumwa flooded and railroad communication cut off, except on the main line of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, Ottumwa is enveloped with an awful flood. It is estimated that between 6000 and 8000 people have been driven from their homes. It is impossible to estimate the property loss. The railroad situation is alarming.

THE HEEDLESS CONDUCTOR.

There were two young and pretty girls, and they paused long enough, in what was evidently an engrossing conversation, to hail a car, says the Brooklyn Eagle. It was on Broadway, Manhattan, and he girls continued their talk while they boarded the car, and paid the conductor their fares. In fact there was no let up, from the time they entered the car at Fourteenth street until they were passing through Madison square. Then one of the girls happened to look up. She stared ont of the window in bewilderment for half a minute and then said tragically: "Oh, Sadie, this is an uptown car." Her companion, after a rapid glance, called the conductor. "Is this car going uptown?" she asked.

"Yes'm," answered the man in blue.

"But we wanted to go downtown. We didn't want an uptown car. Why didn't you tell us this wasn't a downtown car?" she asked before the conductor had time to draw a breath.

"I ain't no mind reader," said the conductor a trifle grumpily. "How should I know you wanted a downtown car when you didn't say so?"

The girls looked daggers as they walked through to the platform and as they got off one of them was saying: "The idea. Saucy thing. He ought to be reported, letting us get on an uptown car and taking our fares and all, when we wanted to go downtown." And the rest of the passengers smiled and said nothing.

POST OFFICE FAR NORTH.

The postoffice department has just closed a contract for the delivery of mail at Point Barrow, Alaska, the most northern point on this continent. By the terms of the agreement the residents of that far-off settlement will get their letters regularly twice during the winter months, says the Brooklyn Eagle.

In the past they got one or two deliveries a year, and they were at irregular intervals, depending on the sailings of vessels of the revenue cutter service. Under the old conditions one of these vessels would arrive at Point Barrow in the middle of summer and probably another late in the fall.

S. R. Spriggs, a white man and a teacher in the school at Point Barrow, has agreed to deliver mails at that point twice during the winter months. He is to make a round trip from Katzebue, on the east coast of Alaska, and some 700 miles distant from Point Barrow. He is to leave Point Barrow about the first of November and about Feb. 15. He will arrive at Katzebue about Dec. 15 and April 1, taking about forty-five days for each journey. For the making of these two trips per year he is to receive a compensation of $1500, or $750 for each trip.

Spriggs will employ reindeer on these journeys. There are only about fifty or sixty persons who will be served on this route. Some of them reside at Point Hope, which the carrier is also required to touch.

At Point Barrow there is a fishing station and a mission school. The few people served makes this the most expensive postal route that the government maintains. There was some doubt at the department as to the wisdom of making this comparatively heavy outlay of money in view of the fact that only a few dozen people would be benefited. The thing that decided in its favor was the isolated condition of the brave Americans who teach in the mission school at Point Barrow.

Water Works Bonds of the City of Eveleth.

Notice is hereby given that sealed proposals will be received at the office of the city clerk of the city of Eveleth, St. Louis county, Minnesota, until the 12th day of June, A. D. 1903, at 8 o'clock p. m., at which hour the proposals will be publicly opened in the council chamber and read by the city clerk to common council of said city; for the purchase of $40,000 of the bonds of said city to be issued for the purpose of extending, enlarging and improving the present water works system, said bonds to be in denominations of $500 each, bearing interest at six per cent per annum, payable semi-annually on the first day of January and July of each and every year, principal thereof to be payable in ten years from the first day of July, 1903, in the following manner, to-wit:

$4000 July 1st, 1906; $4000 July 1st, 1907; $4000 July 1st, 1908; $5000 July 1st, 1909; $5000 July 1st, 1911; $5000 July 1st, 1912; $5000 July 1st, 1913; $5000 July 1st, 1914; both principal and interest to be made payable in gold coin of the United States, of the present standard of weight and fineness, at the Metropolitan National bank of the city of Chicago, Illinois.

That all bids for said bonds shall be accompanied by certified check or certificate of deposit, payable to the order of the City of Eveleth without conditions, for an amount equal to five per cent of the amount of the bonds bid for.

In case said bonds are awarded to any bidder and the said bidder refuses to accept such bonds, legally issued, or refuses to accept any part of the same, when legally issued, the amount so deposited shall be retained by the city of Eveleth as liquidated damages for a breach of contract on the part of said bidder. In case said bidder shall take the bonds, said sum shall be credited to him on account of the payment therefor. All such deposits, except that of the bidder, whose bid shall have been accepted will be returned to the person making the same within three days after such bonds are awarded.

The right to reject any and all bids is reserved by the city of Eveleth.

Dated at Eveleth, Minnesota, this 27th day of May, 1903.

LOUIS LARSON,
City Clerk, City of Eveleth.
Duluth Evening Herald—June, 1-8, 1903.

ORDER FOR HEARING PROOF OF WILL.—
State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis —ss. In Probate Court, Special Term. May 22nd, 1903.
In the matter of the estate of Mary Bernache, deceased:
Whereas, an instrument in writing, purporting to be the last will and testament of Mary Bernache deceased, late of said County, has been delivered to this Court;

And whereas, Zepherine Bernache has filed therewith his petition, representing, among other things, that said Mary Bernache died in said County on the 8th day of May 1903, testate, and that said petitioner is the husband and sole residuary legatee and devisee in said will and praying that the said instrument may be admitted to probate, and that letters of administration with the will annexed be issued thereon to Zepherine Bernache.

It is ordered, that the proofs of said instrument, and the said petition, be heard before this Court, at the Probate office in the City of Duluth, in said County, on Monday the 22nd day of June A. D. 1903, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, when all persons interested may appear for or contest the probate of said instrument;

And it is further ordered, that notice of the time and place of said hearing be given to all persons interested, by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Duluth Evening Herald, a daily newspaper printed and published at Duluth, in said County.

Dated at Duluth, Minn., this 22nd day of May A. D. 1903.

By the Court,
M. T. HANNON,
Judge of Probate of Lake County, Minnesota, acting as Judge of Probate of St. Louis Co. Minn.
(Seal, Probate Court, Lake Co., Minn.)

HEATH SAYS TULLOCH LIED

Former First Assistant's Reply to Charges.

Admits He Could Not Know Everything Going On.

Washington, June 2.—Postmaster General Payne today made public the letter of former First Assistant Postmaster General Perry S. Heath in reply to the charges made by S. W. Tulloch, of this city, formerly cashier of the Washington city postoffice. The letter follows:

"Salt Lake City, Utah, May 25, 1903.—Hon. H. C. Payne, Washington, D. C. My Dear Mr. Payne: I thank you for your courteous letters of the 19th and 20th inst., calling my attention to certain assertions of one S. W. Tulloch, ex-cashier of the Washington postoffice, and also the statement of a Mrs. Winans, formerly of Ohio, who is quoted as saying that she was entered on the rolls of the Washington postoffice with the understanding that she was not to render service to the government. If Mrs. Winans did not render services equivalent to the compensation she received, her superior officers were deceived. I did not know the woman when she was appointed and had no personal interest in her. Her name was amongst the large number always on my desk, and I recall that she was well recommended for a position. I did not and could not attempt to personally ascertain whether persons appointed to positions in postoffices rendered satisfactory service. I do remember that this woman became a nuisance about the postoffice department and that I refused to see her. She was reported to me by my chief clerk as being persistent in her demands for promotion, or more desirable work. She at least pretended to my chief clerk, so he reported to me, to perform services warranting promotion, or better pay. Necessarily I could not follow the details of the work of postoffice clerks; I was compelled to trust my subordinates and to rely upon postmasters. We had a change of administration, a war, the Americanizing of immense foreign service and the taking over of vast expanses of new territory. But I mastered as many details as possible and I proudly hold myself responsible for all that I did, for the humble part I took in the work of the department. I never appointed any person to any position or retained any one in any position, at any time, with any sort of notion or idea that he or she was not to render honest service to the government for the pay received. The intimation that there was an 'honorary roll' upon which persons were placed for political or personal or other purposes than good service is a pure invention. It is a lie out of whole cloth, as are most of the imputations of Tulloch. If any persons were so appointed or retained it was through his own dishonest designs.

"There was a period extending over many months when many more men were demanded for service in Cuba, Porto Rico and at military camps in our country than we could supply. We drew through large postoffices for men from the classified service, receiving many, but when responses from postoffices ceased to be sufficient, we drew names from applicants outside the classified service and conscientiously selected those whose capability and character we deemed best established. In this hurried work of appointments, hurried dispatch of men and materials to scenes of action, some mistakes were, of course, made, but these things occur, and will, so long as men live.

"I made a visit to Porto Rico when the Spanish form of postal service was taken over and placed under our system. I did not seek the trip, and never Goes on a Rampage Through Bursting of a Dam.

All the Members of Family Drowned Near Henderson.

St. Paul, June 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Minnesota river is on a rampage, caused by the bursting of the dam at Big Stone lake, near the source of the river.

One mile this side of Henderson, Minn., the stream is a mile and a half in width, and at Henderson bridge, where at normal stage the water flows through thirty feet beneath, the angry waves are now waving the planking of the roadway. The members of an unknown family, who recently removed from Oklahoma, are all drowned, their house is somewhere strewn along the waters of the Mississippi, and, even did the turbulence of the waters not forbid it, it would be useless to attempt to search for them.

Farm buildings near the river and bridges have been seriously damaged, and the loss to crops will be heavy.

FAREWELL FOR MISSIONARY.

New York, June 2.—A farewell service for Rev. J. C. Hartzell, missionary bishop, who sails on June 17, for the wilds of Africa, has been held by the Methodist Ministerial union of this city. Bishop Hartzell's tour will cover an area of 30,000 miles. He will be accompanied by Rev. William S. Naylor, of the Wisconsin conference and expects to return in time for the general conference, when there is to be a discussion of the proposed merger of the church publishing interests.

MAY EXPEL MEMBER.

New York, June 2.—Judge McLean, in the supreme court, has rendered a decision sustaining the right of the New York produce exchange in expelling a member who had been accused by another member of being connected with or having had dealings with a syndicate which is asserted to have conducted an irregular business.

THE FLOOD SITUATION IS NOW STEADILY IMPROVING

OVER A THOUSAND ARE HOMELESS AT GAINESVILLE, GA.

Death List Numbers Eighty-Five and Forty Are Fatally Injured.

A Steady Downpour of Rain Renders the Suffering Very Acute.

Gainesville, Ga., June 2.—The tornado which visited the towns of Gainesville, New Holland and White Sulphur, Ga., yesterday afternoon resulted in the killing of about eighty-five men, women and children, according to reports which are as yet incomplete. It is estimated that forty persons were fatally injured and many more hurt. Probably 1000 persons are homeless.

Two hundred houses, besides the Gainesville cotton mills, were destroyed by the storm, aggregating a property loss of $300,000. Last night brought increased misery to the storm sufferers, for a steady rain set in late in the afternoon, attended by cold weather, which penetrated to the marrow. The weather and darkness greatly impeded the work of rescue and assistance. The town was in total darkness all night and the streets were filled with debris. All night long physicians pushed their way through the wreckage, guided to the suffering victims by groans of agony. Here and there a fallen tree would block the way, or a wrecked house would stop them. Doctors and volunteers waded through mud and water knee deep, frequently compelled to crawl on all fours. All houses had been moved for blocks, others were missing altogether, and no system could be employed in the work of relief. Mayor Parker says there are at least 1000 homeless, and the number may be doubled later.

More than 200 homes were destroyed. Every door in Gainesville is open to the victims.

At the city hall, armory and court house many persons passed the night, shivering in the cold.

A mass meeting was held this morning at which $5000 was subscribed to the relief fund. A message has been sent to the secretary of war, asking for tents to shelter the homeless, and an appeal for aid is made to the public. The main need of the sufferers now is clothing and tents. Governor Terrell has ordered fifty tents sent to Gainesville from Atlanta.

No Longer Danger of Famine at Kansas City.

Topeka Will Ask Outside Aid For Sufferers.

Kansas City, June 2.—There is decided improvement in the situation this morning and there is a general feeling that Kansas City has seen the worst of the flood. Unofficial weather gauges in the Union depot showed a fall of about six inches during the night, and the official report is stationary, the water being thirty-five feet at 6 a. m.

The danger of a famine has passed and the railroads are confident that they will be able to bring in ample supplies from this time on. The stock of meats in the packing houses, most of which can be taken out in boats, proves to be greater than at first supposed, and there is no doubt that there is sufficient meat to sustain the city for a week, even if nothing is brought in from outside. There is a greater scarcity of food in Kansas City, Kas., but with the opening of the electric line from Leavenworth, it is thought that there will be no distresss of any description. All the cable car lines have resumed and are running as usual. The power plant of the electric lines is under water, and these roads will not be able to run until the water subsides.

The first mails from the West have come in, one late last night, another from Wichita this morning. Nothing has come yet from the flooded district around Topeka and Lawrence, and it is not likely that any will arrive for several days after the water subsides. About two carloads of second, third and fourth class mail matter have been lost in the freight yards. The water is now about five feet above the bottoms of the mail cars, and running strongly. It may be possible to dry out mail after its recovery, but at present Superintendent Taft of the railway service classes that mail as among the lost.

The great danger now is the crumbling of brick buildings and this has begun in some quarters where old buildings are standing. Here and there the corner of a brick structure has gone down, but there has been no general collapse as yet of any large building. All through the freight yards numbers of cars are being loosened from the trucks and are floating down stream. When swept along by the current, they make a high class battering ram and the front of any building that receives many shocks from them is bound to suffer materially.

The gas company has announced that it is hoped to restore the supply of gas during the day, but it failed this morning to make good the promise to supply sufficient gas for cooking purposes. Nine-tenths of the Kansas City households use gas for cooking and the result was that the great majority of breakfasts were cold. The gas company hopes for better luck by night and it has the good wishes of all people who like warm meals.

A mild type of martial law was in force last night. Soldiers were stationed all over the business portion of the city and while no attempt was made to keep people off the streets, anybody walking abroad after midnight was compelled to give an account of himself.

At 9 o'clock this morning the Kaw river was falling slowly but steadily. All through the wholesale district the buildings showed evidence of the decline and watchmen in the freight houses, who had rigged up water gauges of their own, declared that their fall since daylight was about six inches. Unofficial reports indicate that the decline is about one-half inch per hour.

Topeka, June 2.—The Commercial club at noon today voted to ask for outside aid for the sufferers. Yesterday the club voted that no aid from outside would be accepted, but the distress of the people today is so great that the community cannot provide for all, and so the charity of the country is appealed to. This action was taken after an address by Governor Bailey, who has just returned to the city from Mound City, where he has been water-bound since last Thursday. The governor points out to the club the necessities of the suffering people and the inability of the community to provide properly for them and relieve their wants, and said that while he wanted to work in harmony with the town people and its charitable organizations, he saw his duty clearly, and he would this afternoon issue a proclamation calling upon the charitable people of the country to send aid in the form of money.

Topeka, Kan., June 2.—The flood situation here today is materially better. The Kansas river fell during the night at the rate of an inch an hour. The standard gauge measurement at 8 a. m. showed a 27-inch fall from the highest point of Sunday. It is safe to say that all who were in peril have now been removed to places of safety. At the Sardou bridge alone over 200 were landed last night.

The previous estimate of twenty dead is still adhered to. Many reported missing are showing up, but it will only be possible to give the actual loss of life when the waters have finally receded. It is believed that several persons were drowned and that their bodies have floated away.

The work of relief went on throughout the night and has been systematized.

The greatest fear now in Topeka is an epidemic of disease. At relief depots where refugees are huddled together several persons suffering with contagious diseases were removed to the hospitals as rapidly as possible. The absence of good drinking water is another disease breeder.

Money is the thing most needed now, and citizens are contributing nobly. But the demand of the situation is great. Offers of aid from outside cities are pouring in, but the governor and the Commercial club have so far refused all such.

Lawrence, Kas., June 2.—The river here is still falling. Five hundred people were brought over from the north side yesterday and today others are being brought over as fast as possible. None are believed to be in danger.

Washington, June 2.—Adjt. Gen. Corbin today received the following dispatch from Col. Miner, commanding at Fort Leavenworth:

"Issued 10,000 rations to Kansas City, Kans., last night. Need was imperative Ask to have action approved. Rations for this command up to June 20 here. Believe when we can get to the country to the west of us, it will be destitute of food. Advise shipping rations here as central point to meet this demand. Two companies of engineers and pontoon train are in readiness to be sent West. Believe they might be of use at Lawrence."

The department has taken no action yet upon Col. Miner's recommendation for concentration of supplies at Fort Leavenworth.

Washington, June 2.—There has been but little change in the flood situation since Monday morning. The Missouri river, at Kansas City, is about stationary at thirty-five feet, while the Mississippi, at St. Louis, has just about reached the danger line of thirty feet. North of St. Louis the Mississippi is above the danger line as far as Dubuque, particularly between Keokuk and Hannibal, where the waters are three and a half to four and a half feet above. The Missouri, east of Kansas City, is several feet above the danger line and still rising. This rise will continue for two or three days longer east of Booneville, Mo., and several feet more of water may be expected at St. Louis. In the Mississippi, north of the mouth of the Missouri, the additional rise will not be marked.

THE MISSISSIPPI IS RISING IN A THREATENING MANNER

Much Apprehension Is Felt at St. Louis, as a Much Higher Level Would Result In Disaster.

St. Louis, June 2.—The Mississippi river has risen to thirty feet, the danger line at St. Louis, and continues to rise at the rate of more than two feet a day. Indications are that the thirty-four-foot stage at St. Louis, predicted by the signal service bureau for Thursday night or Friday morning, will be exceeded. A thirty-four-foot stage at St. Louis means immense loss. Should the river go higher a paralysis of many of the great industries on the Illinois side from Alton to East St. Louis, will follow. Already tens of thousands of acres of soil, the most productive in the Middle West, on the Missouri and Illinois sides, are under water north of here.

In the past twenty-four hours hundreds of thousands of dollars have been lost to Missouri and Illinois farmers through ruined crops.

The crest of the Missouri has not yet reached the Mississippi and yet the Missouri is pouring into the Mississippi with such force as to make a great lake of floating stationary driftwood just north of the confluence of these great rivers. Missouri Point is the most threatened point north of St. Louis. Missouri Point is a populous, fertile farming country of at least 50,000 acres. If the rivers unite across the point, as they theraten to do, the loss of crops will be enormous. Already hundreds of families are moving to higher ground.

At St. Charles, a few miles west on the Missouri river, the water has spread out over three miles of country, covering farms and driving out the families of tillers of the soil.

Louisiana, Mo., June 2.—The Mississippi river rose one foot here over night, making the stage of the water now 15.6. This is higher than for several years, and the back water in Root creek has overflowed all the lowlands. The damage here will be heavy. Galt river is still rising and steamboats and pleasure yachts are busy rescuing stock. The Spy levee here will stand twenty feet of water, but much apprehension is felt on account of the rise now coming from above.

Lexington, Mo., June 2.—The Missouri river here is still rising and is within six inches of the high-water mark of 1881. Fifty square miles of bottom land opposite here is covered. Houses and barns are floating down the river today. The government steamer Atlanta has removed many flood sufferers from the lowlands here.

SENATOR HANNA HAS THE OHIO CONVENTION ALL ARRANGED

This Is Conceded to Be "Hanna's Year" and There Is Great Unanimity of Feeling For the Re-Election of Roosevelt and Hanna.

Columbus, Ohio, June 2.—The Republican state convention here tomorrow and Thursday promises to be without the usual contests of such occasions even with a full state ticket to nominate and other important business that involves control of the party organization in Ohio until after the next presidential election. As the members of the legislature, who are elected this year, choose the successor of Marcus A. Hanna in the senate this is called "Hanna's year." Those known as "Hanna favorites" have already been nominated as the Republican candidates for state senators and representatives in the different districts and counties and everybody now concedes the same "make up" of the entire state ticket. Myron T. Herrick, Hanna's neighbor in Cleveland, seems to have clear sailing for the gubernatorial nomination. There were a dozen candidates for the nomination, but after a harmony meeting between George B. Cox, of Cincinnati, and Hanna, all withdrew except Albert Douglas, of Chillicothe, who will "move to make it unanimous." While Capt. E. E. Nutt, of Sidney, Senator Warren G. Harding, of Marion, George C. Dunham, of Toledo, and ex-Congressman M. M. Boothman, of Bryan, are mentioned for lieutenant governor. While there will be one or two contests for the minor state offices there will be no rupture in party feeling if the most plausible candidate fails to win. There is a unanimity of feeling for the re-election of President Roosevelt as well as of Senator Hanna.

Senator Hanna will be the temporary chairman and deliver "the key note" speech Wednesday evening. Senator Foraker will speak the next day on assuming the chair as permanent chairman. As almost everything has been anticipated by the conference of the leaders the attendance of visitors is not large.

ARE CHARGED WITH FRAUD

Warrants Are Out For Several Chicago Election Judges.

Chicago, June 2.—One man was arrested last night and warrants were issued for four more for alleged fraud in the vote of the Eighteenth ward in yesterday's judicial election. Three of the men charged with fraud were judges at the polling place, another was an employe of the election commissioners' office. These four are alleged to have acted in collusion with the fifth, who actually accompanied voters into the booth and marked their ballots for them.

LARGE SUM AT STAKE.

McComb Heirs Try to Throw Out One.

New York, June 2.—The executors and heirs of the McComb estate have appealed in the appellate division of the supreme court the recent decision of Judge Truax giving to Annie McComb Herzog, the wife of an artist here pro rata share of the etsate estimated to be worth $4,000,000. Developments since the last trial have shown it is asserted that the estate is worth between $20,000,000 and $25,000,000, the income of which has been practically tied up during the present proceedings. The suit grows out of a provision in McComb's will cutting off the contestant in case she shall remarry Herzog.

STATUE OF HOBART.

Paterson, N. J., June 2.—A statue of Vice President Garrett A. Hobart will be unveiled here Wednesday with impressive ceremonies, in which many of the prominent men of the state will take part. The orator of the day will be former United States Attorney General John W. Griggs, who will review the life of Mr. Hobart.

NEW YORK POLICE RUSH IN ON MEETING OF BANK DIRECTORS

Watchman Accidently Touched a Burglar Alarm and the Officers Were Sent Post Haste to the Bank In Search of Cracksmen.

New York, June 2.—While the directors of the Twelfth Ward bank, of which Thomas J. Gilroy is president, were holding a meeting, the sergeant at the East One Hundred and Sixteenth street police station was heard to shout from behind his desk: "Call out the reserves; burglars at bank."

Sergt. Darcey, the four plain clothes men of the precinct and five men in uniform rushed out to Ludginton avenue and One Hunderd and Twenty-fifth street, where the bank was located.

Once inside the building the force with revolvers and night sticks in hand, searched every nook and corner on the ground floor without discovering a trace of burglars, and then started up stairs. When near the landing Sergt. Darcy heard sounds as of men talking. The police threw back the door of a room and rushed in.

Immediately the room was in confusion. Standing around a long table were a dozen men excitedly demanding the meaning of the invasion.

Investigation showed that a watchman had accidentally touched off the burglar alarm and caused the raid on the directors.

A CHANGE OF VENUE GRANTED IN CASES OF JETT AND WHITE

Jackson, Ky., June 2.—The night passed quietly, some shooting occurring in the outskirts of the town, but none in the vicinity of the jail or camp. Scouting parties under Capt. Clements and Lieut. Evans, under orders from Col. Williams to capture the searchlight, if seen, reported at daylight that nothing had been seen of the light. Court convened at 9:30. A motion for a change of venue was made on the grounds of inability to secure an ellsor satisfactory to both sides. Curtis Jett and Tom White were interviewed and both were apparently indifferent to the result of the motion for a change of venue, their attention being taken up with a game of cards.

Commonwealth Attorney Byrd introduced the motion to change the trial of White and Jett for the murder of James Marcum and in the case of Jett for the murder of James Cockrill to another district on the ground that there is such a state of lawlessness existing in Breathitt county that a fair trial cannot be had in this district. Judge Redwine said that under the statute, the defendants have no right to be heard on the motion and he thought the motion should be granted.

Fulton French, for the defense, insisted on being heard and declared that the prisoners could have a fair trial here, but Judge Redwine refused to hear him further.

Judge Redwine then ordered the cases to Morgan county circuit court and trial was set for June 23. This is Judge Kenner's court and is at West Liberty, seven miles from a railroad. Col. Williams was then ordered to convey the prisoners back to jail. Judge Redwine's brother is prosecuting attorney of Morgan county.

EXTRA SESSION OF THE IOWA LEGISLATURE NOT NECESSARY

Governor Cummins Believes He Can Care For the Flood Sufferers By Borrowing Money—The Situation at Des Moines Is Dismal.

Des Moines, June 2.—It has been practically determined that there will be no extra session of the legislature. Governor Cummins is satisfied that he can supply the needs of the flood sufferers and tornado victims in an irregular manner by borrowing money and have the next session of the legislature approve his course. The situation in Des Moines is still disheartening, although the water continues to fall rapidly.

The wide territory that was flooded presents a sad picture. Men and women, who have anxiously watched for the water to go down, today wandered over the muddy streets to the houses which had been their homes. As each one looked through the door of their home, an expression of an almost abandoned hope passed over their countenances. There, within the ruins, furniture was scattered about the rooms, mud covered the carpets and the walls were coated with a dirty slime.

Many are planning to move out of these places. The walls are damp and every effort will be put forth by the committees in the field to see that they are dried as rapidly as possible, for sickness, it is feared, may come if people are allowed to enter them in the present state. Train service is no more satisfactory than yesterday. Water floats through the main strets of Ottumwa; four miles of the main line of the Burlington tracks are under water; the light and water plants are shut down and business is prostrated. The main southwest line of the Rock Island has not sent a train through Eldon for three days. Numerous bridges have been washed out between there and Keokuk. At Benton, Farmington and Bonaparte great damage has been wrought by the flood and half of the towns are under water. But it is near the mouth of the river, at Keokuk, that conditions are the worst today. The situation is appalling. The river is six and eight miles wide in places, and in every direction may be seen refugees on roofs of houses and in trees shouting for succor that seems impossible.

ASSASSAIN OF LINCOLN SAID TO HAVE LIVED TILL THIS YEAR

St. Louis, June 2.—A special to the Globe-Democrat from Enid, Okla., says: Junius Brutus Booth, the actor, and nephew of John Wilkes Booth, the assassin of President Lincoln, has fully identified the remains of the man known as David E. George as his uncle. George, or Booth, committed suicide here Jan. 14 last, and in his effects was found a letter directed to K. L. Bates, of Memphis, Tenn. Mr. Bates came here at once and fully identified the body as John Wilkes Booth. He then went East and has obtained positive identification of the remains from the dead man's nephew and from Joseph Jefferson, Miss Clara Morris and a score of others who knew him in his early days.

According to Mr. Bates' story he had acted as Booth's confidential agent and attorney for nearly forty years. After Lincoln was shot the assassin escaped to the Garrett plantation in Virginia. According to Mr. Bates the man who was killed was named Ruddy. Being warned Booth left Garrett's and was taken care of by friends in Central Kentucky. He later settled at Glenrose Mills, Texas, where he conducted a store for several years as John St. Helen.

SAILOR TALKS WITHOUT TONGUE

Baltimore, June 2.—William Andrews, a sailor, whose tongue and tonsils were recently removed at the city hospital during an operation for cancer, can still talk. Even a portion of the larynx was clipped off. A small hole was left in the throat just above the larynx so that the patient could breathe. While a physician was renewing the dressing the patient surprised him by speaking indistinctly. He continues to talk whenever the doctors are near, but they say he will die within a year, owing to the spread of the cancerous growth.

BENEFIT FOR "BIFF" HALL'S FAMILY

Chicago, June 2.—The Olympic theater was crowded all the afternoon and evening yesterday on the occasion of the benefit performance for the family of the late Justice William T. "Biff" Hall. The statement was made by the managers last night that the proceeds would be between $3000 and $3060. The program included scenes from nearly every play now at the theaters of the city, and many vaudeville numbers volunteered for the occasion. It was the largest and most interesting program ever offered at any benefit in Chicago and, although the performance lasted continuously from 12:30 in the afternoon until nearly 11 o'clock at night, there was not a single repetition, excepting the Kinodrome display. The exact amount realized from the sale of boxes and tickets will not be known for several days, as several hundred tickets that were sent to New York and other cities are still outstanding.

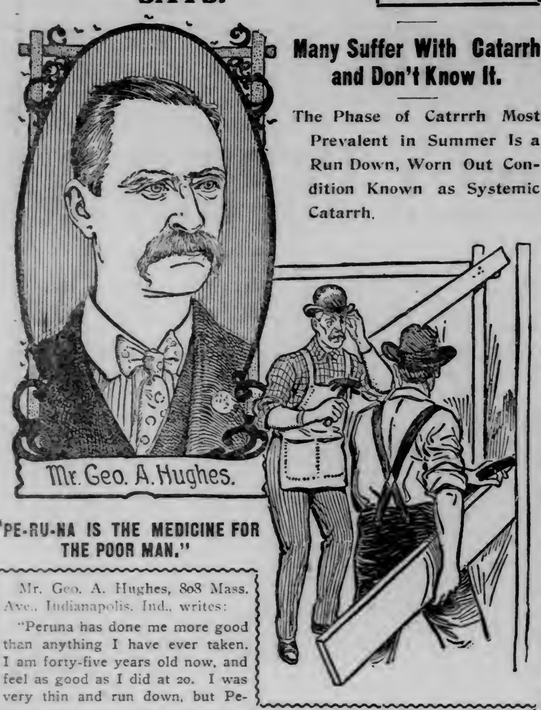
MR. GEO. A. HUGHES SAYS:

"I FEEL AS GOOD AS I DID AT 20."



Many Suffer With Catarrh and Don't Know It.

The Phase of Catrrrh Most Prevalent in Summer Is a Run Down, Worn Out Condition Known as Systemic Catarrh.

"PE-RU-NA IS THE MEDICINE FOR THE POOR MAN."

Mr. Geo. A. Hughes, 808 Mass. Ave., Indianapolis, Ind., writes:

"Peruna has done me more good than anything I have ever taken. I am forty-five years old now, and feel as good as I did at 20. I was very thin and run down, but Peruna acted just right in my case. I am a carpenter and sometimes need a tonic. Peruna is the medicine for a poor man."—Geo. A. Hughes.

MR. R. M. BAKER, a prominent citizen of Buckhead, Ga., writes in a recent letter his experience with Peruna to build up a broken down system. He says: "Some time ago I was troubled with catarrh of the stomach and spent lots of money in buying so-called catarrh medicines and paying doctor's bills. Peruna was recommended to me by a friend and after taking a few bottles I am happy to say that I am entirely cured.

"I can recommend Peruna, because I believe it to be the best catarrh remedy on the market. My whole system was out of order and my health generally was very bad, but since taking Peruna I am now enjoying better health than I can ever remember, and fully believe that Peruna did the work. I shall always speak a good word in its behalf."

A Congressman Uses Pe-ru-na In His Family.

Hon. Thos. J. Henderson, Member of Congress from Illinois, and Lieutenant in the Union Army for eight years, writes from the Lemon Building, Washington, D. C., as follows:

"Peruna has been used in my family with the very best results and I take pleasure in recommending your valuable remedy to my friends as a tonic and an effective cure for catarrh."—Thos. J. Henderson.

Catarrh assumes different phases in different seasons of the year. In the early summer systematic catarrh is most prevalent. That tired, all worn out feeling in nine cases out of ten is due to a catarrhal condition of the mucous membranes. Peruna cleanses the mucous membranes and cures the catarrh wherever located.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

AT WEST DULUTH

Sam Richards, for whom the West Duluth police have been looking for the past two weeks, returned yesterday and surrendered himself, saying that he was tired dodging the officers and wished to face his trial.

The charge named in the warrant was using abusive language toward a woman. It was sworn out by Mrs. Mary Daley, a restaurant keeper on Raleigh street, on May 12. Richards got news of the warrant and fled, fearing that the offense which he had committed was a serious one.

He returned last evening and appeared in Justice Stone's court and pleaded guilty.

There were many mitigating circumstances in the case, which were considered by the judge, who let him off with a fine of $5 and costs and a short lecture on the foolhardy course he had taken in attempting to avoid the penalty for his offense. Richards is a well-known milliman in West Duluth, holding a responsible position with the Merrill & Ring company. Family troubles, in which Mrs. Daley is said to be concerned, were claimed by Richards to be the reason for his language toward the plaintiff.

Edward Young, a 9-year-old West Duluth lad, appeared to answer to a charge of incorrigibility, sworn out by Humane Agent Withrow, and his trial was set for Monday. He pleaded not guilty through his parents.

THROWN FROM WAGON.

George Thompson, a Fireman, Is Considerably Hurt.

George Thompson, driver of hose cart No. 3, was the victim of a rather serious accident yesterday afternoon in West Duluth.

He was driving a new team which has recently been purchased by the fire department. The team has not yet been put into service, and they were being tested by the firemen. They were hitched to an ordinary farm wagon.

Mr. Thompson was driving them along Grand avenue, in West Duluth, when they became frightened at a car and whirled sharply about breaking the wagon pole and hurling Mr. Thompson to the pavement. He gamely held on to the lines and succeeded in holding the horses until bystanders rescued him from his perilous position. He sustained severe body bruises and his right ear was almost torn from his head. He was taken to his home and medical aid summoned.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

Go to Nygren's for wall paper.

Fred Caswell has left the employ of the Great Northern and will work this summer in Grand Rapids.

Everitt Smith, who has been working at the brass works, will leave during the coming week for Spokane.

A. C. Elton, of La Crosse, is in West Duluth today on a business trip.

S. T. Cooper, of Virginia, is in West Duluth today on a short business visit.

Miss Alice Lovelace will leave today for Boston for an extended visit with friends in that city.

The West Duluth Barbers' union met last evening. The members decided to take a whole holiday on July 4 and will remain open until midnight the day preceding.

Oliver Olson has returned from the State university at Minneapolis, where he has been during the winter. He expects to remain in West Duluth during the summer.

Private board by the week. Mrs. William Rinalss, 430 Fifty-eighth avenue.

Miss Elle Butters, who has been in West Duluth during the winter for the purpose of attending the state normal school, will return to her home in Thompson, Minn., Thursday morning.

Mrs. MacBeth and daughter Kate were pleasantly surprised by a number of their friends in West Duluth last evening, at the home of Mrs. Neil Simpson, in West Duluth. Miss MacBeth has been an active member of the Westminster Christian Endeavor society. They will leave Thursday for Stillwater, where they expect to make their home in future.

J. M. Lauermann, the well-known West Duluth shoe dealer, is passing around the cigars today. He says that it is a boy and arrived at an early hour this morning.

A. E. Williams, of Minneapolis, is in the city on a short business trip.

J. C. O'Dale, of Ashland, is registered at the Phillips hotel.

Mrs. H. Hughitt will leave this afternoon for a visit with relatives in Winnipeg.

D. R. McKinley underwent a painful operation at the Red Cross hospital recently. He had his right eye removed. The operation was rendered necessary by an accident which he sustained about a year ago when a splinter of steel flew into his eye from a steel wedge.

The last regular meeting of the West Duluth W. C. T. U. for the present year will be held Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. H. H. Phelps. The subject under discussion will be "Our Reform Bureau," and the leader will be Mrs. G. W. Smith. The society intends to contribute toward the fund for a monument to be erected at the St. Louis fair, and will hold a sale in the near future to raise the required amount.

SISTERS IN A SUIT

Legal Fight Over Money Left By Their Mother.

A. O. U. W. Grand Lodge Is Being Sued on Life Insurance.

Trial of the action brought by Annie Jane Prescott against Louisa Johnson was started in Judge Cant's room in district court yesterday afternoon. It is an interesting case in many features, and every session thus far has been well attended by the women friends of the parties to the action. The plaintiff and defendant are sisters, the plaintiff residing out in North Dakota and the defendant being a resident of this city. Some months ago the mother of the parties to the action died at the home of the Duluth daughter, leaving among other things about $1700 in one of the local banks. The Duluth daughter secured the money on certificates of deposit, claiming that the money was given to her before her mother died. The Dakota daughter was appointed special administrator of the estate of her deceased mother, and has brought action to recover what she claims to be her share in the estate.

In Judge Dibell's room the trial of the case of Mary Campbell against the grand lodge of the A. O. U. W. was started this morning. The action was brought to recover $1000, the amount of a policy issued by the organization to John M. Campbell, son of the plaintiff, and of whom she is the beneficiary. The deceased was former assistant lighthouse keeper at the Passage island light, and lost his life Oct. 14 last by the overturning of a sailboat in which he was trying to reach Tobin's harbor on Isle Royale from the lighthouse.

The plaintiff claims the policy was issued Feb. 27, 1899; that the deceased son was a member in good standing when he died, and that the officers of the lodge have refused to forward proofs of death so that the beneficiary could receive the amount of the policy.

The defendant fraternal organization claims that the deceased son was suspended in July, 1902, for non-payment of the July assessment of 50 cents on the date set by the rules of the order, and that the two August assessments were not paid by the time designated, the deceased not then being reinstated, and the September assessment was not paid.

The plaintiff claims that no notice was given that the payment of the July assessment must be by a certain date, and that it was paid two days afterward, nothing being said about a suspension or reinstatement. Plaintiff claims the August assessments were accepted by the local lodge finnder a few days after the date set by the rules, that no notice was received of the September assessment until about the time the son was drowned, and that the local lodge financier then refused to accept the payment tendered.

The complaint states that the former customary way of notifying members of assessments due was by an official paper, and that this was discontinued and postal cards were sent out by the local lodges. The grand lodge repudiates the sending out of cards by local lodges.

John Jenswold, Jr., appears for the plaintiff and Charles G. Hinds, one of the grand lodge officers, for the defendant organization.

In Judge Ensign's room the trial of the action of the Western Land association against the city of Duluth, in which the plaintiff seeks to recover for damages alleged to have been done its property by the proximity of the Garfield avenue viaduct, is still on.

The jury in the case of H. A. Hall & Co. against Jeanette Palmer, returned a verdict of $407.13 for the plaintiff late yesterday afternoon. The case was on trial about three days. The plaintiff brought action to recover $500, claimed to be due for papering and painting the defendant's place of business on St. Croix avenue. The defendant admitted an indebtedness, but claimed that the work was not to cost more than $300.

GETTING READY FOR THEIR TRIP

Duluth-Superior Passenger Agents Going to Copper Country.

The members of the Duluth-Superior Passenger association are getting ready for their trip to Houghton and copper country cities Saturday and Sunday of this week.

The association will go as the especial guest of General Passenger Agent Hibbard, of the South Shore road, who issued an invitation at the last meeting.

A few of the officials of the railroads centering in Duluth, who have headquarters at St. Paul have been invited and high dignitaries of the Omaha, Great Northern and Northern Pacific roads are expected to attend.

The party will have a special on the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic and will leave here Friday evening, probably about 7 o'clock. The train will take the party to Calumet, Houghton and Hancock where the party will be shown through the vast mining properties, and given a general idea of the magnitude of the immense copper values of the Northern Peninsula of Michigan.

There are a large number of local men who are not familiar with the copper country, so called, and they are very much interested in the prospects for getting a glimpse at new places and people.

NEW NATIONAL BANK.

Washington, June 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The First National bank of Bagley, Minn., was today authorized to begin business with a capital of $25,000. The president is A. D. Stephens and the cashier is Sam Oleson.

A. H. W. Eckstein and Joseph F. Eby, both formerly with Charles P. Craig & Co., have gone into the real estate, insurance and loan business, under the firm name of Eckstein & Eby, with offices at 300 Exchange building. Messrs. Eckstein & Eby have been residents of Duluth for the past twelve or fifteen years and are well and favorably known. They are thoroughly familiar with insurance matters and real estate values.

MAY RAISE SHEEP

Dr. Magie and E. M. Patterson May Start Sheep Ranch.

Believe St. Louis County Is an Ideal Location For It.

A sheep farm may soon be established near Duluth, and those who have the idea in mind think that the experiment will prove that they are correct in their belief that this section is an ideal place for sheep raising.

Dr. W. H. Magie and County Commissioner E. M. Patterson were out yesterday looking over a tract of land near the Jean Duluth stock farm, north of the city, with a view to observing its possibilities as the location for the sheep farm.

Their impression was satisfactory, and they may, within a short time, start such a ranch on that site.

It is their belief, and the thought is shared by a large number of St. Louis county people, that no better place could be found for a sheep ranch than the section around Duluth.

The great point on which they base their belief is that there is no better grass country anywhere than here. Grasses grow marvelously. A few scattered seeds in a few years develop rich, green fields of it. Kentucky blue grass seems almost indigenous to the soil. Wherever a tote road is pushed through the woods the grass and clover seeds that drop from passing wagons germinate and start spreading fields of green.

Grass remains green longer here than in other places, also, strange as it may seem. Therefore the season when it is necessary to feed the sheep, is shorter than it is elsewhere. Another important factor, according to the agricultural experts of the state agricultural school, is that the grasses of this section contain more nutriment than those grown in the southern part of the state. This has been shown in experiments with cows, when it was found that milk and cream from cows fed with northern grass were richer than milk and cream from cows fed on grasses grown far her south.

A start toward stock raising and a big one, has been made at the Jean Duluth farm, where horses, cattle and Angora goats are being handled successfully. There is no question about the advantages of this section for that pursuit, as it has natural advantages as well as being handy to markets, and many expect to see stock raising of all sorts become a leading industry before many years.

What Is a Man to Do?

To the Editor of The Herald:

What is a man to do? Just what to do is a very easy matter to tell. When wages are good in all parts of our city it is not necessary for a man to belong to a union or have a trade to get a job at short notice at nearly any craft, nor to ask a traveling delegate where he can work.

PANIC IN MONTREAL STOCK MARKET

Montreal, June 2.—The worst panic in the history of the Montreal stock market was caused by the announcement today of the failure of Ames & Co., of Toronto. Prices declined to the lowest level of the year.

New York, June 2.—Ames & Co. have several correspondents here, including two stock exchange firms—Laidlaw & Co. and W. G. Goadby & Co. The insolvent firm is said to be one of the largest and best known in Canada. The amount of Ames & Co.'s assets and liabilities is not even approximately known here. It is not believed that their local representatives are at all involved financially. The firm of Ames & Co. had a commercial rating of more than $1,000,000.

BEMIDJI'S CLAIMS ARE PRESENTED

Washington, June 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Congressman Steenerson, Tams Bixby and L. H. Bailey, of Bemidji, this morning called on Secretary Hitchcock to urge that official to consent to the removal of the land office from Cass Lake to Bemidji. The Minnesotans were closeted with the secretary for some three-quarters of an hour, presenting arguments to support their contention as the advantages of Bemidji as against Cass Lake as the home of the new land office. Secretary Hitchcock listened to the gentlemen patiently, and merely said at parting that he "would take the question under advisement."

WOMEN LEAD ATTACK BY STRIKERS

New York, June 2.—Women led an attack today by striking members of the Rockmen's and Excavators' union at work on a new building on Avenue B, during which one policeman was badly hurt and scores of the strikers and workmen were clubbed by the police. Granite paving blocks were used as weapons by 300 strikers, who attacked fifty workmen paying Elm street. Several workmen were injured and the strikers were badly beaten by policemen. A general strike of iron workers, engineers and helpers was declared today on a new hotel erected at Fifty-fifth street. The reason advanced for the strike is that a number of iron beams are delivered during the night by non-union drivers, under the protection of private detectives.

There is one firm in our city that a certain union is in trouble with. It seems there is a certain class of our citizens that cannot seem to find employment elsewhere. This firm is simply a small drop in the bucket in our great, busy city. If it was the only firm employing men a great many families would go for the want of bread at the present time. I consider myself a law-abiding citizen and I am in sympathy with the laboring class of people and also organized labor. I have never found it necessary to look for firms for employment where a strike was on. If there was only little work in the city there would be some excuse to ask what a man is to do. My advice is to keep clear of unfair firms especially in time of a strike.

COMPETE FOR A GOLD MEDAL

High School Orators to Orate For a Prize.

High school orators will compete tomorrow afternoon for a gold medal. In preliminaries sold last week a large number of candidates who were preparing for the event were sifted out and four of the best speakers in the school are left to settle the question of supremacy in tomorrow's contest.

A large amount of work has been done in the speeches by the students who are to take part and some very good addresses on well selected subjects will be heard when they talk tomorrow.

Instructor Thomas has carefully trained the contestants and their work will be up to the standard set by the school for special English work.

A contest was also to have been held for the girls, but only a few of the young women showed an inclination to enter and the work of those who entered the preliminaries was not as good as desired so the feminine contest will not be held.

The names of the subjects of the contestants are:

Orren Safford, "Independence;" Albert Evans, "William McWinley;" Stanley Strand, "The Philippine Question," and G. Fitzgerald, "Walenstern."

The affair will take place during the sixth period tomorrow.

CHINESE WOMAN

Will Be Allowed to Go to Montreal.

San Francisco, June 2.—After six weeks of captivity in the Pacific Mail shed, Mrs. Lo Lin, the Chinese Christian teacher and editor, whose plight brought a storm of protest in New York, whither she was going to rejoin her husband and open a school for Chinese children, is to be released on bond and permitted to travel to Montreal, where she will remain pending the receipt of a certificate from China establishing her right to entry as a student.

WISCONSIN ODD FELLOWS.

Grand Lodge and Rebekahs Meet at Eau Claire.

St. Paul, June 2.—An Eau Claire, Wis., special to the Dispatch, says: The Wisconsin grand lodge of Odd Fellows and the Wisconsin assembly of Daughters of Rebakah met this morning. Grand Master Stewarts report of the lodge notes that Wisconsin has 323 lodges with 16,528 members and that there are 192 Rebekah lodges with 9,286 members, a gain of 934 in both together. The grand treasurer reported to the lodge total expenditures of $13,385.71, cash balance $8,013.76. The Odd Fellows home report showed the success of that institution which has twenty-six inmates.

The state Women's Christian Temperance Union meets this afternoon.

Farmer Cured of Rheumatism.

"A man living on a farm near here came in a short time ago completely doubled up with rheumatism. I handed him a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and told him to use it freely, and if not satisfied after using it, he need not pay a cent for it," says C. P. Rayder, of Pattens Mills, N. Y. "A few days later he walked into the store as straight as a string and handed me a dollar, saying, 'Give me another bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. I want it in the house all the time, for it cured me.'" For sale by all druggists.

MAYOR IS ACCUSED

Of Using Official Position to Collect Debt.

Springfield, Ill., June 2.—Harry H. Devereux, the newly elected Democratic mayor of Springfield, is accused of using his official position in an effort to collect a private debt. Frank McDonald, a former resident of Springfield, came to the city a few days ago. It is said that as soon as Mayor Devereux learned McDonald was in the city he telephoned the police department to arrest and detain the man. McDonald was taken in charge and locked up. No charge was preferred against him, and after keeping him in prison all night he was released. McDonald declares an attmept was made to frighten him into paying a note for $250 which he executed a few years ago, and which afterwards fell into the hands of the present mayor. He threatens to sue the city for false imprisonment.

CONTRACT SIGNED

The Street Railway Company Makes Deal For Water Power.

First Delivery of Power Must Be Before July 1, 1904.

The contract which has been pending for some time between the Duluth-Superior Traction company and the Northern Power company has been signed.

It provides that the Northern Power company shall furnish the street railway with all the power it requires, and that the first delivery shall be made not later than July 1, 1904.

"The contract," said Manager Warren today, "provides for the delivery by that date, or as much sooner as the company can accomplish it.

"As a complete safeguard, however, against any failure to deliver the power, or against delays, still further improvements are planned by our company. On the land adjoining our plant here, on Superior street, a fifty-foot addition to the power house will be built and a new 1000 horse-power engine installed. We already have three engines here of different sizes. Our largest engine, of which the new one will be an exact counterpart, is of 1000 indicated horse-power, although it is in fact capable of supplying from 1600 to 1800 horse-power. In addition to this we have two smaller engines of 600 and 150 horse-power.

"When our additions are completed the total power of our plant will be from 3500 to 4000 horse-power. On July 1, 1904, this entire plant will become but an auxiliary plant, to be used in case of emergencies, and the power to run our cars will come from the Northern Power company's plant. The improvements will cost in the neighborhood of $150,000, which will be in addition to the $250,000, which is now being expended on relaying the tracks and other work on the streets. All of this expenditure is made simply for the one year's service and for the benefit of having an auxiliary plant of sufficient power to run our cars in case an accident should occur to the plant of the Northern Power company.

"At present our large engine is not of sufficient power to run all of our cars, and our two smaller ones working alone are entirely inadequate. Consequently when our large engine breaks down it leaves us in a very bad condition, although the breaking of one of the smaller ones does not materially affect us.

"It is true that no additions to our plant have been made since 1892, but people should remember that 1892 was a boom year and that then we made improvements that were intended to last us for years, even at the rapid rate at which the city was then growing. The hard times followed, and the large engine which was installed in 1892 was never used until 1897.

"It alone was sufficient for all our needs until the extra cars were put on in April of this year.

"With our new engine we need be in no fear of breakdowns, for either of the large engines with one of the small ones will be sufficient to run our cars.

"We fear we will not be able to get the improvements completed for the midsummer traffic, but we fully expect to have everything in shape before winter.

"This is a very hard year on the street railway company. We are undertaking vast improvements, and our tracks are at present in a very much torn-up condition, but by next year we expect to be able to furnish the very best of service. Our improvements will be completed and we will have an auxiliary plant to guard against any such breakdowns as occurred recently when we were forced to stop our large engine for repairs."

SHOWED HIM A BONEYARD

Manager Walle Overcome By Collection of Horses Offered Him.

Avaunt, old crow bait, aged and lank!
Amphibious creature, to your tank!
For once and all I shout it now:
"We want a horse and not a cow!"
——WALLE POSIES.

Michael Dwyer, with the reverse English, expresses it.

Never did a man look upon more dilapidated, skinny, spavined equine wrecks than Manager Al. W. Walle in the past few hours.

He was picking out some noble and spirited steeds to be used in one of the big scenes of the "Black Hussar" next week, and inadvertently caused some of the theater attaches to investigate the horse situation here and have some choice animals shown him.

If Mr. Walle had used a want ad in The Herald want ad page, he would have escaped all the trouble.

When he got around to rehearsal this morning, one of the bill men told him he had gathered a number of animals for inspection in a back lot on West Superior street.

Would Mr. Walle come down and look?

Yes.

When Charles H. Yerkes discharged the equines from hauling service on the Chicago street railways several years ago, the newspapers printed several miles of stories about the forlorn, disreputable and big-kneed wrecks thrown upon the world at that time; some for beef and some for sausage purposes.

The descriptions framed by the most talented of the pipe-dream fraternity would not do justice to the assortment this morning gathered.

Director Charles Drew, who felt he might like to have something to say regarding selections, went along. He came back quickly and left the embarrassed manager talking horse to two expressmen, a milk man and a man who would permit their use if he would be allowed to hang a sign on them, "For Sale."

Mr. Walle won $5 on a 5 to 3 shot at Sheepshead bay and got so he could talk horse like a ten-time winner, but the flow of language left him when Mr. Drew did, and he had to listen to argument.

The position was embarrassing, with the employes urging him to select from their friends.

In the midst of a beautiful eulogy of one of the animals, Mr. Walle received an inspiration and an idea at the same time.

"Hold, fellow!" he cried. "This discovery is too great for me to bear. The honor overcomes me; let's away to pledge our friendship in wine."

The horsemen all took a big beer, and the manager got away. He is still after horses.

MEMBERSHIP GROWING.

Duluth Hibernians Taking In Many New Members.

Division No. 1, A. O. H., of this city, will confer the first and second degrees of the order on a large class tomorrow night. The ceremonies will take place at Odd Fellows hall and a number of visiting brothers are expected to be present. The Duluth division is fast forging ahead in the ranks of Hibernianism in this state, and with its present rate of increase in membership will soon be the third division in the state. All are working hard to get in new members and the result is apparent at every meeting when a new batch of applications is handed in. A contest for membership is on between the different divisions in the state, and the Duluth division is taking an active part in it. It has an excellent degree team, and the work of the order will be exemplified at the meeting tomorrow night, at which a large attendance is expected.

TRACK FIELD DAY.

Preliminary Meet Is In Progress at Last.

The preliminary track field day of the high school athletes is being pulled off at the Oneota driving park this afternoon.

The event has been postponed several times during the last week or two for various reasons. Interruptions of their regular training on account of the wet weather last week have put the men somewhat out of condition, but Captain Whipple was confident this morning that several of the old records of the school would be broken in the races this afternoon.

There are a large number of entries for the hundred yard dash and most of the other events have sizeable entry lists. Nothing has been heard as yet from the teams who were to have taken part in the three-cornered meet planned for Saturday of this week and it is probable that it will not come off as was expected.

SUMMERS-RUEDY.

Duluth Young Couple Married at the Cathedral.

Miss Mary Summers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. Summers, was married this morning at the cathedral to William M. Ruedy. Both are well known young people of this city.

The wedding was an elaborate one, and the ceremony was performed by Bishop James McGolrick of the diocese of Duluth, assisted by Fathers Corbett and O'Dyer.

The wedding march was played by Miss Theresa Lynn and Franz Schultz rendered a wedding ballad before the parties commenced the impressive march to the altar.

The bride was attended by Miss Norma Lana and P. Summers acted as the best man. The bride was gowned in a creation of peau de chene, and carried roses. The bridesmaid was attired in a simple gown of white.

The ceremony was performed at 8 o'clock, and a large number of invited guests attended. A wedding breakfast was prepared at the home of Miss Summers' parents, 118 West Second street, where the wedding party went later.

Mr. and Mrs. Ruedy will be at home after June 15 at 121 East Fourth street.

GREAT DAMAGE

Done to Crops In Vicinity of La Crosse.

La Crosse, June 2.—A large force of men is employed in building additional protections to the highway between this city and La Crescent, Minn., to prevent its being swept away by the flood. Reports are coming into the city hourly, telling of the great damage done to crops, stock and farm property in this vicinity and the amount of damage cannot be estimated at this time.

Capt. Peter O'Rourke of the steamer Saturn, while trying to cross the river in a skiff to rejoin his boat, was swept away by the current, the boat capsize and he finally got refuge in an old hay barn several miles south of the city, where duck hunters rescued him.

Just Wonderful How Things Keep Moving!

Busy—busy! Everywhere throughout the store.

The Tailored Suits, Jackets, Coats, Wraps at half price is a mecca for clothes buyers—half the regular price right in the heart of the season. Seems foolish to some storekeepers, doesn't it.

But people who know the store—who lean upon it for things they need, are not so surprised!

They know our way of doing things—they know that when clean-up time gets around that we stand upon no formalities!

No matter how good or how pretty or how much it might bring later—out it must go when the time arrives.

We set out upon this new plan some few years ago—when we thought the store needed a change to different and modern conditions—the rest is an open book to you—the business doubled and then trebled and now it's quadrupling—all of this goes to show that the new way of doing things is appreciated.

People expect at this store—Things, Styles—as early as their cousins in the East—and they Get Them!

But to supply this demand, we must clean up stocks earlier, so's to be able to give you other things earlier—catch the point?

That is why you are able to get such lovely Tailored Suits and costumes and Jackets and Wraps for Half the Price you'd expect to pay—and right in the Heart of the Season!

We're re-adjusting — cleaning up here and there.

Not only does this rule apply to the ready-to-wear garments — but to the Summer Undermuslins!

White and colored Cotton materials!

Household Linens—Towels, Napkins, Sheets and Pillow Cases, Bed Spreads, etc.

To Dress Goods— Silks— Laces— Embroideries—Trimmings.

To the Fine Furniture— Rugs—both Oriental and Domestic—Lace Curtains, Portieres, Draperies, Pictures and Furnishings and various other departments throughout the store!

The keynote has been struck! June business will roll far and ahead of any other month in the year—so far—you'll help!

Some things with prices are renamed today to further impress you with the importance of coming here.

GREATEST DANGER

To Prosperity From Friction Between Employer and Employe.

Growth of Purchasing Power of the Industrial Masses.

New York, June 2.—General feeling concerning the business situation, as expressed by representative men who have given their views to New York commercial representatives, is that prosperity is best evidenced by the remarkable growth of the purchasing power among the persons who work for others.

At the same time it is made clear that it is from this class of the population the greatest danger is to be feared, and that if disaster should come, it would be because of the friction between employer and employe.

The labor situation in Chicago is given as an instance that it is not in New York alone that organized labor is at war with prosperity. It is urged that the solution of the problem is to recognize the fact that labor has the right to organize, at the same time insisting that labor must recognize the rights of capital.

Among manufacturers the demand is in excess of the output. A striking instance of the general extent of this situation is shown by the inability of the automobile makers to fill their orders. Marked improvement in the sugar trade is apparent. Confidence in wool is strong, made so by the unprecedented purchase of clothing by the wageworkers.

Paul Morton, vice president of the Atchison railroad system at Chicago, said:

"There is not the slightest doubt that the country is very prosperous; the workshops are busy, the railroads are lined with tonnage and everybody is employed or has a chance for employment.

"The labor situation is one of the most important things to be considered. The relations existing between labor and capital in Chicago and in the country in general are deplorable. I believe in the right of labor to organize. It has the same right to that which capital has; but it has no more right to prevent non-union men from working than aggregated capital has to say to persons conducting business on their own account that they must retire from trade.

"Except in cases where contracts have been entered into and then repudiated by labor leaders, I have no sympathy with the position of some men, especially those in control of large corporations, who say they will not deal with organized labor. They will do it sooner or later, and there is no question that labor is better off on account of organization, but there should be nothing compulsory about it, and the members of a union should see to it that its affairs are intelligently and honestly conducted.

"Organized labor is entitled to a fair show, and so is unorganized labor, and so is capital, and contracts once entered into should be performed. The present moment, when there is so much unrest, is one in which there should be great conciliation and deliberation practiced on both sides. A few mistakes may change the splendid condition of the country at large. If wages get too high, if tyranny is indulged in by labor leaders who temporarily may think all things are in their hands, or if capital is unfair, the business conditions of the country can be easily overthrown, and in the place of the most wonderful prosperity any country has ever seen we may see more men than work, more misery than comfort, and general distress instead of what ought to be generally considered as great contentment.

"The advance in wages alone among the railways has naturally narrowed the margin of profits, and any further decline in net earnings will surely be followed by retrenchment, which means laying off men, stopping improvements, a falling off in the demand for materials and supplies, and this is always followed by general depression, as the railways of the country constitute the largest single purchasing power in it. As I say, it is the time for great deliberation and the exercise of the highest order of intelligence."

George H. Barbour, of Detroit, vice president and general manager of the Michigan Stove company, made this statement:

"For the last two years the demand for nearly every manufactured article has been in excess of the product, and there is not any surplus stock of anything now. As people continue prosperous and are earning good wages they not only replenish their present needs but add a few luxuries to the enjoyment of life. A good illustration of this is the wonderful demand for automobiles by people in moderate circumstances, who a few years ago could not afford horses. Some of the automobile factories in Detroit are running days, nights and Sundays.

"The year 1903 will be a good year, and under natural conditions the replenishment of necessaries will be sufficient to maintain the present tide of prosperity. I cannot see anything that will push us back in the West, except failure of crops. Crops produce money, which finds reflection in every line of trade. There may be weakness in the future supply of pig iron, based upon present prices.

"If the laborer is earning fairly good wages, the natural tendency is to buy a lot, if he has not one already, and the possession of the land is followed by the desire to build a home. The expense of building even a modest house has increased at least 35 1-3 per cent in the last few years, but while there has been this increase, it is better for the laborer to build and take a chance on the continuation of good times.

"Strikes will, of course, continue just as long as we have prosperity. The laborer sees prosperity on every side of him, and it is only right and natural that he should wish to share it. The only thing we have to fear today is an overproduction, and investigation shows that there has been a large increase.

"Collections in a general way are good; those of the fall of 1902 not, however, quite so good as in the corresponding period of 1901. The demand for money is heavier than usual. Manufacturers are working to the fullest capacity, and consequently need more money. Business conditions in the West are satisfactory."

W. J. McCahan, president of the W. J. McCahan Sugar Refining company, of Philadelphia, has this to say:

"For the last six months the sugar business has been very dull, with prices declining during the greater part of the time. Indications now are that it will be better all summer. We have had no difficulty with collections, selling nine-tenths of our sugars for cash.

"I see nothing to interfere with a continuance of general business prosperity, unless labor troubles and strikes, the extent of which I cannot judge, have taken enough men from work to restrict appreciably the buying power of the people. Outside of this, conditions seem good. Labor generally is employed at high wages and wheat is high, so that it would seem that producers must have a good deal of money to spend."

Theodore Justice, of Justice, Bateman & Co., Philadelphia wool merchants, said:

"The one cloud on the business horizon is the danger from trades unions. If our prosperity is halted it will be through the friction between employe and employer.

"Our own trade presents a peculiar condition. Apparently there are good reasons why wool prices are safer against decline than at any time in many years, yet the apathy of buyers is such that they do not take wool freely. Among the conspicuous reasons for confidence in wool is the great clothing purchasing power of the industrial masses who were never before so well employed, nor at such high wages.

"Another favorable factor in the situation is the government crop report of 98 per cent as against 81 per cent, the average of the last ten years.

"An unerring indication of the volume of business is railroad earnings. Measured by this standard, the merchandise movement exceeds all previous records."

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer one hundred dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address

NEW YORK WOMAN

Sends Her "Voice" Away to Be Repaired.

New York, June 2.—Mrs. E. F. Maguire, of 3295 Third avenue, will send her "voice" to Boston for repairs. While en route it will be insured for $500. It will take fifteen days to make the repairs made necessary by a break in her artificial palate, and during that time she will have to live on liquid nourishment. Mrs. Maguire was born with a deformed palate. Fifteen years ago a professor in Boston made her an artificial palate of vulcanized rubber, which enabled her to exercise the function of speech as freely as any one possessing a normal palate. The device was attached by a hinge to an axle extending across the back of a set of false teeth.

SEAMEN HANGED.

Liverpool, June 2.—Gustave Rau, a German, and William Smith, an American, seamen of the British bark Veronica, from Ship Island, Miss., who were convicted of murdering Captain Snow and six other members of the Veronica's crew, were hanged here simultaneously today. Rau protested his innocence on the scaffold.

PILES

"I have suffered with piles for thirty-six years. One year ago last April I began taking Cascarets for constipation. In the course of a week I noticed the piles began to disappear and at the end of six weeks they did not trouble me at all. Cascarets have done wonders for me. I am entirely cured and feel like a new man." George Eryder, Napoleon, O.

Distressing Case Comes to Light Through the Municipal Court.

Union Keeps Cook From Working and His Family Destitute.

A distressing case of misfortune was revealed in the current unlawful detainer calendar of the municipal court yesterday.

In serving a writ of ejectment a court officer discovered the man he was about to eject nursing an invalid wife and caring for three small children, without money and unable to secure work.

The officer's heart was touched and he sought to offer an apology saying that he did not believe the landlord would have ordered him out had he been aware of the unfortunate circumstances.

The man replied that he was not looking for charity, and, that while he would have paid the rent if he possibly could, he had not paid it and that gave the owner of the property an absolute right to put him out.

He then told something of his recent family history. He was a cook employed in Chicago. Had been a cook all his life, was capable of making good wages at it, but could do nothing else in the way of work.

His wife was in poor health and friends urged him to try Duluth's climate assuring him that he would be locating in a city that was rapidly forging to the front and where good cooks would be in demand.

He brought his family here and applied for a position as cook in one of the large Superior street restaurants. The proprietor wanted him, but told him he would have to become a member of the local union before securing the place.

The cook agreed and subsequently joined the union. Shortly afterward the restaurant strike went in effect and he went out with the other union cooks and waiters. The next day doctors' bills, rent and other bills were pressing him rather hard and he went back to work while the strike was still on.

The union imposed a fine of $100 and the next day when the strike was settled it was required that cooks and waiters either non-union or union in bad standing should be discharged. The cook was discharged and has been out of work ever since. He says he cannot pay the $100 fine nor even his rent and in the meantime has a sick family on his hands without means, home or friends.

When the facts of the case became known today there was some talk of urging the union to investigate and if possible remove the fine and allow the man to go back to his work. Those that have interested themselves in the case of the outlawed cook feel certain that the union did not know the circumstances that caused him to return to work.

Efforts were being made to secure another home for them today and the man says he will have to turn his hand to some other work.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Dowieism Blamed For Child's Death at Menominee.

Menominee.—An incident of the results of Dowieism came to light in Menominee when Mary Meyer, an 8-year old child, died of malignant diptheria, after having been refused medical aid by the family of Nicholas Meath at whose home she was stopping. The child's home is at Ingalls. Undertaker E. L. Lewis called at the Meath home to care for the dead body, and immediately discovered that the child had died of diphtheria. He notified Health Officer Phillips and the coroner summoned a jury. During the testimony it developed that the child, with Paul Meath, son of Nicholas Meath went to Oconto, Wis., May 22, and came home sick. No medical aid was given, but a McCurken and Mrs. Catherine Penrod, elders of Marinette Zion church, were summoned and gave spiritual treatment. Health Officer Phillips testified that he was satisfied Meath knew the disease was diphtheria several days ago. It offered medical aid, but they refused. Another child is now sick in the house, which, with Mrs. Penrod, a healer, is quarantined. The persons held to be responsible for the death may be arrested.

With the return of L. E. Mitchell, who was formerly a civil engineer in this district and who family reside at 1903 Sherman street, Marquette, there comes to light a story so strange that it would form an excellent basis for a romance. Mr. Mitchell left Marquette eight years ago to try his luck at prospecting in the far West. He went to Colorado, where he worked for about a year. Then he was the victim of a railway accident. There was just about to be a collision, and he with several others jumped from the car windows. Mitchell struck on his head and was picked up unconscious and taken to a hospital in Denver. His skull was fractured, and brain injured. Although his bodily strength returned his brain remained weak and he was kept there under the care of a physician for four years. His memory was a blank during this time, but under treatment it finally returned to him. He then immediately set out to earn money with which to return to his family. At the time of the accident the Denver papers printed his name among the list of killed and one of these papers found its way to the family in Marinette, which mourned him as dead. After regaining his mind fortune favored him and a year ago he discovered a silver mine which is very valuable and is being operated by a large force of men. Having become comparatively wealthy in a short time, he returned to his home two weeks ago, where he was welcomed as one from the dead. He will move his family to Colorado to enjoy the fortune he has won.

L'anse—Mrs. W. B. Mason, wife of the prosecuting attorney of Baraga county committed suicide. She stood in front of a mirror and placed a revolver at her temple and fired. It is supposed that despondency over ill health led to the act.

Ironwood—W. W. Turner, assistant postmaster, has resigned and will move west.

Wakefield—A Finlander walking on the North-Western track was run over. His legs, head and arms were cut off and his body mangled until unrecognizable.

FLOODS ARE FEARED.

Helena, Mont., June 2.—The melting snows in the Couer d'Alenb mountains are causing a rampage of all streams. The tracks of the Northern Pacific are in danger near Hope, Idaho, where the water sare up to the rails. The snowfall in the Couer D'Alene last winter was the heaviest in the history of the region and disastrous floods are feared.

BURGLARS FIRE PLANT.

Pittsburg, June 2.—Burglars broke into the offices of Kidd Bros. & Burghers, a steel wire mill at McKees Rock, Pa., early this morning and, finding nothing of value, after dynamiting the safe, set fire to the plant. The main building, a long frame structure, was completely destroyed, entailing a loss of about $50,000.

EASTERN VIEWS OF IRISH LAD

Some Pronounce Him the Greatest of Three-Year-Olds.

New York, June 2.—From present indications there will be an unusually large number of high class 3-year-olds in the big specials this year. The signal triumph of Irish Lad in the Brooklyn handicap brought the fact more prominently before the public that this is distinctively a 3-year-old year.

Irish Lad has been pronounced by some the greatest 3-year-old ever seen in this country, but there are many sharps who dispute this assertion. Fit competitors for the supremacy with Irish Lad are Africander, Meltonian and Shorthose. Irish Lad would stand royal chance to win the American derby if it were decided on an Eastern track, but the railroad journey in a box car, the change of climate and surroundings, and other adverse circumstances must be taken into consideration before Irish Lad can be expected to win the big race in Chicago. But young Mr. Whitney, believing that he possesses the champion 3-year-old in Irish Lad, may send him for the derby, provided, of course, Trainer Rogers coincides with his opinion.

In all probability this year's race for the Suburban will be the greatest in point of interest ever run. What with Hermis, Col. Bill, Pentecost, Advance Guard, Heno, Maj. Daingerfield, Goldsmith, Ranald, Igniter, Gunfire, City Bank, Africander, Yardarm, Injunction and others, the field will be large and high class. Irish Lad is penalized twelve pounds, which makes his weight 117 pounds, and it is not likely he will start. Goldsmith and Gunfire are both in grand condition and will no doubt be candidates from William C. Whitney's stable. Rogers has trained two winners of the race—Tronbadour for Capt. S. S. Brown and Tillo for Rogers & Rose. The Suburban will be run on Thursday, June 18.

VROMAN RESIGNS.

Chicago, June 2.—The board of administration of Ruskin University has accepted the resignation of Walter Vroman, as trustee, and this without reference to his personal or business affairs. The board emphatically declares against the propaganda of political socialism, though one of its departments is sociology with courses in economic and industrial history, and economics from the union labor standpoint.

TARIFFS CONDEMNED

At Meeting of United Kingdom Co-Operative Societies.

London, June 2.—Fifteen hundred delegates of the co-operative societies of the United Kingdom, at their annual meeting at Doncaster today adopted a resolution emphatically protesting against "any tampering with the free trade policy of this country by preferential tariffs."

There were only three dissenting votes. The speakers vigorously condemned Colonial Secretary Chamberlain's preferential tariff proposal.

TO DELAY PAVING

East Superior Street Work Will Go Over to Next Year.

New Fire Hall Heating Plant Bids Will Be Asked For.

The council last night—

Indicated a willingness to comply with request of East Superior street property owners, delaying paving improvement one year.

Authorized changing paving advertisements to secure figures with and without guarantee.

Instructed board of public works to readvertise for paving East Michigan street with sandstone blocks.

Received an amendment to patrol limit ordinance permitting saloon license in New Duluth.

Received report from city attorney denying authority to give police relief association one-third dog tax receipts.

Decided to readvertise for heating plant contract in No. 4 fire hall without asking outside bids.

Vacated city's rights to several impossible streets and alleys in Belleview Park addition.

Asked for house numbering plat for Duluth Heights, preparing that suburb for free delivery.

Complying with a request from property owners the city will not order the paving of East Superior street, between Sixteenth and Twenty-third avenues, this year.

There were not enough names on the protest last night to vacate the original petition, but the matter was referred to a committee of three aldermen, who will undoubtedly report against carrying on the assessment proceedings.

This means that the improvement will go over until next spring, and the property owners will have an opportunity to judge between bituminous macadam and asphalt as a result of a winter's experience with the new paving now being put down on Nineteenth avenue east and on Superior street, immediately west of Sixteenth avenue.

A resolution was adopted authorizing the board of public works to advertise for paving bids in the future with and without a guarantee. In the past a guarantee has always been required, and it adds cost to the improvements. It is said that with good city inspection it would be safe to put down any paving, except asphalt, without the guarantee. It is frequently the case where 10 per cent is added to the cost of a standard paving material simply as a guarantee.

* * *

The board of public works was authorized to readvertize the East Michigan street sandstone paving contract, it being claimed that the $11,000 bid of J. W. Preston was too high for three blocks.

* * *

An ordinance was introduced changing the patrol limit ordinance somewhat in order that a saloon license could be granted on Commonwealth avenue, New Duluth. It is claimed by those interested in the ordinance that a well-regulated saloon in this district would do away with the present blind pig evil which is rampant on a little island in the St. Louis river opposite New Duluth, but over which the state of Minnesota does not exercise jurisdiction. The ordinance was not passed but referred to the ordinance committee.

* * *

For many years past it has been the practice of the city to give one third of the dog tax money to the relief fund of the police department, but from now on this practice will likely be declared out of order. Alderman Sang recently asked the city attorney if the city had any legal right to give this money to the police relief association, and Mr. Mitchell has filed a report in which he says that the charter does not give any authority for such an appropriation.

* * *

At the request of Mayor Hugo the council will not advertise for outside bids for the heating apparatus of No. 4 fire hall, but will readvertise for bids from local institutions.

* * *

The city's streets and other rights-of-way in a certain portion of Belleview Park addition, West Duluth, were vacated last evening to make room for the big stone-crushing plant to be located on the rock-ribbed hillside between Fifty-seventh and Fifty-ninth avenues west.

* * *

An engineering estimate as to the cost of paving the Lake avenue viaduct with creosoted blocks was asked for last evening by Alderman Wing.

* * *

In regard to Alderman Barnes' request that the new feeder lines to the city's proposed gas supply plant at West Duluth be laid in Oneota street, the board of water and light commissioners notified the council that such a plan would be impracticable owing to the extra expense it would entail.

* * *

Proposed free delivery mail service on Duluth Heights resulted in the council's authorizing the city engineer to draft a house-numbering plat for property in that suburb.

FOR ST. LUKE'S HOSPITAL.

Annual Charity Ball By Young Ladies' Club.

Last evening the third annual charity ball of the Young Ladies' club was given at the Armory. The balls, which have been given for the past three years for the benefit of St. Luke's hospital, have become affairs that are looked forward to with pleasure by the young people. The hall was prettily decorated in bunting and the stage was edged with plants and potted plants. Fliaten furnished the music and a program of fifteen dances and four extras was played. A very large number attended and the party was gayer than usual because of the exceptional dull spring season in society.

A deal of credit of the party which was so successful is due to Misses Jones, Everington, Bastable, Stoughton, Pearce and Reinhart, who composed the floor committee. The galleries were filled with people viewing the gay scene below. A large sum will be realized for the hospital.

WAR ON PACKERS

Declared By New York Producers and Retailers.

New York June 2.—Retaliation is the watchword in the fight between the independent retailers and the Chicago packers. To offset the attempts to get away their customers the independents, who are going to learn how it is that the National Packing company, the parent concern of the beef combine, continues to operate half a dozen establishments here under permits granted by the health department to the United Dressed Beef company.

To contest the plan of the packers to get possession of the poultry and egg stalls in the markets here, the poultry raisers of Long Island have just formed a mutual protective association, modeled on the lines of the independent butchers' organization here. The membership of the newly formed Long Island Duck Growers' association includes all the largest poultry concerns of West Hampton, Riverhead, Eastport, Speong and the Moriches.

Long Island ducks are famous, and sought after, like Long Island celery and blue points, by gourmets. The greatest duck farms in America are to be found there. If the packers who have now entered into the poultry and egg business succeeded in obtaining the market stalls, it is the intention of the Mutual Protective Association of Independent Dealers to sell their product only through certain designated commission merchants, and make the fact known that only at these places can the real Long Island duck be obtained.

THREE TO BE IN THE FIGHT

Eddy, Dunn and Staples After Nomination For Governor.

Washington, June 2.—Congressman Halvor Steenerson, who is here looking after departmental business, said in reference to political matters in Minnesota:

"There is not much going on out our way, this being an off year, but already there is some gossip as to next year's campaign for the state offices.

"As Governor Van Sant has had two terms, he will hardly aspire to a third, it being the exception in Minnesota to give a governor three terms, though it was done in the case of Governor Pillsbury.

"Rumor has it that my predecessor, ex-Congressman Eddy, will try for executive honors, and if he does, he will have a strong backing.

"Ex-Auditor Bob Dunn is also in the race, and as I came through St. Paul I heard that State Railroad Commissioner Staples would strive for the prize. It is apt to be a hotely contested battle, for the Republican nomination is equivalent to election.

"As to national politics, there is a considerable sentiment in Minnesota favorable to tariff revision. Our people have become imbued with the idea that the president favors a moderate overhauling of the system, and whatever he advocates is pretty sure to find support in the Northwest."

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Jamestown Man Robbed of $8500 In Broad Daylight.

Jamestown—Irvin Hoffman, employed as night manager of the Northern Pacific lunch counter, was robbed of $85 while sleeping. The crime was committed in broad daylight. Hoffman had forgotten to lock the door of his room. There is no clue.

Frank Smith, a Kensa man, will be tried on a charge of having brutally beaten his wife a few weeks ago. Fearing that he had killed her Smith fled up the Soo line with the idea of crossing the border into Canada. He was captured at Harvey, and brought back. His trial will be held in July. His wife has brought suit for divorce.

William Thompson and daughter have been held to the district court on a charge of having wilfully driven off fifty-seven head of cattle belonging to Mrs. Theresa Weston. They will be tried in July. There is a dispute over the ownership of the cattle, Thompson alleging that he paid $200 for them. He has a bill of sale of the cattle from Mrs. Weston, who contends it was conditional on the payment of a sum of money.

Valley City—Valley City is preparing for a Fourth of July celebration which will last three days. July 2 and 3 there will be a gun club tournament with $250 as prize money and many of the leading shooters from different parts of the state are expected to participate. There will be a farmers' picnic and G. A. R. camp fire on the 3rd. The celebration proper will take place on the 4th and John McCochran, of Grand Forks, will be the orator. There will be a barbecue, baseball and athletic sports, fireworks, etc. The citizens have raised about $2000.

It is estimated that $300,000 will be expended for new buildings here this year. This includes $60,000 for two new building for the normal school, a $25,000 addition to the Kindred hotel, a $10,000 armory for Company G and many business houses and residences. About twenty new residences are in course of construction and others will be built as fast as mechanics can be obtained.

Medora—H. C. Plumley, of Fargo, is here selecting a place for the camp of the Scottish Rite Masons, who will visit here in July.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Elton—F. S. Hill offers $10 reward for the detention of his son, Otto R., who ran away from home. The boy is 16 years old, has dark hair, blue eyes and a scar on hand and head. He wore a check suit, black slouch hat and gray necktie.

Michael Lynch, who resided one and a half miles southwest of town, died last week.

Millbank—Never in the twenty-five years' history of the Whetstone valley, including Grant and Roberts counties, have the crops looked so promising as at this time. There has been just rain enough from time to time since early in the season and the ground is thoroughly saturated with moisture. Farmers are steadily giving more and more attention to the raising of hogs and cattle, and all of the creameries are doing an increasing business.

Tyndall—James Benesh has sold his farm for $60 an acre and bought a 240-acre farm of C. Trowbridge for $40 an acre.

Frank Patk, a sufferer from appendicitis, has been taken to a hospital at Sioux City for an operation.

Ira Neal, who spent last year in this vicinity, was struck by lightning in Iowa, where he was working, and instantly killed.

Commencement at the Springfield normal will continue for about a week. A class of six will be graduated.

Centerville—H. A. Stecher, the saloonkeeper arrested for maintaining a back room in connection with his saloon, was found guilty and fined $25 and costs. The case will be appealed, to test the validity of the new city ordinances.

Commencement exercises were held at the Opera house. A class of sixteen was graduated.

Wessington Springs—July 12 has been determined upon as the date for the dedication of the new Methodist Episcopal church. Bishop McCabe will deliver the principal address.

Pierre—A young man named Gardner was drowned in Bad river while attempting to swim a horse across the stream.

Sturgis—Harry Ash has returned from Texas, where he purchased 260 head of 2 and 3-year-old cattle.

HEATH SAYS TULLOCH LIED

made a more disagreeable one, or one where I rendered better service or made more sacrifice. For every dollar expended vouchers were rendered and accounting made. I made a trip to the Pacific slope, I believe, in the spring of 1898, in connection with conditions existing in postoffices at Portland, Tacoma, and Seattle, incident to the handling of the Alaskan mails and local changes, for which a strict accounting was made. Possibly Tulloch did not deem these trips necessary, but I doubt if he had the slightest conception for what they were made or what was done on them. There are two personal references to me in the Tulloch assertions that I desire to mention briefly, and the others I will pass over as unworthy of mention, or for reply from those who have had later access to the official records, for these incidents occurred four or five years ago.

"Complaints were made to me by clerks in the postoffice department, or the auditor for the treasury, that an employe of the latter, named Gilmer, frequently entered their rooms and in a surly, offensive and peremptory manner demanded records and carried them away without leaving any receipt, or simply helped himself, and when receipt was requested, snubbed the clerk making the request. I was asked by our clerks to request, and did request, of treasury officials that Gilmer be instructed to act like a gentleman, and to protect clerks in the postoffice department by leaving receipts for all records taken by him from the department. A displaced document would naturally subject the responsible clerk to censure, if not, indeed, a charge of dishonesty. What purpose Gilmer had in carrying these records from the department I do not pretend to say. This incident had no connection with Gilmer's work as auditor. The other reference relates to Tulloch's displacements from the position of cashier in the Washington postoffice. The first distinct recollection I have of Tulloch was shortly after the induction of Postmaster Merritt and the appointment of a new cashier. A number of Tulloch's friends called upon me and asked me to intercede for his reinstatement. After I had steadily declined to make any intercession, one or two or more men called and advised me, as a matter of politics and prudence, to have him reinstated. I was advised that Tulloch had been collecting evidence of improprieties in the postoffice, and that if he were not reinstated he would expose them; that I would be made to suffer and McKinley's administration would be scandalized. I remember to have stated to one of these importunate friends that I could not conceive how an honest and conscientious employe of the government would want to remain in a position where wrong was being done, much less reinstated under such conditions, and that as he had been a sworn officer of the government, and had not to my knowledge reported these alleged irregularities I would not and could not in conscience recommend him for any position. This is the matter to which you now call my attention and which was then, at the instance of Tulloch, published in newspapers in Washington and elsewhere, and then fully answered. The men against whom allegations were directed had refused to pay the price of the proposed secrecy.

"If there is any specific information that I can give you, or any service that I can render you in any way in collecting facts bearing upon any transaction within the bureau over which I presided until about three years ago, I shall be glad to serve you. Thanking you for your courtesy, and with best wishes, faithfully,

"PERRY S. HEATH."

VAN COTT DENIES.

Says That Charges Against Him Are False.

New York, June 2.—Postmaster Van Cott was not much disturbed over the newspaper charge that property belonging to Republicans with "pulls" had been leased to the government for postoffice stations in Manhattan and the Bronx at rentals exorbitant as compared with the prices paid by individuals having similar pieces of property in the same neighborhoods, with the intimation that some of the postoffice officials were sharing the spoils with the favored property owners.

The postoffice station on Washington Heights was referred to as one of the places leased by the government because the owner was a politician with a pull.

"I don't even know who owns the building on Washington Heights," said Postmaster Van Cott. "I don't know the politics of any one of the owners of the thirty-two stations. I don't lease these buildings, anyway, and have nothing whatever to do with paying the rents. I simply recommend the location, and all the business is transacted from Washington. It is attended to by the division of salaries and allowances, but every lease must be approved by the first assistant postmaster general.

"We don't believe in leasing obscure little stores in out of the way places simply because they are cheap. The owners know Uncle Sam is a good tenant and sure to pay. There is no raffle-off for anybody in the department from corrupt prices here and there, and there is no official favoritism."

SHREWD AUTOMOBILIST.

He Guards Against a Suit For Damages.

Paris, June 2.—Capt. Philip Lydig, an American, while driving his automobile in the Bobs at twenty-six miles an hour, had the misfortune to run into and upset a well-known Parisienne, Mlle. Mathilde See. The American stopped at once, assisted her to her feet, helped her into his automobile and took her to a doctor. The surgeon made a complete examination of the "victim" and found that no bones had been broken and no harm done beyond a nervous shock. The American asked the physician to give him a certificate to this effect, and, armed with this document, the American conducted Mlle. See back to his automobile and drove her home. Later he called on the victim and left a superb basket of flowers. He has a document in his pocket which will be useful to him in the event of a claim for damages.

HEART BLOWN OUT.

Wealthy Young Man Turns Burglar and Shot Dead.

Wheeling, W. V., June 2.—Albert Hodgkiss, aged 26, a member of a prominent family, was shot as he entered the home of Charles Klevis, engineer on Mozart Park incline. Well dressed, with a pistol and bottle of chloroform in his pocket, he was proceeding quietly to the family's sleeping apartments when Klevis fired at him with both barrels of a shotgun, blowing out his heart. Hodgkiss had just been married. His aged father, in a hospital for treatment to remove blindness, is heartbroken and may die. Hodgkiss had plenty of money, and his turning burglar cannot be explained.

"TORONTO JIMMIE" FREE.

Clever Bank Robber Escapes From Rochester Jail.

Rochester, Minn., June 2.—"Toronto Jimmie," alias James Johnson, the last of the Dover bank robbers, who was lodged in the Olmstead county jail last December, to be tried at the coming term of court in June, escaped from the jail Saturday night and is at large.

An accomplice gained an entrance through the window, unbolted the cell door and, with the prisoner, drilled through a large clamp supporting the lock on the heavy jail door, allowing the latter to open. The drills were found by Sheriff Vine yesterday morning. They had been soaped to deaden the sound.

Charles Reynolds, the burglar, who robbed the Stewartsville store a few weeks ago, also made his escape at the same time. The sheriff offers a reward of $250 for their capture.

Toronto Jimmie is said to be one of the cleverest bank robbers in the United States and is the man who caused such a sensation at Morris, Ill., prior to his being brought to Rochester.

BOY SHOOTS FATHER.

Seeks Revenge For Blow Given His Mother.

Bloomington, Ill., June 2.—The police have arrested Darwin Seymour, a youth of 16, charged with assault with intent to murder his father, E. L. Seymour, a well known resident of this city. The elder Seymour was shot three times. The boy declares he thought his father was a burglar. The police say the shooting was intentional.

They say the father and mother had quarreled, and when the former struck his wife, the boy determined upon revenge. When the elder Seymour entered the house last night he was shot through the face, and when he turned to escape he was shot twice in the back. His wounds are serious. One bullet missed. The boy will be held without bail, pending the outcome.

ACTRESS IS HONORED.

Miss Florence Worden to Christen War Boat.

New York, June 2.—For the first time in the history of the navy department the honor of christening a United States war vessel has fallen to an actress. Miss Foirence Worden, one of the principals of "The Runaways," will next September break the customary bottle of champagne over the bow of the largest torpedo boat destroyer now being built for the American fleet and name it the Worden, after her uncle, Rear Admiral John Larimer Worden.

Rear Adimral Worden, then lieutenant, gained undying fame in the civil war by commanding the monitor during its battle with the Confederate ironclad Merrimac, which up to that time had swept all before it. He died in Washington on Oct 8, 1898.

As battleships are named for states and cruisers for cities, the only way of bestowing Worden's name upon a war vessel was by giving it to one of the sixteen torpedo boats and torpedo boat destroyers now under construction. The largest was selected and then it was decided that the honor of being sponsor should go to the sailor's eldest niece.

THE PUBLIC WANTS TO KNOW.

More than a week ago The Herald published extracts from a lengthy open letter directed to Sam Fullerton, executive agent of the game and fish commission, by Beecher H. Ward, of Fairmont, until recently a member of the commission. Mr. Ward was dropped from the board by the governor as the result of charges preferred by Mr. Fullerton. In reply, Mr. Ward cleared himself from all blame in connection with the charges of extravagance which were made against him, and at the same time charged several serious offenses against Mr. Fullerton. Mr. Ward had been accused of having given a game supper at a swell St. Paul restaurant, and submitting a bill to Fullerton, that the latter might making good from the commission fund. Mr. Ward alleged in justification that Fullerton had sanctioned the supper and had agreed to defray the expenses in the manner indicated. Fullerton is now charged by Ward with having furnished the game used at the supper from confiscated birds which were in his custody and which should have been sold, under the state law, and the proceeds turned into the state treasury. Mr. Ward also alleged that Fullerton told him that such practices were common and that he had done as much at a banquet given Feb. 21, to the League of American Sportsmen, the commission defraying all expenses, even the livery hire.

Mr. Ward also showed in his letter that because of his expert knowledge of the price of building materials he was able to save to the state $2000 on the cost of three cottages at the fish hatchery. Mr. Fullerton wanted for this work an appropriation of $8500 when Mr. Ward says he would have been glad to undertake it for $6500. One of the ways it appears in which Mr. Ward made himself obnoxious to Mr. Fullerton and the governor was in opposing the larger appropriation because as a new member Mr. Fullerton thought he had no right "to try to enforce his views on the commission."

Up to date Mr. Fullerton has made no answer to the serious charges made by Mr. Ward, and when a St. Paul reporter tried to interview him on the subject he declined to discuss it, saying that Mr. Ward is merely trying to thresh over the old straw. Perhaps he is, but as far as the public is concerned this is not "old straw." Very few people had any information in regard to the dispute between Mr. Fullerton and Mr. Ward. The public has a right to know whether state money is being expended in the manner stated by Mr. Ward and whether confiscated game is sold as provided by law and the proceeds turned into the state treasury. The allegations by Mr. Ward are serious and cannot be ignored by Mr. Fullerton or the governor. If Mr. Ward states the truth, there should be a change made at once in the office of executive agent of the commission. If they are not true, Mr. Fullerton should produce the proof to show their falsity. But a policy of silence will lead the public to believe that Mr. Ward has stated the whole truth.

DRUG TAX A BAR TO SCIENCE.

The patent laws of the United States at present make it possible to levy a blood tax on many articles "made in Germany" that are used by the sick and afflicted, the very persons the government would naturally be expected to shield from imposition. Phenacetine, for example, sells in Germany, where it is made, at 25 cents an ounce, and here $1 an ounce is charged. Germany, like most civilized countries, does not grant patents on articles used in the healing art, but the United States does, and an enterprising citizen took out a patent for this article, which is not made here. The result is that under our laws phenacetine cannot be sold in this country, except by the holder of the patent, and his price is $1 an ounce wholesale. No matter if you should find out a new process for making phenacetine, under this infamous law no phenacetine can be made or sold here except by the holder of the patent, who is at liberty, and makes good use of it, to "hold up" the sick and suffering to the tune of $1 an ounce for an article costing 25 cents in Germany. Antipyrine used to cost at wholesale $1.40 an ounce, but when the unjust patent expired, the blood tax was wiped out, and it now sells at 35 cents an ounce. Another illustration is sulfonal. Several manufacturers in Germany are making this valuable chemical because that effete monarchy encourages scientific research, and the aniline industry, with all of its important bi-products, is a monument to the wisdom of this policy. A smart American citizen patented the article, sulfonal, in this country, and now levies his blood tax on the poor and suffering of "free America."

The patent laws of this country were originally devised to encourage scientific investigation, but they have the opposite effect, as is shown by these illustrations. It is plain that the inventive genius of Americans and the conspicuous ability of our chemists are kept down by these monstrous laws, and congress should lose no time in correcting the mistake by changing the laws so that no patent shall be granted on articles used for food or for medicine. Germany grants patents only on the process of manufacture, not on the finished product, and the German patent law holds out inducements to the discoverer and the inventor to go ahead and find new ways of making these chemicals, and each new way can be patented. The American laws should be changed to agree with the German laws in this respect.

While the Southwest is flooded, New England has been suffering from a forty-days' drought.

COUNTING THE COST.

Every few days the cable tells a story of some fight in the Philippines in which a number of natives have been killed and sometimes several American soldiers have been killed or wounded, and yet the secretary of war and the Republican organs persist in retailing the pleasant fiction that warfare in the distant islands has ceased and the Filipinos have accepted American rule and have become peaceable and industrious citizens. Why not face the truth and tell the facts of the case—that a large section of the islands are unpacified and that the Filipinos, who have been compelled by superior force to lay down their arms, are not a whit more loyal to the American flag than they were in the beginning and are only awaiting a favorable opportunity to again strike for their independence?

But there is no intention at this time to make any argument. The sole purpose at present is to invite the attention of the American people to the cost of this little experiment in the direction of imperialism. The so-called insurrection in the Philippines began Feb. 4, 1899. Between that date and April 30, 1902, when the insurrection was practically at an end, 69 of our officers and 936 of our enlisted men had been killed, or had died of wounds received in battle. Of the officers 47, and of the enlisted men 2535 had died of disease, and including deaths from accident, murder, drowning, etc., we had lost 139 officers and 4016 enlisted men. There were 190 officers and 2707 enlisted men wounded. Thus the total casualties directly traceable to the war were, up to April, 1902, 329 officers and 6723 enlisted men. Many have been killed and wounded since April of last year. Fighting with the Moros has been and still is in progress, ladronism continues unabated, and above all, the deadly climate is still ruining the lives of American soldiers. The proof of the latter statement can be found in the records of the surgeon-general of the army.

In looking at both sides of the question, the fact should not be overlooked that thousands of Filipinos have lost their lives either in battle or by disease and starvation consequent on the war. Nor should it be forgotten that we paid Spain $20,000,000 for the islands, and that the war up to April, 1902, had cost this nation $170,326,586 in gold. In other words, we have paid more 7000 lives of brave Americans, over $200,000,000 in money, and thousands of Filipino lives on account of our experiment in the Philippines.

President Roosevelt talks as though there were nothing in this question except the establishment of American sovereignty in the Philippines, for he says we belong to the expanding nations, and never says a word about the dreadful cost. But is it not advisable also to think of what the Philippine experience is costing the American people in precious lives and in money? Is it not well to count the cost and figure whether the returns warrant the expenditure of blood and gold?

DEATHS ON THE RAIL.

In a recent editorial on the subject of the alarming increase of accidents on American railroads, the Scientific American called attention to the fact that the railroad companies seemed to place a very cheap estimate upon life, as evidenced by the fact that no special measures were being taken to check the rapid growth of fatalities among railroad passengers and employes. A government publication just issued contains figures that present incontestable evidence that the charge of negligence is well-founded. According to Accident Bulletin No. 6, published by the interstate commerce commission, the number of passengers killed in train accidents during the months of October, November and December, 1902, was 266, and of injured 2788. Accidents of other kinds, including those sustained by employes while at work, and passengers getting on and off cars, etc., bring the total number of casualties up to 12,811. Of these 938 were killed and 11,873 injured; from which it will be seen that at the close of last year our railroads were killing people at the rate of 3752 per year, and disabling them at the rate of 47,492, a rate of 51,244 deaths and injuries in a single 12 months!

Now, as the Scientific American says, these figures are sufficiently shocking in themselves; but their meaning can be better appreciated if they are compared with the casualties in some specified instance of the universally-admitted "horrors of war." During the whole of the Boer war, which lasted about three years, the total number of casualties (killed, wounded, died of disease, and invalided home) in the British army was 27,732, of whom 5727 were killed in action. The Boer losses, if the number of prisoners taken are excluded, were not so numerous as those of the British; but even if it be allowed that they were approximately equal, it is found that the whole number of casualties of British and Boers, throughout the three years, was only about equal to the total number of railroad casualties in the United States, supposing, that is, that the rate shown in the last three months of last year were to prevail for the whole year. Judging from the daily record of accidents during the first three months of 1903, this rate has not only been sustained, but has greatly increased. Should not something be done to put a stop to this needless sacrifice of life, because it cannot be contended for one moment that the railroads are unable to prevent the occurrence of the accidents that cause these fatalities?

Two interesting experiences are reported by Lieut. Shackleton of the Antarctic exploring ship Discovery—that of the man who fell twenty feet, was caught by his harness on a rolling piece of ice and was saved, when if he had fallen a short distance further he would have dropped 2500 feet, and that of the New Zealander who was overcome by the cold on Tuesday afternoon and went to sleep in the snow. The snow drifted over him, and he slept from that afternoon until the following Tuesday morning, when he awoke and started out and found his comrades. Certainly that was a record-breaking sleep in more ways than one.

Capt. Hank Haff sums up the situation tolerably well when he says: "There is little doubt that in moderate winds, when the yachts could cover the cup course just inside the time limit, the Reliance is easily superior to either the Columbia or the Constitution." The exact relation between the Reliance and the Constitution cannot be fixed until the time allowance has been figured. If the new boat has to give the old one two minutes she has been winning by a very narrow margin.

"Honors" are pretty evenly divided in the boodle shuffle in Missouri. The Democrats have lost a lieutenant-governor, and the Republicans a member of their state central committee.

Mayor Harrison, of Chicago, is urging early public ownership of all street railways. Under this plan anyone who failed to get a seat could complain to the mayor.

The author of "Literary Boston of Today," says that John F. Trowbridge lives "in a rarely pleasant home at Arlington." It is too bad that it is not always pleasant.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"The Minneapolis carnival is open—that is the allegation is that it is open," said an Eastern man who arrived from the Twin Cities this morning, after having spent the first day of the "great June festival" in Minneapolis.

"What is meant by 'open' isn't quite clear. I walked around some last evening, and when I got through I discovered that the shownen one hears talking about 'them suckers,' referring to the general run of people who patronize their enterprises, are right.

"It's just a question as to how much they'll stand. I gathered that the 'open' meant open robbery. For I never saw a place where they could charge admission so often and so systematically as they do there.

"First you pay admission to get on the streets where the crowds go to spend their money for 'lemonade like mother used to make,' and tin horns, pop corn fritters and carnival colors.

"Then you pay another admission, and a half, too, to get to another locality, where they yell 'he eats 'em alive,' 'the house upside down,' and other things, and you are permitted to spend a little more to see the wonderful spectacles on the other side of the canvas.

"The only thing that isn't charged for is to go out, though I sppose before the week is out there will be a premium put on departures.

"As far as the show goes, it is a good one, and the city is starting to show a fullness—I mean the streets are beginning to be crowded, and the special trains and excursions are coming in. It looks like a big mistake to make the exorbitant charges to visit the places of entertainment out of doors, for many people will stay but a few hours, and the benefits to the city at large will be questionable at the best, under those circumstances. A big show, with a reasonable amount to attract visitors and keep them in the city, seems to be a real good thing for a city. But unless you have a $20,000,000 world's fair, you can't get people to separate from their cash at such a rapid gallop for more than a few hours at the most."

"It seems remarkable that I escaped it," said Frank A. Randall, of Abelina, Kas., at the St. Louis hotel this morning, "I was in Argentine last week Thursday, and had stayed there for a day then. I was waiting for a man with whom I have some business connections, and he didn't put in an appearance.

"I got thinking about it, and finally, though not superstitious, decided I wouldn't attempt to see him on Friday. So I pulled out and went to St. Louis and up here, thinking I would finish some odds and ends for the season, go back to Kansas City and then arrange for my vacation and see my Argentine man on the home trip.

"I don't know, but Mr. Friday will always have a lot of consideration from me, after this. I never believed in the ill omens that are supposed to be embodied in that day, but it is a strange whim that whenever there has been a chance to take no business through a Friday I have always done it. I got away Thursday night with a feeling that I would be successful if I stayed, but that I didn't want to take chances, and if I fell down have Friday to blame it on to.

"From what I can read the deaths were not so numerous as they thought at first, all along the course of the flood, though there are hundreds of families living along the flats in the river towns where their missing would never be noticed. I have been through one or two floods and have found that it is usually a pretty hard thing to kill a man or woman by water, when there are floating objects always in reach. For that reason I do not think the river flat residents suffered great mortality, and that if they were swept along with the flood they will be found perched in chicken coops and on trees for many miles down the river."

"I never knew a story in my life, excepting the story of my life," said Stanley Feich, who will do funny stunts with the Northwestern Opera company, at the St. Louis hotel today, "I wouldn't dare to tell that here in daylight, either. Come to think of it I did hear of a yarn one time that somebody told at a gathering, and he was hissed to a whisper before he could finish it, and if you can stand it I will tell it; but remember I tell it under protest.

"Once upon a time—all bum stories start that way—a man was feeling around an insane asylum. I guess he was a politician or something on a tour of inspection, because he got rather intiated with liquor and lost his way around the grounds and started to find a path back to the main office.

"He had grown excessively polite during the meanderings of the liquor through his veins, and he was also somewhat disturbed in mind at the presence of so many demented folks, though he couldn't believe they all were.

"He walked along till he came to several men hoeing and digging. They were all in a line and worked with extreme consideration for rhymth of movement.

"'These are insane men,' he said. He looked closer. 'No, they are not. They are working against time.'

"He finally saw a clock at the end of the trench being dug, and thought he would attempt to find out by an ingenious question.

"So he went up to the leader of the tough gang and said:

"'Excuse me, but is that clock right?'

"'You don't suppose it would be here if it was,' responded the leader.

"'You're right,' he said, as he noticed the glare in the man's eye. 'Lend me a hoe,' and he worked till the boss came around with the noon meal."

A Judicial Cure-All.

Chicago Inter-Ocean: The man who is compelled to turn his collar should not be denied the right of injunction, and he probably would not be if he took the proper steps to obtain redress.

Salting the Salt Trust.

Baltimore American: The salt trust was fined $100. If justice could have salted away a few of the members of the combination in temporary retirement it would have given much more seasoning to the anti-trust prosecution.

Seeking an Attractive Berth.

Buffalo Express: There is talk in Washington of reviving the grade of vice admiral of the navy. The argument is made that officers of that rank are needed to command certain of the foreign stations. Perhaps a reason may also be found in the fact that certain rear admirals would very much like to be promoted.

THE WEATHER.

United States Agricultural Department Weather Bureau, Duluth, Synopsis of weather conditions for the twenty-four hours ending at 7 a. m., (central time), June 2.—Pressures continue high in the lake region and the Red River Valley. The "loww" over the middle Mississippi valley has greatly decreased in strength, but light to heavy rains continued to fall over the central valleys and southern states. The Rocky Mountain "low" has shifted its center to British Columbia, but pressures remain low as far south as Nevada. The temperature changes were generally slight but it was rather cool in the South this morning. The winds in the lake region continue fresh to brisk and mostly northeasterly.

Upper Lakes—Fresh northeasterly to easterly winds tonight and Wednesday. Fair in northern; showers in southern portions.

SMILING REMARKS.

Chicago News: Little Willie—Say, pa, can you tell me what anarchism is?

Pa—Anarchism, my son, is some kind of a mouth disease, if I understand it aright.

Philadelphia Ledger: Winks—Funny thing. I met Dottey here on the street only a few days ago and now I understand he's way off in Mexico. It seems so strange.

Blinks—Nothing strange about that. He was way off when he was here.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "President Roosevelt says he hasn't kissed a single baby on his western trip."

"Single baby? I wonder why he doesn't include the twins?"

Washington Star: "I nebber could understan'," said Uncle Eben, "why every reformer dat bulges into politics imagines he's gwinter be de great exception an' git through wifout bein' roasted."

Chicago Tribune: Peace Loving Citizen—But why do you try to reconstruct society by force? Why not bring about your reforms by a resort to the ballot box?

Fiery Agitator—We've tried that, and they outvoted us forty to one. Darn the ballot box!

Atchison (Kan.) Globe: A doctor has two favorite jokes: No. 1—Tells patient to try a different climate. No. 2—Tells patient to quit thinking about his ailment. Price of either joke, $2.

Philadelphia Press: "Your son is at college, I hear, Mr. Cassidy."

"That's the truth, sor."

"And what is he studying to be?"

"Faith, Oi t'ink he's studyin' to be a spike-driver on the railroad or sumthin' Oi hear tell that no wan kin bate him at throwin' the hammer."

Chicago Tribune: The teamster awoke with a shriek.

"I've had such a horrible dream!" he said.

"What was it?"

"I dreamed that we went on a sympathetic strike, and all the farmers in the country joined in the other fellows and refused to let us have any hay or grain for our horses!"

"O, SWEET GIRL GRADUATE"

O, sweet girl graduate, you're fair
In dainty, mull or lawn—
A vision quite beyond compare;
As delicate as the dawn.
Too oft you're written of in vit
And thoughtlessly turned to jest,
The world smiles when you're telling it
How it could be run the best.

O, sweet girl graduate, demure,
And bashfully stepping down—
A gladsome picture, to be sure,
In gossamer, lace and gown.
What wonder that there comes a hush
When you are before our eyes,
And dimples from concealment rush
In tune with your essays wise!

Or, sweet girl graduate, no books
You studied in could have brought
The simple grace and pleasing look—
Such attributes are not taught.
What wonder that the world looks on
And joyfully holds you dear
In organdie, or mull, or lawn—
Delighted that you are here!

O, sweet girl graduate, you make
A melody in our lives—
A thousand memories awake
When graduate time arrives.
The spring brings blossoms fair and sweet,
But ever the old world waits
Till you, make everything complete—
O, pretty girl graduates!

—Chicago Tribune.

When a Young Man Graduates.

Atchison Globe: When a young man is graduated from the college he reads an address, wherein he says that people must do wonderful things to attain success and climb high and rugged mountains. This is not the truth. The fact is, the road to success has been blazed so clearly that no one need go astray. Success is easier than failure. There are thousands of people to direct the young man. All the young need to do to win success is to follow a few simple and easy rules. It is the loafer, liar, the dishonest man who travels a rough road and is wretched.

Breaking Into the Pension Roll.

Philadelphia Record: The commissioner of pensions announces that 22 per cent of the soldiers enlisted in the war with Spain have already applied for pensions. The percentage of applications is nearly four times greater than that which followed five years after the ending of the civil war, though the percentage of pensionable injury is doubtless much less. The soldiers enlisted for the Spanish war were able-bodied men. At the time of their discharge they were carefully examined as to their physical condition. There will consequently be greater difficulty in proving their claim to disability incurred in the government service.

May Have a String Attached.

New York World: The fact remains that it is the convention of 1904 and not that of 1903 that will determine whether Ohio's vote will be cast for the nomination of President Roosevelt.

A Prospective Accomplishment.

San Francisco Call: As the light of inquiry penetrates into the dark places of the postoffice department of the nation it begins to look to a casual observer that many of the men who are employed by Uncle Sam might render better service to the nation if they were taught the lock-step.

A DISCORD IN A FLAT

By Harle Oren Cummins.

(Copyright, 1902, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

CAST.

Mrs. Edith Hornung (A highly-strung woman.)

Mr. Jack Hornung (Just an average man.)

Mrs. Medlar (A sympathetic friend, also tuned a little above concert.)

Scene—A non-housekeeping flat uptown.

Time—Nearly 9 a. m.

A FEW HARMONICS.

The Average Man (buttoning up his overcoat)—Well, dear, I must be off. Its the first of the month, you know, and there is lots to do at the office.

The Highly-Strung Woman (tenderly)—Poor old Jackets. Has to work like a slave all day so his little wife can wear the latest things in foulards.

The A. M.—Oh, by the way, I have comps for the Hollis tonight. Would you like to go?

The H. S. W.—Would I like to go! Why, you dear boy, I should say I would. That's where Held is playing and I've just been dying to see if those fifteen hundred dollar dresses of hers are real or not.

The A. M.—Don't plan too much on it, for I may not get the tickets. There's an awful rush for seats and the "specs" have bought up almost everything. If I do get them I'll be home early and we'll go over to the Somerset to dinner. (He kisses her and starts for the elevator. She follows him.)

The H. S. W.—How perfectly lovely! But Jackets, dear, who's going to give you the comps? You haven't any friends on the stage, have you?

The A. M.—Oh, I've lots of friends you've never heard about. Good-by, dear. (He enters the elevator and disappears. The Highly-Strung Woman sits down and begins wondering if Jack means what he said, and if he really has a lot of friends on the stage.)

THE DISCORD.

Late afternoon. The Highly-Strung Woman in the sitting room of the uptown flat reading the latest novel. The Average Man enters.

Mrs. H.—Back so soon, dear, and its hardly 5 o'clock. Oh, did you get the tickets?

Mr. H.—Yes, there they are. (Hands her a small theatrical envelope.)

Mrs. H. (tearing open envelope and examining stubs)—What luck! We're way down in D. Now I'll find out if they are $1500 dresses or not. You'll have to promise me, Jack, not to make goo-goo eyes at any of the chorus girls, for we'll be almost in the bald-headed row.

Mr. H.—You seem to forget that I'm out of college now, and that I have become a sedate old married man of 29. Whew! but I'm tired. (Throws himself down on the couch; she picks up the pass which accompanies the stubs.)

Mrs. H. (reading aloud)—On account of Kit. Who on earth is this Kitty, Jack?

Mr. H. (foolishly trying to joke with a highly-strung woman)—Why, that's one of the forty-thousand-dollar chorus girls. I used to know her before I met you—and reformed.

Mrs. H. (excitedly)—You don't mean it, Jack, do you? You don't know any of those horrid creatures? Tell me you were just trying to plague me.

Mr. H. (soothingly)—Of course I was only joking. Don't get so excited, my dear. You fly up like a skyrocket. I never knew any chorus girls.

Mrs. H.—You did too. Mrs. Medlar told me so the other day, and she knew you before you ever heard of me. She says you used to be a regular rounder, Jack.

Mr. H. (energetically)—Darn Mrs. Medlar and her continued meddling. If any woman was ever well named its she.

Mrs. H.—Now don't get profane, Jack. There's no use of losing your temper about it. I'm beginning to believe you do know some girl in the troupe, and that's where you got those complimentaries.

Mr. H. (impatiently)—I told you I was only fooling. Besides, chorus girls don't have tickets to give away. They never give anything away. But believe whatever that gossiping old hen tells you. I don't know that it makes much difference.

Mrs. H. (on the verge of tears)—Why, Jack, how can you say such horrid things to me. Of course it makes all the difference in the world. You know if I really did believe it I'd go back to mother tomorrow.

Mr. H. (thoroughly exasperated)—Well, that would be pleasanter for me than having mother-in-law come here.

(The Highly-Strung Woman begins to weep. At the same time the maid ushers in Mrs. Medlar, who has run in from the flat below.)

Mrs. H.—Emily!

Mr. H.—Oh, hades.

Mrs. M.—Why, Edith, what on earth—:

Mrs. H. (tearfully)—Jacks' been cross to me again, that's all. I suppose I ought to get used to it, but I can't.

Mr. H.—Nothing of the kind. Mrs. Medlar, I told her something in fun, and now she insists on believing it after I've explained that it was only a joke.

Mr. M. (irritably)—I don't see the necessity for rehearsing our little family squabbles before every caller. I'm going to dress for the theater. Will you be ready in half an hour, Edith?

Mrs. H.—I don't believe I'll go now, after you're being so mean to me. I'll stay at home—and cry my eyes out probably.

Mr. H.—Don't talk such nonsense. I'll step in for you when I'm ready. He walks out.

Mrs. M.—Now tell me all about it, dear.

Mrs. H. (picking up the pass which Mr. H. left behind and handing it to the Sympathetic Friend)—There, that's what caused the whole trouble. You look it over while I fix my hair and bathe my eyes. But I'm not going out with him unless he explains everything, and is nice about it.

Mrs. M. (reading aloud)—On account of Kit. Who is this Kitty?

Mrs. H. (triumphantly)—That's just what I wanted to know. First he told me it was one of Held's chorus girls, then, when he saw how I took it, he tried to turn it off as a joke.

Mrs. M.—I don't believe it was a joke, Edith. You know he did use to carry on dreadfully before you married him.

Mrs. H. (beginning to weep again)—He said he never knew any chorus girls.

Mrs. M.—The old hypocrite! That's what his father took him out of Harvard for. He used to chum with Aldy Armand, whose uncle ran the Tremont, and both the boys were behind the scenes three or four times a week. Mrs. Armand told Mrs. Marnes—

Mrs. H. (hurriedly)—Don't Emily, I can't bear it. To think we've been married only a year and a half, and Jack said today that he'd rather have me go home to mother than to have her come here.

Mrs. M. (sympathetically)—The brute!

Mrs. H.—N—no, Jack isn't exactly a bru—bru—brute, but he doesn't understand wom—wom—women.

Mrs. M.—I wouldn't let my husband say anything like that to me. Why, its outrageous, I wonder what she looks like. She's probably a drug store blonde.

Mrs. H. (hysterically)—I know what she'd look like if I had her here now. I'm not going out with him tonight, anyway. Will you stay and comfort me this evening, Emily?

Mrs. M.—Of course I will, you poor abused dear.

(The Highly-Strung Woman rests her head on the Sympathetic Friend's shoulder and weeps copiously. The Average Man knocks lightly on the door and enters, attired in a dress suit.)

Mr. H. (after an awkward pause)—Well, Edith, haven't you come to your senses yet?

Mrs. H.—N—no, and I'm not coming to—I mean I'm not going to see any of your old college friends.

Mr. H. (aside, in great disgust)—What foolishness! (Aloud)—Come, dear, don't make such a spectacle of yourself. Your nose is getting all red and blotched.

Mrs. M. (under her breath)—What a monster!

Mr. H. (hearing the remark)—Mrs. Medlar, I think perhaps I had better make an explanation, since you have succeeded in bringing this little misunderstanding to such a climax. It all began by the wording of that pass, which I see you have appropriated. Merely in fun I said that it was given me by a chorus girl I used to know. Now, common sense ought to teach any woman that if such had been the case I wouldn't have told my wife. The Kit on that card is the abbreviation for Frank Kitson, press representative for the Hollis. You know him, Mrs. Medlar, and you also know that he and I have been friends for years. Now, I don't want to be inhospitable, but I think with and I can settle this better if we are alone for a few minutes.

Mrs. H. (highly indignant)—Mr. Hornung, you will never have the opportunity to insult me in this flat again. I will tell my husband what you have said this very night. Goodby, Edith, dear.

(The Sympathetic Friend stalks out of the room. The Highly-Strung Woman throws her arms around the Average Man in a moist but affectionate embrace.)

Mrs. H.—You were right, dear, it was all her fault. She stirred me up as she always does, and she is a meddling old thing. But you ought to have told me in the first place that Kit wasn't a Kitty. Oh, heavens! (catching sight of her face in a glass) my nose is a sight. But wait a minute until I fix it. (She runs to the chiffonier and mappulates a little puffy white thing for a few minutes, then puts on her hat and somes back to him.) I'm all right now, Jackets; kiss me and tell me where we're going for dinner. I'm half starved. Crying always makes me hungry.

Curtain.

UNEMOTIONAL.

He sent her a bushel of chocolate creams,
And she smiled
In a mild
Sort of way.
He told her that she was the soul of his dreams,
And she smiled
In a mild
Sort of way.
He begged for a kiss, which he ardently craved,
And told how completely his soul was enslaved
By her wonderful charms, and he otherwise raved,
And she smiled
In a mild
Sort of way.

He said he had riches to throw at the birds,
And she smiled
In a mild
Sort of way.
He delivered himself of more passionate words,
And she smiled
In a mild
Sort of way.
He besought her by all of the gods to confess
If she loved him or not; also, if she would bless
His life by a wedding. She murmured,
"Well, yes,"
And she smiled
In a mild
Sort of way.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

Three Bottles saved Mr. Tripp from Indigestion, Liver Trouble and Rheumatism.

There was never a remedy so highly recommended for making sick people well in summertime as Paine's Celery Compound. It successfully grapples with all the ailments common in summertime, and never fails to remove long standing and chronic diseases that have baffled the skill of physicians. When Paine's Celery Compound is used, there is no long waiting for results. It tones the stomach, improves the appetite, assists digestion, excites the bowels to healthy action, expels all foul humors from the blood and braces the nervous system. Mr. J. D. Tripp, West Kennebunck, Me., says:

'I suffered from indigestion, liver trouble, kidney disease and rheumatism. The worst trouble was in my head; the pain commenced in the shoulders and ran up my neck until it reached the head. I could not sleep at night, had ugly dreams and bad feelings when I did sleep. Since taking three bottles of Paine's Celery Compound I am well and feel like a new man. I have a good appetite and can do a good day's work. I am recommending Paine's Celery Compound to everyone who is suffering."

H. PERRY MILLS AGAIN WEDDED

Former Duluth Swell Marries St. Louis Girl In the East.

H. Perry Mills, who for a number of years resided in Duluth, has taken unto himself a wife. Mr. Mills lived here in the days when Duluth was having its boom, leaving here about 1892. He was associated with A. J. Whiteman and was one of the most familiar and striking figures about town in those days when money came and went so easily and Duluth was much "swifter" than it has ever been since. In the social set he was probably the most conspicuous of the men in town, being suave, polished and always immaculately dressed, a thorough man of the world.

The Mount Morris, N. Y., Union thus reports his wedding:

"H. Perry Mills, who formerly resided in this village and whose first wife was a Miss Williams, of Dansville, was married on Monday at Greenwich, Conn., to Miss Grace Woodworth, of St. Louis, Mo.

"While a resident of this village Mr. Mills was engaged in the malting business. He built the malt house at the Erie depot, now occupied by the J. F. Bater company, and operated it for a short time, but the business did not produce sufficient revenue for his extravagant way of living, and consequently he left Mt. Morris, leaving behind him many unpaid bills. From here he went to Duluth, Minn., and for a time was connected in business with Lon Whiteman. From Duluth he drifted to New York and later to Paris, France, but comparatively little has been known of his occupation for the past few years. Referring to his recent marriage, the New York American says:

"Accompanied by the bride's mother, brother and sister, Mr. Mills and Miss Woodworth took an early train to Greenwich, that the ceremony might take place where the marriage would not be invalidated by a decree of the New York courts. After enjoining the justice of the peace who married them to keep their secret, they came back to New York, and, after a wedding luncheon at the Hotel Manhattan, went to Philadelphia. H. Perry Mills is one of the Americans who spend a chapter of their lives abroad. For ten years he was a resident of Paris and was socially prominent in the French capital. Miss Woodworth is a daughter of Frank H. Woodworth, one of the best known men in St. Louis.'"

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Capt. Burnell, of the signal corps, in charge of telegraphic line construction work in Alaska, telegraphs that nitty-four miles of the gap between Goodpaster and Selkirk, Alaska, has been completed, and that about thirty miles of the line remains to be constructed to connect those two points.

The Wisconsin board of commissioners of the St. Louis world's fair has appropriated $20000 for a building to represent Wisconsin at the exposition. Architects will be asked to submit plans and those considered best to suit the needs of the state will be accepted.

About 1500 pounds of jayite, a high explosive, caused the death of three men and seriously injured several others by exploding in the screening room of the Explosives Manufacturing company's plant near Elmira, N. Y., Monday afternoon. Hundreds of windows were broken for a radius of two miles. The entire plant was destroyed. The loss is $25,000.

The United States transport Logan sailed for Manila Monday and will stop at Guam on the outward voyage with 1000 tons of military supplies. In the treasury tank is stored two million pesos of the Philippine coinage and $600,000 in gold for the payment of the army in the Philippines.

Henry Zimmerman, a Janesville, Wis., teamster, who had his skull fractured in a fight a week ago Saturday night, is in a dying condition and in an ante-mortem statement accuses two well known characters about the city with the crime. The suspects have left the city.

Several hundred striking laundry workers, including many girls, raided the Derby laundry, 111 Ontario street, Chicago, Monday, and drove out all the employes at work there. Before entering the place they overturned a wagon and scattered its contents in the street. The strikers then started for another loundry in the vicinity, but were met by a wagon load of police and dispersed.

SCHOOL AND ROAD MATTERS

Will Occupy Attention of County Board at Friday's Session.

School district and county road matters are expected to be subjects of discussion at the meeting of the board of county commissioners Friday afternoon of this week. At the last meeting of the board the proposition of making a new district of that part of Solway that it attached to the Midway school district came very near a vote, and would probably have passed.

Through the efforts of Commissioner Kappi, who thought that the people of Midway had not been properly notified of the proposed change or enlightened as to what it would mean to their own district to have some of its territory cut off, the matter was postponed until the next meeting of the county board. Ten Midway people have been notified by this time, and it is expected that there will be a warm debate over the project before the commissioners.

Both sides have claims of merit. Those who wish the new district claim they live too far from the Midway school building, and the roads are almost too impassable to permit of the sending of their children to school. They also argue that, logically, they belong in the school district in their own rather than the adjoining town. The Midway people are expected to oppose the new district proposition on the ground that the loss of so many sections will cut down their own district to a size where, unable to grow here after in any direction, the school taxes may become very burdensome.

Several other applications for new school districtt or towns will come before the board. One of those pending is for a division of the town of Stuntz. Taxpayers near Floodwood desire a new town in 51-21, and a new school district is petitioned for in 62-18. A number of the residents in Kelsey have a proposition on foot for the division of that territory and the formation of a new town. The idea is to take five townships and create from them three towns, one to be called Kelsey, one Meadow Lands and the third by name the board of county commissioners may select.

It is understood that there is a prospect of a sght over the application for another saloon at the Stevens mine. One saloon is running there now, and protests have been filed against it. Another application for license to run a saloon near the Wallace mine in Buhl will also be considered.

By dint of glaring errors, scientific team work won out against a terrific hit-and-run game at Athletic park yesterday afternoon.

Fifteen hundred people saw the Cardinals give the Champions a terrific fight with a hot and hectic finish that brought the populace up on its hind legs in root-to-die attitudes.

Winnipeg won by one run and Duluth lost by six inches. With two out in the ninth Mueller drove the ball out to center field, Kline, with the run that was selected to tie the score, hesitated a moment at third as he turned down the home stretch and the ball beat him to the plate by the closest kind of a six-inch margin.

Being gathered from all parts of the civilized globe, and speaking different languages, the Cardinals experienced great difficulty in running bases. They made nineteen hits for a total of twenty-three bases but so many died on the ay-three bases but so many died on the journey around the circuit that it must be admitted that the game was lost by slow base running as well as the errors in the early part of the game.

Corbett, considered the best twirler in the league, and who let Duluth down with two hits at Winnipeg on Victoria day was hammered safely nineteen times. It is said to have been the worst clouting he ever received. He is game however and asked Manager Hagan to let him try another game against the Cardinals during the present series.

While Duluth's errors in the early part of the game were distressingly glaring and the team work throughout sadly missing, this condition of affairs was, in a measure, excusable. Four new players in the line-up and nearly all playing out of their regular positions on a strange and exceedingly poor diamond, prevented their getting down to a proper conception of the distances and queer bounds until about the fifth. After that they played a fast game except when running bases.

Winnipeg's fielding mistakes were excusable for the same reason as those of Cardinals, but they were playing ball at all stages of the game and run bases in a way that excited admiration.

Murphy, the new man at short yesterday for the Cardinals made seven of the prettiest stops ever seen on a Duluth infield. He also placed three nice singles, but owing to his poor position in the batting order, was left on bases three times.

* * *

Shepard was out of the game on account of lameness and may be compelled to stay out for several days.

* * *

Kennally stepped right back into his old place in the admiration of the fans. He scored three runs and hit well. His headwork in both of Duluth's double plays was brilliant.

* * *

Another new man will wear the Cardinal togs and dark green hosiery in tomorrow's game. He is Lyons, strongly recommended as one of the coming third basemen by Manager Gear, of Kansas City. He has wired that he is on his way from Omaha.

* * *

Rogers, the little Winnipeg catcher, plays a fine game behind the bat.

* * *

Mayor Hugo was greatly disappointed at not being allowed to pitch that first ball. He had been reading Cy Young's instructions to ambitious young pitchers and was doubly disappointed when he heard that "Newt" Randall, the Duluth boy heading the Winnipeg batting list had voted for Henry Truelsen two years ago.

* * *

Corbett's right name is Chapelwiski, but his most appropriate name yesterday came very near being Dennis.

* * *

Martin, Duluth's new change catcher is expected to arrive tomorrow. He is an Eastern college man and is getting into professionalism for the first time after making a great record on the intercollegiate diamond.

* * *

Hon. Bill Lambert was there with two beautiful catches on high short drives to center.

* * *

Quillan, the Duluth second baseman was hurt slightly yesterday, but will be doing business again today at the old stand.

* * *

Mueller has been hitting a most spectacular clip. Yesterday he hit the ball right on the nose every time.

* * *

Randall's many friends in the grand stand gave him a nice send off when he came to the bat in the first inning.

* * *

"Loole" Kline's drive over the left field fence in the third inning would have been good for a triple or a home run on ordinary grounds, but on account of ground rules a drive over that fence only counts for a double. The fans were inclined to kick on this until O'Dea hit one over in the fifth and then they saw the wisdom of the new ruling.

* * *

Mueller was slated to do the pitching for Duluth this afternoon and Bartos for Winnipeg.

* * *

At Crookston yesterday, Fargo was defeated by a score of 15 to 2. Julian was knocked out of the box in the first inning and Mehl, who succeeded him fared little better.

* * *

Only three hundred people saw the opening game at West Superior yesterday. The home team tied Grand Forks, making twenty hits off Harris. There is some dispute as to the ending the Grand Forks players being under the impression that the score was 10 to 9 in their favor. The score:

A WILD WEST EXHIBITION

In Honor of President Roosevelt at Cheyenne, Wyoming.

Cheyenne, Wyo., June 2.—The Wild West exhibition in honor of President Roosevelt, at Frontier Park, yesterday, was the most sucessful event of the kind ever given in the state. The first event was the presentation to the president of the beautiful sorrel single-footed gelding, Ragnlona, supplemented by a complete riding outfit. The present was the gift of the people of Cheyenne and Douglas and was tendered by Senator Warren. The president responded in a happy vein, saying it was the best riding animal he had been astride and asking permission of the people of the state to rechristen the animal "Wyoming." The beautiful animal, at the command of Senator Warren, fell on its knees and saluted his new owner. At the conclusion of the wild horse race President Roosevelt remarked to Secretary Wilson: "That is the finest exhibition I ever witnessed. Whenever Uncle Sam again needs cavalrymen, these are the men we want, for with them courage is infused by the life they lead."

A dozen wild-eyed Texas steers were next turned loose and roped. No finer exhibition was ever seen than that displayed in the rough riding contest which came next. The worst outlaw horses on Wyoming ranges were ridden by Thad Souden, champion rough rider of the world, and others. The climax was reached when Teddy Roosevelt, the terror of the Wyoming ranges for many years, was brought out. A half mile ladies' cow pony race was greatly enjoyed by the president and his party. After the race the fearless young women were presented to the chief executive. An artillery drill by the Thirteenth regiment from Fort Russell closed the day's exercises.

It was nearly 1 o'clock when President Roosevelt's train left for North Platte, where an hour's stop was made last evening.

Duluth People Are Pleased to Learn How It's Done.

It's pretty hard to attend to duties
With a constantly aching back;
With annoying urinary disorders.
Doan's Kidney Pills make work easier.
They cure backache.
They cure every kidney ill.

Mr. F. J. Carr, of 621 Second street west, employed as checker at the Northern Pacific railroad freight sheds, says: "I have no hesitation in recommending Doan's Kidney Pills to anyone troubled with pains through the loins or in the kidneys. I was bothered on and off for two years with dull aching pains through the small of my back, especially if I caught cold or strained myself. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills highly recommended for such troubles I went to W. A. Abbett's drug store, procured a box and began their use. I felt better after a few doses in a short time the trouble disappeared entirely and I have had no return of it since."

BRISTOW IS FIGHTER

Is After Those Who Sought to Force His Retirement.

Relentless In His Investigation of the Post-office Boodlers.

Chicago, June 2.—A Washington special to the Chronicle says: What will be the next move in the game of ridding the postoffice department of boodlers will depend upon Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow. This remarkable official is now working independently of the postmaster general and his other superior officers in the department. He has thrown off the leash which was tied to him in the earlier stages of the investigation. His investigations are not confined to the present nor directed exclusively against officials whose names are now upon the department's pay rolls.

It is tacitly admitted that Bristow is earnestly seeking to enmesh some former officials of the department who strove to force his retirement a few years ago. He is pursuing with relentless persistence evidence that will disclose the identity of the United States senator who, according to Ryan, the turf investment swindler, could have prevented interference with his infamous business if an unknown go-between had been paid the sum of $25,000.

The presumption is that Ryan knows the name of the senator in question and that being the case Bristow knows as much as Ryan. Ryan turned informer to save himself from the probability of serving a term in prison. His confessions are now in Bristow's possession.

The only United States senator whose name figured publicly in the affairs of the Ryan and Arnold concerns when they were pushed to the wall by inspectors of the postoffice last winter was Senator Burton of Kansas. Burton at the time indignantly denied that he had ever had any business relations with the swindlers. Mr. Bristow doubtless will be rejoiced to shed some light upon Burton's denial later on, for he has not forgotten that Burton has pursued him with malevolent hatred for two years past. The first request Burton made at the White House after he was elected senator was that Bristow be peremptorily dismissed from the position of fourth assistant postmaster general. The late President McKinley declined to entertain the request. Burton renewed his warfare upon Bristow immediately after President Roosevelt came to Washington in the fall of 1902, and has kept it up ever since. He has a great deal of support from brother senators, among them Senator Scott of West Virginia, who publicly demanded that Bristow be dismissed, because he had insulted an influential Republican politician of West Virginia.

THE STAGE

Tonight the Wilbur Opera company will open at the Metropolitan theater, singing Stahl's popular opera, "Said Pasha." The company is said to be larger and better than upon any of its appearances here and the management promises a season of opera that will delight the people of Duluth. The leading tenor is Martin Pache and in him the company claims to have a superb singer, one who won his spurs on the stage of the Metropolitan Opera house in New York. Miss Hattie Richardson, well known to Duluth people, is the prima donna, and Gus Vaughan, another favorite, is the baritone. Others in the company are Miss Clara Wisdom, Miss Marion Langdon, Harry C. Peakes, Charles Van Dyne, W. A. McGraw, Charles Vaughan, Miss Katherine Goodrich and others.

Between the acts there will be vaudeville. Miss Ethel Hunt will lead the Amazon march with sixteen young women. The Gardner trio, child mimics, Reick and Lamar, song illustrators, and Katherine Goodich will furnish the vaudeville bill.

A fair-sized audience greeted "A Gambler's Daughter" last evening at the Lyceum. The play is a melodrama of a very sensational type, depicting the adventures of Kate Merrick, a gamblers' daughter, whose father is a members of the Chicabo board of trade and owns a large gambling house on Michigan avenue. There is the usual lover and the usual happy ending.

Miss Clara Throop, as Kate Merrick, made a very favorable impression on the audience. A. Foster, as Bobbie, a page, had the gallery with him from his first appearance on the stage. Benson Lamar, as Horace Merrick, and Arthur Pickens, as James Stetson, a man of the world, faithfully portrayed their parts. The minor characters were good. Miss Patti Rosa, as Gladys Boyd, did a song and dance specialty in the third act which was very favorably received.

CLUE TO MURDER.

Detectives Working For Discovery of Campbell's Slayer.

Whitehall, Wis., June 2.—Detectives are working on a slight clew which may lead to the discovery of the murderer of James Campbell, whose body was found in a pond near his house. Evidences of foul play were found on his person. On the bank of the pond was a broken spade covered with blood and hair, and in Campbell's back and neck were charges of bird shot. The head and face were frightfully mutilated. The belief is general that Campbell was killed by tramps and his body thrown in the pond. Campbell's horses were found in the barn in a starving condition, they probably having gone without food since the murder a week ago.

A reward of $1500 is to be offered for the capture of the murderer, who escaped. Large parties are scouring the country in search of the murderer.

Seattle, June 2.—One thousand people have left Seattle for Nome by three steamers, the Senator, Oregon and Jeannie. Each was crowded to its capacity with freight and passengers. Hundreds seeking passage were turned away.

Married Women

Every woman covets a shapely, pretty figure, and many of them deplore the loss of their girlish forms after marriage. The bearing of children is often destructive to the mother's shapeliness. All of this can be avoided, however, by the use of Mother's Friend before baby comes, as this great liniment always prepares the body for the strain upon it, and preserves the symmetry of her form. Mother's Friend overcomes all the danger of child-birth, and carries the expectant mother safely through this critical period without pain. It is woman's greatest blessing. Thousands gratefully tell of the benefit and relief derived from the use of this wonderful remedy. Sold by all druggists at $1.00 per bottle. Our little book, telling all about this liniment, will be sent free.

SOME ARE BEHIND

Taxpayers Come In Late and Pay Ten Per Cent Penalty.

Another Penalty Will Attach on First Day of November.

Yesterday was the first day for the payment of the whole or half of the realty tax of 1902 with the 10 per cent penalty attached, and a number of taxpayers who were unable to reach the county treasurer's office by last Saturday evening paid their taxes and penalty. The treasurer's office was not, however, nearly so busy as it was during the latter part of the preceding week, when people stood in line waiting for their turn to pay their taxes.

Treasurer Whipple says that his office received a large mail yesterday. It will take the office force some time to check up and receipt the taxes which have been paid by check. While the rush was on before the penalty attached, tax statements with checks were received and laid aside, in most instances for future consideration, acknowledgment being made by card, while attention was directed to the taking care of the cash payments.

If those who have been delinquent in paying the first half of their taxes by the first of June do not pay up the entire 1902 assessment by the last day of next October, another 10 per cent penalty attaches, and if the taxes are not paid by the first of the following January they become delinquent and an additional 5 per cent penalty attaches. In case a taxpayer has paid the first half of his taxes before the penalty attached June 1, and neglects to pay the latter half of the tax by the last day of October next, on Nov. 1 a 10 per cent penalty will attach to the last half of the tax assessment.

It is expected that several hundred dollars in taxes will be paid in this week. In some cases where the tax assessment is large the penalty will be correspondingly, but as a rule those having the heaviest taxes to pay usually get in for at least half of the assessment before the last date before the penalty attaches.

Checks which were dated before June 1, and which come through the mails from outside taxpayers, will be accepted by the county treasurer as if paid by last Saturday evening.

Hints To Advertisers

Like a certain famous proprietary article, Herald want ads work while you sleep.

More Business: Don't be afraid of a little too much advertising. If you want five customers lay your plans for twenty-five. The greater the demand you can create the better the price you can charge.

White's Sayings: "An untruthful advertisement is like a bull in a china shop—the minute he begins to move about something is to pay.

Progressive Advertising: "Say nothing, but saw wood." In other words, do not try to argue a customer out of having the article which he has seen advertised, and for that reason desires.

Jed Searboro: Your advertisement may contain all the wisdom of Solomon, but it is not conveyed in the language of those you are trying to interest, it is like talking Latin to a Hottentot.

Get your copy in early and obtain the full benefit of The Herald's first, or range edition.

Nordvesterns Handelstidning: The enormous amount of money expended in advertising in all branches of trade and industry, here in the states, will sooner or later create a new profession, or the science of advertising, and the day is not far distant when we will have regular "advertising schools." The careful study of this art will prove remunerative. A medium which proves most successful in one trade has no results in another and the returns from each medium should be carefully looked into. The large wholesale, manufacturing and retail houses, as well as the railroads, have all their "advertising departments" and men with knowledge and an aptitude for the business receive salaries which will repay them for their studies of this art or science. And to attain a point of efficiency in this art it requires as much work, study, time and practical experience as buying, or selling, or credit inspection. In fact, to become a master in the art of advertising requires a higher order of commercial ability at the outset than is necessary in most other departments of trade.

Few men drift into it—most of them are born to the profession, but to become an expert in this science it requires systematic instructions.

The wholesale houses of Duluth as well as the retailers, have to a great extent enlarged their business by judiciously advertising their business throughout the West, as well as in their home city, and by their wise foresight in never losing an opportunity to advertise our great city at the head of the lakes.

One of the stupidest of all stupid arguments against advertising that can be made is: "I'm doing all the business now that I can take care of." The merchant who makes a remark of this kind virtually says: "It is too much trouble to look for larger quarters or hire more clerks."

On the forces he has at his command already he is making a profit; he knows he will make an added profit on each additional salesman he employs, for there's lots more business to be had—yet he is too lazy or too indifferent to make the venture. You can put it down that a man of this kind will remain where he belongs—among the back numbers.

Canadian Cigar and Tobacco Journal: An advertisement may be compared to a human face. A gloomy, forbidding face repels advances, and just so a heavy, dull-looking advertisement is promptly skipped. Here the value of abundant white space inevitably suggests itself. White space is to an advertisement what a background is to a picture; it throws the central figure into bold relief. More than that, it soothes the eye of the reader and makes his task easy. Study the work of the foremost advertisers and you will find that the reading matter is never jumbled together, but that on the contrary it is orderly and segregated. "What a waste of room," exclaims the old-time advertiser, as he scans a modern announcement, with its abundance of white space and its reading matter well apart. His sole notion of advertising is to "get his money's worth," as he would term it. He fills his announcement to the last line with prosy arguments and pointless generalities, repeats himself again and again, and then innocently wonders why his numb effor. has not set the town a-talking.

A Substitute For Rubber.

After experimenting for several years, a substitute for rubber has been perfected. It is produced, principally, from asphalt, and can be used in the manufacture of rubber goods, linoleum, etc. A substitute of this kind will probably answer as well as the genuine article, but in medicine it has been proven, time and time again, that all substitutes are dangerous. Therefore, beware of them when purchasing Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the celebrated family medicine for stomach, liver and kidney ills, by noticing that our private stamp over the neck of the bottle is unbroken. The Bitters positively cures nausea, headache, dizziness, dyspepsia, indigestion, constipation, nervousness and general weakness. Be sure to give it a trial. For sale by all druggists and general dealers.

LARGELY ATTENDED.

Confirmation Services at Bethany Lutheran Church.

The confirmation services Sunday morning and the communion services in the evening at the Bethany Swedish Evangelical Lutheran church in the West End, were more largely attended than any ever held in the church in previous years. During both the morning and evening services people were turned away at the doors that were unable to find room inside. Both services were conducted by the pastor, Dr. A. F. Ehnquist. A large number of visiting members with children to be confirmed were present from Cloquet, Grand Rapids, Aitborn and several other neighboring towns.

The church was handsomely decorated for the occasion with ferns, palms and potted plants. Among the thirty catechumens the girls were dressed in white. Twenty-one read in Swedish and nine in English.

SORROW IS THEIRS

All the Matinee Girls Mourn the Loss of Their Idol.

Herald Office Besieged With Feminine Inquiries as to Case.

The telephone bell rang, as it had rung innumerable times yesterday.

"Hello!" responded the man in the office.

"Hello!" said a feminine voice, anxiously. "How did the Ferris case come out?"

"Ferris lost," was the laconic reply.

"Oh, rats!" disgustedly observed the inquirer, as she rang off.

With slight variation that incident was repeated in The Herald office all day yesterday. Scores of women called up to find out the result of the theatrical injunction proceedings before Judge Dibell, and one and all seemed disappointed to find that the Ferris company had lost, and that it would be compelled to give up the theater.

Very few men bothered their heads enough about it to call up for information over the telephone, though there was considerable interest in the case all over town, among men as well as among women. But the latter were enormously in the majority among those that took the trouble to call up The Herald office, and all of them betrayed disappointment at the outcome of the case.

Public sympathy in the case was undoubtedly with the Ferris company among the feminine portion of the community. There have been few cases in court in recent years in which anything like so much interest was manifested, and this is the first one where women kept The Herald telephones busy with inquiries.

For the Duluth matinee girl—and her age seems to run all the way from 16 to 60—has lost a matinee idol through the adverse opinion of the judge before whom this cause was tried.

That is probably the secret of the interest in the case and the disappointment over its outcome. It has been a long time since the Duluth theatergoers of the gentler sex have been able to afford the luxury of a real, live matinee idol, and just when they were beginning to appreciate the fact and felicitate themselves over the opportunity of being foolish about a good-looking actor, along comes the court and with one sweep clears him out of town.

Besides, the Ferris company has been here all winter, has made a good impression, and there was a natural feeling of regret at seeing it leave the city.

So if the Ferris company and Gus Forbes—who, contidentially, is the matinee idol aforesaid—could only take an appeal to a tribunal composed of the matinee girls of the city, there is no question that they would emerge from the trial triumphantly crowned with victory and laurels, and overwhelmed with pink, scented missives of the character that the matinee girl loves to send to her hero.

Doubtless the bereaved colony of matinee girls will eventually recover from the loss, but in the meantime there is a great clattering of conversation, from which fragments like the following have drifted in: "Just a shame!" "Mean old thing!" "Oh, sugar!" "Was just too lovely!"

But if there is sorrow for the matinee girl there is joy for the matinee and stage-door Willy boy. For the matinee idol is replaced with a bunch of chorus loveliness that expects to be here all summer, and the youth whose ambition it is to spend his salary for suppers sees a possibility of many chances to indulge that ambition.

The closing performance by the Ferris Comedians was given last evening, the bill being, "The Silver King," a pleasing English melodrama. The theater was filled even to standing room and the audience, for the most part, was guessing whether it would be the Ferris Comedians or the Wilbur Opera company that would appear when the curtain was run up. When it did go up and the Ferris company appeared, each member was given quite an enthusiastic reception, showing evidences of goodwill on the part of the audience, although many had gone expecting to see the other company in its opening number.

Mr. Ferris was given notice by the secretary of the Metropolitan Theater company to close his engagement May 31, but this was a holiday, and it is claimed that in such cases a closing notice is applicable the following day. In the memorandum of Judge Dibell, in the Ferris case given in last evening's Herald, a mistake of one word was made which considerably changed the tenor of the judge's ruling. As published last evening it read: "I do not think the complaint states a perfectly good cause of action." It should have read: "I do think the complaint states a perfectly good cause of action."

PREMIER IS DISMISSED

Col. Pryor Removed From the British Columbia Cabinet.

Victoria, B. C., June 2.—Col. Pryor was dismissed by Lieutenant Governor Sir Henry Joily yesterday and later Richard McBride, member for Delta and leader of the opposition, was called upon to form a ministry. The dismissal of the premier was due to his connection with the contract to supply the cable for Chimney Creek bridge, which was supplied by his firm. The opposition alleged wrong doing in the manner in which the contract was secured. An investigation was held at which Col. Pryor told of having seen the tenders and asked why his firm had not been given a chance to tender. They afterwards tendered and secured the contract, but Col. Pryor said the firm had not received knowledge of the tenders already in and no evidence was adduced otherwise. The evidence was placed in the governor's hands on Saturday and yesterday he wrote to Col. Pryor dismissing the first minister and his government, but one, J. B. Prentice, finance minister, remaining.

Richard McBride was called upon to form a government yesterday afternoon and the legislature adjourned until today, when they will announce their government. It is rumored that McBride's cabinet will be composed of two Liberals and three Conservatives, a fact which is exciting much comment, as McBride stated in the house a few days ago that he was in favor of an immediate election on party lines. Efforts are being made to patch up a government by the opposition leader that will have sufficient following to carry on the session, but it is not thought the government thus formed will be very strong.

THE LIBRARY BOARD MEETS

All Old Officers Are Re-Elected—West Duluth Library Facilities.

The library board held its annual meeting last evening, and re-elected its old officers, as follows: R. C. Mitchell, president; Frank D. Adams, vice president; Dr. Charles L. Codding, secretary. The three members of the board recently appointed by Mayor Hugo were present and took part in the meeting. They are Dr. Codding, who was reappointed, J. M. O. Yaite and M. M. Clark, who are new members.

May bills to the amount of $950 were approved and ordered paid, and a list of 200 new books was submitted and ordered purchased.

The matter of better library facilities for West Duluth was discussed, and the desire of the people of that end of the city will probably be granted by the board shortly. M. M. Clark was appointed a committee of one to investigate the condition of the West Duluth library and report recommendations. The present quarters will be improved and possibly new ones will be located. Many new books will doubtless be added. At present the library has about 2500 books in circulation, many of which have been there for years.

The sentiment of the board was that West Duluth should be given substantial improvements, as that part of the city is too far from the main library to permit the citizens to patronize it.

FOREPAUGH-SELLS CIRCUS

Great Show to Appear In Duluth Last of June.

There are few persons in this community who will not be glad to know that the Adam Forepaugh and Sells Bros. enormous shows are coming here with all the great features with which they so startled the metropolitan cities at the beginning of this season. It has been the custom of so many shows to exhibit in some large city and then travel on the reputation made in such a city by giving a program far in advance of the one they exhibit while traveling through the country. Whatever else may be said about the Forepaugh-Sells show there is a certainty that when they say anything the utmost reliance may be placed upon their statement. They pledge themselves to repeat the same performance here, complete in every detail with all the great star and champion performers and new and exclusive features. If this program does not satisfy everybody who sees it they must be harder to please than are those who live in the largest cities of the country. They will exhibit here on June 29.

FIREWORKS EXPLODE.

One Man Killed and Two Injured at Chicago.

Chicago, June 2.—One man dead, two others severely injured and 300 employes in a panic was the result last night of a premature explosion of fireworks in the wholesale merchandise house of Butler Brothers, No. 7 West Randolph street. A heavy box filled with explosives fell from a truck in the basement and exploded with terrific force. When the debris was cleared away, John Swanson, foreman of the packing room, was found lying dead on the floor with the right side of his head blown off. Charles Paulson, a truckman, was found unconscious with both legs broken. Henry Olson was suffering from burns and bruises on the face and was unconscious. The explosion scattered boxes of merchandise in all directions, shattered windows and nearly blinded the workmen. All, however, except those named, escaped serious injury, joining with seventy-five girl stenographers on the floor above in a wild rush for the street.

The Kind You Have Always Bought.

THIS is the caution applied to the public announcement of Castoria that has been manufactured under the supervision of Chas. H. Fletcher for over 30 years—the genuine Castoria. We respectfully call the attention of fathers and mothers when purchasing Castoria to see that the wrapper bears his signature in black. When the wrapper is removed the same signature appears on both sides of the bottle in red. Parents who have used Castoria for their little ones in the past years need no warning against counterfeits and imitations, but our present duty is to call the attention of the younger generation to the great danger of introducing into their families spurious medicines.

It is to be regretted that there are people who are now engaged in the nefarious business of putting up and selling all sorts of substitutes, or what should more properly be termed counterfeits, for medicinal preparations not only for adults, but worse yet, for children's medicines. It therefore devolves on the mother to scrutinize closely what she gives her child. Adults can do that for themselves, but the child has to rely on the mother's watchfulness.

HEARING ON LYDICK CLAIM

Evidence Is to Be Taken At Cass Lake June 8.

Cass Lake, Minn., June 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Maj. C. L. Scott, acting Indian agent at Onigum, has issued official notice that Inspector Neller of the interior department will be in Cass Lake at the sub-Indian agency to take evidence for and against the claim of Mrs. Nellie Lydick for the allotting to her section 16. This hearing was requested by Senator Nelson. The squatters on the land recently signed a petition in favor of the granting of the allotment. Some of these objected to the decision granting the land to Mrs. Lydick until she said it was not her intention to turn them off the land or take possession of their buildings, and she was willing to make very reasonable terms with them if the secretary of the interior would permit. They then withdrew their objection, and so notified Senator Nelson. The hearing is on June 8, and Mrs. Lydick is confident of victory.

The First M. E. church was unable to accommodate the large audience last Sunday evening at the union memorial services. City Attorney Smith gave the oration, which was a gem of eloquence and very able and pathetic. He reviewed the events that led up to the war and the reconstruction period, and paid a glowing tribute to the old soldiers. George Stein, president of the village council, presided. Rev. A. C. Woodcock and F. N. Smith, Congregationalists, and Rev. Brubner Smith, Methodist Episcopal, took part, and three anthems were sung in a very fine manner by the following quartet: Mesdames H. L. Hartley and E. Johnson and Messrs. H Reed and McDonough. Organist, Miss McDonough.

At the Congregational church on Sunday morning the congregation voted to call Rev. A. C. Woodcock as pastor, who has supplied for three weeks.

MOST NOTABLE OF WEDDINGS

Will Be the McCormick-Hanna Event at Cleveland.

Cleveland, Ohio, June 2.—America has never seen such a wedding as that which will make Miss Ruth Hanna the bride of Joseph Medill McCormick, of Chicago. No marriage has been of such national significance as that to be celebrated on June 10 in St. Paul's historical old church in Cleveland.

The president of the United States, that he may be present at the ceremony, has altered the itinerary of his Western tour.

The state Republican convention of Ohio was forced to postpone its meeting to avoid conflicting with the wedding.

In St. Paul's church when Miss Ruth Hanna becomes Mrs. Joseph Medill McCormick will be gathered the president of the United States and his cabinet, the larger part of the senate, house and an array of ambassadors and diplomats seldom seen at any event of less importance than the inauguration of a president.

The American ambassador to Russia is traveling 10,000 miles to be present. This wedding will be the union of a bride and bridegroom distinctly American, the union of a girl whose mind and will each day of her life sways affairs of state, and of the son of an American family who, notwithstanding he has wealth, has lived a busy American life, who has won his way in his profession, and who finds nothing so abhorrent as idleness.

HANECY IS DEFEATED

The Well Known Chicago Judge Fails of Re-Election.

Chicago, June 2.—Out of the eighteen candidates voted for in the judicial election in Cook county yesterday, the Democrats elected fourteen and the Republicans four. A light vote was cast owing to the wet weather and straight tickets were few and far between. Among the defeated Republicans was Judge Elbridge Hanecy, a close friend of Congressman Lorimer.

One superior court judge, fourteen circuit court judges and three provisional circuit court judges were voted for. Judge Theodore Brentano, Republican, was re-elected judge of the superior court; Richad Tuthill, John Gibbons and Frederick A. Smith, Republicans, were re-elected to the circuit court.

The sucessful Democrats were: Circuit court judges, Murray F. Tuley, Edward F. Dunne, Francis Adams, Frank Baker, Richard W. Clifford, Thomas C. Windes, Charles M. Walker, Lockwood Honore, Edward D. Brown, George Kersten and Julian W. Mack.

For the provisional circuit court judges, three Democrats were elected as follows: Thomas M. Moynes, Joseph A. Donnell and George Mills Rogers.

Although the Democrats carried the county by about 10,000 majority, Messrs. Tuthill and Gibbons and Frederick A. Smith ran ahead of the Republican ticket sufficiently to win.

PLACES LIGHT NIGHTLY

In the Window For Her Missing Son.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 2.—An unusual case illustrating mother love and devotion has just come to the attention of Merle Walker, probate commissioner of the Marion county circuit court. For years Catherine Smith, of Fayette street, aged 85, has been waiting patiently for the return of her son. Every time she seats herself at her table she puts two chairs there—one for herself and the other for her son. The plate, knife and fork are always laid for him, and every night she places a light in the window to show him that a motherly heart still yearns for him.

She is not insane, but she suffers a constant delusion that her son, who is dead, will return to her. The probate commissioner has appointed a guardian to look after her in her last years.

MURDER AT LINCOLN, WIS.

Whitehall, Wis., June 2.—Olaf O. Oabakken shot John Wellen, a prosperous retired farmer of the town of Lincoln, Trempealeau county, to death in a lonely hut three miles from town Sunday night and is in the county jail charged by the coroner's jury with murder. Jealousy over a woman is said to have been the cause of the tragedy.

EGAN'S BODY FOUND.

Spokane, Wash., June 2.—A private dispatch received here announces that the body of Benjamin F. Eagan, of the Great Northern railway, was found yesterday morning. Mr. Egan, who was superintendent of the Kalispell division, started into the mountains, near Belton, Mont., for a deer hunt early last November. He was never seen again. Searching parties spent weeks in looking for him without result. This spring the search was resumed and the body was found near Lake Five, a short distance from where he was last seen.

Diseases Cured!

PAY NO MONEY IN ADVANCE.

Many sick people have suffered so much from unskilled and unscrupulous specialists that they have lost all faith in doctors. Many have paid large fees and have taken medicine for years to no benefit. They want to get well and are willing to pay a good price to be cured, but they very justly object to paying a large fee in advance. They want a trial treatment. To all such I make this—

REMARKABLE OFFER:

Simply write me, giving your name and address and stating as clearly as possible your trouble. When I have made a careful examination and diagnosis of your case and entered it in my case book, I will send you one package of medicine on trial, which you can take at my risk. If it gives any relief the cost will be $5. If it fails to help you it costs you nothing, and you shall be the judge.

ALL THE RISK IS MINE.

Can anything be fairer than this? I am making an offer which no other physician will make. They can't afford to. I refer to any bank in Duluth as to my financial standing and responsibility. This offer proves that I have great faith in my remedies. I KNOW they will cure, otherwise I wouldn't dare make this offer. It would ruin me, as I ship a hundred packages every day. I have tested this system for twenty years and I know that nine people out of ten are willing to pay where they get any benefit.

NO CURE, NO PAY.

Is my motto. I do this to convince you who hesitate—who doubt all men's claims. I carry a line of specific medicines which cannot be had anywhere else in the state. Their power to cure disease is simply marvelous.

Syphilis, Gonorrhoea, Gleet, Stricture, Skin Affections, Disease of the Kidneys, Stomach, Liver and Bowels, Nervous Troubles, Sexual Weakness, Varicocele and Throat and Lung Troubles cured as if by magic.

Call or write. Office private; no exposure. Consultation free. Hours, 9 a. m. to 8 p. m. Address,

TROUBLES ARE HIS

Walking Delegate Says It Is Meanest Job on Earth.

Experienced Union Men Try to Dodge the Place.

New York, June 2.—Two hundred men whose total income does not amount to $2000 a week, control labor industries of New York.

They can stop work on every building and in almost every shop and factory simply by snapping their fingers. The power of these men, mostly skilled mechanics, although some of them may be classed as laborers, has become in some cases greater than that of their employers.

These powerful agents are the walking delegates of the New York labor unions.

Their activities are greatest in the building industry, the most thoroughly and effectively organized of all the trades. The workers number 125,000, and they are controlled by eighty walking delegates.

A few days ago there was organized a central body of employers who have $500,000,000 invested in the building industry, to handle labor difficulties. Those who engineered the movement declared with emphasis that they are not opposed to trade unions, and that they have no intention of fighting them. The organization was effected, it was stated, to fight the walking delegates.

In view of the popular conception, outside of the labor organizations—that the delegate is a lordly, arrogant, unreasonable, power-loving person, who gained the place through political wire-pulling—it is interesting to know something of the actual status of the walking delegate, how he is regarded by the unions and how he regards himself.

The president of the United Board of Walking Delegates of the building trades is logically one of the foremost authorities. He is John J. Donovan, who represents the Plain and Ornamental Plasterers' union. He has been president of the board for three years. Donovan is a slender, wiry little man of about 40, with a red mustache and red hair.

"People condemn the walking delegate without understanding his duties," said Donovan with much vigor. "To begin with, I want to say that the walking delegate is a necessary evil, and that his is about the meanest job on the face of the earth.

"Instead of members of labor unions seeking the place, they are inclined to dodge it, at least after they have had a little experience. The delegates are in hot water most of the time. Outsiders seem to think that the chief business of the delegate is to find excuses for ordering strikes. As a matter of fact, his chief business is to avoid strikes, and at the same time see that the rules of the organization are obeyed.

About nine-tenths of the troubles attributed to the walking delegate is due to the attempts of tricky contractors to violate agreements or to hoodwink us.

"We have nothing to do with fixing the hours of work or the rate of wages. That is determined by the union. Our mission is to see that the rules of the union are obeyed.

"If there was any way of getting around the walking delegates, I think that the unions would be glad to abolish them, but there is not. Some of the unions do not meet oftener than once in two weeks, and none of them meet oftener than once a week. Experience has taught us that if a violation is going on the only safe way is to check it immediately it has been proved. In the intervals between the meetings of the union the walking delegate has supreme power. But it should be remembered that he is always responsible to the union for his acts.

"Each local union has from one to four delegates, the number being regulated by the size of the union and the territory to be covered. Any member who has been in the organization for six months may be elected a walking delegate. Some organizations elect by a plurality vote, others by a majority vote. In nine cases out of ten the office seeks the man and not the man the office.

"The qualifications expected of a walking delegate are fixed by custom and not by rule. He must be a representative man. He must have proved that he is devoted, heart and soul, to the interests of the organization, that he has intelligence and skill in transacting its business. Delegates are elected for terms of six months in some organizations and for a year in others. As a general thing the average term of service of a walking delegate is about five years. There are men in the United Board who have been delegates for fifteen years.

"The pay of the walking delegate is the regular scale of his trade, with an addition of 10 per cent for expenses. If he has extra expenses he must put in a regular bill, to be passed upon by the local organization.

"Samuel Park, of the Housesmiths and Bridgemen's union, has a special allowance for cab hire. He goes from building to building in a hansom because the territory is so great that he could not cover it in any other way. But his pay is the regular wags of the iron workers, $4.50 a day. He deserves all he gets. That union could afford to send him around in a coach and four, for he has built up the organization to one of the strongest in the city. When he took hold of it the men were getting $1.50 and $1.75 a day and now they are getting $4.50."

BUT ONE BID

Offered to Remove Wreck of Battleship Maine.

Havana, June 2.—But one bid for the removal of the wreck of the United States battleship Maine was offered today, the time fixed for the opening of bids. It was from Pinelo Castaneda, a Cuban, who offered to hand over to the government all the profits obtained from his disposal of the wreckage, after deducting the expenses of breaking the vessel up, the work to begin in three months and to be completed in a year. Castaneda's bid was accompanied by a deposit of $1000. The Cuban treasury employed to award the contract and considered the conditions bid to be so vague that they agreed not to make the award and to leave the decision to the secretary of the treasury.

WIRELESS TELEGRAPHY.

Messages Sent Between Milwaukee and Chicago.

Milwaukee, Wis., June 2.—The first official test of handling wireless messages between Chicago and Milwaukee, under the Marconi system, was successfully carried on last evening. Messages were exchanged by the mayors of the two cities, also by leading business men, who were at either end to witness the demonstration. The first commercial message was an order by the Milwaukee Sentinel to its Chicago correspondent to file a story of the test from the Chicago end.

The electrical conditions in the atmosphere at times interfered with the test. At stations at either end signal poles, 200 feet high, have been erected. The instruments are sheltered in small buildings in close proximity to the signal poles. The system will be used to conduct experiments with lake marine.

Can anyone suppose that we would double the necessary cost of our brewing without a vital reason?

LEADING IN LUMBER

Tens of Millions Invested By Badgers In Timber Lands.

Buying Choicest Lands In Western and Southern States.

Milwaukee, June 2.—Tens of millions of dollars are being invested by Wisconsin lumbermen in timber lands in the far West and South, says the Sentinel. The extent of the purchases dubtless has never been realized by those not identified with the lumber industry, but any supposition that Wisconsin is to lose its influence in the lumber industry because its own pine lands have nearly been cut over is far from the truth.

The poor young men who came to Wisconsin a score of years ago to make their fortunes by the cutting and selling of the pine with which northern Wisconsin then was covered today are backing with their millions great lumbering companies which are buying up the choicest timber lands in a dozen western and southern states. Instead of losing its influence in the lumber industry, Wisconsin is more likely to take a higher rank than ever before by reason of the millions which its self-made capitalists are investing elsewhere. The fortunes which were made in Wisconsin pine are being used to cut the timber from many other states, and the millionaires are retaining their offices in this state, still making Wisconsin the center of their operations.

Though Wisconsin's pine cutting industry is within sight of the end, a new lumber industry is springing up in the cutting and marketing of the hemlock, which in the days when the pine was plenty was considered worthless. The hardwood resources of the state also are being utilized, and hardwood mills are taking the place of the plans which sawed up the tall pines a few years ago.

The clearings, which have resulted from the denuding of the land of its pine timber also are being used, and the sections which were formerly the home of the lumber jack and the river hog are now becoming rich agricultural and dairy

A tabulated list, however, of the purchases of timber made in the far west and south would astound the person who has not watched the investments made by Wisconsin lumbermen. Millions of acres of heavily timbered land have been taken up by the Badger timber kings. Some of the states whose choicest timber has gone to Wisconsin owners are Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana, and the redwood districts of California; Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Tennessee and even Florida, in the west the timber which has been purchased is chiefly redwod and pine. In the south it has been cypress, yellow pine, and some of the characteristically southern woods.

A partial summary of purchases made in these states by Wisconsin men follows:

Weyerhaeuser Timber company, formerly a large operator in Douglas county, land in Washington	$6,000,000
Former Gov. Stofield, lands in Idaho	500,000

X-RAY PROCESS

By Which Leather Can Be Quickly Tanned.

Cincinnati, June 2.—Dr. J. C. Cavana, the dentist, has completed a process by which he claims to have perfected a system of tanning all kinds of leather with the X-ray in from ten to fifteen minutes.

For several months experiments have been going on, and from reports it seems that these trials have met with success. Reach Bros., chemists, have had the experimenting under their charge, and have now a bundle of samples of leather tanned by this process which appear to be in as perfect condition as leather tanned at tanneries by the longer and more expensive methods which have from time immemorial been used.

The claim is freely made, with offerings of guarantee, that this discovery will in short revolutionize the business of tanning and render obsolete the methods which are in use.

The inventors have not as yet patented their process, but have it protected by application, and are reticent at the present time when it comes to advancing facts concerning their remarkable discovery.

Are you thin? Would you like to get fat and plump? Tried "laughing," wouldn't work, now take Rocky Mountain Tea—'twill do the business. 35 cents. S. F. BOYCE.

Mrs. Fairbanks tells how neglect of warning symptoms will soon prostrate a woman. She thinks woman's safeguard is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Ignorance and neglect are the cause of untold female suffering, not only with the laws of health but with the chance of a cure. I did not heed the warnings of headaches, organic pains, and general weariness, until I was well nigh prostrated. I knew I had to do something. Happily I did the right thing. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound faithfully, according to directions, and was rewarded in a few weeks to find that my aches and pains disappeared, and I again felt the glow of health through my body. Since I have been well I have been more careful, I have also advised a number of my sick friends to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and they have never had reason to be sorry. Yours very truly, MRS. MAY FAIRBANKS, 216 South 7th St., Minneapolis, Minn." (Mrs. Fairbanks is one of the most successful and highest salaried travelling saleswomen in the West.)

When women are troubled with irregular, suppressed or painful menstruation, weakness, leucorrhœa, displacement or ulceration of the womb, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation of the ovaries, backache, bloating (or flatulence), general debility, indigestion, and nervous prostration, or are beset with such symptoms as dizziness, faintness, lassitude, excitability, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, "all-gone" and "want-to-be-let-alone" feelings, blues, and hopelessness, they should remember there is a one tried and true remedy. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles. Refuse to buy any other medicine, for you need the best.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—For over two years I suffered more than tongue can express with kidney and bladder trouble. My physician pronounced my trouble catarrh of the bladder, caused by displacement of the womb. I had a frequent desire to urinate, and it was very painful, and lumps of blood would pass with the urine. Also had backache very often.

"After writing to you, and receiving your reply to my letter, I followed your advice, and feel that you and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have cured me. The medicine drew my womb into its proper place, and then I was well. I never feel any pain now, and can do my housework with ease."—MRS. ALICE LAMON, Kincaid, Miss.

No other medicine for female ills in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

WHEAT IS STRONG

Market Moves Up Sharply Under Crop Damage Reports.

Corn Has Big Bulge—Flax Is Active and Lower.

Duluth Board of Trade, June 2.—The effect of the floods and wet weather in the Southwest had not worn off when the market opened this morning and wheat was a cent or more higher in all markets than the closing price of Friday. From the Southwest bullish news came without interruption but Chicago was inclined to think that the crop was being killed too rapidly and advised going slow. Notwithstanding that the close was at practically the best prices of the day, or very near the top. The early statistics were bearish, the world's shipments being large and amount on passage showing a large increase. The trade ignored everything and weather news, however. The Liverpool market closed but London wheat was up a penny.

The advance in the September option was the greatest on nearly all markets.

The visible supply of wheat decreased 2,671,000 bus., last week and is now 24,-253,000 bus., against 18,691,000 bus., last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 501,000 bus., last year 462,000 bus. Shipments 692,000 bus., last year 378,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour were 1,386,000 bus.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis 320 cars, and at Chicago 58, a total of 378 cars, against 233 last week and 258 last year.

In the Chicago market July corn was very strong advancing 2⅝-3c. July oats advanced 2c. Primary receipts of corn were 2,020,000 bus., last year 1,848,000 bus. Shipments 947,000 bus., last year 386,000 bus. Clearances were 311,000 bus. The visible supply of corn increased 480,000 bus., last week and is now 4,886,000 bus., against 4,227,000 bus., last year.

The Duluth market was fairly active and strong in sympathy with other markets. The opening of July was 1c up at 73c. It sold at 76¼c at 9:32, fell back to 75c at 9:46, sold at 75⅝c at 10:45 and 76¼c at 11:09. The upward movement continued, the market selling at 78¾c at 1 o'clock and closing at 79¾c. This was an advance of 1⅝-3c. September advanced 1⅞c. Chicago July advanced 2¼c and September 2⅜-3c. Minneapolis July was up 1¾c and September 1½c. In New York the advance in July over the closing of Friday was 1⅞c and in September 2⅜c.

Cash wheat sold 2c over July for No. 1 northern and 1½c under for No. 2. Sales were 50,000 bus.

Flax was active and lower, July selling 9c off to $1.12⅜ and rallying to $1.13.

From that point it fell back to $1.12⅛ and closed there. This was a decline of 7c. September fell 3c and October 4c. Receipts in Minneapolis were 67 cars and Duluth 42.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat—To arrive, No. 1 hard, 82¾c; No. 1 northern, 80¾c; No. 2 northern, 78⅝c. July, 79¾c. September, 75¾c. Flax—In store, $1.12; on track, $1.12; to arrive, $1.12; July, $1.12½; September, $1.10¼; October, $1.12⅜; November, $1.13. Oats—To arrive, 34½-35c; on track, 34½-35c. Rye—To arrive, 66c; on track, 66c. Barley—45@61c. Cars inspected: Wheat 76, last year 28; oats 21; rye 1; barley 6; flax 42, last year 2. Receipts: Wheat, 58231; rye, 2757; flax, 3752. Shipments: Wheat, 35,000; oats, 1200.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Excessive Rains Gave Strong Tone to Grain Pits.

Chicago, June 2.—The market today was dominated by the weather conditions, the excessive rains in the West and Southwest resulting in a strong tone in all the grain pits, in spite of the bearish statistics—large world's shipments and an increase in the amount of passage—wheat opened decidedly strong, July being 1⅝@1¾c to 1⅞c higher than Friday's close, at 74⅜c to 75¼c. There was a big demand from shorts at the start, the offerings coming largely from commission houses and the price steadied around 74⅞c. Minneapolis and Duluth reported receipts of 520 cars, which, with local receipts of 55 cars, none of contract grade, made total receipts for the three points of 575 cars, against 233 cars last week and 158 cars a year ago.

The market continued strong throughout the entire day. Higher outside markets and a large decrease in the visible supply were the principal bull influences later in the day. Trading held active and the volume of business was large. Liquidation by longs caused July to sell off to 74⅝c but later the early sellers turned buyers and prices advanced again. July closed 1⅝c higher at 75½@75¾c.

There was considerable excitement in the corn pit during the early part of the session and prices were widely at variance at the same time indifferent parts of the pit, a difference of over one cent occurring in bids shortly after the opening. The flood news was the principal influence. July was up 1¼c to 2⅜c at the opening, first sales being made at 47 to 48c, but later the market reacted to 46¾c and steadied around 47¼c. Local receipts 1230 cars, with 120 of contract grade. Oats opened strong along with other grains. July being ⅜c to 1c up at 34¾c to 35c, and after selling at 35⅜c the price settled back to 34⅝c. Trading was not large and the market lacked any features. Local receipts, 359 cars.

The early strength was well maintained and although there was considerable realizing the offerings were well taken. July closed 2¼@2¼ higher at 47⅝@¾c.

There was a good demand for provisions at the start and opening prices were strong, the higher prices at the yards being the main full factor. September pork was up 17½c at $16.87½; September lard was 20c to 22½c higher at $9.00 to $9.02½, and ribs 10c higher at $8.30.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The Liverpool and Paris holiday. The market here was active and strong. The action of the St. Louis market yesterday showed a strong opening and a considerable increase in the volume of general business. Of course, a good deal of the buying was in the way of covering shorts, but there was a better country buying of long stuff also. The decrease in the visible was a liberal one. The cash situation is quite and the weather conditions are an important factor. While these conditions are sensational, they are such that in respect of the premium paid, they are quite likely to be over-estimated. There is enough uncertainty about the weather crop conditions to give us a good scalping market at least, and until the weather materially improves, prices are quite likely to go higher. Estimated cars, 75.

Corn—The market opened with a good deal of excitement and prices sharply higher. The strength was well maintained up to the close. Important corn sections of the West are flooded and much planting delayed. The West was a good buyer of long corn in this market today. There was, of course, a good deal of profit-taking at the advance, but the offerings were well absorbed. The weather will continue to be the most important factor for the immediate future. Estimated cars, 360.

Oats—The market was active and higher under the same influences which controlled wheat and corn. Less damage to the oats, however, is likely to result from the excessive rains. In some sections improvement is being reported. The cash situation is fair at the moment. Estimated cars, 290.

Bycroft, of Chicago: I believe the winter wheat crop has been damaged beyond repair. Here we are June 1 with only 24,-500,000 bushels in the visible supply and harvest fields a flood. The old crop will be exhausted before the new crop is available.

• • •

J. Ogden Armour says: "A rain bullish on everything that grows out of the ground. Heavy rains and floods west of Mississippi river will largely reduce acreage in corn. Price of corn is basis for hogs. A great many young pigs have probably been killed by wet weather in West. We have had a good decline in provisions and it has put market in a healthy condition.

• • •

Harris, Gates & Co.: It is too early to determine the amount of damage done to the growing crop. Such advices as we have received lead us to think that we will have a sustained advance in both corn and oats. We think wheat will be less affected, although, of course, our market today at any rate will be higher. Wheat on bottom lands will be hurt and the excessive moisture leads to danger by rust later.

CROP CONDITIONS

As Shown By Weather Bureau's Weekly Bulletin.

Washington, June 2.—The weekly crop bulletin of the Weather Bureau is as follows:

The states of the lower Missouri valley and portions of the Mississippi valley have suffered much from heavy rains, especially Iowa, the eastern portion of Kansas and Nebraska and western Missouri. Drouth continues in New England, and the northern portions of the middle Atlantic states and in Florida and rains are needed in portions of the central gulf states and in southern Texas. Drouth conditions have been wholly relieved in the Ohio valley and over the greater part of the middle and south Atlantic states. The latter part of the week was unseasonably cool in the lower Missouri valley, west gulf districts and New England, damaging frosts and New England, named district.

Very favorable temperatures prevailed in the Ohio valley and South Atlantic and East Gulf states. More favorable conditions than in the previous week are reported from the Pacific coast states, much needed showers having occurred in Oregon and Washington.

Wet weather has caused further delay in corn planting in the Missouri and upper Mississippi valleys, where much of this work is unfinished and the early planted is becoming weedy. In the eastern portion of Kansas and Nebraska and in Iowa corn fields have been badly washed out and much replanting will be necessary.

In Iowa, the acreage will be materially reduced. In Illinois, planting is practically finished, and an excellent stand attained. In the Central and Upper Ohio valley planting is delayed and early fields in some portions are suffering for cultivation. In the Southern states corn has been doing well. Winter wheat on the low lands in the eastern portion of Kansas and Northeastern Missouri have sustained injury from the flood, but the crop has made good advancement, an improvement being generally indicated in the Ohio valley, lake region and Middle Atlantic states.

Harvesting is general in Texas and has begun in Arkansas and North Carolina. In Nebraska, the Dakotas and northern Minnesota, spring wheat has made splendid progress, but in southern Minnesota, Wisconsin and Iowa the crop on low lands has suffered much from heavy rains. In Washington and Idaho the crop is greatly improved.

NEW YORK MONEY.

New York, June 2.—Close: Money on call steady at 2¼@2½ per cent; closing at 2¼@2½. Time money steady; 60 and 90 days 3 per cent; 6 months 4@4½ per cent. Prime mercantile paper 4; sterling exchange strong with actual business in bankers bills at $4.88.30 for demand and at $4.85.25 for 60 days; posted rates $4.85½@4.86 and $4.87½@4.89; commercial bills $4.85. Bar silver 53¾c. Mexican dollars 42c. Government bonds easier; railroad bonds irregular.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, June 2.—The cotton market opened firm at an advance of 3 to 6 points on bullish cables, the Liverpool market having advanced on fears of damage through floods in the cotton belt. The local reports was slow and partial, as it is maintained here that as yet the floods are too far distant from the cotton region to justify serious alarm. The undertone of the New York market remained firm, however, on covering, and towards noon a net rise of 6 points on the near months and 6 to 8 points on the new crop months was apparent with trading only moderately active and chiefly on local account.

Cotton spot closed quiet; middling uplands, 10.50; middling gulf, 11.75; sales, none. Cotton futures closed barely steady. June, 11.08; July, 11.17; August, 10.72; September, 10.13; October, 9.64; November, December and January, 9.50.

STRENGTH SHOWN

In Stock Market and Close Was at Top Level.

Liquidation on a Heavy Scale In the Canadian Group.

New York, June 2.—Large selling of a few stocks weighed on the opening market today and caused generally fractional recessions. Rock Island, Southern Pacific, and Manhattan were the only important stocks to show resistance. Canadian Pacific was sold down 2⅝ and Twin City Rapid Transit lost ⅞. A slump in the London copper market induced a fall of 1¼ in Copper. Leather preferred lost a point and Sugar was down ¾.

Continued selling of what are generally known as the Canadian group induced further recessions in the active list, but supporting orders developed in the standard group and they rallied strongly. Southern Pacific rose to 50⅝ and Atchison, Rock Island and the other Pacifics sold a large fraction above yesterday's close. St. Paul advanced a point. Tennessee Coal, Amalgamated and Brooklyn Transit preferred were all losers of 1½@1¾. Among the declines registered were 6⅞ in Twin City Rapid Transit; 2⅝ in Canadian Pacific and 1¾@1¾ in the Minneapolis, St. Paul & Soo stocks. Sloss-Sheffield, and Toledo Railroad & Light. The market all around was rising sharply at 11 o'clock. Twin City Rapid Transit rallied 2⅝ and Minneapolis, St. Paul & Soo, Detroit United, Railroad and Canadian Pacific 1@1½.

The advance made gains of a point or more in Missouri Pacific, Wabash, Rock Island preferred and Kansas & Texas preferred; Erie, Manhattan, Brooklyn Transit and a few other stocks. Chicago, Great Western preferred A rose 1⅝ and Consolidated Gas 2. A break in Amalgamated to 2 below last night interrupted the advance. Canadian Pacific dropped to 2⅞ under last night and Twin City Rapid Transit 1⅜. Westinghouse Electric lost 4 and recovered 1. Northwestern lost 1⅜ and locomotive and Ajax Rubber Manufacturers lost 1. The reaction generally was fractional and did not carry the list back to the low point. Bonds were irregular at noon.

Liquidation was resumed on a heavy scale in the Canadian group. Twin City Rapid Transit broke rapidly to 89⅝, a loss over night of 12⅜ and the preferred stock declined to 110. Soo common lost 4½ and the preferred 5. Canadian Pacific sold at 118¾, a loss of 3⅝. A feature of the dealing was the wide spread in the bids for Minneapolis and St. Louis. The stock was offered at 78 without takers and then sold at 71 and 70 compared with 82, the previous sale. The next purchase was at 75. Virginia-Carolina Chemical preferred declined 3. Leading stocks were not notably affected by this liquidation and held well. People's Gas fell off 1 and North American 2½, buying orders for Twin City rallied it 3¾ and Canadian Pacific also recovered over a point. The check to the selling helped the active list and some stocks touched their best prices of the morning. Reading gained 1.

The ability to sustain the usual leaders despite the heavy liquidation elsewhere stimulated further buying and St. Paul, Atchison, R. & O., Rock Brooklyn and Wabash pfd., the Pacific coppers and Reading the current buying is regarded as excellent. It is always the case after a severe fall in prices that these are countless theories to explain the depression and all connect such prominent magnate with the liquidation. Probably the most definite thing of these theories is the one which names Charles M. Schwab a heavy seller of railroad securities for six months past. His friends deny this and say he has recently bought stocks, his purchases of which they say aggregate 40,000 shares of Steel common and preferred. Schwab predicts 60 for Steel common. Frederick S. Flower, of Flower & Co., for some time a rather bearishly inclined, said: "The market is getting in better shape as a result of shifting of speculative holdings, and I believe if there is further set-back it will mark the end of the decline."

Ridgley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: The professional traders who bought stocks last summer because sellers were few and scarce are selling short now with similar confidence because of the overplethora of stocks and no buying power. Sooner or later they are likely to be brought up with a round turn. Meanwhile the people who are os unfortunate as to be long without knowing or expecting their holdings are being forced to walk the plank. Manipulation and over-confidence carried prices for too high last summer, manipulation and undue pessimistic are doing the same in the opposite direction now. I do not venture to predict the immediate course of the market, though it appears that actual liquidation ended last Monday and since then one stock after another has been marked down to cheap figures by forced selling. THE GILLEN IS MISSING

Sunken Tug Cannot Be Located at Superior Entry.

Members of the United States engineering office, who are in charge of the new pier work at the Old Superior entry to the harbor claim that efforts of the owners to find the tug Gillen, which was sunk off the entry in a collision several days ago, have thus far been unavailing. The United States hydrographic office has a notice out that the place where the tug sunk is marked with a blue and white flag, but it is claimed that such does not now mark the place where the tug is located.

CLUB TAKES AN INTEREST

Commercial Club Will Help the Travelers' Industrial Parade.

The Commercial club is taking an active interest in the proposed industrial parade that will be given here in connection with the convention of the U. C. T. June 13, and a committee has been appointed to take charge and solicit the support of the local jobbers, manufacturers and retail merchants. It is being urged that all co-operate to make this feature a great success; that every firm in the city have in the parade a float advertising its business, and thus make a creditable showing to the visitors.

Arrangements are well under way for the accommodation of the many visitors that will be in the city during the traveling men's convention. Secretary Eva has advertised for rooms that will be for rent during that period, and requested all persons having such to either notify him by letter, in person or by telephone. As soon as practicable a complete list of all the available places will be printed and ready for reference at the Commercial club's bureau of information for visitors.

A list of all available rooms and boarding places was prepared last year, but there have been so many changes since that time that the list is of little value.

The lawn committee of the Commercial club will meet at the club reception rooms this evening with a similar committee from the Women's council, for the purpose of canvassing the situation relative to the prizes offered for the best kept lawns in the city.

BIDS FOR MIXER.

Local Concern Gets in the Lowest Estimate.

Maj. Lansing H. Beach, United States engineer in charge of this district, has received the bids for a concrete mixer that were taken by Assistant United States Engineer F. L. Dever, at Marquette, at which point the mixer will be used. The lowest bid was made by one of the local concerns. The bids were as follows, for the mixer with boiler and engine complete, and for the mixer with engine alone:

Contract Supply and Equipment company, Chicago, $1650 and $1150; Drake Standard Machine works, Chicago, $830 and $630; Municipal Engineering and Contracting company, Chicago, $1250 and $1000; Clyde Iron works, Duluth, $400 and $265.

North West's Arrival.

Northern Ticket Agent L. D. Kitchell, of the Great Northern railroad, received a second notice from the Northern Steamship company today regarding the first trip of the North West, the white boat that will ply between Buffalo and Duluth.

PAVING IS FIRST

Sewer, Water and Gas Connections Will Wait Upon It.

No Connections Installed Until Paving Contracts Are Let.

Sewer, water and gas connections will not be installed in Superior street, between Sixteenth and Twenty-third avenues east, until the contract for the street paving is let.

That is the answer of the city to property owners urging a delay of one year in the paving, but urging steps toward the placing of service connections.

The city officers say the charter does not permit their going ahead and installing service connections of this sort when a paving improvement is contemplated until the paving contract is let. If they let the contract now and delay the actual work till next spring, they say it will mean the tying up of $39,000 from the capital of the permanent improvement revolving fund, withholding it from other necessary work in other parts of the city.

Taking their cue from the council committee on streets, alleys and sidewalks, the board of public works has dropped all proceedings in the East Superior street improvement, and the matter will go over until next year.

One of the city officers today said that the section of the East Superior street property owners in withdrawing from the list of forthcoming improvements, came a little late for carrying on other improvements of a like nature this year. He cited an instance in the proposed laying of Central avenue in West Duluth, saying the petition would have been in long ago and the work ordered, but those back of it were in no haste, thinking it impossible to pave East Superior street and Central avenue this year.

POPE IS FATIGUED.

Rome, June 2.—The pope is fatigued on account of the heat. Though he is not ill, his doctor has suspended all not strictly necessary audiences. The probable postponement of the consistory for a few days is not connected with the pope's health but is due to the situation in France.

ASKS THIRTY THOUSAND

Minor Sues Drake & Stratton Company For Heavy Damages.

Alden Anderson, a minor, residing at Buhl, has entered suits through his guardian in the United States circuit court to recover damages in the sum of $30,000 from the Drake & Stratton Mining company for injuries sustained while in its employ. Anderson claims he was employed assisting in the unloading of the dirt stripped from the mines of the company near Buhl. He claims that the defendants ordered him to act as brakeman one evening on one of their trains, in spite of the fact that he had had no previous experience in the business and that he had not hired to do that kind of work.

While riding on the switchboard of the engine he was thrown off by the engine crossing at a rapid rate of speed over the tracks of the Great Northern railroad. His left foot was badly mangled by the engine running over it, and amputation was necessary.

The plaintiff claims that the engine was running at a rate of not less than fifteen miles per hour when crossing the tracks of the Great Northern, and that it was started up suddenly by the engineer and in such a careless fashion that he was unable to retain his hold on the board and was thrown beneath the wheels.

The plaintiff further states that by the accident he is rendered incapable of continuing at his former work.

MOST POPULAR LADY.

Carnival Company Will Give Her a Piano.

Who is the most popular lady in Duluth? That is a question that the gentlemen in charge of the Duluth Fair and Carnival company will soon be called on to decide. The lady that is honored with the highest vote, showing her popularity, will get a handsome new $500 piano, together with a cover and stool. The piano now occupies a prominent place in the windows of the Porter Music company and is fast becoming a center of attraction and fond hopes.

The fortunate young woman, who is chosen the most popular lady in the city, will also be selected as queen of the carnival. Only one condition is exacted in this popular contest and that is that all young women whose names are considered must have the endorsement of some one of the local organizations. There is a fair field and no favor. Everybody can vote and it is claimed there will be no prosecution wherever votes are repeated.

YOUR MONEY RETURNED

If Hyomei Does Not Cure You of Catarrh, Says S. F. Boyce.

In advising that he will refund the money to any one purchasing a Hyomei outfit who can say that it has done them no good in the treatment of catarrh, S. F. Boyce means exactly what this guarantee says.

Of course the percentage of cures by Hyomei is nearly one hundred or else he could not afford to make this unusual offer. But if the treatment should not be adapted to your case there will be no questions or quibblings when you go to get your money.

That the beginning of catarrh is due to the presence of germs in the air passages is now admitted by every physician. It stands to reason that catarrh cannot be cured unless these germs are first destroyed. The Hyomei treatment kills the catarrh germs, even in the minutest air cells, soothes and heals the irritated mucuous membrane and makes complete and lasting cures in cases that have resisted the usual methods of treatment.

Catarrh cannot be cured by medicines administered through the stomach. Hyomei is the only natural method and it has made cures that seem miraculous. An outfit costs but $1.00 and consists of an inhaler, which will last a lifetime and sufficient Hyomei for more than a month's treatment. Additional bottles of Hyomei can be procured for 50c.

S. F. Boyce gives his personal guarantee with every Hyomei outfit he sells to refund the money if it does not cure. There is no risk whatever to the purchaser of Hyomei.

TALKS TO IOWANS

President Roosevelt Makes Speech at Secretary Shaw's Home.

Regrets Calamities Which, He Says, Cannot Be Avoided.

Council Bluffs, Iowa, June 2.—The presidential train entered Iowa on schedule time at 3:50 this morning and was turned over by the Union Pacific to the Illinois Central road here without incident. All on board were asleep. The train left for Denison, the home of Secretary Shaw, at 4:20 a. m.

During the early morning hour the president's train passed through much of the flooded district of Iowa. Extra precautions had been taken by the railroad officials and the tracks over which the train passed were carefully watched and in some cases shored up.

Secretary Shaw and Senators Allison and Dolliver joined the president's party here.

President Roosevelt was greeted by a large crowd and spoke as follows:

"Friends: At this time, as I come into your beautiful state, there have come calamities upon our people here in Iowa, and to an even greater degree in Kansas and Missouri. I see also by today's papers the awful disaster in Georgia. We have biblical authority, as well as the authority of common sense, for the statement that the rain falls on the just and unjust alike. When the hand of the Lord is heavy upon any body of men the wisdom of man can do but little. Now and then in our country from drought, from floods, from pestilence trouble and misfortune will come, but oh, my friends, as I drove through your city this morning and now as I look at you, the men and women of this state, I know that all our troubles are temporary, that misfortunes will be met and overcome, because in heart and hand the American citizen is able to win his way in the long run. (Applause.)

"When misfortune that human wisdom cannot avoid comes, of course there will be suffering, there will be misery. Those of us who are free from it can try and must try to lighten it all we can, but we cannot help the fact that there will be much suffering. Furthermore, if through our own folly we do what is wrong, if we act foolishly in matters of legislation, we shall pay the penalty. If the business world loses its head it has lost what no law can supply, but in spite of that we shall go forward. We shall keep in the run on the plane, not only of abiding, out of increasing prosperity, if as a people we only keep our sanity as a people, if we keep the qualities which made us win out in the civil war and which have brought us in triumph through other crises so far.

"Something, a good deal can be done by law, a good deal can be done by the honest and upright administration of the law. I think you will do me the justice to say that I do not say what I do not mean. I never said anything off the stump that I would not say on the stump, so what I say now you can take as sincere. We have in the persons of Iowa's representatives in both branches of the national congress, it, Iowa's representatives in the administrative branches of the national government, men to whom I can turn, as illustrating what I mean when I say that we are helped greatly by good laws and by intelligent, fearless and honest administration of these laws. We need the ability that you in Iowa have furnished in your public servants.

"We need the standard of integrity that you have set in public life. We need that uprightness and fearlessness in a public servant which makes him do his duty no matter what may arise."

RECIPKOCITY PROPOSITION

With United States Does Not Interest Canada Now.

Washington, June 2.—Hope of the reassembling of the high joint commission has again been abandoned. A few months ago everything presaged a meeting of the commission in Canada, probably Toronto, just after the adjournment of the Canadian parliament. The matter had progressed so far that the records of the all commission were drawn from their pigeonholes and preliminary exchanges had taken place between Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Senator Fairbanks.

Mr. Chamberlain's speech in the British parliament last week, it is said here, is largely responsible for the new attitude of Canada. The hope held out by him to Canada of preferential treatment for Canadian imports into England has overbalanced any desire the Canadians might have for reciprocity with the United States.

The reciprocity proposition was the leading feature of the program to be submitted to the high joint commission, and as the Canadians show no disposition now to consider reciprocity, it is said that there will be no occasion to reconvene for the consideration of the subject.

TO SHOOT ALL THIEVES.

Topeka, June 2.—Governor Bailey and the Commercial club are drafting a proclamation to be sent out to the world concerning the acceptance of relief.

Twenty men with repeating rifles, under charge of Officer Capron, left for North Topeka at 2 o'clock. They will be stationed in the principal business houses and have strict orders to shoot down the first man caught attempting to steal property.

2 p. m.—The river is falling rapidly and now is three feet below the high water mark. Clearing weather is in sight.

PRESIDENT SPEAKS ON HISTORIC GROUND

At Dedication of Lincoln-Douglas Monument.

He Warmly Eulogizes the Great Emancipator.

Freeport, Ill., June 3.—President Roosevelt and party reached here from Dubuque at 8 o'clock and immediately afterwards were driven to the site of the Lincoln-Douglas debate in 1858, where a monument commemorating the event was unveiled in the presence of many thousands from Freeport and vicinity. At the court house the president was introduced by Congressman Hitt. The president referred to the debate as an event that was far reaching. He highly complimented the Women's club, of Freeport, who erected the monument. At 8:30 the party was driven to the depot amid the cheers of thousands and left for Rockford.

President Roosevelt spoke as follows: "We meet today to commemorate the spot on which occurred one of those memorable scenes in which the whole future history of the nation is moulded. Here were spoken the winged words that flew through immediate time and that will fly through that portion of eternity recorded in the history of our race. Here was sounded the keynote of the struggle, which after convulsing the nation, made it in fact, what it had only been in name, at once united and free. It is eminently fitting that this monument, given by the women of this city in commemoration of the great debate that here took place, should be dedicated by the men whose deeds made good the words of Abraham Lincoln and the soldiers of the civil war. (Cheers and applause.) The word was mighty, but had it not been for the word the deeds could not have taken place. But without the deeds, the words would have been the idlest breath. It is forever to the honor of our nation that brought forth the statesman, who with far-sighted vision could pierce the clouds that obscured the sight of the keenest of his fellows and could see what the future inevitably held. And, moreover, that we had back of the statesman and behind him the men to whom it was given to fight in the greatest war ever waged for the good of mankind, for the betterment of the world.

"I have literally but a moment here. I could not resist the chance that was offered me to stop and dedicate this monument, for great though we now regard Abraham Lincoln, my countrymen, the future will put him on an even higher pinnacle than we have put him. (Applause.) In all history I do not believe that there is to be found an orator whose speeches will last as enduringly as certain of the speeches of Lincoln. And the highest way in which we can honor him, is to see that our homage is not only homage of words; that to loyalty of words we join loyalty of the heart and that we pay honor to the memory of Abraham Lincoln by so conducting ourselves, by so carrying ourselves as citizens of this republic, that we shall hand on, undiminished to our children and our children's children, the heritage we received from the men who upheld the statesmanship of Lincoln in the council and who made good the soldiership of Grant in the field." (Cheers and applause.)

IN HOLIDAY GARB

Was Rockford, Ill., and Large Crowds Filled the City.

President Also Assisted In Dedicating New Memorial Hall.

Rockford, Ill., June 3.—The feature of the visit of President Roosevelt to Rockford today was the dedication of Memorial hall, a $60,000 structure, consecrated to the soldiers and sailors of Winnebago county.

The city was decked in gala garb, pictures of the president adorned the store fronts and residences, thousands of visitors flocked to the city. Local business men and manufacturers united in a movement for making the occasion of the president's visit a general holiday.

President Roosevelt reached Rockford on schedule time, arriving here at 9:15 a. m. He was accompanied by Congressman Robert R. Hitt and John A. Davis post, G. A. R., of Freeport in a body as an escort. He was officially greeted by a committee of six, consisting of Mayor Charles E. Jackson, Judge A. H. Frost, Congressman Charles E. Fuller and Messrs. T. E. Buckbee, J. B. Whitehead and Walter Van Alstine, of the county board, escorted by carriages to Memorial hall.

Both sides of the broad and asphalt paved thoroughfare were lined by uniformed men drawn up facing the passing procession.

Arriving at the Memorial building, Congressman Hitt introduced the president to the vast audience contronting him, and the chief executive made a brief response, after which came the unfurling of the flag over the memorial structure.

The president and party then re-entered their carriages and enjoyed a short drive through the principal streets of the city, first passing in review before some 4000 school children, massed at a park adjoining the Memorial hall grounds. Each child carried an American flag, and the salute given President Roosevelt was a most inspiring sight. The decorations for the occasion were the most elaborate ever attempted in this city. The throng in town was variously estimated at from 40,000 to 50,000.

Following the visit of the president and his party there was a public parade, participated in by local civic and military organizations. During the afternoon came the formal dedication exercises of the hall.

Department Commander Benson Wood gave the principal address of the day.

THE HEART BEATS

After It Has Been Removed From the Body.

Startling Experiments Are Made In University of Chicago.

Chicago, June 3.—That the heart is independent of the central nervous system and can be made to pump blood through an artificial circulation, even when removed from the body, has been demonstrated to the students at the university of Chicago by a striking experiment performed by Dr. Elias P. Lion of the department of physiology. Dr. Lion has been able not merely to make pieces of heart pulsate in salt solutions and in the air, as was done by Professor Jacques Loeb and Professor Lingle, but by the arrangement of suitable apparatus he has caused the heart of a dog to pump blood through itself, a pair of lungs and a loop of tubing over four feet high. Dr. Lion disclaims the distinction of discovering the method of causing an apparently dead heart to beat, as he says that the experiment has been performed before certain investigators.

Previous experiments have shown that the heart was independent of the central nervous system, and it was found that the only condition necessary for causing the heart to beat was that it should be able to circulate blood through itself. If this condition be met and the blood prevented from coagulating in the compartments of the heart, it was found that circulation could be kept up.

VAN SCHAICK-HAULENBECK.

New York, June 3.—Eugene Van Schaick, lawyer, clubman, and a nephew of Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, has been married to Miss Minnie Delamater Haulenbeck of New York, at Hackensack, N. J. Miss Haulenbeck is a niece of General Robert E. Lee. The groom is said to be a cousin to President Roosevelt.

EXPLORERS START.

New York, June 3.—Ralph Shainwald and Robert Dunn, both seniors in Columbia university, have started for Seattle, Wash., where they will join Dr. Cook, the Arctic explorer on a scientific Alaskan expedition under the direction of the Arctic club, of this city. The object of the journey is to surmount Mt. McKinley, the highest peak in America.

PEOPLE OF ST. LOUIS PREPARE FOR FLOOD

MAILS IN FLOOD

Are In a Very Congested Condition At Kansas City.

Service Is Very Uncertain In Western Postal Routes.

Washington, June 3.—General Superintendent White, of the railway mail service, today received a telegraphic report from Superintendent Taft, who is in charge at Kansas City, Mo., regarding the flood situation. The report is dated last night and says that there are prospects of more rain. The water has fallen about twelve inches. The Milwaukee bridge, it says, is not available for further use. In consequence the Wabash and Burlington trains east-bound are dispatched over the Missouri Pacific tracks to Sedalia, thence north to Moberly, via the Katy road. The Santa Fe (west) is getting trains in and out here over the Missouri Pacific via Ottawa, Kas. Frisco trains are being operated on regular time from Roseland, Kas., (near Kansas City). The daily papers here are handling their own mails. The transfer force at the old union depot was transferred to the Twenty-second and Grand avenue station and while there is great congestion on account of insufficient room and facilities for handling mails the service is doing as well as could be expected. Water has fallen about twelve inches at the Union depot but not sufficiently yet to be of any benefit. The service is still very uncertain in the western portions of the railroad postal routes running out from Kansas City to Quincy, Council Bluffs, Omaha, Caldwell, Colorado Springs, over the Union Pacific, and on practically all lines and branches in the eastern half of Kansas and western Missouri.

City In Good Shape to Withstand Water.

Conditions Are Improving Fast Elsewhere.

St. Louis, June 3.—The Mississippi continues to rise, a stage of 31.2 feet being shown at 7 a. m. This is a rise of 1.3 feet during the past twenty-four hours. It is expected that thirty-two feet will be reached some time today. In the meantime, people all along the river front, both here and in East St. Louis, are preparing for the big flood. River men and government officials predict that the water will be over the levee railroad tracks by noon today and officials of the different roads affected are busy making arrangements to place their rolling stock where it will be safe.

Weather Observer Bowie says of the situation: "The river at Kansas City is reported ten miles wide. Whatever is the cause of the delay in the arrival of the waters from that flood stage, the outlook here becomes more encouraging. The Mississippi below Cairo is comparatively low, which means that the water at present in the St. Louis district will move out rapidly, thereby possibly permitting the Kansas City stage of water to reach here Friday or aSturday, at a time when most of the flood from the Des Moines river and Upper Mississippi will have passed here."

Kansas City, June 3.—Flood conditions were materially bettered during the night and on all sides this morning the intense strain of the past four days had for the first time been relieved. Communication by steamer with Kansas City, Kas., having been opened permanently, and the exact conditions there having become known, no further feeling of anxiety was felt for the sufferers in that locality. Now that the lay of the land is known and the relief committees of both Kansas cities are able to work together, they have mapped out and put into execution elaborate plans for relieving all distress, restoring order and returning business to its natural channels. The plans are being carried out today by an army of local men, reinforced by relief in the shape of food and boats sent in from St. Joseph and Leavenworth.

At 7 o'clock this morning the Missouri river registered 34.4 feet, a fall of nearly 12 inches in as many hours, and the weather bureau predicts that from now on the water at this point will fall gradually but steadily. The Kaw river continues to fall at the rate of one-half inch an hour, and the tops of submerged buildings are beginning to show above the water line.

The sun shone today and this fact was a tremendous force for good.

Chicago, Burlington & Quincy passenger train, No. 3, from Chicago to Kansas City, due here at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon, is known to be safe somewhere east or north of here. The train arrived at Liberty, Mo., twenty-five miles nort .east from Kansas City, last Sunday afternoon. The tracks in Kansas City being unsafe, and train service in all directions being badly demoralized, the train was split into two parts and sent east and north to accommodate the new conditions. Some of the passengers continued on to Kansas City by other means of transportation, while most of them remained on one of the two sections of the train, and either returned toward their starting point, or dropped off at different towns along the line east and north of Liberty, making connections with other roads. While the exact location of the train is not known, there is every reason to believe that all the passengers are safe.

The report last night that the Missouri Pacific bridge had gone out proved this morning to be incorrect. The bridge, which spans the Kaw, is weighted down by seventeen engines, and as well as can be judged today by inspection made with the aid of a field glass from the bluff half a mile away, the bridge is still safe. The water about the structure is lower and the current less strong than yesterday.

The weather forecast issued at 10 o'clock this morning says: "Both the Missouri and Kaw rivers will continue falling today and Thursday. The flood level will be from one to two feet lower by Thursday morning."

The waterworks plant will probably be reopened tonight.

Sixty-seven people rescued by a steamer from the Randolph end of the Milwaukee railroad bridge, five miles below this city, were brought here last night. One of them, Judge W. P. Hall, said:

"When we reached the Milwaukee bridge Sunday night the engineer and conductor feared to cross on account of the reported damage to the piers, and held the train there all night. Monday morning the train returned to St. Joseph, leaving about twenty-five of us at Randolph. We hoped to cross the river in boats. Sunday night we slept in the train and Monday night at some farm houses lying nearby. We had plenty to eat and suffered nothing but inconvenience. We could see the city in the distance, but could not get a word of news about the flood."

Des Moines, June 3.—The work of caring for the 5000 destitute flood sufferers is still taxing the local committee to the utmost, but the committee has reaffirmed hat there is no need of outside assistance. Ten thousand dollars has been subscribed here, in addition to a large quantity of clothing and food. At Atlantic, two marooned families were discovered in the Nishna Botna bottoms last night cooped up in their own homes by the flood. For five days they had been compelled to sit on table, with no drinking water and practically nothing to eat.

The river continues to fall rapidly between here and Keokuk.

MEN MORE EMOTIONAL THAN WOMEN, SAYS PSYCHOLOGIST

At the Same Time They Are Superior In Physical Strength and Inventiveness Is Shown By Two Years of Experimenting.

Chicago, June 3.—Men are more emotional than women, as well as being superior in physical strength and in inventiveness, Miss Helen Bradford Thompson, doctor of philosophy, has proved, she says, after two years of experimenting with twenty-five young men and twenty-five young women students.

Miss Thompson is one of the leading psychologists of the country. She completed her work in experimental psychology at the University of Chicago, and is now the director of the psychological laboratory at Mount Holyoke college for women in Massachusetts. Miss Thompson's experiments were made in the psychological laboratory at the University of Chicago, and the results of her work have just been announced in the advance sheets from a work published by the University of Chicago press, entitled "The Mental Traits of Sex." Seven different sets of tests were applied to each of the fifty "subjects," and Miss Thompson spent about 1000 hours in making them.

The general results of her tests, Miss Thompson declares, show that the superior ingenuity and superior strength of men are not due to "sexual difference of mind," but to the influences of society, as now organized, and placed in the fact that the boy is taught to be independent in thought and action, is encouraged in all kinds of outdoor exercises, while the girl is taught obedience, dependence and deference, and to shun all actions that are not "ladylike."

VENEZUELAN REVOLUTIONISTS TO ASK RECOGNITION OF U. S.

Rebels Claim They Are In Possession of and Control a Large Part of Venezuela, and That They Should Have Rights of Belligerents.

New York, June 3.—The Venezuelan revolutionists, who have for over a year been fighting the government of President Castro, are to petition the United States for recognition as belligerents.

The request of the rebels is based on the fact that they are in absolute possession of all the ports of importance in the country except La Guayra, Maracaibo and Puerto Cabello, and hold also the entire eastern portion of Venezuela over which they exercise the power of government.

If the state department at Washington does not decide favorably on the application the revolutionary government. It is announced will make the same request of Great Britain. The reason that the United States is applied to first, is that the rebels would like to maintain the good relations with this country which now exist between Washington and the Castro government, and also because the United States is most interested from a commercial point of view.

MANY LIVES LOST AT VALPARAISO

London, June 3.—A dispatch to Lloyds from Valparaiso, Chile, confirms the dispatch of the Associated Press last night from Santiago de Chile referring to the fears expressed there for the safety of the Pacific Steam Navigation company's steamer Arequipa, which during a lull in yesterday's storm at Valparaiso left that port in an endeavor to ride out the gale at sea. The agent cables that the steamer, which had eighty persons on board was probably lost. The bodies of some of the Arequipa's crew, he adds, have been washed ashore.

Later advices from Valparaiso say the Arequipa foundered at her moorings and the captain, his wife and the mapority of the crew were lost.

New York, June 3.—In the gale which has just swept the bay here, says a dispatch to the Herald from Valparaiso, Chile, the British ship Foyle Dale, from Portland, Ore., with cargo of timber, struck the breakwater. The captain's wife, his son and six men were drowned. Near the Foyle Dale was kreeked the Chilean bark Chilvilingo, and two of her crew were lost. Scores of craft went ashore or were sunk.

TWENTY INCHES OF HAIL IN IDAHO

Nez Perces, Idaho, June 3.—A terrific cloudburst, accompanied by a heavy storm of wind and hail, occurred at the head of Lawyer's canon, thirty-one miles southwest of here, yesterday. Hail fell to the depth of twenty inches along the canon and destroyed grain on a strip two miles wide and six miles long. The only deaths reported are those of Joe Dempsey and his sister, Isabella, who were drowned in the flood of water which swept down the canon in a solid wall, twelve to fifteen feet high, carrying everything before it.

MILLERS ARE IN SESSION

Nearly Four Hundred Are Attending Meeting at Detroit.

Detroit, June 3.—Millers from all parts of the country South and West to the number of nearly 400 are here for the first convention of the Millers' National Federation, which will be in session at the Hotel Cadillac for three days. This forenoon the various leagues, associations and clubs allied with the federation, held their meetings, at which matters of local interest were discussed.

The delegates met soon after 3 o'clock this afternoon in the convention hall of the Hotel Cadillac. Reports of the officers were read and the standing committees announced. Two addresses on trade topics were then made. Professor M. A. Carter of the United States agricultural department, discussing the importance of the flouring industry in the United States.

THREE CHILDREN BURNED.

Clinton, Ind., June 3.—Three children of Benjamin Van Houtin were burned to death eight miles southwest of here. The father was at work on his farm when the house caught fire from a defective flue. A son, 13 years of age, was at work in a field near the house, when he saw the fire and went to the rescue of his little brother and sister. He broke in the door but was unable to reach the children, who soon burned to death. The rescuer died of his burns.

FOUR VESSELS FOUNDER.

Santiago de Chile, June 3.—A great storm occurred yesterday at Valparaiso. Four vessels foundered in the bay, the Esplanade was destroyed and great damage was done to the floating docks. There are some fears regarding the safety of the Pacific Steam Navigation company's steamer Arequipa, which, during a lull in the storm, left port to pass the gale outside the harbor and has not since been heard of.

VALUABLES BURNED.

Rome, June 3.—The Monte Di Pieta (state pawn broking establishment) at Naples was destroyed by fire during the night. The strong room filled with valuables was gutted. The damage according to some reports amounts to $2,400,000.

DIED FROM BURNS.

St. Paul, June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Walter E. Echlin, watchman at the Waterous Engine Wrks, who was burned in an attempt to extinguish the fire which destroyed the plant on South Robert street, May 22, died at the city hospital early today as a result of his burns.

THE SITUATION IN CHINA IS RAPIDLY GROWING ACUTE

The Outlook In the North Continues Very Grave While the Incursion of the French In the South Is Causing Great Alarm.

Victoria, B. C., June 3.—The crisis in China is becoming more acute, according to news received by the Empress of China, for not only is the situation grave in the North but also in the South, for, with the incursion of 2000 French troops across the Kwang Si border, Pekin has become greatly alarmed.

On the arrival of the French force at Che Nang, Governor Wang Chich Chung of Kwang Si asked the French consul to demand their withdrawal, but he replied that he had no authority over the forces. It is believed at Pekin that the action of the French in the South is taken for the purpose of creating diversion in favor of Russia. An influential petition has been received at Pekin from Hong Kong, asking for the dismissal of Governor Wang Chich Chung, for the reason that he is in league with the French.

The situation regarding Manchuria was grave when the Empress sailed. Reliable reports published by the Japanese papers told of the continued war preparations. A Chee Foo dispatch said that Russians were busily chartering steamers to carry troops and arms to Taku, Shan and Yalu. It is rumored that the Nippon Yusen Kaisha (Japanz Steamship company) has been asked to hold its fleet in readiness for transport. Stories of large accumulations of provisions by Russians and Japanese are frequent in Japanese papers. The Russian squadron was maneuvering off Yalu when the Empress sailed on May 22.

Mr. Sung, governor of Moukden, has arrived at Moji. In an interview he said Russia aims at securing permanent possession of Manchuria and the mouth of the Yalu.

COMMISSIONER WARE WAS NOT IN DANGER AT ANY TIME

Several Prominent Families Whom, It Was Feared, Had Been Carried Away By the Flood, Have Been Reported Safe at Topeka.

Topeka, Kan., June 3.—Eugene F. Ware, commissioner of pensions, is here safe. He has been in no danger at any time. He will not try to return to Washington for several days because of the demoralized condition of the railroads. A dispatch last night from Washington indicated that uneasiness was felt over Mr. Ware's condition.

The family of T. J. Coughlin, president of the Coughlin Hardware company, reported from the East last night as being lost, are safe at Perry, fifteen miles from here, where they were before the flood came up. Mr. Coughlin is at New Haven, Conn.

Three deaths from drowning are reported since last night. There are still about 100 persons in houses in the flood district, but all are safe. The river fell during the night at the rate of an inch an hour, and today is still going down rapidly. The refugees are being taken care of in a systematic manner and there is no acute suffering. Today there is plenty of fresh water, much provision is being sent in and more in the flooded district is becoming available.

AMERICANS GOING DIAMOND MAD

New York, June 3.—Americans are going diamond mad, according to the figures given out by the custom house here. Diamonds and other precious stones worth $2,422,600 were imported in May. This is greater than in any previous month. More than $50,000,000 worth of diamonds and other gems have been imported since the great May panic of 1901. The increasing great demand for the stones has increased their price, so that purchasers find the stones have proved a fine business investment.

LAST BOOTH STORY A PIPE DREAM

Baltimore, June 3.—In connection with the report from Enid, Okla., that John Wilkes Booth, assassin of President Lincoln, died there Jan. 14, under the name of David E. George, it is declared by persons familiar with the case that there is no doubt whatever that Booth's body is buried here in Green Mount cemetery. The remains were brought to this city after the examination in Washington. When the coffin was opened here the dead actor was recognized by persons who had known him intimately in his lifetime. Among them were members of his family. The identification was absolute. The body now lies buried in the Booth lot, but without any headstone or mark over the grave.

New York, June 3.—Clara Morris denies the report that she recently identified the body of George as Lincoln's assassin.

MOVEMENT AGAINST "THIRD TERMERS" STARTED IN OHIO

Some Opposition Is Developing Among the Republican Rural Delegates Against the Slate as Fixed Up By Hanna and Others.

Columbus, Ohio, June 3.—The preliminary conference of the Republican state convention here today indicate that the session under the temporary organization at 4 o'clock this afternoon will be harmonious.

All the delegates meet by congressional districts at 2 p. m. to select their members of the committee on resolutions, credentials, etc. When the delegates of the Eleventh district, who are instructed for Douglas, meet, they will be presented with a letter from their candidate relieving them from instructions and leaving Herrick without opposition.

Large posters appeared everywhere about the city today reading, "No third termers. The gallant Foraker was once defeated for a third term. Don't jeopardize Hanna's re-election."

This poster has revived the agitation of 1899 when Foraker was renominated for a third term for governor and the Democrats elected James E. Campbell, as governor and a majority of the legislature that chose Calvin S. Brice as senator, that being the last time that the Republicans lost the state.

Senator Hanna, George B. Cox and others have been in conference today over the opposition of the rural delegates to the larger counties combining on the selection of candidates, and it is evident that the secretaries will now have use for their tally sheets after Herrick is nominated by acclamation.

The feature of the convention today was the keynote speech of Senator Hanna as temporary chairman.

The opening event tomorrow will be the speech of Senator Foraker on assuming his duties as permanent chairman.

It is conceded that the opposition is not so much against "third terms" as against a slate which it is claimed was fixed by a couple of men long before any of the delegates were selected. The attack on "third termers" is made because two of the three who are seeking third terms are believed to be on the slate.

MADE HIS CHILDREN SUPPORT HIM

New York, June 3.—James B. Ledden, for many years a wealthy broker of Boston, is in Jefferson Market prison, charged with permitting his children to peddle in the streets. Two beautiful daughters, aged 15 and 11 years, are in the care of the Children's society, and his son, aged 13, is in the juvenile asylum. An agent of the Children's society arrested Ledden in a small room, miserably furnished, where he lived with the children. The latter sold small bottles of perfume in the streets and are said to have supported their father in this way for two years. Ledden was once rated as worth half a million. The panic of 1893 shattered his fortune.

ORDER CHANGING TRIAL VACATED

Jackson, Ky., June 3.—The order changing the trial of the Jett and White murder cases to Morgan county has been withdrawn and the cases will be tried here as soon as a jury can be summoned from an adjoining county. Curtis Jett and Tom White, alleged murderers of James Marcum, were brought into court by a file of soldiers today. Sheriff Callahan shook hands with both prisoners very cordially. The court's order of yesterday to hold their trial had not been entered, and upon the suggestion of Commonwealth Attorney Byrd of the inconvenience and danger to witnesses entailed, the court directed that the order be not entered and that the cases go to trial here. The judge will appoint an ellsor to go to another county and get a jury.

AT NORMAL SCHOOL

Commencement Address By Rev. A. B. Marshall of Minneapolis.

President Morey Presents the Diplomas to the Graduates.

The state normal school of Duluth graduated its first class this morning.

The exercises were simple, but pretty, and the seven young women who are the finished product of the new member of Minnesota's sisterhood of training schools for teachers, received their diplomas at the hands of C. A. Morey, of Winona, president of the state normal board.

There was not a large attendance, and in his talk Mr. Morey made this the subject of a little straightforward discussion of the duties of Duluth toward the new institution that it has secured after so much labor.

The stage was neatly decorated with a row of potted plants. Upon it sat the graduating class, clad in neat, attractive and tasteful gowns, at the right. In the center sat President E. W. Bohannon, Dr. T. H. Cleland and Dr. A. B. Marshall, of Minneapolis. To their left sat the faculty of the school, with the representatives of the state normal board, President C. A. Morey, of Winona, and Resident Director J. L. Washburn, of this city.

The exercises opened with a chorus by school, "O, Lord, Most Merciful," by Concone, and the invocation by Dr. T. H. Cleland, of the First Presbyterian church, of Duluth. After another chorus, Lohr's "Swing Song," the commencement address was given by Rev. A. B. Marshall, D. D., pastor of the First Presbyterian church, of Minneapolis. He spoke to the following effect:

"I desire to express to the management of this institution my appreciation of your invitation to be the lecturer on this occasion, also to congratulate the class of 1903 on having your commencement day. May I now speak to you from this theme "Bring Meal," and that the caption of my address may not seem without meaning, hear an incident in explanation from the history of the old normal school at Galgal, an important institution in its time and highly favored in that it was regularly visited by one Elisha, the best known man of his time.

"The doctor was a remarkable man. He was an able lecturer upon the important questions of the day. He was just as able to provide for the wants of those in school in a time of special need. On the occasion of his visits to the school he found the faculty in distress. There was a famine in the land and the students were starving. So before he went to the class room he directed his servant to prepare a dinner for the boys. But he did not make provision against the interference of a child of mischief, who belonged to the schools, one of those persons who has his own way of doing everything and is never fully satisfied with the plans of other persons.

"So while the doctor lectured and the servant seethed pottage, the child of mischief went out to the fields and gathered wild gourds and cast them into the pot. And then, the lecture having been completed, the students repaired to the dining room and gathering about the pottage fell to with a will. But scarcely had they tasted when one cried out: 'There is death in the pot' and great excitement ensued.

"But Elisha was equal to the emergency. He said: 'Then bring meal,' and when it had been furnished and cast into the pottage the students finished their dinner without harm.

"Now, members of the class of 1903, I conceive it to be the mission of those who graduate from our schools to bring meal for the health of society, to exert those saving influences which are necessary to the welfare of state and nation. If the state is justified in maintaining a system of schools, it is that the state may be blessed through these schools with men and women whose high aims and noble purposes will counteract the evils which threaten the welfare of society.

"So as you come to us from this school of learning, bring with you the meal of a healthful philosophy. The world is much in need of it. Because of the bondage of false philosophy many lives are in darkness and misery. In some instances the error which fetters is a delusive ledalism. It teaches that things are not what they seem; that vice is only misfortune; that sin is only misapprehension; that honesty is only policy.

"Sometimes it goes farther and says there is no heaven above us, no earth beneath our feet; that there are no trees, no flowers, no songs of birds, that the so-called external world, despite the testimony of our senses, is but a vision of the soul. Equally erroneous is a materialism which denies the existence of mind and spirit, which makes earth, sea and sky, life, thought and purpose, a combination or movement of matter; which banishes the soul from the body, spirit from the universe and God from heaven and finally negatives all responsibility.

"Bring us rather a philosophy, common sense and realistic, a philosophy which recognizes both a creating spirit and a created world; which teaches that there is both a mortal body and a living soul, and which seeks to understand the laws of both the natural and the spiritual world. A philosophy which forbids the neglect of either body or mind, and which calls for the culture of both the physical and moral in the development of man.

"Then we would like to have you help us to a truer appreciation of good literature. Our times are much poisoned with the atmosphere of a pernicious literature. We are all somewhat influenced by it. It is natural to take color from our surroundings, and nothing comes closer to us than the books and papers we read. More than we realize, they shape our convictions and mold our characters. It is not our thought that the books and papers of today are worse than in other days. They are really better, but no editor yet publishes his ideal newspaper, for as yet ideal papers are not much in demand. But we can think of a time when murders and scandals and the horrors of the police court will not be able to command the best places in our daily journals. It will be when a better mind and higher ideals shall prevail in the community.

"You have beheld these ideals from this mount of privilege. Help the world to see as you see. Make it impossible for your community to care for a Trilby or an Elsmere and you will have well served your generation.

"We also look to you for the meal of a healthful socialism. Americans are now trying to solve a difficult problem. In the sixteenth century our ancestors attained to religious liberty. In the next they secured political freedom. We are now contending for truth and justice in the industrial world. The conflict began when the capitalist, having the power in his hands, became a despot. It assumed a new phase when organized labor became tyrannical, and now a third party has entered the contest. It is the consumer, who insists that he has rights which both capital and labor are bound to respect. You have been in school, where a large sense of justice prevails. You have learned three principles, which, if well applied, ought to end this conflict and lift our people up to higher life. May we hear them often from your lips.

"First—The laborer is worthy of his wage, and it should be commensurate with the time, strength and skill which he gives in any service.

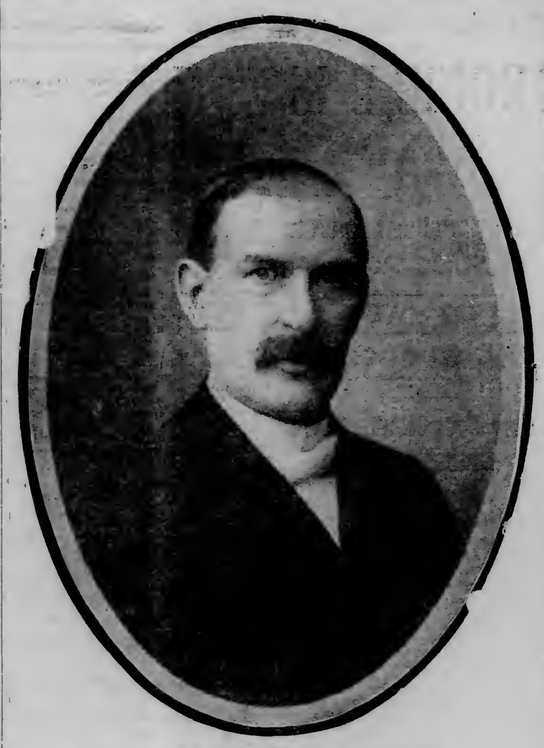
"Second—Capital has legitimate earnings to which must be added due recognition of the ability of those who manage successfully.

"Third—The consumer has a right to purchase, at reasonable prices, and so, when either consolidated capital or organized labor results in fictitious and exorbitant prices, it is the duty of the state to interfere.

"Nearly half a million of students will graduate from the higher institutions of learning of our country this month. If they will bring with them large conceptions of justice and righteousness into the contests of life and help solve the industrial problem which now perplexes society they will render an inestimable service to their country.

"Bring with you also the meal of a sound theology. A country is never better than its religion. A people's conception of God has always been an exponent of their civilization. It is the fundamental element in character. It has not been easy for the world to reach a true conception of the relationship existing between God and man, but we are approaching it, and as we grow in this knowledge we advance in righteousness. Modern civilization is better than ancient, because of the religious element which enters into it. But we are not yet what we may become. It would be possible to paint a dark but true picture of our time, and so will it continue until the educated and influential men and women of our day shall touch the thought and color the literature and mould the life of our people with that theology which makes the Redeemer King our Lord, our hope, our life. May it be your joy, because of your knowledge of God, to bring hope and cheer to many shadowed lives.

"In all these things be faithful, and when your day is done and the night comes, even the darkness will whisper, 'Peace.'"



REV. A. B. MARSHALL, OF MINNEAPOLIS.

"Before I leave you," he concluded, "I would add but one more word: Be faithful. Your class is small, but it has an eminence that none that follow you can have. It is the first to go out from this new institution. You are few in numbers, but not small in influence. A true life and earnest purpose have wider influences than we know. I knew a blacksmith who forged a chain, and when asked why he had rejected a number of links, as he had not been directed to make the chain any particular measure of strength, he replied that he considered it to be his duty to the Lord to do his best, and he intended to do it. That chain later held the anchor of a passenger ship that was driven by a fearful storm toward a rocky coast and it held the vessel safely until the storm ceased. That blacksmith's faithfulness on that day saved the lives of passengers and crew, yet he never saw the ocean and never dreamed of the use to which the chain in which he put his best efforts was to be used."

Miss Rena Smith very charmingly sang "Spring is Coming," and responded to a warm welcome with a dainty little negro lullaby, delicately and beautifully done.

President Bohannon then introduced Mr. Morey, and presented the class to him, saying that it was a special honor that Mr. Morey, who is the Winona resident director, should have missed the chance of attending the graduating exercises of the school that was naturally nearest his heart in order to be here.

Mr. Morey presented the seven diplomas to the young women, in behalf of the state and the state normal board. Then he said in part:

"I now have the last word. It is deemed an exceptional privilege to have the last word with one woman, and I have it with seven of them. What shall it be? After passing through your course, with the aid of the counsel and advice of your faculty, after the splendid address you have just heard, what is there for a plain business man and lawyer to say?

"I assume that you are all thinkers, and capable of thinking things out for yourselves. You must know that even after you have acquired all the knowledge of books, truth is never truth until you have lived it. The universe will be what you make it in your own minds; it will be what you are able to get out of it. You will not be a force as teachers until you can establish truth from the processes of your own minds.

"A few final words of counsel I would leave with you from a business experience: Take your time; be serene. Some of the most successful women I have known have been graduates of Mount Holyoke seminary, and I have noticed that they all seemed to have poise, and are calm and self-possessed. It seems to be the spirit of the institution. You have heard that possession is nine points of the law. I tell you that self-possession is the other point. Look your problems in the face with calm spirit and deliberation, and you will always come out with your self-respect and mostly with success. I believe in deliberation, and I think that all the cases of nervous prostration among women today could be cured in six months if the knitting needle was re-established. If you made a practice of sitting for an hour a day in pleasant surroundings and thinking things over, you will live long and pleasantly.

"Don't push your pupils into the distressing and disastrous hurry of today. Give them a chance even to be stupid, if they want to. If you find a boy that goes to sleep in school, watch him. He has picked up somewhere a splendid constitution, a set of nerves that are not rasping, and he has possibilities of action that will serve him in good stead when the need arises.

"Be direct in your dealings with everybody. Come to the point. Boil it down. Talkative teachers are not wanted.

"Another thing, if you have any affectations, hunt them out of you. No matter whether it is of manners, dress or speech, search them out and wipe them out. If you don't do it, your pupils will find them. They see such things as clearly as can be, and nothing will handicap you more. Be yourselves; be natural. With these things and with cheerfulness—and I hope you will keep on the bright side of things—you cannot fail. Cheerful persons serve a good purpose in the world, even if they do not accomplish much of anything else.

"And now a word to the people of Duluth. I have been disappointed today in the showing of interest in these exercises. In Winona we have been compelled to hold them in the evening and down town, because the people there are interested and want to attend. Duluth, with its commanding position and imperial future, cannot afford in its commercial development to overlook or under-rate an institution like this. Nothing will give it greater prominence and standing than this school. I have believed, as many know, that this should be a summer normal school on account of its climate, and that in the summer season when your weather is so pleasant and the teachers are not engaged great accomplishments would result.

"But Duluth must certainly wake up to the fact that there is great power and great influence in this institution. I trust that hereafter occasions like this will be notable ones, made so by the people of Duluth on account of their pride in it."

The exercises closed with a final chorus by the school, "Night of Joy," by Strauss. The members of the graduating class are as follows:

Advanced graduate course—Elizabeth Emily Bowman, Helen Emily Bowyer, Agnes Rebecca Holt, Willena Marie Marshall, Elizabeth Sandilands Merritt.

Elementary graduate course—Amanda Eleanor Ellefsen, Esther Levy.

RECEIVE THE SENIORS.

Normal Junior Class Entertains the Graduates.

Last evening the junior class of the normal school gave a reception for the seven seniors. The girls of the class did wonders with a room that was rather hard to decorate, as the library is barren of furniture. One end of the room was filled with the stage for the little play that the seniors gave in the first part of the evening, and about the rest of the room huge bowls of cherry blossoms and the colors of the classes, lavender and cream, and green and white converted the room and hall into a fine reception hall.

The play which was given for the first part of the evening's entertainment was the production of Miss Prendergast of the normal faculty, and was a clever and bright piece of work. The graduates took the parts, which were simply themselves, and the peculiarities of teachers, pupils and the hobbies of all were hit off in a way that the students and faculty appreciated immensely. The girls acted with a naturalness that made one forget completely that they were showing before their friends.

There was music and the girls pulled each other around the hall, for men, except the fortunate few of the faculty, were completely cut. Others played caroms and punch was served at one end of the hall in a dainty little bower. The committee of the junior girls who had the matter in charge deserve a great deal of credit, and it all went to prove that a party without boys is just exactly, well then, nearly as much fun as one with the animals around.

SUNDAY BASEBALL

Will Be Decided on Merits at Indianapolis.

Indianapolis, June 3.—Judge Carter today overruled the demurrer of the defendants in the suit brought in the superior court for an injunction to prevent playing of professional Sunday baseball in Indianapolis.

The complaint of the anti-Sunday ball people asks for the injunction. The case will be fought out on its merits.

CHANGES IN TEAM

Three New Players Don the Uniform of the Cardinals.

Are Said to Be All Players of Fast Class.

Violent vibrations similar to the seismic disturbance that changed Mt. Pelee's style of play was felt in the ranks of the Duluth baseball team this morning.

Incidentally three new players appeared in the Cardinal uniform this afternoon and the team has a new field general in Murphy, who has played short in the last two games.

A report was current that a line of $25 had been imposed on one player for the loss of yesterday's game, but it proved to be a poor effort on the part of the Guess Again society. However, some very strong monologue was imposed and the burden of it was that there would have to be something done in the way of ginger, speed and practice.

The new battery this afternoon is Shaw and Martin. The pitcher comes from Milwaukee and looks every inch a good twirler. He would still be taking his regular turn with the team that leads the American association race had it not been for the thirteen-limit rule recently adopted in that organization.

Martin, who will catch him, is a young college man and gives evidence of being a first-class player. Both men arrived this morning and were somewhat tired, but when informed of the situation here expressed their willingness to go in this afternoon and take chances.

Another new man in the team's make-up this afternoon is Harris, who was sent in to play left field in the place of Pilscher.

The managers of the team have selected Fridays as the day on which women, accompanied by escorts will be admitted to the game and grand stand free.

It promises to be a popular move and it is probable that it may bring about something of a change in luck.

An exhibition game between Duluth and Superior will be played at West Superior on Sunday afternoon. This game does not count in the league race, but it will be the first meeting between the two and will be more than ordinarily interesting.

LETTER IS FACETIOUS

W. B. Phelps Makes Sarcastic Comments on Vermilion Road.

The board of county commissioners, ever since the first of the year, has been receiving petitions from residents in different parts of the county for the improvement of already established county roads, some of which are declared to be impassable. Lately there has been much complaint over the condition of the Vermilion road and a number of the settlers to whose locations the road gives access have filed a petition for its improvement, with the county board. The petition was drawn up by Attorney W. B. Phelps, of this city, whose comments relative to the improvement are both facetious and to the point. His explanatory letter to the county commissioners follows:

"Gentlemen: The ancients said, 'all roads lead to Rome,' but the moderns declare, 'all roads lead to Duluth.' The exception which proves the rule last settled the Vermilion road, which leads to profanity and—I was about to say—Hell, but the authorities on highways seem to hold otherwise. Virgil wrote, 'Easy is the road to Hell,' and another affirmed, 'The road to Hell is paved with good intentions.' The Vermilion road is neither 'easy' nor 'paved.' It is a slough of despond infinitely worse than the celebrated sea of a tinker ever dreamed of, and I greatly fear that some of your honorable body will be lost therein unless your ways, and this one in particular, are specially mended. To guard against the possibility of such a dire calamity Edward Bothe and sixteen others have joined in the enclosed petition asking to have the Vermilion road improved without any unnecessary delay, and if you can grant the request of these gentlemen, they will rise up out of the mire and call you blessed. Hopefully yours,

"WILLIAM B. PHELPS."

WORST OF EXPERIENCES

Can anything be worse than to feel that every minute will be your last? Such was the experience of Mrs. S. H. Newson, Decatur, Ala. "For three years," she writes, "I endured insufferable pain from indigestion, stomach and bowel trouble. Death seemed inevitable when doctors and all remedies failed. At length I was induced to try Electric Bitters and the result was miraculous. I improved at once and now I'm completely recovered." For liver, kidney, stomach and bowel troubles Electric Bitters is the only medicine. Only 50c. It's guaranteed by all druggists.

CITY WINS POINT

Needs to Pay Only Cost For Boarding Its Prisoners.

County Had Been Making Profit of 17 Cents a Day.

The city of Duluth has protested against paying the county of St. Louis 50 cents per day board for the prisoners confined in the county jail, when it costs the county but 33 cents per day to feed each prisoner. What is more, the city has made the point stick and a settlement between the city and county officers, hereafter, will be made on a basis of 33 cents for each prisoner confined in the county jail for violating the city ordinances, instead of a 50-cent basis as heretofore.

The situation causes Alderman Mannheim to wear a glad smile, for when he appeared before the county board some weeks ago to protest against an alleged rake-off by the county of 17 cents per city prisoner, the alderman received little more satisfaction than a merry ha-ha from the commissioners, some of whom claimed that the statutes fixed the board rate at 50 cents per prisoner.

At the last meeting of the board, Sheriff Eutehart reported that the city had held up its prisoners' board bill ever since last January and that there was then several hundred dollars due the county for meals consumed by violators of the city ordinances. The city refused to pay on the ground that the county had no right to charge the municipality more than the actual cost of board per prisoner. The county officials came back with the argument that there was other expenses of heat, soap, water, light and clothing to take into consideration and that the 50 cents per prisoner hardly covered the expense, also that the rate was fixed by law.

Assistant County Attorney W. G. Crosby was instructed by the county board to investigate the claim against the city, and if he found it legal, to take the proper steps to collect it. Mr. Crosby was asked to look up the two questions, one of which was whether the commitment fee of $1 is properly chargeable to the city by the sheriff on all prisoners committed to the county jail. The second question was the rate of board the county should be paid by the city for prisoners confined in the county jail.

Mr. Crosby has given an opinion that the county cannot charge the city more than the actual cost of board for its prisoners, but holds that the $1 commitment fee must stand as it is. Mr. Crosby says that the fees of the sheriff remain the same that they were under former acts, that the statutes expressly give the sheriff a fee of $1, and that this fee now goes to the county.

As to the prisoners' board, the only provision that the assistant county attorney finds in the statutes in reference to the matter is that the sheriff shall collect for the board of prisoners confined for the violation of the city ordinances. The statutes nowhere prescribe what the amount shall be and, in the absence of such provision, Mr. Crosby does not see how the county can collect more than the actual cost of the board.

In the case of federal prisoners confined in the county jail it is different, for the law fixes the rate of board of each, which is not necessarily the same as the cost.

It is understood that the city is now willing to pay up all its back claims for prisoners' board since the first of the year, on the 33-cent per day per prisoner basis. This will mean a saving to the city of Duluth of 17 cents per day for each prisoner, and will amount to quite a sum in the aggregate, though what this amount will be will not be definitely known until the sheriff's office goes over the bills and makes the correction.

ROAD IS NOT NECESSARY

A Settler Gives County Board a Friendly Tip.

Not all the petitions for county roads are receiving the support of the people living along the proposed routes. Among the protests recently received against the expense that the county will be put to to make roads asked for is a letter written the county auditor recently from a settler near Sparta, which is decidedly to the point and is likely to call for an investigation of the merits of the petition. The letter was written under a recent date and is as follows:

"I have heard that a road will be made east of the Miller trunk road, between sections 10 and 3-56-17, and I thought I could, perhaps, save the county some useless expense. There are no actual settlers there that are likely to remain for any length of time. There are men who hold homesteads illegally, that go out once in a while to their homesteads for a few days to hunt or get on a good drunk, but the rest of the time they stay in town, otherwise they have no use for a road."

Stop Taking Drugs.

Why should you take them when they are not doing you any good? Stop and think for yourself. In what way can a strong, corrosive drug impart health and strength?

Have the cause of the trouble removed and you will find that the effect will stop in short order. Dr. Rhesland, at 206 East First street, does that by replacing the misplaced vertebrae in your spine, and in that way relieves the pressure that is on the nerves through which nature runs the human mills.

Are you thin? Would you like to get fat and plump? Tried "laughing," wouldn't work, now take Rocky Mountain Tea—'twill do the business. 35 cents. S. F. BOYCE.

TROUBLE IS NEAR

Wolvin Building Employes Are Getting the Baseball Fever.

They Exchange Sarcastic Letters and Will Play Saturday.

Talk about baseball!

The plutocrats of the Wolvin building are swathed in thoughts of a bitter battle at the Driving park Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

There is one question. Two ball players are working in the office of President W. J. Olcott of the Missabe road, or General Manager W. J. Olcott of the Oliver Iron Mining and Minnesota Iron companies.

The game is to be between employes of the Missabe road and employes of the Oliver Iron Mining company.

The contention is over the possession of players in the office of Mr. Olcott.

Attorney Joseph B. Cotton, general solicitor for the Steel corporation, is preparing a legal opinion on the rights and claims of the parties.

L. W. Powell, assistant to the president of the Oliver company, whose remarks lately have caused the men about the building to believe he is a hot baseball fan, will be forced to umpire the game.

Second Vice President James Gayley, of the Steel corporation, is expected soon from New York, and may be here in time to witness the game. The game will be held for a couple of hours, if necessary.

The winning team at Saturday's game will challenge the Duluth professional team, and has decided to permit the management to select any Superior players it may desire.

This communication started the trouble.

It having been brought to the attention of the employes of the Missabe Railroad company that your rating as baseball players is shockingly low, and whether from neglect in youth or indifference in after years, that today you stand totally unable to defend the time-honored name of the Oliver Iron Mining company, we as your proud, though distant relatives, consider it our duty to encourage you in learning, and take this opportunity of informing you that at the Driving park, June 6, the game of baseball will be taught to you, all of its fine points by worthy and capable instructors, the line-up of which will consist solely of Duluth, Missabe & Northern Railway company employes.

"Assuring you that you shall have the benefit of our thorough knowledge of the game, gained after many years of tireless effort, and unceasing attention to the art, we beg the honor to remain, very cordially,

"W. G. TAYLOR,
"Manager."

That was to the Oliver Iron Mining company employes. It was in legal form, with the backing of Mr. Cotton's professional office on it.

Flushed with hopes, the Missabe men went to a vacant lot at Fourth street and Lake avenue last evening to practice.

The list of casualties are as follows:

Sanford McLeod—Struck in eye with ball, terribly swollen; will not lose eyesight.

W. G. Taylor—Jumped for high liner and strained knee on getting back to earth.

Edward J. Maney—Struck in arm with ball; not serious enough to get a base on it.

The ire of the Oliver boys caused their manager, J. L. Norman, to return the following reply, which has all the building in excitement, and betting is heavy, one man trying to stimulate interest bet money each way with members of either team:

"Last evening we received a challenge purporting to come from ball players (?), and make haste to accept the same, not for one minute having in mind a real contest, but it affording our team an excellent opportunity for practice, and we will endeavor to put up an article of ball which will give the challenging alleged ball tossers an opportunity to see real ball playing.

"The team will be composed solely of employes of the Oliver Iron Mining company and Minnesota Iron company, but we wish, particularly, to call attention to the fact that the general manager's office will not be represented on our team.

"Again thanking you for the opportunity afforded our team for practice, we remain," etc.

The Oliver boys will have their practice game tonight, and twenty-three will be tried out by Manager Norman, who burned his wrists badly at Ely fishing on Sunday, and has been unable to get his hands in his pockets since to flash betting funds.

PART II.

Sacred cantata—"Jephtha's Daughter" .....H. M. Schletterer

Synopsis—Jephtha, a leader of the Israelites, being sorely pressed by a formidable army of Ammanites and their allies, made a vow that if he were victorious, he would offer as a holocaust to the Lord the first person who would advance from his own home to meet and greet him as he returned in triumph. The Israelites, encouraged by the spirit of self-sacrifice on the part of their leader, for they knew his devotion to those of his own household, fought with renewed valor, rushing the thickest of the combat. What were their lives, they thought, compared with their country's honor! The enemy were utterly defeated; twenty cities of the Ammonites fell into the hands of the Israelites.

The victors, headed by Jephtha, marched home in triumph. Salome, his daughter, is the first to advance to meet him. The unhappy father, falsely attributing the victory to the vow he had made, believes he is bound to immolate this, his only child, a beautiful woman, the pride of the people of Israel. The maiden, bred to obey her father's lightest command, willingly accepts the cruel doom. Her father's honor and the good of her people, she thinks, makes this obligatory; her mild answer was: "My father, if thou hast opened thy mouth to the Lord, do unto me as thou has promised."

Salome has always been revered and admired as a striking example of sweetness, gentleness and heroic fidelity.

DULUTH WINS ANOTHER CASE

Won Two and Lost Two of Garfield Viaduct Cases.

The city of Duluth won out in the damage action brought against it by the Western Land association on account of the Garfield avenue viaduct. This was the last of five similar actions brought against the city because of alleged deterioration in the value of property adjoining the viaduct.

In the five cases the city won two, lost two and compromised the fifth. The total of the judgments against the city in these actions is $220.

The verdict in the last case was arrived at by the jury last evening, and was opened in court this morning.

In Judge Dibell's room the defendant is introducing testimony in the action of Mary Campbell against the grand lodge of the A. O. U. W. to recover $1000, alleged to be due on a policy issued to the plaintiff's son, who was drowned. In Judge Cant's room the case of Annie J. Prescott against Louisa Johnson is still on trial.

To Be With Bethels.

Rev. Charles C. Beatty and Mrs. Beatty, of Huntington, Indiana, arrived in the city yesterday. Mr. and Mrs. Beatty come to spend two weeks with the Bethels.

Mr. Beatty speaks at the branch Bethel tonight and at the Lake avenue Bethel Friday night. Mrs. Beatty and Mrs. Asher will sing at both meetings.

Rev. Thomas H. Derrick, chaplain of the Bethel at Ashtabula, Ohio, is in the city looking over the work of the Duluth Bethels.

PASSENGER TRAIN DITCHED.

Peoria, Ill., June 3.—The Rock Island & Peoria passenger train due here late last night was wrecked at Alta, eight miles from here, by the breaking of an axle. The cars were ditched and three passengers and two trainmen were injured. A relief train brought the injured to Peoria this morning and they were placed in St. Francis hospital. It is thought all will recover.

War Veterans Get Licenses to Peddle Without Usual Tax.

Law Passed By the Last Legislature Authorizes This.

For the first time on record the city is issuing peddling licenses free.

The licenses cost $15 a month ordinarily and $1 a day for general hawking.

The free license, however, only applies to union veterans of the civil war and the action on the part of the city officers is authorized by one of the laws passed last winter by the legislature.

It was something of a surprise when the first old soldier walked into the city hall, asked for a license to peddle and when the question of license money and fees were politely broached, flashed army discharge papers.

The law was promptly looked up and the license issued without so much charge as the customary clerks' fee. It is now claimed that foreigners that have had a monopoly of the peddling business in Duluth will have keen competition from the grand army veterans owing to this financial assistance offered by the state and city.

Up to the present time a number of the old soldiers that have thought of embarking in the peddling business were discouraged by the fact that a license of $50 a year would be required, or an annual outlay of $300 for hawking.

The hawking business is said to appeal more strongly than the peddling. With a hawking license it is said to be a comparatively easy matter for a man with a horse and wagon to clear up a substantial living in a year.

Sunday School Meeting.

Yesterday the last regular meeting of the Sunday School association took place at the Lester Park Methodist church. There were two sessions, in the afternoon and evening, and the subject of Sunday school attendance was discussed and a committee, which has had the work in charge, will confer with a committee of preachers of the city this evening at the First Presbyterian church.

Interesting talks were given on the work by W. J. McCabe, Rev. W. J. Lowrie and Dr. T. H. Cleland. A delightful supper was served at the church and in the evening a short musical program was given by Miss McGiffert and the Y. M. C. A. orchestra.

Cussick-McBride.

This morning a pretty wedding occurred at the cathedral, when Miss Minnie T. Cussick and William J. McBride were married by Rev. Father Hogan. The services ocurred at 8:30 and was attended by their many friends. The attendants were the bride's sister, Miss Annie Cussick, and Michael Stack. The bride was gowned in white and carried white roses and Miss Annie Cussick wore a dainty ping gown.

After the wedding a breakfast was served at the home of the bride, 105 East Second street. Mr. and Mrs. McBride left for a wedding trip to Mr. McBride's home at Shelbyville, Ind., and will be at home in Duluth after June 20 at 320 East Sixth street.

AT WEST DULUTH

C. W. Merton, of St. Paul, was in West Duluth this morning. Mr. Merton admits he is a crank on the poultry business, and says that he intends to start a poultry farm in the vicinity of West Duluth which he will equip with two or three large incubators and go into the poultry raising business in a large way.

"I have always believed there was money in the poultry business," said Mr. Merton today, "and I intend to test my theory as soon as I can make arrangements to leave my business in St. Paul long enough to get things started up here. There is a splendid chance for such an institution about Duluth. There is an excellent market in the city and on the ranges. The supply of poultry here in Duluth has not been equal to the demand this winter, dealers tell me, and I believe a farm exclusively devoted to poultry would pay good money. I have a small tract of land between here and Cloquet which I will use for the purpose, and I intend to put several hundred hens on it for an experiment. If it proves to be a money maker I will add to the number."

Mr. Merton's experiment will be watched with interest by a number of West Duluthians owning small tracts of land in the neighborhood about Duluth, and should it prove successful many may follow his example.

ST. JAMES CHURCH.

Brick is being hauled to the site of the new church which is being erected by St. James parish.

The permit for the new building was issued yesterday. The cost of the structure is to be about $17,000. The new edifice will be built immediately adjoining the present church on foundations which were laid last summer.

I. V. Hill is the architect in charge of the work. Brick will be the material used, and it is hoped to have the church ready for occupation by Oct. 1.

The parish has been working for a number of years toward the erection of a new church, and it is largely owing to the untiring energy of Father Feehely that the efforts were successful.

The plans for the new building provide for a parish house adjoining the church.

AREBUYING LITTLE

The Copper Metal Market Is In an Unsettled Condition.

Weakness of Shares Is Said to Be Affecting Confidence.

George L. Walker thinks the weakness of copper shares, particularly Amalgamated, is causing the weakness in the metal market. In his weekly letter he says:

Copper is unsettled. Though Lake is still selling at 15¼ cents and electrolytic at 15 cents, consumers are buying no more than they need for immediate use. The largest producers are a unit in holding their copper for 15⅜ to 15½ cents, and except for some of the very low grades of casting copper, which cannot be used to advantage until worked over, there are no considerable amounts of metal offered below the prices named.

The constant decline in stock market prices has done more than anything else to shatter the confidence of consuming interests. In the weakness of Amalgamated they think they see the premonition of a decline in copper prices, and consequently they are buying no more than the emergencies of their business demand. Foreign consumers are especially confident that conditions are all wrong. Speculators have succeeded in selling the price of copper down in the London market a total of £3 12s 6d for spot and £4 10s for futures during the present week, or the equivalent of about three-quarters of a cent a pound. This decline has very naturally operated to aggravate the unsettlement of conditions in domestic trade circles.

Leading producing and selling interests in Boston and New York declare that they can see no sign of weakness in the copper situation. Though production has been greatly increased, there is a marked scarcity of electrolytic copper and also of the better grades of Lake. Consumers have exhausted their surplus supplies, are already in the market buying for immediate use and must early next month begin to make provision for their future needs. Though there is a good deal of apprehension felt in financial circles as a result of the persistent decline in security prices, industrial development continues unabated, the only difficulty experienced being that of getting laborers and ... enough to do the work that is underway. The outlook, especially along electrical lines, gives promise of great activity. It is good opinion that as soon as the stock market begins to show improvement copper will again be in active demand at a price above 15 cents per pound.

COPPER SHARES.

Liquidation in the general market, which has gone on from week to week until ominous rumors have pervaded financial circles and talk of a threatening panic have been heard on every hand, has caused free selling of copper mining stocks and prices have declined without regard to intrinsic vales. The coppers are selling much lower on the average now than at the highest prices of last year, when the top price reached for the metal was 13¾ cents per pound, and when there was known to be a considerably large surplus of copper in the hands of producers and selling agencies for which it was feared there would be no market at better than the cost price. The metal situation seems to be perfectly healthy now, prices are high enough to show a most excellent profit to the producing mines, and there is every reason for the belief that the future has nothing in store for the copper mining industry but lasting prosperity. In the long run value asserts itself in the stock market, and the prosperity of the producing companies must sooner or later be reflected in the prices of copper mining shares.

There are most excellent reasons for the belief that Standard Oil-Amalgamated interests are not bearish on the general market at the present level of prices. They were heavy sellers of railroad and industrial stocks at the inflated prices of a year ago, and the money released by such sales is understood to have been loaned out since that time through several banks and trust companies in New York at low rate of interest. Some of this money has recently been relnvested. This much is known, and is almost certain that a very large amount of it is being invested at current low prices, and as a rule in the same stocks that were sold out at the top of the boom last summer. While waiting for railroad securities to again reach a normal level, in order that investments might be made advantageously, Standard Oil interests did not care to make it apparent that they were bullish on the general situation as they would have done had they countenanced a bull movement in Amalgamated stock. With the cleaning up of bad accounts, which have resulted from the extreme decline in security prices, these interests will come into a new relation to the stock market. They will have stocks, and will naturally be interested in having them sell higher. Amalgamated will be a good index to tell of their position on the market as a whole, and its earnings are so much greater than a year ago that it is almost certain to be selected as a market leader.

POSTAL CLERK DISCHARGED

Charge Against Him Is Violating the Postal Laws.

Washington, June 3.—Second Assistant Postmaster General Shallenberger yesterday removed S. Schlbsby, of Kansas City, a railway postal clerk, on the charge of violating the postal laws. Schlbsby is charged with leading a movement of railway postal clerks to secure payment for traveling expenses, a claim that never has been recognized by the government, and which would involve paying of about $3,500,000 annually for the 800 odd clerks in the country. The case has been investigated by Alex Grant, the assistant general superintendent of the railway mail service. The order of dismissal is based on alleged violation of section 1598 of the postal laws and regulations, forbidding clerks from engaging in the prosecution of claims against the government; section 1472, which forbids clerks engaging in other business; section 1452, which forbids clerks turning over the mail keys to any one who is not a sworn officer of the government, and violation of instructions of his chief clerk, and absence without leave from and after May 9, 1903.

FROM THE ANTARCTIC

Lieut. Shackleton Has Secured Large Amount of Data.

New York, June 3.—On his way back to England from "Farthest south" on the voyage of the Antarctic ship Discovery, Lieut. E. H. Shackleton of the British navy has arrived in this city from San Francisco.

"As soon as I reach England," he said, "I shall make my report to the Royal Geographical society, which sent out the expedition on the steamer Discovery. I have a large amount of scientific data which, of course, must first be reported to the society. It shall also be one of my first endeavors to awake the English public and the government to the importance of going on with the present work. Unfortunately it is not so easy a matter in England to obtain money for such work as we have undertaken as it is in the United States. For the rescue of the Discovery and for the completion of the work that has been begun about $60,000 will be required."

Week End Excursions.

The Great Northern will sell on every Friday and Saturday up to Sept. 26, tickets to Grand Rapids, Deer River, Cass Lake, etc., at one fare for the rond trip, good to return on the following Monday. These week-end excursions give fishermen an excellent opportunity of having a fine day's fishing at these notable resorts. Ticket office, Spalding hotel corner, 432 West Superior street.

LIPTON'S FLEET AT FAYAL.

Fayal, Azores, June 3.—Sir Thomas Lipton's steam yacht Erin and the challenger for the America's cup, the Shamrock III, from Gourock, Scotland, May 28, arrived hee today. The Shamrock I and the tug Cruiser are expected to arrive here tomorrow.

GOLD FOR EXPORT.

New York, June 3.—Heidelbach, Ickelheimer & Co. have engaged $750,000 gold and Goldman, Sachs & Co. $1,000,000 gold for shipment to Europe tomorrow. It was said yesterday that this gold would probably be engaged.

WEALTHY SMUGGLERS CAUGHT.

San Francisco, June 3.—A rich haul was made upon examination of the baggage of Henry S. Potter and wife, who are wealthy residents of St. Louis, and who arrived in this city on the steamer America Maru. The articles, which were many and valuable, were not declared, so they were seized by the customs officers.

REARSARGE GOES TO KIEL.

New York, June 3.—The battleship Kearsarge will leave the navy yard today for Kiel, Germany, and Rear Admiral Barker, commander of the North Atlantic squadron, will transfer his flag to the Mayflower.

Don't Forget

The dance at Oatka beach tonight.

BREAK IN RANKS.

Some Philadelphia Firms Concede Demands of Men.

Philadelphia, June 3.—Today witnessed the break in the ranks of the ingrain carpet manufacturers. Several of the larger firms announced their intention of granting the demands of the weavers for a 55-hour week and an increase of 10 per cent in wages. The plant of Lightenburger & Co. resumed operations on this basis today. James Pollock & Son and Robert Carson notified their men that they considered the demands just and were ready to make concessions if other manufacturers could be induced to submit.

The hair cloth weavers left their looms today, closing the four mills.

CREDIT MEN'S PROGRAM

For Their Eighth Annual Convention Is Ready.

New York, June 3.—Secretary Prendergast has completed the program for the eighth annual convention of the National Association of Credit Men, which will be held at St. Louis June 9, 10 and 11. The convention promises to be one of the most interesting in the history of the organization. Many topics of importance to merchants generally will be discussed and acted upon, including efforts to secure legislation for the regulation of sales of stocks of goods in bulk, exemption laws, collection of debts for necessities of life, consular reform, excessive discounts, money for such work as we have undertaken as it is in the United States. For the rescue of the Discovery and for the completion of the work that has been begun about $60,000 will be required."

LIGHTNING KILLED TWO.

Bodies Were Almost Cremated In the Fire.

Spokane, Wash., June 3.—An electrical storm passed over Northern Idaho and Eastern Washington Monday night. At Athol, Kootenai county, Idaho, James Ray, aged 24, and Ross Dyer, aged 9, were struck by lightning and instantly killed. Edward Dyer, father of the latter, was with him at the time, but escaped injury.

The lightning burned the Odd Fellows' building causing a loss of $9000. There was a flight of stairs at the rear of the building where Dyer and his son and Ray had taken refuge from the rain. When the building was struck by lightning Dyer was knocked down, but soon recovering he pulled the bodies of his son and Ray from beneath the stairway of the burning building. The boy's body was terribly burned.

STOCKMAN FOUND DEAD.

James Sutherland Thrown From His Horse.

Boise, Idaho, June 3.—News has been received from Hailey that James Sutherland of the firm of Webster & Sutherland, was found dead on the Indian creek side of the Indian creek Quigley divide.

He left home at 10 o'clock Saturday morning to look for some horses, intending to return in a few hours. At 11 p. m. a searching party was sent out, and another at 3 a. m. He was found at 5 o'clock with his neck broken.

His horse was standing near with the rein thrown over the horn of the saddle, which leads to the belief that he was looking in the distance for his horses. His horse was evidently loping and stumbled in a gopher hole, throwing his rider a distance of twenty feet, killing him instantly.

PARK POINT LUCKY

Will Have Free Delivery During Month of July and August.

Will Be Great Convenience to the Summer Residents.

Residents of Park Point are to have a free delivery service this summer.

One of the six new carriers which will be added to the local force this summer will be placed on the Park Point run during the months of July and August.

This move was found necessary by the large increase in the number of residents on the point and the growing demand for a free delivery of mail at least once a day. It is unlikely that more than one delivery a day will be made this summer.

Officials of the local postoffice have been gathering statistics of the population of the point during the summer and they have found that there are between 200 and 250 houses which are not included in any of the carriers' routes. As this represents a population of from 600 to 1000 people, it was felt that some move should be taken to supply them with the advantages of the free delivery.

The fiscal year of the postoffice begins July 1 and all changes take effect from that date. The six carriers will be put on then and the first delivery to Park Point will be made on that day.

The rapid growth of the city is well shown by the manner in which the new carriers are to be distributed. Three of them will be detailed to entirely new routes, Woodland Park, Duluth Heights and Park Point, districts that have never had free delivery before, but in which the population has increased so rapidly during the past year or two that the demands for a free delivery had to be complied with.

Of the other three carriers, one will probably be sent to West Duluth and the other two to be used in the main section of the city to relieve the present force.

AT CASS LAKE.

Bids For Building For the New Land Office.

Cass Lake, Minn., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Inspectors M. D. McInery and George C. Hunt, of the central land office, are here taking bids for supplying a building for the use of the new land office. Five bids have already been made and two are willing to build if the present buildings which are offered are not suitable. The building will be open until this evening and then the bids forwarded to Washington to Commissioner Richards.

State Senator A. L. Ferris and the new registrar, J. D. Jones, of Long Prairie, are here. Senator Ferris, when shown the Washington report of the attempt to have the land office removed to Bemidji, said: "There is no truth in the report that Congressman Buckman favors any such change. Buckman would not favor the removal but would oppose any such idea. It is conceded that the report is unreliable because it is known that Buckman fought hard to have the office here and he will not recede."

The date for the hearing of the Lydick case has been changed to June 17 and Major Scott and the interesting parties have received the following notice from Inspector Nesler:

"By direction of the honorable secretary of the interior, notice is hereby given that supplementary to the hearing heretofore conducted, relative to the application of Nellie Lydick and the minor children, Henry and Ruth, for allotments under Section 3, Act of January 14, 1889, and the protest filed by Frank Ives and others, another hearing will be held by me at the sub-agency at Cass Lake and at other places necessary, commencing Wednesday, June 17, at 9 a. m., for the purpose of ascertaining the facts with respect to the membership of the applicants in the White Oak band and their residence upon the Chippewa reservation, at the time of the removal to the White Earth reservation, as contemplated in section 3, as well as any other matter material to the controversy which each party may desire to present. Each party will be permitted to be represented by counsel and be accorded full opportunity to produce witnesses."

STARTLING EVIDENCE.

Fresh testimony in great quantity is constantly coming in declaring Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds to be unequaled. A recent expression from T. J. McFarland, Bectorville, Va., serves as example. He writes: "I had bronchitis for three years and doctored all the times without being benefited. Then I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery, and a few bottles wholly cured me." Equally effective in curing all lung and throat troubles, consumption, pneumonia and grip. Guaranteed by all druggists. Trial bottles free, regular sizes 50c, and $1.00.

MAY ORDER STRIKE

New Trouble Looms Up In Anthracite Coal Regions.

Operators Refuse to Recognize Members of Conciliatory Board.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., June 3.—Another dark strike cloud loomed up on the horizon of the anthracite coal region yesterday.

The executive board of the United Mine Workers, in session here, yesterday endorsed the selection of their three district presidents on the board of conciliation, authorized by the strike commission, and if these members are not recognized by the operators, the executive boards contemplate calling a convention of mine workers to declare a general suspension of work until their members are given recognition.

The district presidents, as a result of the meeting, issued the following statement last night on the dispute:

"At a joint meeting of the executive boards of the anthracite region here today, the members selected to represent the mine workers of each district on the conciliation board reported that the representatives of the operators refused to recognize them or the mine workers' credentials, or accept them as members of the conciliation board.

"They reported that the operators objected on the ground that the mine workers' representatives were appointed by their organization as it exists in each district. The award of the commission relative to the manner of selecting the members of the conciliation board provides as follows: That is to say, if there shall be a division of the whole region into three districts in each of which there shall exist an organization, representing a majority of the mine workers of each district, one member of said boards of conciliation shall be appointed by each of said organizations and three other persons shall be appointed by the operators, the operators in each of said districts appointing one person.

"The district boards are still of the opinion that they appointed their representatives as provided for by the section of the award and voted unanimously to reaffirm their former action. The district officers have been exceedingly anxious to have the conciliation form and meet for the purpose of adjusting many grievances which have accumulated, and to this end have been bending their energies. The officers have advised where the grievances arose that the men were not to strike, and where strikes occur, ordered them back to work, pending a decision by the conciliation board, which they hoped would soon be formed, in accordance with the commission's award.

"Two questions were under consideration by the meeting yesterday. One is to make application to the national president of the mine workers to issue an order for a general suspension of work throughout the whole anthracite region, to continue until the operators agree to adjust existing grievances and live up to the award of the anthracite coal strike commission. The second is that a delegate convention be called to consider the advisability of taking the above action."

Another meeting will be held to decide as to whether a suspension of work shall be ordered.

District Presidents Nicholls and Fahey intimate that the executive board of the mine workers will stand by their decision, and will insist that their members on the conciliation board be recognized.

A district officer, when asked if the objections of the officers could not be removed if the mine workers selected their representatives on the board by a majority vote of miners, replied that it was not likely such a step would be taken. If the operators demanded that, he said, the miners had as much right to ask that the company representatives be selected by a vote of the stockholders.

"Will the miners quit work if they are called out?" was asked.

"Yes, every man will come out. The 30,000 men in the Schuylkill region, whom we ordered back to work, will not hesitate to come out again, and there are acute grievances in every region which will cause a suspension if such a step is decided upon. The district officers have counselled the miners to remain at work pending the settlement of the trouble by the conciliation board, but if this board cannot be organized, there is nothing else for them to do but quit."

FINE WEATHER IN NORTHWEST

North Dakota and Minnesota Crop Reports Are Favorable.

North Dakota reports fine weather for growing crops last week. The report says: "The past week has been a very favorable one for crops of all kinds, and they have made very rapid progress. Showers of rain fell at widely separated points, but were not needed, as the rains of the previous week had already saturated the soil, especially in the Red River valley, some parts of which report that considerable damage has been done grain by the fields being flooded. Light hail storms are reported from several places, but no damage was done by them.

"Wheat is all up; in some places already covers the ground, and is making a very rapid growth. Oats, rye and barley are also doing very well, but are not so far advanced, as a rule, as the wheat. Flax seeding, which was interrupted by the rains of the previous week, has been resumed, and a good part of the crop is now in; that sown early is up and looks very well; that sown late is coming up fast. Corn is about all planted and most of it is up, but is not making a rapid growth, as the weather has been rather too cool for it. In some sections part of it has rotted, and will have to be replanted.

Grass has made a very decided advance since the rains, and is now high enough to furnish good pasturage on the ranges, while meadows are in excellent condition, and promise a large crop of hay.

The Minnesota report is also favorable being as follows:

"The early part of the week was moderately warm, but the week closed with decidedly lower temperatures. In the western part of the state as far south as Big Stone, Swift and Kandiyohi counties there was little or no rain during the week, and all conditions were favorable for the healthy and rapid growth of wheat, oats and barley, and the germination and early growth of flax, potatoes and corn. There are small areas still to be seeded to flax and barley.

In the southern part of the state from the Minnesota valley southward the heavy rains of the preceding week continued till the morning of the 27th, and there were scattered showers in the extreme Southeast till the morning of the 28th. All the streams are overflowed, with considerable damage to bridges and roadways, the lowlands are flooded, and the level and heavy lands are so thoroughly soaked with water that work in the soil, such as corn and potato planting and cultivating, was entirely stopped. In many counties the area intended for corn will have to be reduced, in some places to as much as a half; these lands will be either abandoned for the season or sowed to millet or fodder corn. The weeds are growing, so that when cultivation is begun they will be a serious hindrance. It is said that the water level, as shown by the lakes, is much higher than for a great many years. On the high and light lands the small grains look well, but on the level lands they show the effects of excessive moisture by turning yellow. Clover and grass in all parts of the state are growing very rapidly.

Buying Union-Made Goods.

To the Editor of The Herald:

With your permission, Mr. Editor, I would rise to say (believing that an injury to one citizen is the concern of all citizens) that I was pleased to see by a recent item in The Herald that three labor leaders had the temerity to stand on their constitutional rights as American citizens by consistently refusing to sign a contract to exclusively purchase union goods. for, as an old unionist, I have always understood that my unionism was always subservient to my citizenship, and that while I preferably use union goods every time I find them the equal of other goods, I should deem I would be guilty of traitorous conduct against the public welfare. If I (or my duly delegated representative) subscribed to any contract to exclusively use union goods. I believe in using all my power of persuasion against using non-union goods, and will go as far as my limited means will allow; but I still feel (with all my 35 years of trade unionism) that I must stop short of binding myself with a contract that would destroy my free agency (citizenship). In the matter, for as the stores are places for public business on the public highways for the sale of all goods that promote the public welfare, I think that I, a citizen, am justified in refusing to contract an agreement in the restraint of trade with other citizens as against still other citizens who are free competitors in an open market for the sale of a free article of trade even if it has the stamp of non-unionism on it.

LAST MUSICAL

Of the Season Given at Villa Maria.

Frontenac, Minn., June 3.—The following young ladies and little girls took part in the last musicale of the season at Villa Maria: Miss Margaret Mulligan, Miss Mabel Mattimore, Miss Josephine Emerson, Miss Pearl Brown, Miss Rose Miegel, Miss Jennie McGraw and Florence Tregilgar, St. Paul; Miss Anna Webster, Miss Daisy Shaft, Miss Gertrude McGraw, Stella Porter, Irene Lysander, Evelyn Meyer, Minneapolis; Miss Margaret Grandy, Bathgate, N. D.; Miss Zella Maude '03, Nickerson; May Hoelscher and Katharine Hayden, Duluth; Miss Bernice Conners, Stillwater; Miss Margaret Newton, Williston, N. D.; Miss Grace Look, Garretson, S. D. All but very few showed great progress and many played without their notes. "A May Morning," "The Thought of You," and "God of My Life," sung by Miss Mulliban, Miss Mattimore and Miss Maude '03, and a mandolin number by Miss Rose Miegel were especially well given. There was a delightful improvement in ease and naturalness in the bearing of the participants. Miss Mary Hiddleston and Miss Adelaide Sayer, of Minneapolis, who were visiting Miss Lulu and Florence Hiddleston attended the musicale.

The afternoon of Pentecost a number of young ladies were enrolled in the scapular and received Children of Mary and some little girls were made members of the Child Jesus sodality. June 25 is commencement day.

Stomach Trouble Easily Cured

Give nature its freedom and it will do its work without the aid of drugs or any artificial help. The Creator made man self-sustaining in his normal condition. Then why is there any abnormal condition? It is because there is a shut-off somewhere in the nerves that lead to the affected parts, and in that way nature is kept from doing its work. Dr. Riesland removes that pressure with his hands without the use of a knife or drugs. You can find him at 206 East First street. Hours, from 1 to 8 p. m. Consultation free.

Reward Offered For Capture of Minnesotan.

Binghamton, N. Y., June 3.—A reward of $1000 has been offered for the capture of J. Kelsey, of Wilson, Minn., who has eloped with 17-year-old May Newman, at Otego. The girl is heiress to a large estate, and became acquainted with Kelsey, who was employed by the Allen Scrambling company, who were getting lumber off the Newman estate. She left her parents' home to summon a friend to dinner and did not return. The couple were traced to the railroad station, where they boarded a westbound train together and are now supposed to be on their way to St. Paul.

THE SYSTEM WRONG.

The neglect of departmental heads at Washington to investigate the work of their departments is likely to result in serious consequences if not corrected. This has been clearly illustrated in the recent postoffice scandals. As a matter of fact the heads of departments do not work. They consider that their subordinates are employed to perform the drudgery and they put confidence in them and merely affix their signatures to documents, without having the slightest idea of what they are signing. Assistant Attorney General Christiancy finds himself a victim of this constantly growing evil, but did not have the strength to oppose the "ring." The greatest trouble comes from the plan which requires bureau chiefs to sign papers without knowing what they are doing. Christiancy declares that he approved the decision in the notorious Ryan turf investment case without realizing what the paper was that he was signing. The decision was prepared by Daniel V. Miller, a subordinate in the same office, and was pushed under Christiancy's nose for approval, along with a lot of other papers. Dozens of cases of this kind are happening every day in the departments at Washington, but fortunately only a few involve serious consequences.

Of course it is claimed that so much business is transacted that the chiefs do not have time to investigate. If such is the case what good are they at all? As far as their signature is concerned, it might as well be put on with a rubber stamp, if nothing is to be known by them of the contents of the papers signed. The whole system is radically wrong. If the heads of departments are nothing but ornaments, let them go. Large salaries cannot be paid for the signing of names without any knowledge of what is being signed.

THE ROADS MUST EXPLAIN.

After considerable preliminary effort the time draws near when representatives of leading Western railroads must appear before the interstate commerce commission and give their reasons why the roads should not cut down their recently established rates on grain and beef products. Each of the thirteen roads cited, is to send delegates to meet the interstate commerce commission at Chicago on June 17 to answer the charge that their present rates on grain and grain products are unreasonably high and in violation of Sections 1, 2 and 3 of the interstate commerce act.

Some eight or nine months ago, most of the railroads of the country made general advances in their freight charges, most of the increases dating from Jan. 1. The advances in the charges on grain and grain products, meats and meat products were heaviest, although the increases in the rates on certain other classes of merchandise were considerable. In some instances an advance of 25 per cent in the freight charges on beef was made. This was the case with the charges on packing house products for export trade, which were jumped from 25 to 30 cents per 100 pounds on shipments from Chicago to New York.

Acting under its general authority to investigate "unreasonable" freight charges and fix rates that are just and reasonable, the commission required the Eastern roads to give evidence to justify the higher rates that were imposed. An exhaustive inquiry was made by the commission, every one of the railroads giving as the chief reason for advancing the rates the fact that labor is higher and the general cost of operating expenses is more than it was in past years. The commission accepted this reason as sufficient in the case of meat shipments, but directed the roads to lower their charges on grain shipments. These had been increased from 17½ to 20 cents per 100 pounds from Chicago to New York. The commission declared that the old rate of 17½ cents was ample and that there was no ground for advancing it. The roads have only partially complied with this order. They have dropped the rate to 18 cents per 100 pounds, and there they propose that it shall stick. It is hardly likely that the commission will endeavor to compel the roads to cut off the additional half cent, especially as the whole matter would have to be taken into court, as the commission has no authority in itself to compel the roads to comply with its order.

It is proposed that the Western roads also reduce their rates and it is more than probable that they will. The rates on grain and grain products are not the only charges that have been advanced by the Western roads. The cost of shipping all kinds of materials has gone up anywhere from 5 to 25 per cent all through the country West of the Mississippi river, except on the Great Northern and Northern Pacific roads. There have been many complaints from one concern and another, and it would be very surprising if some good was not accomplished by the action of the interstate commerce commission.

Former Postmaster General Smith says that Postmaster General Payne is determined that the investigation into the postoffice scandals shall be thorough. This is the proper idea and it is satisfactory to learn that Mr. Payne has changed his attitude. When the charges were first made he sneered at them as "hot air."

Wouldn't it be a sight, exclaims the Boston Globe, to see the two Shamrocks and the three American 90-footers all together in a big race over here!

Chicago boasts of having over 2,000,000 inhabitants, and nearly all are on strike.

The prospect of another anthracite coal strike is not pleasant.

MISS STONE'S CLAIM.

The claim which has been presented to the state department at Washington by Miss Ellen M. Stone, the missionary, for damages against the Turkish government, presents somewhat of a problem. Miss Stone was asked, shortly after her return to this country, to make a complete statement of all the circumstances surrounding her capture and her treatment by the bandits. Department officials say she failed to do this, but a few days ago she addressed a letter to the department, asking that an effort be made through diplomatic channels to secure financial redress for the wrongs she suffered. In the letter she did not furnish the department with sufficient information on which to base an intelligent representation to the Turkish government.

A further complication arises from the fact that the Turkish government, at the time of Miss Stone's capture, desired to send troops to her rescue, but were restrained by a desire to prevent any harm being done Miss Stone by the bandits, who would become alarmed by the approach of the Turkish troops. It is even asserted that the Turkish government persisted in its desire to send a force to the relief of Miss Stone, until requested to desist, in a written request from the consular representative of the United States, who, at the time, was acing in a diplomatic capacity.

When the government presents its claim for damages in behalf of Miss Stone, unless it has a very excellent case, it is realized that the Turkish government can offset the claim of its responsibility, by showing that it made every effort to rescue the imprisoned woman until stopped by a representative of this government, and that the very action of the religious societies of the United States in paying over $70,000 to the Macedonians furnished just that much aid to the enemies of the Turkish authorities.

Without further information than what appears in the news dispatches it would seem that Miss Stone has but little claim against the Turkish government and would be better off to rest content with her life, which fortunately was spared.

THE "GREATER" SUPERIOR.

The people of Superior have been burdened with a confusion of postoffices for some time. Largely through the efforts of Kirby Thomas, the present postmaster, the consolidation of all of the five postoffices of that city has been brought about and will become effective July 1. On that date the West Superior postoffice will be named as the Superior postoffice, and the Superior (old town) postoffice will be Station A, and South Superior will be Station B. Itasca and Allouez will also be stations of the Superior postoffice. This means that there will be no more West Superior. In time the railroads and business interests generally will conform to this official change made in the postoffice department and the "greater Superior," unincumbered by prefixes and freed from its past mistakes, will come forth.

THE WEALTH OF LABRADOR.

In this age of exploration and reaching out for undiscovered wealth, it is strange that so little attention has been paid to the great peninsula of Labrador, of which so little is known at the present day. It has an area of 516,000 square miles, about twelve times that of the state of New York, but, with the exception of the fishing villages on the coast and a few degenerate, wandering tribes of Indians in the interior, it is unpopulated. Some day the announcement of gold in abundance may start a stampede to Labrador and reveal some of its productive capability. The southern part is rich in timber, although the north is beyond the limit of forest growth. Game birds and animals are so abundant that only the lack of means of access prevents the interior from becoming one of the greatest sporting resorts of the world. Its mineral capacity has never been tested, even by prospecting. The possibility of wheat production has been suggested, but the long winter seems discouraging. During the past year three parties of geologists from American universities spent some time exploring the many fiords along the coast, and it is said they obtained data of much commercial as well as scientific value.

Iron ore is as yet the most promising of the minerals known to exist, but the half year of uninterrupted navigation places its production at a disadvantage. Like the Klondike, the northern part of the peninsula is difficult of access. For half the year the coast is ice-bound, and the only route is by vessel from Quebec to Belle Isle, more than 1000 miles along the north shore of the St. Lawrence, and then inland over a very difficult trail, the northern point being 700 miles from the place of landing. Some day adventurous prospectors and enterprising investors will awake to the importance of this great area of mineral and timber land, and there will be Labrador development companies, railway companies, and mining and lumber companies, with applications for grants, subsidies, and all kinds of assistance.

The Labrador peninsula is under the jurisdiction of Newfoundland and it may be hard for that colony to sustain the burden of an active business. But if it is not able either Canada or the United States would come to its assistance. There is undoubtedly a future before Labrador and it may not be long in coming.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"Well, this trip is finished, and now what is worrying me is the care of the Northwestern Editorial association," said A. G. Bernard of Cass Lake, who registered at the St. Louis hotel this morning.

Mr. Bernard, director general and complete board of strategy for "ye editors" of the state, returned from the Washington trip and left for home this morning. He spent a while about the hotel lobbies shaking hands with old friends and telling of the glorious climate of the Cass Lake land district. Mr. Bernard is full of ginger, though just from a trip across the country, is the whole membership of a Cass Lake booster club he has started, and he claims that he was "errand boy" for Page Morris around Washington some years ago—all for the sake of his adopted heath (or grove.)

"No, the Northwestern association has been in Duluth once, and we are going another way this time. The association will get together June 23, and we will take them up through the lakes in Walker, Bemidji and Cass Lake counties, and give them some fishing and an idea of what the Minnesota lakes are like in the north and west.

"We believe we can show the editors something they will like to see, when they come, and we have mapped out a trip that covers some of the most beautiful sections of the state, wild and picturesque.

"I keep moving all the time, and get between Washington and Minnesota a good deal. The trip of the editors was an enjoyable one, though I guess the are all getting home pretty tired."

Mr. Bernard has withdrawn as a candidate for the appointment as land agent for the new Cass Lake land district, and the fight is now off. J. D. Jones of Long Prairie, Todd county and G. Oakley, of Buffalo, Wright county, will have charge of the office.

Mr. Bernard retired from the contest, in which it was supposed he had an inside track, he says, upon the interference of Senator Nelson. Mr. Bernard was one of the potent influences which brought about the land district readjusting.

"Cass Lake never wanted more than what she was entitled to," said he. "The original lines drawn by me, showing the lands farther south and father west than the boundaries of the readjusted districts, as made by the department. I believe the alteration was made in the department at Washington.

"However, when the commissioner of the general land office came here and saw that Duluth was having more taken away from her than was necessary, the change was made in the lines. We never wanted anything that properly belonged to Duluth, but at the same time we did not want to be cheated out of what we believed to be ours. Everything is all right now and we all have what we want.

"I am out of the fight for the appointment as land agent, having dropped out when Senator Nelson appeared in the contest."

Mr. Bernard is the editor of The Voice at Cass Lake.

There were others of the editors reached Duluth last night and this morning. Among them was Peter Schaefer, editor of The Ely Miner, of Ely, who was on the trip. Mr. Schaefer's son got an idea he must see the Minneapolis carnival, so he did not return here with his parents.

"The weather in Washington was delightful," said Mr. Schaefer, "and we all had a great time while there.

"The only regret that could be expressed in regard to the trip was that the time in Washington was too short. We really didn't have time to get around and see all that we wanted to, though in a general way the city was covered.

"Mr. Bingham, of Two Harbors, will probably be along tomorrow and there are a great many stragglers between Chicago and home.

"Mr. Coggswell was with the party until we reached Chicago, when he received a message that his sister had died at Washington City, and was unceremoniously hurried back to the capital. He will probably not return here for a fortnight or more."

Frank Johnson, of the Johnson Nickle company, will not only "not play" in Duluth but he refuses to talk—at least for publication.

Monday morning he and his secretary, Otto Hanson, went out of the city, and Mr. Johnson said at that time he would have some news about his titanic ore smelting process in a day or two or as soon as he returned.

Mr. Johnson and his secretary, registered at the St. Louis hotel last evening. They were not in a talkative mood. The pair did not stay very long, and took the first boat up the lake shore. He did not announce the destination, but it is probably Grand Marais, where the ore deposits are.

Conductor James W. Sargent, of the Northern Pacific road, running between here and St. Paul, was at the St. Louis hotel this morning. Mr. Sargent has been suffering for several weeks with inflammatory rheumatism and was at Mt. Ashland, Wis., for a time, but he has not been on his run for some time, and his return was hailed with pleasure by a large number of "regulars" with whom he has always been very popular. His friends around the hotel this morning were congratulating him on his improved health and ability to work again.

St. Louis Republic: Bribers and boodlers will soon be forced to adopt the philosophy of ordinary criminals, which is to the effect that crime is a game with the chances largely against the player. English Exchange: At a railway shareholders' meeting in London a gentleman insisted on making a long speech. When he had concluded, the chairman, according to "The Book of Blunders," quietly asked the verbose orator whether he had quite done.

"Yes, sir, quite!" was the indignant reply.

"You will, consequently, permit me to answer you, sir?"

"Oh, certainly, if you can; but I defy you to do that."

"Well then," said the chairman, calmly and with measured voice, "I have to inform you that you are in the wrong room and addressing the wrong company. The speech you have just made should have been delivered in No. 6, first floor."

A MOUNTAIN EPISODE

By Ernest McGaffey.

(Copyright, 1903 by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

Faraday looked out from his little cabin on the hillside and saw the sun rising over the foothills and bathing with a mellow glow the scrubby pines and bleak outlines of the Colorado canyon. Rocks, timber and lonliness had been his portion for two years, and he was beginning to feel restive. He had taken the chance of coming west as a relief from drudge of office work in New York, and now, after two years with the Midas Gold Mining company, he had begun to sigh for Broadway and the "skyscrapers" the sight of laughing faces and welldressed men and women, the dash and go of the great city of his boyhood.

He wondered what Margaret Floyd was thinking of that bright September morning. He had been a mere clerk in the New York house, but his irreproachable ancestry, founded on the exploits of a thrifving fur trader and trapper, had given him entree even into the charmed circle where the Floyds moved, and he had danced and flirted and sighed with many a damsel whose further thought was beyond and above the idea of taking seriously any attentions of "Bud" Faraday, as his intimates called him. But as he was young, good-looking, something of a musician, and gifted with an abundance of that quality known as "nerve," he made his way well wherever he went. Ambitious enough to know that vegetating in a downtown office was a slow mode of preforment, he had eagerly accepted the opportunity of striking out for the mountains and "roughing it," with the high thoughts of youth to build for him the Almaschar visions of hope.

e had gone without a word to Miss Floyd, and without even a note to tell her of his destination. He would "stand pat," he said to himself, and not bore anyone about his new venture. Sympathy he did not want, but only a chance to rise.

And this morning, with the magnificent towering vastness of the Rockies piercing the clouds, with the rare air of that great elevation filling his lungs, he had for a moment rather yearned for what was not to be, for the old languid life of the streets and drawing-rooms. But the mood passed as quickly as it had come, and Faraday stretched his athletic figure and hurried his preparations for breakfast.

The Midas Mining company operated the gold field by means of water. Hydraulic mining was the technical term. Huge hose which sent out a stream of water with terrific force washed down the gold-bearing sidehills into sluices, where the gold separated from the earth and rocks by reason of its specific gravity, and was caught in riffles or partial obstructions placed in the sluices. The power of one of these engines of liquid might was simply tremendous. After the timber had been cut away and removed from the slope or hillside the great tubes would be turned on to the earth and rocks, and mountains would melt away like snow before a sun.

The "Giants" was the name the miners had for the two most formidable streams. These would sluice away the hillsides like a woman cutting bread, and roar like a thunder which bellowed up and down the path of such a volume of water. At 20 feet away it would cut a man in two like a piece of cheese. At 50 feet distance it would crush him into a jelly. At 200 feet it would toss him against the ground, bruised and unconscious, done to death most likely, and if escaping death, favored almost as by a miracle. The entire outfit of the Midas Gold Mining company had a most wholesome respect for the "Giants."

A shout from "Big Harry" greeted Faraday as he emerged from the cabin and started for the office.

"When are the bosses coming?" was his cry.

"What bosses?" queried Faraday.

"Why, the eastern bunch," was "Big Harry's" response.

"I hadn't heard of anything," said Faraday.

"Well," said Harry, "the foreman's got a letter for you. At the office the letter was handed Faraday, and, opening it, he learned that H. B. Floyd, the president of the company, and some of the other officers of the company were coming to Colorado at once to look over the mine. He was glad of it, as the mine was prospering, and his own work was well ahead in every respect. He had superintended the cutting of large quantities of timber for new sluices, and cleared away much land for new sluicing, had worked early and late, and was prepared to show a good balance sheet. It was like old Floyd to get up and chase out at a minute's notice.

The next day the party arrived, and to Faraday's intense astonishment, Margaret Floyd was one of them. She always had ruled her father with a silken rein, and her request to come West had been granted without a moment's hesitation on his part. She was a winsome-looking woman as she stepped from the officers' car, and greeted Faraday, and although he tried to appear unconcerned, his heart gave a leap as he saw how she had grown even handsomer than in the old days.

The following morning the entire party started for the mine, and to Faraday's delight Margaret was placed in his charge as assistant superintendent of the mine, and the superintendent, large in authority and importance, conducted the mine owners to the place where active operations were in progress. The "Giants" were mowing down the hillsides as easily as a harvesting machine lays low the ripened wheat of a July field. The men in charge of them worked methodically and with the utmost care. Above, an eagle soared in the sunlight and the snow-capped peaks of a distant range gleamed whitely in the morning light.

Faraday and Miss Floyd had fallen behind the rest of the party, which was standing on a hillside above the "Giants," watching the tearing jets of water cut into the mountain side. They were looking down the gulch where she called his attention to a clump of lone pines. Suddenly a thought directed his attention to the party above. He and the girl were hardly 70 feet from the nearest man directing one of the "Giants." Faraday turned instantly, grasping the girl by the hand as he did so. They both looked up in the direction of the warning cry and saw a tragedy enacted, so swift, so sudden that the memory might not party above, the menace of instant death.

Faraday's preceptions, sharpened by the ever-present danger of the mines, had half-sensed what the trouble was at the instant of the cry of warning. As the huge nozzle swung around he caught the girl about the waist and threw himself to the ground, carrying the girl with him. The water was over them as they fell, like a hissing serpent, but they were safe. Miss Floyd was bruised, and Faraday had a long cut on his face, but in five minutes the miners had the "Giant" back under control and Faraday helped the girl to her feet.

The president of the Midas company was a man of few words. He first grasped Faraday by the hand with the grip of a grizzly and then caught his daughter to his breast.

That night Faraday made a resolution. The next day he carried it into effect. Afterward he sought an interview with President Floyd and stated the case very briefly. The president sustained his reputation for brevity. He said: "I brought her out here, but she would have gone back in the baggage car if it hadn't have been for you. I guess you've earned her, and as you say she is willing I have no objections. But I want you on the board of directors, from now on, so kindly pack up your things and be ready to go back with us Tuesday."

Faraday bowed and retired. And as "Big Harry parenthetically remarked as the party set out for the little mountain station, "good luck to the fellow with nerve."

THE FINEST OF ALL.

God made the streams that gurgle down
the purple mountainside;
He made the gorgeous coloring with which the sunset's dyed;
He made the hills and covered them with glory; and He made
The sparkle on the dewdrops and the flecks of light and shade.
Then, knowing all earth needed was a climax for her charms,
He made a little woman with a baby in her arms.

He made the arching rainbow that is thrown across the sky;
He made the blessed flowers that nod and smile as we go by;
He made the ballroom beauty as she bows
with queenly grace;
But sweetest of them all He made the
lovelight in the face
That bends above a baby, warding off the world's alarms—
That dainty little woman with her baby
in her arms.

A soft pink wrap embellished with a vine
in silken thread;
A filmy snow-white cap upon a downy
little head;
A dress round make the winter drift
look dusky by its side;
Two cheeks with pure rose-petal tint, two blue eyes wonder-wide;
And, bending over that mother face imbued with heav'n's own charms—
God bless the little woman with her baby
in her arms.

Properly Indignant.

Brooklyn Eagle: It was just a little amateur poker party, and he was initiating her into the mysteries of the game. It wasn't really allowable, of course, but it was only "for fun," and she appealed to him with great frequency to know what to do. During the lesson the stakes were toothpicks and matches; later they intended to try penny ante, but they never got to that stage.

"What shall I do now?" she asked.

"Better straddle the blind," he replied, thoughtlessly.

Her face grew red and her eyes flashed.

"Sir!" she cried.

"Oh, that's all right," several of the others hastened to explain.

"I assure you," he said, maliciously, "it's not at all unusual in poker."

"Then I don't want to play poker!" she exclaimed, throwing her cards on the table.

"You don't understand," they all urged.

"You see," he tried to explain, "the blind——"

"Oh, I know, I know," she interrupted. "The blind isn't a shutter or anything of that sort; it's something entirely different in poker, but you needn't try to explain it to me, I don't care what it is—I don't care if it's a bicycle—I won't do it, so there now."

And thus it happened that they never got to the penny ante stage.

A Rich Catch.

Chapparal: "Leaving college, old man? Going to marry and settle down?"

"No; I'm going to marry and settle up!"

A Curb on Speech Making.

New York Mail and Express: It seems that the time has come when Americans occupying public or quasi-public positions ought to be relied upon if not to act wisely on all occasions, at least to refrain from talking foolishly when it is not necessary to talk at all. There are too many speeches delivered in congress with the idea of telling kings, kaiser, czar or foreign president that we Americans have no use for any rulers except our own particular brand. There are too many impertinent resolutions issuing from legislatures or aldermanic chambers informing outland parliaments that they are not treating their own peoples as they should. We could spare some of the grandiose newspaper calculations as to the sort of havoc our volunteer soldiers would make of the conscripts of the dual or triple alliance after we had armed, equipped and trained them. We could even spare a few of the odious international comparisons as to armament and military effectiveness emanating from those bluff old seadogs and grizzled war veterans of ours—men, to reverse a famous line, "who never did a foolish thing and never said a wise one."

OBSERVING SECRECY

Silent Policy Adopted as to Drilling on Highland Range.

McLeod Claim Drillers Intend Public to Be Kept Guessing.

As might have been expected from the policy of secrecy adopted by the McLeod iron company regarding the drill work on its Highland property, all sorts of rumors are afloat regarding the results of the drilling.

One report had it that the drill was thirty feet in ore the other day. Another was that it was three feet in ore. Still another, and a more likely one, in view of the short time the drill has been at work, is that it is still in sand and gravel, and that nothing of moment has been struck as yet.

When the drill was put on the McLeod property every effort to preserve secrecy was made. The employes were cautioned to keep their moths shut about what the drill was doing, and the same direction was given the officers and stockholders. A high board fence, it is said, has been built about the place where the drill is working, in order that curious passers-by may not be able to peek in and find out what is going on.

The chances are, however, that if any important find is made it will become public property without any great delay, as those interested will be so jubilant and so anxious to convince people that their belief in the Highland range was well-founded that they will not be able to keep still. Still, in view of the secrecy that is being maintained, the public will probably not readily believe all the reports that sift out into the open. The air of mystery leaves an air of doubt about any story not properly vouched for, and the public will probably be "from Missouri" in this case and will "have to be shown."

Nothing has been heard from the Northern Pacific's two drills, but both of them are working.

Whatever reports get out, the truth about the Highland range cannot be kept quiet much longer. With three drills working, the existence or nonexistence of iron ore deposits of merchantable quality and quantity will soon be shown, after which there will either be a big Highland boom or the Highland range will slip back into the obscurity from which it emerged a year or so ago.

STUDENTS CONTEST

Preliminary Field Day of High School at Driving Park.

Seniors Win Easily In Points—Also Take the Relay Race.

Victory went to the high school seniors yesterday in their struggle for points in the annual preliminary track field day of the high school students. They made 56 points to 34 by sophomores, 33 by juniors and 12 by freshmen.

The fourth year men also succeeded in capturing the class relay race by a good margin. This gives them the custody of the trophy cup for that event during the coming year. They won the same event in last year's program.

No records were broken in any of the events yesterday, though some of them were closely shaved. This is remarkable as the men were not in good physical condition owing to late interruptions in training.

The discus throw and broad jump were not pulled off. The first because of lack of competitors and the second on account of darkness, which cut the meet short.

Cummings demonstrated his sprinting ability by taking the 100-yard dash in 11 seconds flat—3-5 of a second more than the record time for the school.

The following were the results of the meet:

100-yard dash—First, Cummings; second, Whipple; third, Miller. Time—11 flat.

440 bicycle race—First, Arsenau; second, Markell; third, Nelson. Time—42 3-5 sec.

120-yard dash—First, Whipple; second, Cummings; third, Miller. Time—13 1-5 sec.

Shot put—First, Whipple; second, Stafford; third, Richards; distance—35 ft. 1 in.

120 hurdle—First, Miller; second, Potter; third, Scoble. Time—21 flat.

One mile bicycle—First, Nelson; second, Whipple; third, Miller. Time—3 min. 14 sec.

220-yard dash—First, Cummings; second, Whipple; third, Miller. Time—25 2-5 sec.

Hammer throw—First, Stafford; second, Richards; third, Potter; distance —94 ft. 4 in.

220-yard hurdle—First, Miller; second Smith; third, Potter. Time—31 flat.

440-yard dash—First, Manley; second, Bush; third, Miller. Time—1 min. 9 sec.

High jump—First, Steele; second, Scoble; third, Whipple; height, 5 ft. 1 in.

Half mile run—First, Bush; second, Adams; third, Simonds. Time—2 min. 2 32-5 sec.

Two-mile bicycle—First, Nelson; second, Harbison; third, Olson. Time—6 min. 38 2-5 sec.

One-mile run—First, Bush; second, Scoble; third, Dutton. Time—5 min. 43 sec.

Relay race, one mile—First, seniors; second, juniors; third, sophomores; fourth, freshmen. Time—4 min. 9 4-5 sec.

The officials were: Judges, Al Bradley, F. Bradley, F. Elston and Professor Towne; clerk of course, W. Rose; starter, H. Haroldson; timekeepers, Sharvy and Michaud.

THE STAGE

The Wilbur Opera company opened at the Metropolitan last evening and made a good impression, receiving much applause. "Said Pasha" was the opera and it is familiar to all theater goers, but tuneful and popular always.

Martin Pache, who was Terano, a Mexican nobleman, has a clear tenor voice of excellent quality. Miss Hattie Richardson as Serena the Pasha's daughter had good opportunities for displaying a clear, high soprano voice. Gus Vaughn, baritone, won a double encore from the audience by his solo, "Would You be True to Eyes of Blue?" C. A. Vaughn as Said Pasha interpreted his role in a pleasing manner. The comedians, M. A. McGraw and Chas. Van Dajui were good. Miss Marion Langdon also displayed a clear soprano voice of good quality.

The chorus is fairly good, though susceptible to improvement.

The specialties are attractive. The Gardner trio, three clever children, gave a song and dance specialty that was warmly received by the audience and made the hit of the evening when the youngest bestowed a chaste salute on a well-known local business man who occupied one of the boxes.

The Amazon march was well done.

"Said Pasha" will be repeated this evening.

TO ENLARGE WEST POINT.

Government to Spend $6,500,000 on New Buildings.

Washington, June 3.—During the next few years $6,500,000 will be spent in new buildings at the military academy at West Point, which will make that institution equal in its architectural features, dormitory conveniences, lecture rooms, laboratories and other buildings to any of the great universities of the world. As prevously stated, $3,000,000 is being spent for a similar purpose on the naval academy at Annapolis, where it is needed even more than at West Point. At the latter place there are several good modern buildings. At Annapolis there are none. The secretary of war is now at West Point conferring with a board of which Gen. Schofield is chairman.

The government has acquired a considerable tract of land adjoining the present reservation, which will double the area devoted to the academy, and the new buildings will provide accommodations for 750 students. At present the institution can only accommodate about 400.

GIANT MAMMOTH.

World's Second Perfect Specimen to Be Excavated.

Tacoma, Wash., June 3.—William H. Alberti, of New York, is on his way to Nome to excavate and ship the complete skeleton of the giant mammoth found last year embedded in a gravel bank on Hanum river, Nome district. The mammoth is being thus secured by the Smithsonian institution, which will exhibit it at the St. Louis exposition, taking it thence to Washington.

When Alberti left Nome last fall the specimen was in splendid condition, but during the winter miners dug out one of the eight-foot tusks and extracted some teeth. Efforts will be made to recover these, making the skeleton perfect. Alberti says the rains have washed away the dirt which for thousands of years covered the mammoth, showing ribs, skull, tusks and other parts in perfect condition.

This is the first complete specimen of the mammoth found in America and the second specimen found in the world. The first perfect one was discovered in Siberia several years ago embedded in the ice. At the Smithsonian institution Alberti was carefully instructed regarding how to excavate the skeleton and label different parts, that it may be readily put together at St. Louis.

HIRED HELP PROHIBITED

Rule Made In Commercial Club Fine Lawn Competition.

A joint meeting of the lawn committee of the Commercial club and the Women's council, was held in the reception room of the Commercial club last evening and a ruling was made that all lawns to be entered in the competition must be kept up by the owners and not by hired assistance. The joint committee has also ruled that in reaching a decision as to the best kept lawns the entire grounds, in front, at the back and on the sides of the building are to be considered in determining the winner.

Several weeks ago the Commercial club offered $160 and $20 in prizes for the eight best kept lawns in the city, one prize to be awarded in each of the eight wards. A nursery company has offered $50 worth of trees which will be distributed in $10 lots as second prizes. It is expected that the liberal prizes offered and pride of the Duluthians in their lawns will cause the contest to be a very interesting one, for competition is open to all and the fact that no hired help can be employed by those competing gives all competitors an equal show.

All persons who desire to enter the contest should send their names and arresses at once to Secretary H. Y. Eva, of the Commercial club as the first inspection of the lawns will be made early in July. The prizes are to be awarded August 22.

The lawn commitee has requested the teachers in the public schools to bring information of the contest to the attention of their pupils and urge that they take an interest in the matter. Miss Statham will act in the capacity of press committee.

Strikes Ore Body.

The United States Steel corporation seems to have struck a body of merchantable ore in the east half of the northeast quarter of section 6, 58-15, and one hole is said to be in 116 feet of ore. F. B. Spellman and W. H. Daniels, of Duluth, are the fee owners. They optioned the land to a number of Virginia, Minn., men, including S. T. Hamilton, A. B. Coates, W. G. Moore and others, who have given the steel corporation an option for a transfer of their interests. The Virginia men put down five holes, finding only a little ore in one and none in the others.

Paying Wolf Bounties.

County Auditor Halden has paid out three wolf bounties under the new law passed by the last state legislature. Applications for the bounties were made some weeks ago but were held up pending the adjustment of the amount to be paid by the county, the commissioners at the last meeting of the county board fixing the amount at $7.50 for full grown wolves and $1 for cubs, making the total bounty for full brown animals $15 and $2 for cubs. Allen Cook, George Aldridge and James Mainer have already collected the bounty under the new law.

The Third Anniversary Sale a Great Success.

CONSIDERING the number of special offerings this store has announced of late, it was confessedly something of a surprise to us to find so enthusiastic a buying in the three days following the first advertising of our Anniversary Sale. But the offerings of dress goods and wash goods are remarkable—of suits and hats, of muslin underwear, of linens, of jewelry, notions, stationery, of men's and boys' furnishings—such as to arrest the attention of buyers interested in good values at little price. Three days of the Anniversary Sale have passed, but three days of exceptional opportunity still remain—new bargains for Thursday are added to those previously published.

ASKED HER TO STAY AWAY

Mrs. Edwina Winter Smith Has Sued For Divorce.

St. Paul, June 3.—Disaster has overtaken the marriage of one of the most popular and accomplished of the young women of St. Paul, and the bright promises of the wedding day end dismally in the divorce court.

The plaintiff, in the action begun in the district court, is Mrs. Edwina Winter Smith, who sues the defendant, Pemberton Smith, of Buffalo, N. Y., for a divorce on the ground of desertion.

The marriage was celebrated in St. Paul Jan. 5, 1897, when the plaintiff was but 21 years old, Mr. Smith being her senior by ten years.

They went from St. Paul to live in Buffalo, and there their child, Pemberton Smith, Jr., was born.

For three years, so the plaintiff tells the court, their married life was a happy one. Since that time the defendant has treated her cruelly and deserted her.

After the lapse of the three happy years she began to entertain misgivings of her husband's loyalty, but she struggled with these doubts in the brave effort to subdue them.

She was accustomed to pay visits to her father in Chicago, and when she made these visits in 1900 and 1901 and was about to return home to Buffalo she would receive letters from Mr. Smith urging her to remain yet a longer time.

When she did return she found his attitude towards her changed and disaffection and alienation in the home which had been so happy.

She visited her father in August, 1901, and a day or two before she was to return home, and on Aug. 31 she received a letter from him in which he said that he could no longer continue to show that he bore her any affection and that she had best remain with her family. That if she did return the end would be wretchedness.

She asked her father to write him to come to Chicago for interview. He consented. There was a conference at the Auditorium hotel.

Mr. Smith would not yield, but persisted in his hostile attitude toward his wife, and showed relief and pleasure when her father stated that he would care for her.

Mr. Smith sent the child to Chicago to its mother.

Plaintiff asks that her name be changed to Edwina Winter-Smith and that of the child to Pemberton Winter-Smith.

KOPEAS CLAIMS SELF DEFENSE

Selomo Luma Killed In Row In Ashland Boarding House.

Ashland, Wis., June 3.—Selomo Luma, a Finlander, was shot through the abdomen by a fellow countryman, Samuel Kopias, at a late hour Monday night and died in the hospital here at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Kopias surrendered to the police immediately after the shooting, declaring that he fired in self defense.

When the police arrived on the scene and took charge of the injured man an open knife was found in his pocket, which gives strength to Kopias' story that he was compelled to shoot Luma to save his own life.

The shooting occurred in a boarding house in the second story of a building at Eighth avenue west and Second street. The lower floor of the building is occupied by a saloon and the men had been drinking until a late hour, when they retired to the room above and became involved in an altercation which ended in the shooting. Luma is said to have attempted to start a quarrel with Kopias during the evening and Kopias says he made a rush for him with the knife in his hand. Before he was half way across the room Kopias shot him and he dropped to the floor mortally wounded.

When Kopias was arrested he handed his pistol to the officers, saying: "I believe that every man likes his life better than somebody else's. I shot Luma because I had to stop him. He was coming at me and I believe he had a knife. I am sorry if he dies, but I had to stop him."

A charge of murder has been made against Kopias.

HALE AND HEARTY.

Justice Harlan Has Completed His Seventieth Year.

Washington, June 3.—Associate Justice Harlan of the United States supreme court was 70 years old Monday. Under the law, he may retire from the bench on full pay, but there is not the slightest prospect that he will do so, as he is hale and hearty and has the vigor of many healthy men half his age. Justice Harlan's physical and mental activity has excited comment in Washington. He plays golf, walking frequently from town to the Chevy Chase club, seven miles away, to do so, and seldom rides to or from the supreme court, although the distance between the court and his residence is a good strut. Justice Harlan is in his twenty-sixth year of service on the supreme bench, and is the senior member of the court.

NEED SOME GINGER

Duluth Ball Players Sadly Lacking In Energy—Captains Changed.

Winnipeg Wins Second Game 10 to 1—Superior Also Gets Drubbed.

Clubs—	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Winnipeg	11	1	.916
Grand Forks	10	2	.833
Crookston	9	5	.642
Fargo	5	8	.384
Duluth	3	10	.230
Superior	1	11	.083

Faster work. That is what Duluth baseball patrons desire. Up on the toes every minute and no posing in dignified majesty upon the cushions. A short sharp crack at the ball and a tear down to first without stopping to sigh because the infield has the ball; a lightning get-away to second on the first or second ball pitched; a slide and a cloud of dust—if safe, get up and watch opportunities; if out, get out of the way for the next runner. True, it's not the style of ball the local team is playing, but it is the style that wins.

The Cardinal management should, without delay, shoot some ginger into its high-salaried aggregation, and if necessary feed them large quantities of sour milk mixed with baking soda. That makes a good batter. It might also be well to indulge in morning practice. There is not a man on the team but is getting enough money to work out every morning. In fact, getting more money than is paid the Winnipeg team. But the trouble is with the players and not the backers.

If is speed, sheer speed, with all of strong pitching that has won 11 out of 12 games for Winnipeg. When the Champions have opportunities to win they never dodge the issue. They are an clean, fast and gentlemanly lot of men as ever donned a uniform, and their style of play yesterday, full of snap and speed, was a marked contrast with the easy-going, lobster-like motions of the Duluth team. Figuratively speaking the contrast was 10 to 1.

Bartos, a St. Paul boy, pitched for Winnipeg yesterday, employing a cross fire mixed with speed and curves that simply prostrated the Cardinals. Lambert was the only man to hit him safely, getting singles in the first and ninth innings. It looked like a one-hit game for the promising youngster until the very last moment of the ninth and up to about that same amount he was given absolutely errorless support.

Mueller's turn to pitch came around yesterday and the big fellow was put in despite a severely lame arm. The result was three singles and two doubles in the first inning, netting five runs. McCoy was then called in from right field, and, in the remaining eight and one half innings Winnipeg made but seven additional hits and five runs.

While McCoy does not claim to be much of a twirler, he has certainly been doing some good work in the box when the regulars fell down, and he is a great favorite with the fans.

Duluth's lone run yesterday came in the fourth. Lambert worked Bartos into a corner and was passed to first. Kennally and Kline followed with sacrifice hits. The score:

A shake-up occured in the Duluth team this morning when Murphy, the new short stop, was made captain and given instructions to make the men do something along the line of hustle. In this afternoon's game he went to third, Shephard went to short, and Olmstead to second in the place of Lee Quillan, who is troubled with a lame ankle. Plischer was conpiory boy named Benning out of $8 in a fake poker game at the Merchant's hotel several months ago. Charles Howard and Billy Edwards were the other two men alleged to have assisted in the operation. Howard was indicted on the charge of forgery and, being convicted, is now serving time in the state prison at Stillwater. Edwards was not apprehended.

Moore voluntarily came back from Minneapolis to testify in behalf of Howard when the latter's trial took place and was arrested while leaving the court room, for his connection in the Benning affair. He was bound over until the grand jury met last month. Moore and Billy Edwards are said to be half brothers. Edwards is said to have written the Minneapolis police that he was willing to appear at the Ames' trial if assured that the local police would let him alone but no such agreement could be made.

Robert Fitzgerald, who attempted to clean out the Saratoga hotel bar by means of gun play, while under the effects of liquor, and who was severely punished by the bartender, appeared in district court yesterday afternoon and changed his plea of not guilty to the charge of assault in the first degree to guilty.

Fitzgerald had a leg fractured in the melee at the saloon and still gets around on crutches. On several previous occasions he indicated an intention of changing his plea, but when brought into court room changed his mind.

Edward Moore's trial will begin in Judge Dibell's room as soon as the trial of the civil action of Mary Campbell against the Grand lodge of the A. O. U. W. is completed.

WOMAN GETS DEGREE.

Washington, June 3.—The feature of the graduating exercise of the law department of the Columbian university last night was the conferring of the degree of doctor of civil law on Mrs. Emma Reby Bailey, of Georgia, the first woman to receive this degree in the university. The determination to confer the degree on Mrs. Bailey aroused such opposition among the members of the class that many at one time decided not to accept their degrees. The only one who protested to the end, however, was Oscar B. Taskell, of Tennessee, the president of the class, who remained away and thus failed to receive a degree, although he qualified for it.

THOMAS B. REED'S ESTATE.

New York, June 3.—The late Thomas B. Reed, former speaker of the house of representatives, according to the official report filed yesterday, left a personal estate valued at $431,099, after providing for the payments of debts and the expenses of administration. The gross personalty amounted to $629,533, consisting chiefly of stocks and securities. By his will, executed many years before his death, Mr. Reed's property goes to his widow.

FRANKFORT CONVICTED

Jury Finds Him Guilty of Swindling—Criminal Calendar Closing.

David Frankfort was found guilty of swindling Anton Anderson out of his gold watch, a verdict to that effect being returned in district court late yesterday afternoon, after the jury had been out about seven hours. It was alleged that Frankfort, through some sleight-of-hand performance, managed to appropriate Anderson's watch and attach a worthless timepiece to a chain which he sold the complaining witness. Anderson is said not to have discovered the change of watches until he had left the store where Frankfort was employed. The defendant has been out on bail but will be taken into custody, pending sentence, today.

Only one more criminal case remains on the May calendar of district court, that of the state against Edward Moore who is to be tried under an indictment charging him with swindling. Moore is one of the three Minneapolis "big mitt" men who fleeced a country boy named Benning out of $8 in a fake poker game at the Merchant's hotel several months ago. Charles Howard and Billy Edwards were the other two men alleged to have assisted in the operation. Howard was indicted on the charge of forgery and, being convicted, is now serving time in the state prison at Stillwater. Edwards was not apprehended.

Moore voluntarily came back from Minneapolis to testify in behalf of Howard when the latter's trial took place and was arrested while leaving the court room, for his connection in the Benning affair. He was bound over until the grand jury met last month. Moore and Billy Edwards are said to be half brothers. Edwards is said to have written the Minneapolis police that he was willing to appear at the Ames' trial if assured that the local police would let him alone but no such agreement could be made.

Robert Fitzgerald, who attempted to clean out the Saratoga hotel bar by means of gun play, while under the effects of liquor, and who was severely punished by the bartender, appeared in district court yesterday afternoon and changed his plea of not guilty to the charge of assault in the first degree to guilty.

Fitzgerald had a leg fractured in the melee at the saloon and still gets around on crutches. On several previous occasions he indicated an intention of changing his plea, but when brought into court room changed his mind.

Edward Moore's trial will begin in Judge Dibell's room as soon as the trial of the civil action of Mary Campbell against the Grand lodge of the A. O. U. W. is completed.

WOMAN GETS DEGREE.

Washington, June 3.—The feature of the graduating exercise of the law department of the Columbian university last night was the conferring of the degree of doctor of civil law on Mrs. Emma Reby Bailey, of Georgia, the first woman to receive this degree in the university. The determination to confer the degree on Mrs. Bailey aroused such opposition among the members of the class that many at one time decided not to accept their degrees. The only one who protested to the end, however, was Oscar B. Taskell, of Tennessee, the president of the class, who remained away and thus failed to receive a degree, although he qualified for it.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Steagald Acquitted of Murder But Sent to Asylum.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Sioux Falls—Judge Jones declined to liberate Henry A. Steagald, who was on Saturday night acquitted by a jury of the murder of Frank Bowen at Beneiare. Steagald was remanded to the custody of the sheriff, with the recommendation that the county board of insanity examine into his present mental condition. The insanity board examined him and decided that he was an unsafe person to be at large. He will therefore be sent to the state hospital for the insane at Kankton. Relatives in Southern Illinois had agreed to care for him if he was given into their custody.

Elkton—Ward, Caldwell & Co., have closed their elevator here for the present and will build a large and modern one before fall.

Woonsocket—The Postum Cereal company of Battle Creek, Mich., purchased a valuable tract of land adjoining this city, paying for it $5650. The president of the company, C. W. Post, spent several days looking over the state, and finally decided to purchase here. It is not given out what he intends to do with the property. Mr. Post was greatly impressed with the great power of the artesian wells at this place and offered to subscribe from $5000 to $50,000 to start any manufacturing company here that the Business Men's association would indorse, if the city would put in an equal amount. It was voted to accept the offer, and several manufacturing enterprises are being considered.

The heavy rains did no damage here except to delay the work of grading on the new railroad, and it is thought cars will not be running before the first of next September.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Valley City—Burglars entered the meat markets of Alderman Schultz and Jens J. Lee and in the former place secured 20 cents after wrecking the cash register and prying open the cash drawer in the safe, which was not locked. In Lee's place they secured 85 cents from the cash register. The officers have no clue.

The corner stone of the new addition to the normal school will be laid with Masonic ceremonies Tuesday, June 11. W. L. Stockwell, state superintendent of public instruction, who is also grand master of the Masonic order in the state, will have charge and will be assisted by the local lodge.

Governor White is spending the week in Barnes county and is putting in some time on his farm near Litchville. He has 700 acres in crop this year, and also has a herd of cattle on the place.

Kathryn—The creamery has completed its first half month's work and it turned out a little over 3000 pounds of butter in fifteen days. The operators expect to increase the output to 500 pounds a day by June 15.

The crops never looked better at this time of the year. The weather is all that could be wished, and there is an abundance of moisture. The acreage of flax is smaller than last year. Wheat is about the same, but their is more barley and oats.

Fargo—Francis E. Henwood, formerly of New York, who recently secured a divorce in this state, has been married to Mrs. Julia Davis, of Winnipeg, recently of Fargo. They have gone west for a three months' trip. The laws of this state prohibit the remarriage within the state of divorcees for three months, and the ceremony was performed in Winnipeg.

Mrs. Dora Eggert, wife of William Eggert, of Davenport, is dead after a prolonged illness. She left six children, of whom two, C. F. Eggert and Mrs. James Kennedy, reside in Fargo. She was an early settler in the southern part of the county.

Patrick Donnelly, a well known employment agency man, is dead. He has been ill for a short time following his return to this city from spending the winter in the East.

C. A. Everhart, the candy manufacturer, has incorporated his business and in the election of officers was chosen president and general manager. The capital stock has been increased to $35,000, paid up. The business will be enlarged.

Ed Kelley, whose matrimonial experiences have been of a somewhat wholesale nature, left last night for another wedding trip to Portland. He will locate in the West.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Some Prospect of Settlement of Shingle Weavers' Strike.

Menominee—There is some prospect of the shingle weavers' strike being settled. Messrs. Willot and McMillan, the former of Madison, and the latter of Millwaukee, members of the Wisconsin state board of arbitration, came to the twin cities of their own accord to look into the matter and this afternoon interviewed several mill owners. They will meet the shingle weavers in a day or two and an effort to arbitrate the difficulty will be made.

Leber & Noll's shingle mill, in Marinette, started up, the men having been paid the raise in wages asked.

A big pond, or reservoir, for the storage of beet pulp is being built at the site of the sugar factory at Menominee. A large portion of the western end of the island, or a space about a city block in size, is being enclosed by high walls, through which drains to carry off the water will run. When the factory is running in full, 800 tons of pulp will be carried into the great reservoir every twenty-four hours.

Ironwood—A fakir told citizens that the government had ordered the houses numbered. He succeeded in taking many orders for numbers to be delivered later. It was a case of bunco.

Newberry—State Game Warden Chapman prosecuted M. Finberg, of Detroit, and John Howe, H. Young and Frank Harris, of Newberry, for violating the beaver law. Each was fined.

Ramsay—Martin Pinetti was fatally stabbed in a saloon fight. His assailant escaped but officers are after him.

Calumet, June 2.—The many mills of the upper peninsula are sawing on the summer's cut and those not in commission are being put in condition for work. The shingle mill of the Worcester Lumber company at Chassell has been overhauled and will be put in operation in a few days. About 20,000,000 shingles will be cut this season. The saw mill is running a day shift now, eighty men being employed. Next week the mill will be operated both day and night, and the force doubled.

Shipping is very quiet on the Menominee river, although it is expected that things will pick up before long. The report of the Milwaukee custom house shows that there were 15,000,000 feet of lumber shipped from Marinette since April 1 but lumbermen say that they think this is below the actual amount shipped. One of the best informed lumbermen estimates that the amount of lumber shipped from Menominee since that date exceeds 20,000,000 feet, and he thinks that about an equal amount has been shipped from Marinette.

WOMAN AS MAIL

Contractor Has Made a Comfortable Living In Montana.

Mrs. Knowlton Built Up Business When Left Alone.

Butte, Mont., June 3.—For nine long years Mrs. Charlotte M. Knowlton of Butte, has made her living and maintained a comfortable home by the pursuit of this business—securing contracts for the delivery of mail and carrying them out in person.

Reared in affluence, married into what amounted to luxury, left a widow and thrown on her own resources, she has proved a woman can sometimes do a man's work as well as a man.

After telling of her marriage and her experience with her husband as school teacher, freighter and hotel keeper, Mrs. Knowlton said:

"After having the opportunities that made others millionaires, we drifted into Montana 'broke.' Shortly after our arrival in this state my husband was thrown from his wagon on the railway track and injured by the train. He was a cripple the rest of his life. He died after three years of torture.

"The mail routes were thrown to me. First, the Gunderson, the man having died, for mail routes are like school appointments in Butte—one has to die to beat the game. The former contractor had bid so low that kids would not take it up. I thought I saw a loophole to jump out of my misery.

"Next came Walkerville, nearly as bad from a financial stand, although at that time it was really a messenger service.

"After that came the Burlington, with something of a fair compensation, and, fool to be outdone, the Nine-Mile. House was up for a bid. I took that also, but the office was soon discontinued.

"The slights I received on that road about my 'two-bit horse.' My well-bred and educated Johnny horse, indeed!

"Why didn't I hire boys? Well, I tried boys for a while, and then men. Nowadays the contractor cannot be sublet unless the sub-contractor receives the same as the person making the bid. That helps out a bit, and there is more money in it now.

"I tried my own boy first, as he was getting careless in school. He kept on the wagon a year or so, and then announced to me one day, 'Mother, I am tired of scabbing for that contractor. I am going to work in a mine.'

"He answered that he intended getting the job just the same, and he did. I never knew exactly how he got into the mine, but I believe he must have hypnotized the boss.

"The boys were not half bad, but the men would come to me after a week or so and say, 'I'm through and want my pay,' without further warning.

"After several experiences of that sort I became suspicious and went out to look at the horse and wagon. As I expected, there was not a spoke in the wheels, and the horse was starved and worn out.

"After that I drove myself.

"Any accidents? I should smile. Two years ago at Walkerville a heavy ore team broke the traces and came up a little rise on a mad jump, catching into my buggy, which was standing in front of the postoffice. The horse broke away and landed in Rocker before he was caught, and the buggy was in splinters two blocks away.

"Another time I was caught on the corner of Ohio and Mercury streets by a heavy lime wagon. My buggy turned bottom upward and the horse dragged it a block or so, leaving me pretty well smashed up in the middle of the road in a big mud puddle.

"There's no money in smash-ups for me. The livery stables control the smash-up trust.

"Are the boys annoying? Yes, particularly the high school boys from 16 to 18 years old. They are impudent and objectionable. I blame their mothers for that."

CRUISER IS LAUNCHED

The Tacoma Leaves the Ways at Union Iron Works.

San Francisco, June 3.—The new cruiser Tacoma, built at the Union Iron works was launched here yesterday. Miss Julia N. Harris, of Tacoma, christened the vessel as it glided into the bay and Miss Louise Stone, of the same city, pressed the button that released it from the ways. A large delegation of people from Tacoma were present, among the especially invited guests, 1000 invitations having been issued to residents of that city. The ceremonies would have been more elaborate had it not been for the late hour when the high tide occurred. The Tacoma, which is intended for Oriental service is of very light draught. She is a protected cruiser of 3500 tons' displacement, with sheathing of teak and copper below the water line. Her length at the water line is 292 feet, her breadth 44 feet 1 inch and draught 15 feet. She is provided with twin screws and vertical triple expansion engines, and is to have a speed of sixteen and a half knots, with an indicated horse power of 7400.

Her main batteries will consist of ten five-inch rapid fire rifles, the secondary of eight six-pounders, two one-pounders, four automatic Colts and one three-inch field piece. She is designed to carry a complement of thirty officers and 284 men. The contract price for the vessel was $1,410,000, but owing to a number of changes her cost has been increased about $100,000. Her keel was laid on Sept. 27, 1900, and it is expected she will be ready for delivery to the government in October.

RAILROADS MUST SHOW.

New York, June 2.—Judge Lacombe, in the United States circuit court today, granted an order to show cause against the defendants in the complaint of W. R. Hearst against coal carrying railroads, why they should not answer certain questions propounded during the investigation of the complaint by the interstate commerce commission. The order is returnable June 10.

LIKE POE'S RAVEN

Was Inventor's Bird and Disaster Followed Its Coming.

Took Black Pigeon as His Model For an Airship.

New York, June 3.—Like Poe's raven, a pigeon with feathers as black as coal perched in a squalid room at No. 605 West One Hundred and Twenty-seventh street. It proved to be a bird of evil omen for George B. Sheffield, an aged inventor.

Sheffield and his wife are now at Bellevue hospital. The old man has lost his mind. Mrs. Sheffield is a wreck physically from worrying over her husband's condition.

Sheffield was a prominent figure in New York twenty years ago. He is said to be the inventor of the first naphtha engine ever built, and at one time he had $100,000. Careless business methods resulted in financial disaster, and the losing of the rights on 375 patents which he had procured.

Finally the old man and his wife were compelled to depend for their support upon Mrs. Mary Yachmann, their daughter. She and her husband live with their four little children in three small rooms on One Hundred and Twenty-seventh street.

The youngest of these children, Annie, who is four years old, took a great fancy to her grandfather. He responded with double interest in this childish love.

"Before I die," he would say proudly, "I will complete one more invention which will be the crowning glory of my life. I will make money out of it and little Annie shall become a great lady."

But he never knew what the invention would be.

One stormy evening a month ago something struck against a window of the Yachmann home. Sheffield ran forward and opened the window. A black pigeon flew in and perched on his shoulder.

"My idea has come at last," shrieked the old man. "My invention shall be an airship."

The next day he built a wooden cage for the pigeon and kept it near him constantly. He would force the bird to fly, study its movements carefully and make mysterious jottings on bits of paper.

Soon he began building something. Mrs. Yachmann did not question him about it because she was happy enough to have his mind occupied. From the shape of the rude wooden structure, however, she thought it was a model of an airship.

"I will know the truth now in a few days," remarked Sheffield last week. "My life's work is almost finished."

The day after Sheffield made this remark Mrs. Yachmann noticed that his model had disappeared. When she asked him about it he became almost frantic, but refused to offer an explanation. The old man then began wandering disconsolately through the house. Once he took a large clock down from a mantel and began turning the hands backward. He showed other evidences of insanity, and Mrs. Yachmann then had him removed to Bellevue. Mrs. Sheffield insisted on accompanying him.

Today the black pigeon occupied the room formerly used by Sheffield. It sat on a table carefully watching those who came near it, but making no movement. In a corner of the room little Annie lay crying for her grandpa.

Sheffield is 75 years old. He was born in Hopkinton, Mass.

THE COTTON KING

Secures New Secretary at the Waldorf-Astoria.

New York, June 2.—Daniel Sully, the cotton king, has a new secretary, and because he has a new secretary the Waldorf-Astoria has to engage a new information clerk to take the place of William A. McCusker, whom Mr. Sully won from the hotel proprietor. For eight years McCusker had served at the information desk, meeting all comers. It might be a woman who wanted to know a good dressmaker or a man from Llewellyn, N. J., who desired to learn where he could buy the largest gold brick. McCusker possessed a wonderful control over his nerves and never became rattled. Mr. Sully noticed these traits in the young man, and the more he saw of him the better he liked his imperviousness to excitement.

The climax came when a woman inquired of the clerk if he knew how to spell "ptomaine" and "neurasthenia." Without turning a hair the information clerk wrote the words for her on a card and then sent a boy to put a dictionary on the table in the writing room.

That settled it, and within the ensuing two minutes the cotton king had a new private secretary and the hotel proprietors had been given due notice of the clerk's intention to leave.

TROOPS CALLED OUT

To Clear Streets of Agram of Rioters.

Vienna, June 2.—The entire garrison of Agram, capital of Croatia, was called out to clear the streets of rioters yesterday. The trouble was started by the refusal of a small crowd to disperse. The police attacked the crowd with sabres. A number of persons were injured, and about 200 were arrested. The mob later was reenforced and started window smashing. Finally all the troops in the city were ordered to take part in quelling the disturbance.

A LOSING PROPOSITION.

The Ferris Wheel Sold For Old Junk.

Chicago, June 2.—The Ferris wheel, which was one of the main attractions to visitors during the world's fair in 1893 and subsequently removed to Lincoln park was today sold at auction in Judge Chytraus' court. A junk dealer bid in the wheel and the sum paid for the engines, buildings, boilers, etc., was $1800. The wheel cost originally $392,000. Outstanding against it are bonds amounting to $300,000 and a floating debt of $100,000.

CANNOT ATTEND CONVENTION.

London, June 2.—Lady Henry Somerset, who has been dangerously ill from rupture of the bowels, has undergone an operation and will be unable to attend the convention of the World's Women Christian Temperance Union, at Geneva, Switzerland, June 9. It developed today that Lady Henry Somerset was superseded in the presidency of the union because she advocated municipal ownership of public houses.

PREHISTORIC REMAINS FOUND

In a Stone Box In Large Cave Near Fosston.

Fosston, Minn., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—What appears to be a rare specimen of prehistoric remains was unearthed near here last Saturday, when the skeleton of a human being and some earthen and stone vessels were found and brought to the city by S. S. Stadsvold, proprietor of the Fosston flour mill, and Lewis Lohn, cashier of the Bank of Fosston. Messrs. Stadsvold and Lohn were visiting at Mr. Lohn's farm, near Lenaby, on the border of the White Earth Indian reservation, and were watching some workmen, who were excavating on the side of a hill, making a cellar for a new building. The men had gone some depth into the side of the hill, the intention being to make a large root cellar, when the shovel of one of them came in contact with some hard substance, which gave forth a metallic sound.

The workman stopped to examine what the hard substance was and discovered it to be an iron ring, fastened to something further in the side of the hill. Pulling on the ring disclosed the fact that it was attached to an iron door, which swung outward, disclosing a large opening. Looking into the opening, it was found that it led to a large cave, which was strewn with pieces of broken stones, of peculiar shapes, and in one corner was a stone box, in which, on being opened, was found the perfect skeleton of a human being. Some stone instruments, representing hammers, arrow darts, and other peculiar instruments, were also in the box.

Examination of the skeleton revealed that it was in many respects unlike that of the human being today, in that the bones of the cheek were exceedingly high, and the skeleton was at least seven feet in length and there were other features that were wholly unlike that of a white man. The articles lying about the cave, and the peculiarity of the skeleton would indicate that the cave had remained walled up for years and would possibly never have been found but for the accidental discovery of the workmen. Mr. Lohn, who is an antiquary of considerable note, has placed the skeleton and other articles in a sealed glass receptacle and put them with a rare collection of Indian relics which he possesses. It is believed here that the cave was once the resort of mound builders, or of the Indians in the very long ago, as the implements found are of very ancient pattern.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Jack Root and George Gardiner signed articles Tuesday night for a 20-round battle at Fort Erie, Ont., on the afternoon of July 4, for the light heavyweight championship of the world. The International Athletic club agrees to put up a purse of $750.

Samuel Montgomery residing near Warens, Wis., was arrested at Sparta, charged with assault and battery and suspected of causing the death of his wife. Montgomery claims his wife was killed during a runaway of a team which he was driving on Saturday last. The woman's neck was broken and her head badly battered.

Miss Ruth Williams Pruyn, of Cleveland and David Marvin Goodrich, of Akron, Ohio, were married at Albany, N. Y., Tuesday at St. Peter's church by the Rev. Dr. W. W. Battershall, in the presence of a brilliant gathering representing many parts of the country. Miss Alice Roosevelt, daughter of the president was one of the bridesmaids.

Alderman Fred Tellbusher, of Quincy, Ill., was indicted by the grand jury on two charges of offering and accepting bribes in connection with the passage of the competitive telephone franchise. Indictments have also been voted against a prominent member of a telephone company and against two aldermen. These indictments will be reported tomorrow.

Sam Koplas, an 8-year-old K. lander, shot and instantly killed a man named Solomo Luma during a quarrel in a saloon at Ashland, Wis. Koplas was arrested. He claims the shooting was done in self-defense.

Premier McBride has formed a straight conservative cabinet, consisting of himself, R. E. Green, C. Bartles Wilson, who is conservative leader in British Columbia, A. E. McPhillips and R. C. Tatlow. One portfolio is still to be filled. This is the result of conservative pressure being brought on the new premier, who had intended to select a cabinet including two liberals.

ANDREWS QUITS THE PULPIT

The Rector of Oshkosh Episcopal Church Has Resigned.

Oshkosh, Wis., June 3.—Merton C. Andrews, priest of St. Paul's Episcopal church for nine years, has tendered his resignation, to take effect June 14, without revocation, and moreover, in his letter of resignation he announces his withdrawal from the priesthood.

While Father Andrews does not say so in so many words, it is believed that his withdrawal has been hastened by the action of Bishop Grafton in refusing his consent to Father Andrews to establish a cafe in connection with his other business enterprises, which include the operation of a chicken farm and grocery store.

In previous years the consent of the bishop had been given, and as a result Father Andrews has for several years conducted a grocery store and more recently has acquired the ownership of a chicken farm.

The announcement of the cafe enterprise, however, has followed very closely on the enactment of a law by the last general conference of the church in session in San Francisco, which provides that no clergyman of the Episcopal church receiving a salary or stipend shall engage in secular work.

While Father Andrews has not received a salary from the church or diocese, supporting himself absolutely by his outside venture, still there is no question but that Bishop Grafton intended that that section of the church rules should be considered by Father Andrews to be applicable to himself.

Father Andrews is an extreme ritualist. The ceremonies at St. Paul's have been very high church, so much so, in fact, that many Episcopalians refused to attend. Bishop Grafton has always approved of the ritualistic practices and encouraged Father Andrews in his work.

SSS THE OLDEST AND BEST BLOOD PURIFIER

THE GREATEST OF ALL TONICS.

A Spring Medicine that adds vigor and strength to the system, purifies and enriches the Blood, and lays the foundation for a strong constitution and good health during the hot sultry summer.

Most everybody feels bad in the spring. Some have no particular ailment but are just tired, worn out and totally unfit for work or anything else that requires energy or effort. They mope around upon the border-land of invalidism, irritable, peevish, hysterical and unreasonable.

A good appetite in the spring is a rarity, and we sicken at the sight of food, or thought of eating, and what little we do eat is a burden to the stomach and a tax upon the digestion.

Warm weather is sure to bring out the hidden poisons, germs and seeds of disease that have been collecting in the blood and system during winter, and you may look for some old chronic trouble to make its appearance. It is a time, too, when boils and carbuncles, and pustular or scaly skin eruptions like eczema and tetter, pay their annual visits and make life miserable by their intense pains and intolerable itching and burning.

The fight for health should begin before any warning symptoms of physical collapse are felt, or before the seeds of disease have time to germinate if we would avoid the usual spring sickness; and with S. S. S., the acknowledged king of blood purifiers and greatest of all tonics, you can put your blood and system in such perfect condition and so strengthen the constitution that one may be as free from sickness and as vigorous and strong during the trying months of spring and depressing summer season as at any other time.

Gentlemen: For over four years I suffered with general debility, causing a thorough breaking down of my system, so that I was unable to attend to my household duties. I had tried other medicines, which did not relieve me. Seven years ago my cousin, who had been benefited by S. S. S., told me about it. I tried it and it cured me. I have been able to attend to my household duties ever since, experiencing no inconvenience whatever; in fact, I am able to work in the garden as well as my house.

I heartily recommend S. S. S. to all who may feel the need of a thoroughly good blood tonic, feeling sure they will be benefited thereby.

Yours truly,
MRS. JOSIE A. BRITTAIN,
44 W. Ninth St., Columbia, Tenn.

S. S. S. not only builds you up, but searches out and destroys any poisonous germs or impurities that may be lurking in the blood. The benefits derived from the use of S. S. S. are permanent because it acts directly on the blood and purifies and cleanses it of all impure matter, leaving nothing to cause fermentation and deterioration of this life-giving fluid.

In selecting your blood purifier and spring tonic get one that long experience and thorough test have proven the best. In S. S. S. you will find a remedy whose purifying properties are unquestionable, and just such a tonic as your system needs. Ask your druggist for S. S. S.—there is nothing else just as good.

For the past 40 years we have had a standing offer of $1,000 for proof that S. S. S. contains the least particle of any mineral whatever, and this offer is still open.

WHEAT HAS DECLINE

Southwest Is Bullish But Other Markets Do Not Keep Pace.

Foreign Demand Very Poor —Flax is Quiet and Higher.

Duluth Board of Trade, June 3.—The wheat market started out with a decided slump in prices this morning. The chief bearish influence was the improved weather throughout the entire country. A fair demand caused a reaction, but prices soon eased off again. The range was narrow and the close was at almost the low prices of the day. The St. Louis market continued strong, advancing 1c in the face of declines in other markets, but the crop damage sentiment was not strong enough to sustain the prices elsewhere than in the St. Louis market. The Liverpool market closed with an advance of ½@¾d. The foreigners are taking little or no wheat and in response to offers to sell wheat offer to resell wheat bought some time ago at 2c under the price that this side can make.

Primary receipts of wheat were 220,000 bus, last year 241,000 bus. Shipments 200,000 bus, last year 329,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 357,000 bus. Bradstreet reported a decrease of 1,900,000 bus in the world's visible supply last week as compared with a decrease of 6,381,000 bus the previous week and 5,417,000 bus last year.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis, 190 cars, and at Chicago 88, a total of 263 cars, against 136 last week and 153 last year.

Corn in the Liverpool market reflected the advance in American markets yesterday and was 1½ to 1¾d higher. In the Chicago market it maintained the higher level, only closing a shade higher than yesterday. Oats also held steady the duly option closing ½c higher. Primary receipts of corn were 1,158,000 bus, last year 858,000 bus. Shipments 1,020,000 bus, last year 241,000 bus. Clearances were 277,000 bus.

Trading in wheat in the Duluth market was light. July opened ½c off at 79¾c, sold at 79¾c at 10, and fell off to 79¾c at 10:45 and 79c at 11 and then rallying to 79⅝c at noon and closing there. This was a decline of 1c. September fell 5¼@5⅝c. In Chicago July fell 4¼@4c and September 1c. Minneapolis July fell 4c and September the same. In New York the decline in July was 5c and in September 5c. St. Louis was up 4c for both options.

Cash prices were unchanged at ½c over duly for No. 1 northern and 1½c under for No. 2. Sales were 2,000 bus.

Flax trading was quiet and the market slightly higher. July selling 1c up to $1.12¾, falling back to $1.12⅝ and then advancing again to $1.12¾ and closing there. September closed unchanged.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat to arrive No. 1 hard 81½c; No. 1 northern 79¾c; No. 2 northern 77¾c; July, 79½c; September 78⅝@½c. Flax in store $1.12¾. On track $1.12¾; to arrive $1.12¾. July, September $1.14¾; October $1.14; November $1.13. Oats to arrive 33½@35c; on track 34½@35c. Rye to arrive 50c; on track 50c. Barley 35@50c.

Cars inspected in Wheat 26; last year 13; oats 2; rye 1; flax 9.

Receipts: Wheat 16,164; oats 24,620; rye 1644; barley 3857; flax 15,386.

Shipments: Wheat 58,000; barley 625; flax 34,068.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Favorable Weather Causes Break In Grain Pits.

Chicago, June 3.—There was a big slump in prices in all the grain pits today, the more favorable weather throughout the entire country being responsible for the break. Trading in wheat was fairly active with considerable long wheat coming out early in the day. July was off 3½@4c to 75¾@75c at 5½c to 77½c at the start, but under a fair demand from outsiders the market became steadier, July advancing to 76¾c but later easing off to 74¾@75c. Minneapolis and Duluth reported receipts of 180 cars, which, with local receipts of 83 cars—one of contract grade—made total receipts for the three points of 263 cars, against 136 cars last week and 153 cars a year ago.

Trading was less active latter part of the session and prices held about steady. Commission houses had considerable selling orders, but the demand was about equal to the supply. St. Louis being one of the best buyers. The close was steady with July ¼@⅝c lower at 74¾c.

Better weather and large receipts caused weakness in corn, July being ff ½@⅝c to ¾@⅞c, opening at 46⅞ to 47¼c here was a good demand at the decline and the market became firmer, July advancing to 47¼. Local receipts were 1,081 cars with 138 of contract grade.

The market was strong throughout the day, there being a good commission house demand. The close was near the top with July a shade liger at 47¾c.

Oats opened easier on the better weather and in sympathy with other grains with July ¼ lower at 34½. A good demand developed on the decline and a quick rally resulted, July advancing to 34⅞, with trade fairly large. Local receipts were 416 cars.

Liberal receipts of hogs and a decline in prices at the yards, caused an easier tone in provisions at the opening, and with little trading, prices showed but slight fluctuations the first hour of the session. September pork opened 7½c lower at $16.95; September lard was off 5 to 7½c, at $8.87½ to $8.90 while ribs were down 2½c at $8.25.

Close: Wheat—June, 75c; July, 74⅞c; old, 75½@74c; September, 72¼@73c; old, 72⅝c; December, 72½c; old, 72⅝c. Corn—June, 47⅝c; July, 47½c; September, 46⅞@47c; December 46⅝c. Oats—July, 34⅝@35c; September, 32¾@3c; December, 32½c; May, 34c. Pork—July, $17.45; September, $16.87½. Lard—July, $8.82½; September, $8.87½; October, $8.67½. Ribs—July, $8.32½; September, $9.15@17½. Rye—July, 50c. Flax—Cash, N. W., $1.13; S. W., $1.10; July, $1.12. Timothy—June, $3.75. Clover—June, $11.50. Barley—Cash, 42@56c. Cash wheat—2 red, 75c; 3 red, 72@75c; 2 hard winter, 74@75c, 3 do, 72@74c; 1 northern spring, 79@80c; 2 northern spring, 78@80c; 3 spring, 74@75c. Corn—2, 47½@½c; 3, 47@½. Oats—2 35c; 3, 32½c.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Chicago Record-Herald: Between Friday and yesterday C. H. Spencer of St. Louis and his partner T. B. Denniston of this city made a railroad trip of about 1,000 miles over the Southeast winter wheat territory in order to get as well as was possible by a hurried trip the condition of the wheat in this area. The run was from St. Louis over the "Big Four" to Sidney, Ohio, from there over the Cincinnati Hamilton & Dayton to Cincinnati and from there back to St. Louis over the Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern. It made about 1,000 miles of travel by daylight through the best southwestern wheat area. Writing of this trip Spencer says:

"You are probably aware that my estimate was not for over 60 per cent of an average crop of soft winter wheat. I have never seen a more unpromising outlook at this season of year. The wheat is extremely short, very thin on the ground and has a very unhealthy appearance. Very much the same character of reports are being received now from the entire soft winter wheat belt. The season is a very late one. Very few fields of corn are up. While there is ample time yet to make a corn crop with favorable weather conditions the outlook at present is certainly not good. Oats generally have a good stand but small. On the whole it looks as if this were to be an off year for crops. There were unprecedented rains west and river men at St. Louis think there is great danger of Mississippi and Missouri river bottoms being submerged. If this should occur many thousand acres of wheat would be destroyed. We usually get a large percentage of our first receipts from the bottom lands of Mississippi and Missouri rivers."

Ryeroft of Chicago: Foreign markets are all generally firm, reflecting our advance of yesterday. Weather indications are more favorable and in all probability will cause some selling off in price of both wheat and corn. I do not look for any serious break from these prices. Would advise buying on any weak spots.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: By vote of the board yesterday, the rules regarding contract wheat have been changed. Beginning with today all contracts for the delivery of wheat beyond July 1 will include No 1 northern and No. 2 red as heretofore, and in addition No. 2 hard wheat may be delivered by paying 5 cents per bushel difference on the same. This will necessitate trading in old style and new style. Therefore inclosing contracts made previous today, it will be necessary to specify "old style."

Director Sage of the Iowa crop reporting bureau says: "The Iowa corn crop is not over 200,000,000 compared with 300,000,000 last year."

THE COURT HAS NO AUTHORITY

To Relieve Prisoner Held on the Island of Guam.

Washington, June 3.—In the case of Edward Johnson, a marine, serving sentence in the island of Guam on the charge of robbing a fellow marine, the court of appeals of the district of Columbia has decided that it has no authority to issue a writ of habeas corpus to compel the secretary of the navy to produce in court here the body of a person imprisoned on that island. The decision was based upon the ground that the court had no jurisdiction and it was further held that the mere fact that the official residence of the secretary of the navy is the district of Columbia, does not render him subject to the orders of the court in such cases. It was also held that the power to relieve a prisoner under such circumstances rests with the president and not with the secretary.

NEW LUMBER COMPANY.

Wilson River Lumber Company Is Incorporated.

Articles of incorporation of the Wilson River Lumber company were filed this morning with the register of deeds. The incorporators and directors are Giles Gilbert, Louis Rocheleau and T. T. Hudson, of Duluth; F. M. Higgins, of Ocean, N. Y.; and Frank S. Smith, of Angelica, N. Y. The company is capitalized at $60,000 and the limit of its indebtedness is twice the amount of the capital stock. Half of the capital stock is owned by Messrs. Gilbert and Higgins. The time of the corporation is to run from July 1, 1903, for thirty years. The company purposes to do a general land logging and lumbering business, improve canals and waterways and construct dock property.

SELLING IS HEAVY

In the Last Hour and Stocks Fell Off Easily.

Heavy Gold Shipments Were Cause of the Selling.

New York, June 3.—The market leaders were generally lower at the opening today, but there were gains elsewhere, which made the tone irregular. The coalers led the decline on account of intimations of renewed labor trouble. Reading losing about a point. The Canadian stocks made sharp recoveries, Twin City Rapid Transit rallying 1½ and Canadian Pacific ⅝, but the latter stock immediately reacted. Union Pacific preferred rose a point.

Stocks which were bought on the break yesterday for a turn were realized on and declines in the first few minutes reached a point in St. Paul, Missouri Pacific, Rock Island, Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake & Ohio, Reading and Delaware & Hudson. The Canadian group was somewhat steadier, a rise of 2½ in Twin City infusing a better tone to these stocks. Minneapolis, St. Paul & Soo reacted 1½, but recovered partially while the preferred advanced 3 points. Allis-Chalmers declined 4. Realty preferred gained 1½ and St. Louis & San Francisco certificates 1¼. Prices of the active stocks were better at 11 o'clock but not up to yesterday's level.

The market became active on a rising scale. The average level of prices recovered to last night's prices and in some cases, notably the coalers, gained a point. The gains in Canadian Pacific reached 1½, Twin City and Soo preferred 6, Sloss-Sheffield steel lost 1½, but rallied to 1¾ over last night. National of Mexico preferred and Minneapolis & St. Louis lost a point. When selling orders were encountered on the advance, the market became dull. Bonds were steady at noon.

Buying orders were liberally distributed among the active leaders and they advanced a good fraction above last night. St. Paul, Missouri Pacific and Erie led the movement. Sloss-Sheffield was bought in large blocks. Several minor stocks also made substantial gains, including St. Joe & Grand Island first pfd, and Toledo, St. Louis and Western stocks.

The uplift of prices continued somewhat unevenly and with occasional pauses as large offerings were met. Gains reached a point or more in St. Paul, Wabash pfd, Erie, Copper, United States Steel pfd, Sugar and some minor stocks. Hocking Valley rose 4. Sloss-Sheffield Steel and Brooklyn Union gas, 3, and Pacific Coast, 2. Allis-Chalmers recovered its 4 points loss and Minneapolis & St. Louis rallied 2. United Railway Investment pfd declined 1, and American Telephone, 2.

M. & St. L. rose 3 over last night and Leather preferred 1¾. When room traders started to take profits on the day's movement, prices yielded rather easily. Pennsylvania was sold in large blocks down to 128. In the last few minutes selling became general and heavy and prices broke all around to below last night. Pennsylvania touched 125¾, which is on a parity with the low point in the movement. The market steadied slightly at the close, which was dull.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: Copper was higher both at the opening and closing in London today, more than recovering yesterday's loss. Home advices continue to quote both Lake and Electrolytic 15 cents bid. There was rather better buying of coppers than the rest of the market. Selling pressure was less pronounced all around and the market acted as if it might have a further rally.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, June 3.—The cotton market opened firm at an advance of 4@7 points, called a disappointing response to the public cables which came better than expected with private cables stagnant. Towards noon the market eased off and became quiet, dependent on the operations of the local traders. The closing of the New Orleans market was regarded as largely accounting for the prevailing speculative apathy in the local field.

Cotton spot closed dull; middling uplands, 11.50; middling gulf, 11.75. Sales none. Cotton futures closed steady. June, 11.11; July, 11.12; August, 10.65; September, 10.08; October, 9.58; November, 9.43; December, 9.42; January, 9.42.

NEW YORK MONEY.

New York, June 3.—Money on call, steady, at 2¼@2¾ per cent; closed 2½@3. Time money firm; sixty days, 4 per cent; ninety days, 4; six months, 5. Prime mercantile paper, 4½@5¼. Sterling exchange, steady, with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.88.25 for demand, and $4.85.25 for sixty days; posted rates, $4.85½@4.88 and $4.88½@4.89; commercial bills, $4.85. Bar silver, 53½c. Mexican dollars, 42¾c. Government bonds, irregular; railroad bonds, firm.

TREASURY BALANCES.

Washington, June 3.—Today's statement of the treasury balances in the general fund exclusive of the $150,000,000 gold reserve in the division of redemption shows: Available cash balance $224,582,481; gold, $105,337,616; silver, $24,107,780; U. S. notes $7,336,229; treasury notes of 1890, $115,044; national bank notes $11,119,916; total receipts this day, $2,134,563; total receipts this month, $6,766,265; total receipts this year $517,239,677; total expenditures this day $1,730,000; total expenditures this month $5,280,000; total expenditures this year $476,966,852; deposits in national banks $154,523,354.

TRYING TO PUT SLATE THROUGH

Senator Hanna's Friends Are Working Hard at Columbus.

Columbus, O., June 3.—Notwithstanding Senator Hanna's declarations that he would not personally try to name the candidates for many places on the state ticket, at tomorrow's convention, contestants for those places today declared that the senator's friends were trying to put a slate through, and after several conferences open war was declared on the anti-Hanna men. The first test will come on the nomination of lieutenant governor, which is the fight Hanna men supporting Ex-Congressman Boothman and the field concentrated on Ex-Senator Harding. No fight could be more bitter than this one is today. Foraker and Cox are both for Harding and Dr. Lowes, the Dayton leader, is with them. Later in the day the lines were drawn also on what are called the "third termers" for supreme judge, auditor and school commissioner.

While there are several candidates for state treasurer, that Hanna men are pressing Ex-Speaker W. S. McKinnon so hard that Nelson A. Sims announced himself openly today, as the "anti-slate candidate with no favors from Hanna."

Meanwhile Col. P. Sunderland, of Dayton, was groomed as a compromise candidate. While this contest is as bitter as that for lieutenant governor, the lines are drawn differently. George H. Cox is co-operating with the Hanna men, except for lieutenant governor and he is leading the fight for McKinnon. Senator Foraker and Senator Hanna are not on the same side in any of the contests. Senator Foraker has headquarters at different hotels and is very aggressive in the fight today, personally meeting delegates as fast as they are escorted into his quarters.

QUESTION OF SUSPENSION

Of Work Will Be Considered By Miners' Officials.

Walkesbarre, Pa., June 3.—The district board members of the mine workers' union will hold another session today and give further consideration to the question of a suspension of work pending the settlement of existing grievances.

The district presidents have nothing further to say than was embodied in their statement last night. They say they do not want to see work suspended unless the operators refuse to treat with them. Board members say their action is endorsed by the mine workers throughout the region.

Superintendent Warriner, the only operator member of the board of conciliation in the city today, would make no statement.

HOFF WAS SMOOTH.

He Secured Over $250,000 on False Statements.

New York, June 3.—John N. Hoff, of Newark, N. J., was today held on a charge of grand larceny, made by Thomas A. Adams, president of the Ganzevoort bank, of this city. The bail was fixed at $5000. Hoff, it is alleged, secured a loan of $19,000 from the Ganzevoort bank, upon a false statement of assets. Assistant District Attorney Peehner, who is prosecuting the case, told the court that twelve other banks in the city had loaned sums to the prisoner on the same typewritten statement of assets furnished the Ganzevoort bank, and that in this manner Hoff had succeeded in borrowing sums in the neighborhood of $250,000.

THE DIET PROROGUED.

Japanese Legislature Suspended By Imperial Order.

Tokio, May 22, via Victoria, June 3.—Yesterday an imperial ordinance prorogued for three days' the extraordinary session of the Diet which only held its initial sitting on the 16th. The naval estimate and tax bill, on being referred to a committee consisting of constitutionists (Marquis Ito's) party was almost unanimously turned down. The prorogation followed.

The Japan-China postal convention regarding the mail service was signed at Pekin by the Japanese minister and Sir Robert Hart on the 19th. The convention will become effective July 19.

IN MARINE CIRCLES

No Charters of Grain Made at Higher Rate as Yet.

Shipping Business Out of Line—Average Time For Unloading Ore.

No charters of grain have been made at the rate of 1⅛ cents which the line boats have announced as the minimum for the month of June. It is not, however, because the grain men are holding out against it. They have nothing to charter, the markets being out of line for working grain to ship. Just what the attitude of the grain men will be has not yet developed. There is a sentiment among them apparently, that if they readily concede the new rate another advance may be made and they may hold off somewhat for that reason.

UNLOADING TIME.

Average Internal an Ore Carrier Spends at Dock.

The congested condition of the ore docks at Cleveland has given rise to some discussions to the average time which an ore carrier spends in port and the amount of time which is required to load.

Some figures have been prepared by the Marine Review which give the average time for last year. The year of 1902 was not a year of good dispatch on account of the freight blockade but the conditions this season are even worse.

The vessels of the steel corporation are taken to represent the entire trade and it is found that the average time spent by these ships in port unloading was a few hours less than three days and the average time spent in port loading was about fourteen hours.

These figures, of course, include the time spent at the docks waiting to load or unload. There are cases in which 5000 gross tons of ore were loaded in eighty minutes actual working time and unloaded within ten hours.

The docks at Two Harbors have the best record for speed in loading. There were 1189 cargoes taken from Two Harbors last year and the average time spent in actually loaing the vessels was a little less than eight hours.

In the years of best dispatch preceding 1902 it is likely that the average time spent by vessels in port loading would be about ten hours and in unloading about two days.

The unloading record for the Lake Erie ports is 5217 gross tons in 3 hours and 56 minutes. This was of course an exceptional case and was accomplished under the most favorable conditions where anything had been especially prepared for fast work.

At the present time vessels are averaging from three to five days in port at Lake Erie on account of the blockade at the ore docks and there are cases reported in which vessels have been compelled to stay in port for as much as six days before they could discharge their cargoes.

THE LUMBER CARRIERS.

Detroit, June 3.—At its meeting here yesterday, the board of the managers of the Lumber Carriers' association did not increase the carrying rate on straight lumber as was expected, but made several minor changes and established rates on posts, ties and telegraph poles, which were not on the schedule heretofore. It was decided that the conditions of the trade would not warrant any increase in the $2.50 rate from the head of the lakes to Lake Erie and Chicago. On account of the abolishment of the 30-cent rate on lumber passing through the Welland canal, the

SATISFIES PEOPLE

Pleased With Postponement of East Superior Street Paving.

Matter of Guarantee Is Now the Puzzling One.

All persons concerned seem perfectly satisfied with the city's decision to postpone the paving of East Superior street between Sixteenth and Twenty-third avenues for another year.

That out of the way the city officers are now taking up the next street paving problem that has been puzzling them—the advisability of letting contracts without a guarantee that paving will be kept in good condition for five to ten years.

Strong arguments are made both for and against the guarantee by persons versed in street paving matters. It is urged that a guarantee means an additional 10 per cent to the cost of paving and the effort that is being made to abolish the guarantee clause in future contracts is in the interest of a reduced cost to the property owners.

On the other hand, it is held that an asphalt contract without a ten-year guarantee would be the rankest kind of folly—in fact, like Mount St. Elias of absurdity. Not that a guarantee makes a good paving, but in the matter of asphalt it is generally considered wise to have the contracting company agree to keep it in condition for a period of ten years or more.

In the efforts to find a way to reduce the cost of paving to property owners, it has been suggested that Duluth take advantage of a recently enacted law permitting cities to issue bonds to pay for paving intersections. The paving of intersections is now paid by the property owners.

This suggestion, however, is horribly out of order, for the reason that the law only applies to cities that have not attained the 10 per cent limit of bonded indebtedness, including bonds outstanding on water and light plants. Duluth's limit is nearly 20 per cent at present. What is more, Duluth will never be in a position to take advantage of this law for the reason that it becomes obsolete to all cities six months after it passed.

LET US BE YOUR TAILOR!

You will find Low Prices and good workmanship so strikingly combined in our garments that you will wonder how it is done. It's no experiment with us. We've invented it and can do it better than anyone else. We're not selling goods below cost as some claim they do. We are making a profit, but our profit is 25 per cent less than any other tailoring house and 40 per cent less than some of them. Who gets this 25 or 40 per cent? You do. The same as though we sold our clothes at other people's prices and stuck a $5 or $10 bill in your vest pocket. Our tailoring insures a stylish garment, hangs gracefully, fits comfortably and holds the shape. Come and see.

BELIEVES IN RECIPROCITY

M. S. Burrows Favors Freer Trade Relations With Canada.

M. S. Burrows, of the Great Eastern, returned this morning from the East, where he has been for the past five weeks. He expressed himself as being delighted to get back to Duluth, and was agreeably surprised at the charming weather, having been prepared by Duluth correspondents for bad weather.

"It is always refreshing to get back to Duluth," said Mr. Burrows this morning, "no matter what the weather is here. It has been disagreeable in the East much of the time, and I doubt if it could have been much more unpleasant here.

"The spring retail trade in the East has been a little disappointing, as it has not come up to the trade of the past few springs. The dullness has been attributed generally to the inclement weather.

"Politics is receiving some discussion in wholesale circles of late. There seems to be no doubt expressed anywhere that President Roosevelt will be the unanimous choice of the next Republican national convention to succeed himself. Some idea that a Western man may lead the fight for the Democrats seems to exist. However, interest in politics is very mild, as might be expected so far in advance of the campaign of 1904."

Mr. Burrows returns much impressed with the idea of closer commercial relations with Canada, which has been discussed so much of late.

"It is something that we of the Northwest, and particularly of Duluth," he said, "should be vitally interested in. We are such close neighbors to a new and flourishing region of Canada that any movement to promote trade relations between the two countries cannot fail to benefit us. The vast wheat fields of Manitoba and the Northwest territory are being developed marvelously, and they will produce immense quantities of wheat from now on, increasing continually.

"Duluth would benefit greatly if such trade relations could be established as would permit her to handle that grain, as it naturally would were it not for a tariff wall. Not only that, but the jobbing houses of Duluth would find their territory greatly enlarged. While I believe the entire country would be benefited by a reciprocal trade arrangement with Canada, there can be no question in the world but that Duluth and the Northwest would profit very largely.

"I believe that Duluth and its representative trade organization, the Commercial club, should take this matter up and agitate it vigorously. A sentiment in favor of it is spreading over the country naturally, and this could be advanced and the desired end hastened considerably by persistent and systematic campaigning. The end is worth going after, and whatever is worth going after is worth trying for vigorously."

While away Mr. Burrows attended the Philadelphia horse show and was much interested in it and impressed with it. It was a remarkable exhibition of horse flesh. One man alone, W. G. Moore, of Moore Bros., of Diamond match fame, had horses on exhibition worth $150,000.

BURGLARS AT VESTA.

Rob Gold State Bank of Money and Notes.

St. Paul, June 3.—A Redwood Falls, Minn., special to the Dispatch says: Robbers last night broke into the Gold State bank at Vesta, dynamited the safe and got away with $2500 and $20,000 in notes. They also stole the fine team of Arthur Athey and made good their escape. There is no clue, but amateurs are suspected, as it was not thought professionals would carry off the notes.

NO SUNDAY TRAINS.

Omaha May Not Put on Solon Springs Train.

The Omaha Sunday train to Solon Springs may not be put on after all, on account of a policy adopted by the Northwestern system recently.

The Northwestern road has decided not to run any Sunday excursions this summer. There will be no Saturday-night-returning-Monday-morning excursions either, and the small resorts along the lines of the Northwestern will suffer accordingly.

The reason for the new policy is that the business is not profitable at best, and a single wreck or accident will knock out all the profits of a summer almost, and besides, is a great deal of trouble in operation, and it prevents the employes from getting a day's rest a week.

The company will not operate freight trains either and will take care of the Sunday freight business on the usually light Monday morning freight trains.

A Cloquet Marriage.

The marriage of Miss Sarah Walker and Richard Drew Musser, of Cloquet, took place today at noon. Mr. Musser is with one of the lumber companies there and well known to all of the lumbermen in this section of the country. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Turrish, of this city, went to Cloquet this morning to attend the wedding.

MACHEN'S CASE

Was Not Taken Up By the Grand Jury.

Washington, June 3.—It was expected that the case of August W. Machen, former superintendent of the free delivery system, postoffice department, would be taken up by the United States grand jury today, but the jury convened and adjourned without considering the case. No business was laid before the jury, an adjournment being taken until tomorrow. While the officials of the district attorney's office, are reticent concerning the Machen case, it appears likely that it will be brought before the grand jury tomorrow. Assistant District Attorney Taffert, is preparing the evidence and no action will be taken until he is in readiness to proceed.

FOOD WON

In a Case of Appendicitis.

Food cured a well-known Kansas school teacher of appendicitis. "A year ago last July I was taken sick with appendicitis and was operated upon, being down in bed for nine weeks, and although I was given up to die by the doctor and the entire community, I got up again and went back to work, although a wreck. About the middle of last February I was taken sick the same way, but went to Eureka Springs and stayed for five months, ill all the time and just about half alive.

"It was about this time I received a letter from an aunt in Nebraska telling me of what a food called Grape-Nuts had done for her, and asking me to try it. I did so, and in a short time Grape-Nuts had done me more good than all of the treatments put together. My case is spoken of as one of the most interesting in Kansas, for I spent over $1000 for medical treatment and finally had to fall back on food, and am now getting along far better than I have been for several years. I am recuperating rapidly and getting strong and healthy again. My stomach and bowels are normal, and on the whole I feel like a new man.

I studied dietetics in my work as school teacher, but never knew before that the power of pure scientific food could be so gerat. I recommend Grape-Nuts to all, whether in health or sickness, young or old." Name given by Postum company, Battle Creek, Mich.

Weak intestinal digestion causes appendicitis when much white bread, potatoes or partly cooked starchy cereals are used. Grape-Nuts food will prevent such troubles, because the starchy part of the cereals has been already changed and predigested in Grape-Nuts, therefore there is no overtaxing of the organs and no fermented food to cause trouble.

Why not something new for dessert—something out of the ordinary? See recipe book in the package of Grape-Nuts.

GOLDSTEIN SORRY

Joseph Goldstein, better known in the police annals as "Blackie," who was sent to the state penitentiary from St. Louis county about two years ago to serve thirty-two years on conviction of attempted larceny and for assaulting Deputy Sheriff Magie while he was taking the defendant from the court room to the county jail, has written a letter to Mr. Magie, from the state prison at Stillwater, expressing sorrow for his act in shooting the officer.

Goldstein made an attemp to escape outside the court house door, but was thrown down by Deputy Magie, when he drew a gun and fired at the officer twice, one bullet penetrating Magie's hand and the other striking him in the forehead and glancing over the skull under the scalp.

Goldstein kept up a running fire at the other officers, until cornered by the lake shore. He now writes that he is sorry he assaulted the officer and glad that the wounds were not serious. He says Deputy Magie had nothing to do with his conviction on the attemped larceny charge, which, he alleges, was "jobbed up" against him.

He remarks that the state prison is a good place in which to reflect, and he has been doing considerable reflecting in the past two years, with the result that he has come to the conclusion that by keeping out of trouble he would never have been troubled.

Goldstein further says that he has been "taking his medicine" and trying to "the game," with an occasional "yelp" or two. He remarks that the air outside the prison walls seems to be much nicer than on the inside.

SENSATION AVOIDED

Chicago, June 3.—Prompt action on the part of directors of the board of trade and several members of board of trade firms forestalled the service of warrants today for alleged violations of the statutes. Charges of "pretended buying and selling of grain," which there was no intention of receiving or delivering, were brought against the individual directors, and similar charges against Louis R. Fife, L. H. Mason, Theron Loffan, B. B. Bryan, Lorenzo J. Lamson and S. Warren Lamson, recent board of trade operators, by two men who are said to have been victims of the recent raid upon the establishment of George T. Sullivan. Arrangements were quietly made, however, for the perfecting of bonds for all parties and a spectacular raid on the board and offices of its members, which was to have been a part of the program, was avoided.

VOLCANIC ERUPTION

Kobe, May 29, via Victoria, June 3.—A volcanic eruption is reported from the Loo Choo group, which has caused a panic among the islanders, and the provincial governor has applied to the Japanese government to rescue the islanders, fearing disaster. A small volcano on Toijim, an island in the Bonins, became active on May 10. Rumblings accompanied the outbursts, which caused a fearful sight. An earthquake followed and ashes and stones were thrown toward the villages. The inhabitants were leaving, abandoning their crops.

SEVEN PERSONS BURNED.

Pittsburg, June 3.—The explosion of a large quantity of iodine in the laboratory of the wholesale drug house of W. J. Gilmore & Co., on Seventh avenue today, caused much excitement and the burning of seven persons. One young woman, Minnie Prim, aged 20 years, was perhaps fatally hurt by jumping from a third-story window. G. Hutchins, the chemist, was dangerously burned and may die. The others will recover. The fire was extinguished quickly and the loss was small.

MEATS MAY GO UP

Flooding of Armourdale May Effect Price of Meat.

There Have Been No Advances as Yet, However.

Prices of some meats may go up on account of the flooding of Armourdale, near Kansas City, where the big packing companies have packing houses.

So far there has been no fluctuation of the market on account of that reason. Local representatives of the packing companies say they do not expect the flood to affect the market.

Several of the largest packing houses are under twelve or fifteen feet of water, and not only are operations suspended, but immense quantities of meat, which were stored in the buildings cannot be moved out.

The Armour and the Schwarzchild & Schulberger companies at Duluth receive a great deal of their meat shipments from Kansas City, but so far, it is said, there is no inconvenience, though there may be some effect within a few days.

All the packing companies have large packing houses at Omaha and St. Paul, and the cattle are being shipped there instead of at Kansas City now, and the output of dressed meat is little below what it was last week.

"I do not think there is any chance of the flood situation affecting the market," said Manager W. W. Brooke, of the Swift branch here this morning. "There may be some slight delays in shipments in a day or two, but so far there has been no inconvenience on account of it. The disabling of the Kansas City packing houses will not cripple the packing companies, for their plants at Omaha, Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul will all be worked overtime, and the live stock shipments are now being sent to those places, instead of Kansas City.

"At this time of the year there is generally a rise in the price of meats that have been fed all winter, and the corn fed stock, especially, so that some increase in prices may be expected anyway. The rise in the price of feed is the cause of that, and I do not think that there will be a mite of an effect on the markets because of the Kansas City situation."

ALBERT EVANS WINS CONTEST

Gets High School Oratorical Prize—Charles Fitzgerald Second.

Albert Evans, '04, with his eulogy on "William McKinley," won the decision in the oratorical contest which was held at the High School today.

The contest was very close between the four young men entered, and the decision was between Evans and Charles Fitzgerald, who spoke on "Walenstern." Orren Safford, '03, and Stanley Strand, '05, were the other students who contested, and they acquitted themselves creditably.

Instructors Cruil, Thomas and Barker acted as judges.

The contest ends the special English work of the year. Some time ago a declamatory contest was held in which some very good work was done by those who contested. Stanley Strand, '05, won the medal for the boys' division in that struggle, and Miss Florence Aiken, '05, triumphed over her feminine competitors.

It was at first intended to have girls entered in the oratorical contest, but the work of the young women was not up to the standard.

A beautiful gold medal was presented to Evans, the winner of today's contest, by Principal Smith.

All of the best speakers of the high school will remain in school next year, and the outlook for the debating team and the oratorical work is very bright.

Instructor Thomas will remain in charge of the English department, and Evans and Strand, who have both won distinction in the contests this year, will form the nucleus of the candidates from which he will work up his debating team and representative.

The oratorical contest today was judged much better than the one held last year. The competitors were younger, but there is a distinct advance in the work of the high school along declamatory lines.

SEVERAL CHILDREN DROWNED.

Quincy, Ill., June 3.—The steamer Flying Eagle and a barge struck the draw of Hannibal bridge this morning and sank in forty feet of water. The Hannibal Methodist Sunday school excursion was on board and several children are said to have been drowned. Most of the passengers were pulled off on the bridge before the boat sank.

GET THE ERIE ROAD.

New York, June 3.—The Evening Telegram printed the following today: According to stories current in important financial circles today, the control of the Erie railroad has been acquired by a combination of Gould, Harriman and Rockefeller interests and the road will be made the eastern connection of the Burlington, Union Pacific, St. Paul and Gould systems. The Pennsylvania has been crowded out, although Pennsylvania interests have been heavy buyers of Erie shares.

TRIED TO POISON QUEEN.

Vienna, June 3.—Unconfirmed rumors are in circulation at Belgrade, Servia, that King Alexander's French cook has committed suicide at the palace after having been detected in an attempt to poison Queen Draga.

ANOTHER FIRM FAILS.

Toronto, June 3.—As a result of the failure of A. E. Ames & Co. yesterday, the Atlas Loan company, of St. Thomas, closed its doors today. A. E. Wallace, president of the Atlas company, was connected with the Ames firm. It is stated that the liabilities of the Atlas firm will reach $400,000.

THE RECEDING WATERS DISCLOSE AWFUL RUIN

Property Loss Will Be Exceedingly Large.

Many Bodies of Drowned Found Among Debris.

Kansas City, June 4.—A fall in the Missouri of nearly three feet from the high point of 35, recorded forty-eight hours ago, was shown by the government gauge at 7 o'clock this morning. By nightfall it is predicted the stage in the Missouri will be close to 31. There was a corresponding fall in the Kkaw.

As the waters recede they are disclosing a wrecked, slime-covered area of five miles square. It is conceded by civil engineers who have investigated the situation closely that the whole of the terminal system of the railroads in the bottoms will have to be rebuilt, together with bridges that alone, it is estimated, cannot be replaced at under fully $5,000,000 to $10,000,000. In the work of rehabilitation the greatest precaution will be necessary to prevent an epidemic of sickness, because of the utter lack of sanitary measures.

Sewers are washed out and must be replaced, and even the pumping station, although it may be used temporarily, must ultimately be removed to higher ground and a complete new plant constructed. At convention hall, where several hundred refugees have been housed since Sunday, the sanitary conditions have become such that preparations are making for the immediate removal of the homeless. What to do with them is a serious problem.

Water was turned on in the business district up town on the Missouri side today for the first time since Monday, but the flow was inadequate.

The railroad situation is greatly improved today.

Topeka, June 4.—Six unidentified bodies, those of three men and three women, victims of the North Topeka flood, were picked up today at noon by some of the Ottawa rescue boats out of the Kaw river drift wood west of the city. A rope was tied around the waist of one of the women. Evidently she had been tied to a tree to prevent falling into the water, many who were forced to remain perched in trees for hours having done this. The sanitary conditions in North Topeka were made worse today by the bursting of several sewer and water pipes.

Topeka, June 4.—The Kaw river is now five feet below the highest recorded point, but the water in the flooded district still averages about six feet and a very swift current is running.

The north approach to the Melan bridge is being covered by a pontoon, which will make possible communication between the two parts of the city, without the use of boats.

It will be impossible for the waterworks to resume before tomorrow. The condition of the homeless is satisfactory and no acute suffering is reported.

Louisiana, Mo., June 4.—The Mississippi rose ten inches over night, and at 9 o'clock this morning is running over the Sny levee at the lowest point, which is opposite this city, in big rivulets. For a distance of more than a mile the Chicago & Alton and Burlington roads use the levee for a dump and are working all the men they can get to save the levee.

Back of the Sny levee at least 50,000 people live. Many of them have come to this city, but many more remain, and there is almost certain to be loss of life. The ferryboats cannot carry all the people from the Illinois side, who are patiently waiting their turn in a steady downpour of rain.

The Sny levee, which is thirty-five miles long, was built to protect 100,000 acres of farm land in Illinois along the Mississippi river.

Washington, June 4.—Telegraphic advices to the postoffice department from the flood district indicate that the flood situation is improving slowly at Kansas City, but is growing worse in the direction of St. Louis. Postal officials express considerable apprehension regarding the latter point.

The official report from Kansas City today says that the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy tracks, on which the railroad mail is run between Burlington and St. Louis are impassable and that the Wabash road is the only outlet for the north.

SHAKING THE RECIPROCITY TREE.

FIERCE FOREST FIRES RAGE THROUGHOUT NEW ENGLAND

No Rain Has Fallen For Forty-Seven Days.

The Property Losses Will Run Into Millions.

Burlington, Vt., June 4.—At least 1000 men are fighting forest fires in Vermont, yet thousands of acres of valuable timber land have been burned over and there is little prospect that the fires can be checked until rain falls. At Hardwick two residences were destroyed.

The most serious situation is on Worcester mountain, near the towns of Worcester and Elmore. The fire there has burned over 1400 acres of timber land valued at $50 an acre and is rapidly spreading. The smoke is so dense objects fifty feet away cannot be seen.

New York, June 4.—Forest fires are creating havoc on Long Island. The woods on the south side, between Amityville and Eastport, and in the vicinity of Centralslip and Brentwood, to the extent of several thousand acres, have been destroyed.

Dispatches today from places in the northern part of the state report that the forest fires have broken out afresh in the Adirondacks. Smoke and ashes from fires in this and neighboring states was the cause of peculiar atmospheric conditions about this city today. The sun was obscured, although by some heavy mist and a pungent odor of burning wood permeated the air. The haze hung over the river and harbor, somewhat impeding traffic and the trolley and elevated road service was slightly delayed. The same atmospheric conditions prevailed at Utica and other cities in the central part of the state.

Montreal, June 4.—Reports from various parts of the province state that fires are still raging in almost every direction where the country is wooded. The villages of Astor and Forestdale have been completely wiped out. The Grand Trunk railroad is troubled by breaks in the wires and burned railroad ties, near the village of Balstrode, which also has been destroyed. Scores of towns and villages are in danger of destruction, being without means to fight the flames. In the Lake St. John district, half a dozen small settlements have gone up in smoke and many others are in danger.

Mount Holly, N. J., June 4.—Forest fires are burning along the ridgeway branch of the Central railroad of New Jersey, between Lakehurst and Lakewood. The flames are making rapid progress, all attempts to put them out having proved futile.

Boston, June 4.—For the first time in many years the density of the smoke from forest fires produced a pronounced yellow atmosphere here today. The sun was visible, but it had no more power through the smoky pall than on a cloudy day. The smoke was sufficiently dense to cause discomfort to those having sensitive throats and eyes.

It is forty-seven days since rain in any appreciable amount has fallen in this section, and during that time the losses from forest fires in New England have aggregated at least $1,000,000.

MISSISSIPPI IS STILL RISING IN THE VICINITY OF ST. LOUIS

The Extreme Height of the Flood Is Expected Sunday Morning, When a Thirty-Five Foot Stage of Water Is Looked For.

St. Louis, June 4.—During the past twenty-four hours a rise of nine-tenths of a foot has been recorded in the river, and at 9 a. m. the stage registered was 32.1. The extreme height of the flood here will, it is believed, be reached Sunday morning in a stage of 35 feet, which is 5 feet above the danger line.

Railroad tracks along the levee have been submerged and business on the roads using tracks along the levee will be handled over the elevated road until the flood subsides. The passenger service on all roads running to Kansas City, the west and northwest, is still badly crippled.

At Carondelet (South St. Louis), the river is four miles wide, extending on the Illinois side to the Mobile & Ohio tracks, which alone serves as a protection to thousands of acres of farm land. In North St. Louis the stream is three miles wide.

No estimate of the damage done can be given until the water subsides.

Washington, June 4.—The Missouri river at Kansas City has fallen 1.5 feet since Wednesday morning, the gauge this morning reading 32.9 feet. A more rapid decline may be expected from this time forward, as both the Kansas and the Upper Missouri are falling. The rise continues in the Mississippi from Dubuque southward, the gauge at Keokuk reading 19.1 feet, a rise of 0.6 foot since Wednesday morning and 4.1 feet above the danger line. At St Louis the rise has been slightly checked, owing to the spread of overflow water on the east side, the gauge this morning reading 32.1 feet, a rise of 0.9 foot since Wednesday. The rise will continue south of Dubuque and it is still probable that a stage of 35 feet and possibly slightly more may occur by Saturday or Sunday at St. Louis. Stages three or four feet above the danger line will also occur between St. Louis and Cairo. From Cairo southward the danger line stages will not be reached on this rise.

Burlington, Iowa, June 4.—By the breaking of Hunt levee, south of Warsaw, Ill., the lowlands through which the Carthage branch of the Burlington runs, has been flooded and the train service has been cut off. Consequently there are no through trains from Burlington to St. Louis. The only means of getting to St. Louis from here now is via Galesburg. It is reported that the Green Bay bottom levee, south of Burlington, is overflowing hundreds of acres of fine farming land. The river here is eight miles wide. Residents in the bottom north of Burlington are fleeing in boats to find refuge. All the inhabited islands in the river, north and south of here, have been deserted and the stock taken off by steamboats. Both river packet offices here are under water.

MARRIED BY THE SIDE OF COFFIN

Philadelphia, June 4.—Standing by the side of the coffin which held the body of her father, Henry G. Morse, president of the New York Shipbuilding company, Miss Marie Morse has become the bride of Harry A. Horner. The wedding was orinally set for next Saturday. When the sudden death of Mr. Morse, who was stricken with apoplexy on Tuesday afternoon in the office of J. P. Morgan, in New York, was communicated to his family, the announcement was made that the wedding had been indefinitely postponed. Miss Morse reconsidered the matter, however, and, accompanied by a smal group of relatives the bridal couple entered the room where lay the body of Mr. Morse and were married by Rev. Dr. Tompkins.

THE WAITERS STRIKE IN CHICAGO

Chicago, June 4.—Waiters, waitresses and cooks in several downtown restaurants made good their threat to walk out at noon today. One hundred men at Vogel's and nearly that number of Kingsley's struck a half hour before the noon rush began and were quickly followed by the employes of several other prominent eating houses. No attempt was made by the proprietors of the places to serve patrons. The strike was decided upon last night by the joint board of the unions concerned, after having heard reports from every restaurant in the downtown district and finding that only two proprietors had signed their scale.

OUTLOOK FOR COLLEGE GRADUATE

James B. Dill Says That the Trust Movement Opens New Opportunities For Educated.

Minneapolis, June 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The advancement of women to executive positions of trust and responsibility in business and the professions; the increasing demand by corporations for practically trained college men; the impossibility of achieving success through mere influence or "pull;" the impracticability, as well as menace to the public, of any attempt, whether on the part of corporations, financiers or individuals, to obtain "something for nothing," to acquire "unearned wealth;" the dangers which threaten our financial condition from indigestible corporate securities—these were the principal topics treated by James B. Dill, of New York, the well-known corporation lawyer, in the commencement address at the university of Minnesota this afternoon. His subject was, "The Outlook for the College Graduate in America."

He declared that the trust movement, instead of restricting the field for educated men and women, opened for them new opportunities for usefulness. He spoke most hopefully regarding the present outlook for educated men and women, illustrating his points with anecdotes drawn from Wall street experience. Mr. Dill asserted that "a college training is a contributing element to business success. Direction of great enterprises calls for the services of educated men, and a highly trained intelligence is required to cope with the difficulties of meeting competition, solving new problems and resisting attacks of rivals."

Speaking of the tendency to specialize and of specialists, "a man must become a good generalist to become a good specialist, and for this the best preparation is a well-spent college course.

"The corporation movement, instead of crowding men out, has opened for them new fields of usefulness and has increased the financial returns for intelligent, concentrated effort. It has to a large extent eliminated the prestige of mere pull and influence and ended the business career of the dude and the 'Miss Nancy' type. Wide-awake corporation managers know the evils of having too many sons and too many sons-in-law in their employ. For that reason they discriminate against those officially related, in favor of men without means, unencumbered by influence who have their own way to make. From motives of self-interest alone, no corporation can recognize the 'pull basis' of making appointments or promotions."

Speaking of success, he said: "Nothing so severely tests a man's character as success. Preliminary success is often fatal. It is a disastrous misfortune for a $1000 man to secure a

HERRICK NOMINATED FOR GOVERNOR

The Republican State Convention of Ohio Passes Off as Arranged By Senator Hanna.

Columbus, Ohio, June 4.—The auditorium of the convention hall was packed again today when Senator Hanna called the Republican state convention to order shortly after 10 a. m. Prayer was offered by Rev. James Poindexter, pastor of the Colored Baptist church.

The report of the committee on credentials seating the Rouse delegates from Monroe and the Sands delegates from Hocking was adopted.

Before the convention assembled Bothman withdrew for lieutenant governor and promised to present Harding's name, so that there was no contest for any nominations of general interest or importance. This good will of the peacemakers was shown in the early proceedings, especially in the speech of Foraker in complimenting Hanna.

After the report of the committee on permanent organization, Senator Hanna introduced Senator Foraker as the permanent chairman and the latter received a great ovation.

Senator Foraker said: "This is Hanna's year. Yesterday was 'Hanna's day.' Next year is 'Roosevelt's year,'" and then he eulogized the president amid continued cheering. He congratulated the Republicans on being united on the leaders for this year and next year, and most of all on their principles.

There were several wild scenes of demonstration while Senator Foraker was speaking. Senator Foraker caused much amusement in his comparisons with the Democrats who did not know whom they wanted for president, governor, senator or other places, and were still more divergent in their opinions on issues. The report on rules and order of business was then adopted and then the platform was adopted.

The resolutions were amended so as to ask for national as well as state aid for "good roads." Supplemental resolutions were adopted so that the Republican tickets would be printed for the three constitutional amendments for the governor's veto, legal representation to every county and the repeal of the double liability statute.

The name of Myron T. Herrick for governor was presented by Paul Howland, of Cleveland, and the nomination was approved by acclamation. Mr. Herrick was escorted to the hall, where he received a stirring ovation and accepted the nomination as follows:

The action of the county conventions throughout the state within the past few weeks has been to me an index of what your decision might be here today, and I have earnestly sought for some form of expression which would adequately convey to you my grateful appreciation for this most signal honor—for this distinction which has dignified me so far beyond my deserts. And now, at this supreme moment, I stand before you overwhelmed with gratitude and embarrassment, and only the homely words "I thank you," straight from my heart, come to my lips.

It is with increasing embarrassment that I now realize that in such a presence as this, you and your predecessors conferred the same honors upon the illustrious line of Republican nominees for governom, among whom was Chase, Hayes, Foraker and McKinley, who were connected with the greater fame of the nation. I realize as you do, that the administration just closing, of that quiet, unostentatious gentleman who presides in yonder state house, is difficult to equal and is worthy of emulation. If it is permitted me to discharge the duties of the high offices, I shall ask no more distinction than that at the end of the term, I may receive the approbation of my fellow citizens, and to feel that I have at least endeavored to follow the example of my illustrious predecessors.

Now, as for forty years since the beginning of the Republican era in Ohio, the country has looked to her for guidance and example. The Ohio idea has been paramount not only in the councils of the Republican party, but in the nation itself, while the Republican party and its principles have become practically the incarnation of the country. Ohio's work is a fateful work. She is the personification of all lofty ideals of statesmanship and good government. In the past she has spoken through the Republican party as

MERGER OF MICHIGAN CENTRAL AND THE CANADIAN SOUTHERN

The Combine Is Effected By Means of a Ninety-Nine Years Lease of the Canadian Road to the Michigan Corporation.

New York, June 4.—According to the Herald, a complete merger of the Canada Southern railroad with the Michigan Central was effected yesterday at the special stockholders meeting held in St. Thomas, Ont. It is said to have been effected by a lease of the Southern to the Central for ninety-nine years.

There was some opposition on the part of minority stockholders, but the Vanderbilt interests were able to control about two-thirds of the stock.

The new lease succeeds a former one which expires Dec. 31. Its life was twenty-one years and provided for the operation of the company's lines in connection with the Michigan Central, the gross earnings of the whole system to be applied first to the payment of the operating expenses and fixed charges of both companies, and the net surplus to be then divided in the proportion of two-thirds to the Michigan Central and one-third to the Canada Southern.

Under the new lease the Michigan Central, it is stated, will guarantee 2½ per cent on Canada Southern stock until 1910 and 3 per cent after that date.

Directors of the Canada Southern will be vested with the the power to issue bonds to retire first and second mortgage bonds maturing in 1908 and 1913.

RUSSIA TELLS CHINA THAT SHE EXPECTS WAR WITH JAPAN

Gives This as a Reason For the Great Increase of Troops In Manchuria Which Would Be the Natural Battle Ground.

Victoria, B. C., June 4.—The steamer Rio Jun Maru, which has arrived from the Orient, brings additional news regarding the crisis in Manchuria. The North China Daily News tells of the adoption of Russian tactics by Japan, which power is gathering forces in Korea in the guise of settlers. On the general situation in Manchuria the North China Daily News says:

"Reliable news has been received by local mandarines of the great increase of Russian soldiers in Manchuria. Port Arthur is one succession of large camps, bristling with field artillery and armed men. Russians state in answer to Chinese questions that they expect war with Japan, whose troops would most likely try to enter Manchuria through the western coast of Liao Tung. Russian officers friendly with Chinese have earnestly advised them to return with their families to China and not come back until after the war, on the ground that the whole of Liao Tung and Southern Manchuria will soon be a great battlefield.

L. Clementi, the agent investigating the Kwang Si famine, has reported that 150,000 persons are utterly destitute. He says he witnessed a public sale at Kwai Shun where people were sold for food, even sons, daughters and wives. It is estimated that 10,000 children have been sold.

WHOLE FAMILY WAS ANNIHILATED

McCook, Neb., June 4.—Meager details of the annihilation of almost a whole family have been received from St. Francis, Kans. It seems that for some time there has been bad feelings between men employed by the Dewar Cattle company and a family named Berry over the possession certain land. Berry and his four sons are said to have engaged in a battle with cowboys, which resulted in the death of the father and three of the sons, the fourth being seriously wounded. Whether any one on the opposite side was killed or wounded, has not been learned.

TEN YEARS FOR LYNCHING A NEGRO

Carthage, Mo., June 4.—Samuel Mitchell (white), who led the mob that lynched Thomas Gilyard, a negro, at Joplin, recently, was today sentenced to ten years imprisonment in the penitentiary. Gilyard had killed a policeman who was trying to arrest him. Mitchell was charged with climbing the telegraph pole and adjusting the rope with which Gilyard was hanged. Ed Field and John Barnes are yet to be tried for their part in the burning of negro houses, following the lynching.

A Beautiful Young Society Woman's Letter.

ST. PAUL, MINN.
521 Wabasha St.

Dr. Hartman, Columbus, O.,
Dear Sir:

"I took Peruna last summer when I was all run down, and had a headache and backache, and no ambition for anything. I now feel as well as I ever did in all my life, and all thanks is due to your excellent Peruna."—Bess F. Healy.

The symptoms of summer catarrh are quite unlike in different cases, but the most common ones are general lassitude, played-out, tired-out, used-up, run-down feelings, combined with more or less heavy, stupid, listless, mental condition. Relish for food and the ability to digest food seems to be lost.

Skin eruptions, sallow complexion, biliousness, coated tongue, fitful, irregular sleep, help to complete the picture which is so common at this season.

Peruna so exactly meets all these conditions that the demand is so great for this remedy at this season of the year that it is nearly impossible to supply it.

If you do not receive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

FAMINE IS FEARED

Shortage of Strawberries Is Threatened For This City.

Supposed That Floods Are Holding Up Southwestern Shipments.

Unless Illinois strawberries come to the rescue at a reasonable figure in a few hours, there is going to be a strawberry famine in Duluth.

The Arkansas and Southern berries, which made up the bulk of the strawberry diet for Duluth in the past two or three weeks, cannot be located, and the supply here is diminished to an alarming degree.

The railroad offices were piled with questions this morning regarding shipments of berries from Kansas City way, but the local offices could not locate them.

It is supposed that the delays are occurring in the flooded district of Kansas, Arkansas and Missouri and that the car loads of the delectable fruit are not being delivered to roads running into Duluth on time.

It is feared that they may not get here at all, the railroad men say, and such a clamity would befall Duluth, that the sodafountain fiends and the strawberry-and-cream-for-breakfast maniac will perish from starvation.

The berries that are grown in Illinois are said to be backward this year, and are at a high figure now, with but few moving to this part of the country. Unless the crop there and in Indiana is roused in a very small space of time, this section of the country stands a good chance of being strawberryless for the next two or three weeks.

ASTOR CONTRIBUTES.

New York, June 4.—A subscription of $1000 from William Waldorf Astor in London toward the erection of a statue of William the Silent, by the Holland Society of New York, has been received by the committee in charge of the movement. The statue, which will cost $40,000, is to be erected in Riverside drive.

FORESTERS OF AMERICA.

Des Moines, Iowa, June 4.—The Minnesota grand court, Foresters of America, yesterday rejected both pending proposals, one to change the name to "Iowa court," the other to increase the salaries of officers. The following officers were selected: Grand chief ranger, John Wilson, Oskaloosa, Iowa; subordinate grand chief ranger, H. Kuehnow, Des Moines; grand treasurer, D. Cooney, Minneapolis; financial secretary, F. Ellerin, Cedar Rapids, Iowa; recording secretary, J. D. Kisler, Boone, Iowa; senior wood warden, H. C. Icht, Minneapolis; junior wood warden, H. H. Watson, Frazier, Iowa.

TO JOIN IN WORK

Favorable Report From Ministers on Federated Tent Meetings.

Will Delay Religious Census and Sunday School Canvass.

The committee of nine from the Duluth Ministerial association, appointed to discuss the idea of a federation on religious and reform activities among the evangelistic churches of Duluth, met last night with Dr. T. H. Cleland in his study, and while the members of the committee stated that no report would be made until the association meets to hear it Monday, it is understood that the idea was approved, and that the report will be favorable.

Part of the plans in hand, however, will be put over until September, with the idea that the summer is a bad time to start anything but the tent evangelistic campaign.

The idea of a religious census, similar to the one taken here a number of years ago, was also looked upon with favor, but it was thought that the summer would be a poor time to take up this movement, as many people would be away on their vacations and the census would therefore be more or less incomplete.

The same action, or lack of action, was taken on the Sunday school movement. This embodies a house to house canvas to see what children are attending Sunday school, and to endeavor to secure the attendance of those that are not in the habit of going. This will doubtless be taken up in connection with the religious census.

The plan of having a summer campaign of an evangelistic nature in tents, however, met with warm approval, and it will be taken up and carried out with vigor. The work will be in charge of the Bethel, as the agent for the Duluth churches, and Rev. W. E. Spoonts, who has charge of the religious work for the Bethel, will superintend the movement. The Bethel has two large tents that can be used for this purpose, and they will be erected in convenient locations in various parts of the city. Nightly meetings will be held, at which the pastors of the different churches will speak and arrangements will be made for having music. The converts that are secured as the result of these meetings will be turned over to the churches for which they express a preference.

The campaign will be the most vigorous one ever carried on in the city. It will have the full sanction and hearty support of all the churches of the city, and those who have projected it expect good results to follow.

The committee will report to the ministerial association at the special meeting called for the purpose of hearing it next Monday morning in the Y. M. C. A. building, and at that time full details will be arranged.

she will speak this year. The country waits our decision, and by the adoption of our resolutions the word goes out that we still believe in calmness and conservative action. We favor the extreme in nothing. We are for no fads or isms no matter whence they come or by whom they are championed. Republican nonsense is as dangerous to the body politics as any other kind. Untried and untested theories of government conduct should find no place in our category of principles. The sails of the Republican party in this state have never been trimmed to catch the passing breeze, and it has never floated a doubtful flag.

Let us, therefore, continue to steer a middle course and retain our position as the settling ground between the sections, a clearing house of issues, an arbiter between the East and the West.

Warren G. Harding, editor of the Marion Star, was nominated for the second place with as much unanimity as Herrick for governor. He accepted in a stirring speech. Nominations by acclamation were stopped and the fight on so-called "third termers" began when W. A. Irwin presented the name of Col. Melville M. Gillette, of Newark, for autdlor of state, and Congressman Robert M. Nevin presented the name of Walter D. Guilbert, of Caldwell, for renomination and the delays of balloting followed.

The largest counties all voted solidly for Auditor Guilbert, who has held the office eight years as deputy and eight as auditor, and was renominated for another term of four years. The nomination was not made unanimous.

For state treasurer, W. S. McKinnon, of Ashtabula, was nominated.

For attorney general, Wade Hampton Ellis was nominated.

GAME DOES NOT COME OFF

High School Baseball Game Postponed—Name Too Fierce.

The terrible name of "Ponsjassamorum" proved too much for the nerves of the baseball men of the high school junior class and the ball game which was scheduled to come off between the team of that class and a combination of players from the Sophomore and Freshmen classes will not occur this afternoon.

This dreadful combination of letters which has caused all the trouble, meant, in the musical jingle of the ancient Romans, a "bridge of asses" or some such astounding affair. At least it was an impassible obstacle.

After long study it was adopted as the name of the picked team from the lower classes and it seems to have done its work so well that it will be unnecessary for the game to be played.

The Ponsjassamorums declared that they would have their team on the field this afternoon at the time mentioned and they would be ready and anxious to play the game.

The juniors plead for more time, on the ground that their men are not in condition. It does no good.

"They challenged us," said one of the asses from which the wonderful bridge is made, and now they are not going to play. We will have our team on the grounds when the appointed time comes and if they do not appear it only shows their yellow streak.

"They're afraid of our name. They forfeit the game by non appearance and we will be the unquestioned masters of the situation."

Considerable interest had been aroused in the game which was to be played and if the deadly cognomen does its work as effectually as it promises to there will be much disappointment among the students.

COMPROMISE MADE.

San Francisco, June 4.—A. P. Morrison, a wealthy mining man of New York, today entered into a compromise with M. J. Smith, D. L. Jackson and W. C. ARE GOING DOWN

Trout Streams Are Falling and Anglers Are Hopeful.

Good Catches Are Being Made on Near By Streams.

Three days of warm, dry weather have made the world look bright for anglers once more. For the first time in many days the trout streams have had a chance to run down without being filled up again from overflowing clouds just as they began to get down to a respectable level.

The streams are not yet down to the usual summer level, but that is not to be expected. They are down far enough so there is no reason why fish should not be caught if there is any to be had, and the men of the rod are beginning to take an interest in life again.

County Commissioner E. M. Patterson and a companion were out at Sucker river yesterday. The legal limit of fish that may be caught in one day is fifty. Each of them caught fifty trout, by a remarkable coincidence. That is no sign everybody can do that well in Sucker river, however, for Mr. Patterson is a fisherman from away back and can catch fish in a muskeg.

Trout appear to be more plentiful than ever in all of the nearby streams this year, now that the waters have gone down so that they can be located and interested in bait. During the high water all sorts of food was washed into the streams, and the fish were kept so well supplied with nice bugs and worms and things that they did not seem anxious about the kind that came on hooks. Now, however, that supply has given out and they will negotiate for the kind of bait that fishermen provide for them.

L. W. Johnson, the expert in charge of the United States fish commission's car, which has been here for over two months, states that when he was out at Lester river a few days ago he saw a number of trout trying to make the falls, near the bridge. He stood watching for a few minutes, and an average of one large trout a minute shot up against the swiftly dropping water of the falls. Some of them succeeded in making the ascent, while others had to give it up.

Cloquet river is getting a large number of visitors these days, and some good catches of pike have been made. Fishing is good there, except when manipulation of the dam and the logs above it interfere for a short period. When the dam is opened and a flood of water and logs comes down, fishing is over until the water goes down again.

A number of Duluth fishermen have been to Holyoke lately, and with good success. Knife river, on the upper reaches, is always good fishing, and this year is no exception.

But few fishermen have yet visited the farther north shore streams, the Brule, Flutereed and Reservation rivers owing to the high water and bad weather. They are always to be depended upon for good fishing, and those that have been fortunate enough to strike good weather and low water this spring have had good success.

The immense quantities of water that have fallen this spring have made the woods, swamps and streams great breeding places for mosquitoes, and they will be extraordinarily plentiful, hungry and vicious in a short time. That will put a damper on trout fishing until along in later July, when their time is over and fishermen can indulge in their sport with a fair degree of comfort.

Wants an Expression.

Broadly patriotic and thoroughly nonpartisan efforts are being made to erect a suitable memorial to Thomas Jefferson, author of the Declaration of Independence, and Duluth has been invited to participate in the move.

Mayor Hugo today received a communication from the Thomas Jefferson Memorial association with headquarters in Washington urging him to secure an expression of Duluth sentiment in regard to the proposed memorial and all the citizens that the mayor broached the subject to seemed heartily in accord with the plans.

AT WEST DULUTH

There is a West Duluth business man who has a very low opinion of the abilities of the Northern league pitchers and of the hitting abilities of the Duluth team. He comes to the front with an offer to wager $5 that there is not a pitcher in the Northern league that can strike him out.

The money looked easy to several West Duluth fans and his offer was taken up in spite of the fact that he is an old-time player of considerable prowess. Arrangements are being made to hold the test previous to the game on Saturday afternoon, if permission can be secured from the management. The pitcher has not yet been selected. The same rules are to apply to the contest that are used in the regular games, and the conditions require that he make a clean, safe hit.

"The members of the Duluth team couldnt' hit Lake Superior with a paddle," said the gentleman today, previous to making the wager.

The wager is causing no little interest among the fans in West Duluth, and should the affair be pulled off a large delegation from West Duluth will attend.

IRVING SCHOOL ALUMNI.

The tenth annual banquet of the alumni of the Irving school will be held tomorrow evening in the Assembly hall of the school building. Elaborate preparations have been made for the affair, and it promises to be one of the most successful in the history of the society. None but members of the alumni are allowed to be present.

The Alumni association now has about 500 members, a large percentage of whom are expected to attend the banquet.

The banquet will be preceded by the election of the officers of the society for the coming year, and after the feast the floor will be cleared for dancing. A program of music, recitations and toasts will be given during the course of the evening.

The committee which has charge of the arrangements has been hard at work for the past month and reports everything in readiness. The following are the names of those who compose the committee: Misses Gertrude Mallory, Marie Tims, Lottie Mallory; Messrs. R. Graham, Saben Forbes and E. G. Kreidler.

A CLOSE CALL.

Fred Field, an employe of one of the mills in West Duluth, had a narrow escape from drowning yesterday while engaged in picking up driftwood on the bay front. He was poling a crude raft along when the pole snapped and he was thrown into the water.

He is a good swimmer, but a pair of heavy rubber boots weighted him down, and he was in imminent danger of drowning when his cries were heard by some men on the shore and he was rescued from his perilous position. With the exception of a bad chill he is none the worse for his immersion.

GYPSIES TELL FORTUNES.

A roving band of gypsies visited West Duluth today and succeeded in relieving a number of well-known citizens of their money in return for a short sketch of the history and future life of the donators.

One gentleman was separated from $1.50 and received in return a promise that some day he would become wealthy, but that the money would leave him quickly. Others who paid less got a less hopeful picture of their future, one being told that he would meet an early and painful death. He only took 30 cents' worth.

B. Canute, of Cloquet, is in the city today on a short business trip.

Miss Margaret Zeth and Michael Canning were united in marriage by Rev. Father Peehely of the St. James' Catholic church. The ceremony was performed in the church and a large number of the friends of the young couple witnessed the ceremony.

MEET POLICE DISPLEASURE

Gypsies Who Tell Fortunes About the Streets Are Gathered In.

A heavy of dark-eyed, swarthy loveliness from the tropics of South America violently disturbed the serene, soft-rippling routine at the central police station today.

They fairly glowed in gowns of phantasmic black, yellow and red, and spoke in about the most outlandish razzle-dazzling tongue that an ordinary policeman ever tried to understand.

They were gypsies from an encampment in the western part of the city, and all hastened along Superior street, going into saloons, stores and offices seeking to tell fortunes until corralled by Chief Troyer and Detective Irvine.

One of the prisoners was a fascinating graceful girl of 18—she was the premiere dansuese of the band, also the premiere goo-goo-eyelst and flirtist extraordinary. When locked up she smiled out through the cell in a way that threatened to set the iron bars on fire, while her companions said their prayers and thrilled fierce monologue in an unknown language.

The queen of the band was a big woman, superlatively portly and superbly tropical. She flew into a fit of sumptuous fury when first locked up, but soon quited down and said her prayers with the rest.

After keeping them in jail for an hour or more, during which time strenuous but ineffectual efforts were made to get their names, Chief Troyer informed the women they could go if they would leave Duluth, to which they clamorously assented, the premier dansesue-goo-goo-eyelst making motions to the effect that they could choke her if they ever get her in there again.

BURNHAM-WESTERMAN.

Young Duluth Artist Weds a New York Man.

Word has been received in Duluth of the marriage of Miss Burnham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. U. A. Burnham, of Duluth, to Louis Westerman, of New York. The wedding occurred Saturday, May 23 at the Madison Avenue Baptist church, and the service was read by Rev. Dr. Lorimer. Mrs. Westerman is well known in Duluth, and has won an enviable place for herself in the world of art. Mr. Westerman is manager of a branch of the Barnes-Crosby Engraving company, and they will live in New York. Mrs. Westerman is expected in Duluth for a short visit this summer.

WIN PROMOTIONS.

Results of the recent municipal civil service examination for permanent positions in the city's classified service were announced today. Lieut. John Twaddle won a promotion to captain in the fire department, and Firemen Arthur Ebner and E. J. Oakes won promotions to the position of lieutenant in the same department.

Candidates for positions of pipemen or truckmen in the fire department were successful as follows: Harold England, Joseph Galez, Samuel Beaton, John Kelly and Ewald Mueller.

For the position of driver in the fire department M. Glover, D. R. Howe and Arthur Carter were successful candidates.

Only one man was accepted among the candidates for mounted officers of the police department. D. V. Reese won the appointment.

Goes After Bargains.

John Panton, of the Panton & White company, left for Chicago today on the Omaha in response to telegrams announcing a number of important sacrifice sales of seasonable merchandise. If the sales are as sensational as the telegrams intimated, Duluthians may look for some extraordinary offerings as a result of Mr. Panton's trip.

AMONG THE ROADS

Northern Pacific Will Make Larger Improvements at Ashland.

Twin City Commercial Travelers Have Chartered a Special Train.

The Northern Pacific Railroad company will make extensive improvements at Ashland, Wis., at once.

The company will build a large freight station and warehouse, about as large as the present one in Duluth. Yard enlargements will also be made. It is said on good authority.

For some years the Northern Pacific road has had a traffic arrangement with the Northwestern road, whereby it secured the use of its freight house at Ashland.

Within the past few months, however, the Northern Pacific has been making improvements in its service to Ashland, and it purchased the "Battle-axe," the road running from Iron River to Washburn, giving a more extensive service and a relief to the people up that way.

Some weeks ago a party of Northern Pacific operating officials visited Ashland and while there looked over the situation and business, concluding that the business of the place had grown to such an extent that it would justify the building of a new freight station, to be maintained separately and by itself.

The Northern Pacific and the Omaha roads are competing lines for Ashland business out of Duluth and St. Paul, and that may have had some bearing on the decision of the railroad.

CHARTER A TRAIN.

Twin City Travelers Coming In Force.

A couple of hundred members of the United Commercial Travelers, part from Minneapolis and part from St. Paul, lived up to their name and united to secure a special train to come to Duluth in, over the Great Northern railway, yesterday.

Word to that effect was received at the local office of the Great Northern this morning, and it is expected that the train will carry three or four hundred visitors to the convention which is to be held here the latter part of next week.

The members of the United Commercial Travelers' lodges at Winnipeg, Grand Forks, Fargo, and Crookston are making arrangements to hire a special train over the Great Northern, also, and pick up the members from those cities and intermediate points to bring them to the Duluth gathering.

The lodges will probably secure a big special train, and at Benidji the citizens are making arrangements to hold up the train and give a banquet to the traveling men at that city.

AN AGENT NAMED.

Northern Pacific Appoints One at Twentieth Avenue.

Word was received in Duluth this morning that the officials of the Northern Pacific railroad at St. Paul had appointed an agent for the Twentieth avenue station.

The name of the appointee was not given, but will be announced in a day or two through the regular channels.

The announcement means that the Northern Pacific means to comply at once and fully with the decision of last week and open the Twentieth avenue station in good faith and for good.

ANOTHER DRILL IN.

Minnesota Iron Company Has Two on Hyde Forty.

The Minnesota Iron company has begun operating a second drill on the Hyde forty in section 30, and it is said the first drill has been in ore for several days. The drills are set to the north, just south of the boundary line of the Section Thirty company's lot 6, and the second one has been working but a few days.

There are five drills at work on the Section Thirty company's property, and Superintendent Davies, of the company, who has charge of all explorations, is on the ground looking into the details of the work. He has been there a week and will probably remain that much longer.

ADVERTISING THE CARNIVAL

More Matter Arrives to Spread Fame of Big Show.

The Duluth Fair and Carnival company received today a large consignment of the advertising matter in the way of colored posters, which will in the next few weeks be spread over the Northwest to advertise the coming event in this city, July 6 to 11, inclusive. The members of the local amusement company are all well-known business men, and whose names are given as a guarantee that the big carnival will be conducted strictly on a business basis and in a first-class manner. Assurance is being given to all prospective visitors here during the carnival week that no improper characters will be admitted, nor improper shows permitted, that it will be a carnival for the people.

Ferari Bros.' Great London Carnival company will have charge of all the amusements and the features are to be of the best procurable. The shows will include over 200 performers. Arrangements are now complete to turn six nights into days, and to accomplish this the carnival company will have over 100 incandescent and over 100 arc lights.

One of the strongest arguments that is being made for the street fairs and carnivals now so popular over the country is that they kill "two birds with one stone;" that they not only advertise a city by advertising it and giving an impetus to its trade, but the profits may be utilized for the promotion of some worthy object. The Elks and other secret organizations have made a great deal out of these festivities, which they applied to the building and furnishing homes, or to some worthy charity. It is said that there is no more practical or better way of pulling a worthy institution out of debt, or of creating a fund for public good than by the giving of a fair or carnival.

A Substitute For Rubber.

After experimenting for several years, a substitute for rubber has been perfected. It is produced, principally, from asphalt, and can be used in the manufacture of rubber goods, linoleum, etc. A substitute of this kind will probably answer as well as the genuine article, but in medicine it has been proven, time and time again, that all substitutes are dangerous. Therefore, beware of them when purchasing Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the celebrated family medicine for stomach, liver and kidney ills, by noticing that our private stamp over the neck of the bottle is unbroken. The Bitters positively cures nausea, headache, dizziness, dyspepsia, indigestion, constipation, nervousness and general weakness. Be sure to give it a trial. For sale by all druggists and general dealers.

SHERIFF INSISTS

That He Should Summon Jett-White Jury.

Jackson, Ky., June 4.—At the opening of court this morning, Sheriff Ed Callahan insisted on his right to act and summon the jury to try Jett and White, alleged murderers of James Marcum. Callahan is Jett's uncle, and is a close personal friend of White. The court took a recess to enable the prosecution to prepare a motion for Callahan's removal.

A MILLION STARVING.

Washington, June 4.—Secretary Hay has received a cable from Consul McWade, at Canton, which says: "Governor Wong telegraphs me that over 1,000,000 natives in Kwang Si are starving, and earnestly appeals for help from American charity. All relief distribution through the hands of American and British missionaries."

INJURIES MANY

Steel Trust Baseball Teams Have to Suspend Practice.

So Many Were Hurt That Team was in Danger.

BULLETINS.

9 a. m.—L. A. Noll reported unfit for duty as ball player or at superintendent's office. D., M & N. Ankle sprained.

9:15 a. m.—Forty-one employes in Wolvin building desire to be excused for day on account of muscular soreness.

9:16 a. m.—All said desires are frustrated.

9:17 a. m.—Capt. J. L. Norman, of Oliver nine, hasn't shown up.

10:22 a. m.—Manager W. G. Taylor, of Missabe team, announces that no more practice will be allowed, as if casualties keep up at present ratio there will be no team by Saturday.

10:24 a. m.—Umpire L. W. Powell appears in new spring suit.

11:05 a. m.—Saturday's game claimed by Managers Norman and Taylor by large scores.

Manager W. G. Taylor of the Missabe baseball nine, which plays at the old Driving park Saturday afternoon with the Oliver Iron Mining company's team, has issued an order suspending all practice.

Four men have been laid up, and last night one of the best players, L. A. Noll, of the superintendent's office, hurt his ankle and won't be able to play. Mr. Taylor thinks two more practice games would completely wipe out the team.

The game will be arranged to take pace early Saturday afternoon and the members of the team will go over and see the Grand Forks and Duluth game at 4 o'clock.

Manager Norman made no report on his team today, and it is alleged by the members of the Missabe team that secret practice is being held by the opposition, and rumors of spies having watched the Missabe team at work last evening were flying through the Wolvin building this morning.

The team managers have prepared lists of honorary players, similar to the list of honorary pallbearers at the funeral of a prominent citizen. The honorary players for the mining company will be Dr. N. P. Hulst, T. F. Cole, W. M. Jeffrey, Charles Schwab and many others whose names are too numerous to mention.

It was intended to send the original challenge to Mr. Jeffrey, but he evaded service and Manager Norman received it.

The honorary railroad players will be: F. E. House, Fred H. White, W. A. McGonagle, A. B. Wolvin, John Wolvin and others.

W. J. Olcott will be an honorary member of both teams, the question of which side he belonged to, being general manager of the mining company and president of the railroad company, being unsettled.

Arrangements are being made to entertain a large crowd at the driving park, and the members of the team say it will be one of the social events of the season.

Betting in the barber shop of the Wolvin building is on majorities, rather than on the winning team. One bet was posted today of 1 to 4 that the Oliver team would have seventy-two more runs than their opponents.

Manager Taylor made a very candid admission this morning regarding the material in his team. He said, with a shake of his head:

"They play about the dummest ball I ever saw."

TAKES THE CASE FROM THE JURY

Mrs. Mary Campbell Cannot Recover From the A. O. U. W.

Judge Dibell, this morning, in the case of Mary Campbell against the grand lodge of the A. O. U. W., directed the jury to return a verdict for the defendant fraternal organization. The action was brought by the plaintiff to recover $1000, which was alleged to be due her as beneficiary of a life insurance policy issued by the defendant to John M. Campbell, who was drowned at Isle Royale last October.

The defendant refused to pay the death claim on the ground that the decedent was not a member, that he was suspended for non-payment of assessments some time before his death.

The court granted the motion of the defendant for a verdict in its favor on ground that Campbell had been delinquent in the matter of certain assessments, after he had sufficient notice, and that under the rules and by-laws of the fraternal organization—he stood suspended and not entitled to any rights of membership. On motion of the plaintiff the court granted a stay of forty days.

Martin Moore, of the Minneapolis "big mitt" gang, is now on trial in Judge Dibell's room on the charge of swindling. Moore is defended by John Brown. Five jurors were secured this morning and it is expected that a full jury will be obtained late this afternoon. Some of those called to be examined for jurors in the Moore case were excused on the ground of bias, they claiming to have read accounts of the conviction of Charles Howard, a partner of the defendant and who was indicted on the same charge as Moore by the last grand jury.

Arguments to the jury were made this morning in the action of Annie J. Prescott against Louisa Johnson and the jury retired to deliberate this afternoon. In this case the plaintiff seeks to recover an alleged share in the estate left by the mother of the parties.

Judge Elsign is holding court at Two Harbors until the last of this week and no trials are in progress in his room in district court.

ILLINOIS' GUEST

President Visits Various Cities of the Sucker State.

Delivered a Touching Eulogy On Lincoln at Springfield.

Springfield, Ill., June 4.—President Roosevelt spent four hours in Springfield today, during which time he dedicated the new state arsenal and armory erected at a cost of $150,000 on ground north of the state capitol, costing $50,000, donated by the citizens of Springfield, and addressed the Lincoln-McKinley Veteran Voters' association of the United States at the national Lincoln monument.

The weather was cloudy and warm, but no rain fell. The president's special train arrived on the Chicago & Alton road at 10:15 o'clock and was greeted with a presidential salute of twenty-one guns by Battery A of Danville, stationed at the Lincon monument. From the railroad station to the arsenal the president passed through lines of cheering people by Governor Yates, state, federal, county and city officials and a reception committee, also Governor Yates' military staff, Troops D of Springfield and G of Peoria, the First cavalry and the Fifth infantry, Illinois National Guard. On each side of Capitol avenue, between Sixth street and the state house, were massed 5000 school children, who waved flags as the procession passed.

At the arsenal the military escort was abandoned and the carriages drove rapidly to the national Lincoln monument, where the president addressed the national Lincoln-McKinley Veteran Voters' association, assembled there for their annual memorial exercises. The president said:

"It is a very great pleasure for me to see you today—you, the veterans in a double sense, you who represent the navy, the Union and the army and all else to which Americans should, without regard to any minor differences, be one in their allegiance.

"Let me say one word, it seems to me eminently fitting that the guard around the tomb of Lincoln should be composed of colored soldiers. It was my own good fortune at Santiago to serve beside colored troops. A man who is good enough to shed his blood for his country is good enough to be given a square deal afterward. More than that no man is entitled to and less than that no man shall have."

The president's party then drove back to the arsenal, where dedication exercises took place and where about 10,000 persons were assembled in the great hall.

Secretary of State Rose called the assemblage to order and introduced Governor Yates as chairman of the day. Governor Yates paid a tribute to President Roosevelt as a soldier, police commissioner, governor and president, and introduced Senator Cullom, who received a great ovation. Senator Cullom referred to Mr. Roosevelt as the present president and one whom he did not know how many times might be hereafter president, and proposed three cheers for the president, which were given standing.

President Roosevelt received a hearty ovation on being introduced. He spoke for twenty-five minutes. In part he said:

"Senator Cullom, Governor Yates and you, my fellow-Americans, women and children of this great state: It is a deep pleasure for me to have the chance of speaking to you today, and above all to speak to you here in Lincoln's home, after having driven out to see Lincoln's tomb, and after driving out in company with the man who accompanied the body of the great martyred president on its last journey to its last resting place, your senior senator, Senator Cullom. I have met in Illinois many men who knew Lincoln personally, and at every place that I have stopped I have seen men who fought in the army which Lincoln called to arms. All of us now pay our tributes to the greatness that is achieved; all of us now, looking back over the past forty years, can see the figure of Lincoln, sad, kindly, patient Lincoln, and it comes above his contemporaries, as it will loom ever larger through the centuries to come.

"It is a good thing for us, by speech, to pay homage to the memory of Abraham Lincoln, but it is infinitely better thing for us in our lives to pay homage to his memory in the only way in which that homage can be effectively paid, by seeing to it that this republic's life, social and political, civic and industrial, is shaped now in acord with ideals which Lincoln preached and which all his life long he practiced. The greatness of our forefathers must serve not as an excuse for failing to do our duties in return, but as a spur to make us feel that we are doubly recreant to them as well as to ourselves if we fail to rise level with the standards they set. To the men of Lincoln's generation the supreme gift was given of being true to themselves in a great national crisis. Theirs was not the life of ease, the life iof comfort. For their good fortune they were given a duty hard to perform, but supremely well worth performing."

The remainder of the speech was devoted to an appeal for good government. At the conclusion of the president's speech, luncheon was served at the executive mansion to the presidential party and the chairmen of the various local committees, after which he received the local reception committee and the Hamilton club, of Chicago, which had come down in a body.

At the conclusion of the reception the president's party was escorted by troops to the Wabash station, where, at 2 o'clock this afternoon, he left on his special for Decatur.

COLUMBIA STUDENTS

Will Accompany the Cook Expedition to Alaska.

New York, June 4.—Ralph Lewis Shainwold, Jr., a senior student at Columbia university, and Robert Dunn, a garluate of Harvard, who has been taking a post graduate course in geology at Columbia, started yesterday for Seattle, Wash., where they will join Dr. Frederick A. Cook, the Arctic explorer, in an expedition to Alaska, under the auspices of the Arctic club. One of the objects of the expedition is to surmount Mount McKinley, the highest peak in America. The two students have taken a large Columbian flag, which they hope to leave at the highest point in America before the summer is over. Dr. Cook is at Seattle gathering the outfit for the expedition. The Columbia men will be his sole American companions.

THE BANKERS OF CHICAGO

Want to Make Government Member of Clearing House.

Chicago, June 4.—The Tribune today says: The bankers of Chicago will meet tomorrow to take action on a plan for the admission of the United States government as a member of the Chicago clearing house. It is almost certain that an arrangement will be concluded similar to the deal between Secretary of the Treasury John Sherman and the associated banks of New York in 1878, whereby the sub-treasury in New York became a kind of business partner of the great banks of that city. Secretary of the Treasury Shaw reached Chicago yesterday and was in conference for a long time with J. B. Forgan, chairman of the executive committee of the Chicago clearing house. Late in the afternoon Mr. Forgan issued a call to all the members of the clearing house for a meeting tomorrow afternoon at which it is expected Secretary Shaw will be present. One of the results of the government becoming a member of the Chicago clearing house would be that hereafter the banks in the West in settlement of constantly fluctuating accounts with the government would buy exchange on Chicago rather than New York.

The scheme will also lessen the necessity of a small army of clerks under heavy guard every day escorting bags of coin and rolls of bills between the various banks and the subtreasury.

The Beginning of Trouble.

A disordered stomach may cause no end of trouble. When the stomach fails to perform its functions the bowels become deranged and the liver and kidneys congested, causing numerous diseases, the most fatal of which are painless, therefore the more to be dreaded. The important thing is to restore the stomach and liver to a healthy condition, and for this purpose no better preparation can be used than Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. For sale by all druggists.

WESLEY'S DAY

Big Celebration of Bi-Centennial of His Birth Arranged For.

Special Services Sunday, June 14, and Mass Meeting Monday Evening.

The members of the Methodist Episcopal church of this city are preparing for a celebration of the bi-centennial of the birth of John Wesley, which will be held Sunday and Monday, June 14 and 15. A number of exceptionally brilliant talkers will be here, and as the eleven Methodist churches of the city will all join in the services at the First Methodist church, it is expected that the attendance will be large.

John Wesley, the founder of Methodism, was born June 28, 1703, nearly 200 years ago, and the bi-centennial anniversary will be celebrated all over the world, wherever Methodism has penetrated. That includes all of the civilized world and a large portion of the uncivilized areas.

Dr. Samuel P. Long, pastor of the First Methodist church, has been preparing the way for the celebration by a series of sermons under the head "In the Steps of the Mighty," in which he has taken up some of the epoch makers in church history, such as St. Augustine and Francis d'Assizi, the founder of the great Catholic Order of Franciscans. Next Sunday he closes the series with "Martin Luther and the Reformation."

Sunday, June 14, the services in the First Methodist church, both morning and evening, will partake of the spirit of the celebration. In the morning the sermon will be by Rev. Robert Forbes, D. D., the former presiding elder of the Duluth district. In the evening the sermon will be by Rev. Samuel F. Upham, D. D., LL.D., of Drew theological seminary, of Madison, N. J., a noted and eloquent preacher.

Monday evening, June 15, there will be a mass meeting in the First Methodist church, over which Watson S. Moore will preside. There will be addresses by Governor Samuel R. Van Sant, Bishop Isaac W. Joyce, D. D., LL.D., of Minneapolis; Dr. Robert Forbes, Dr. S. F. Upham and Rev. E. C. Clemans, the new presiding elder of the Duluth district, who will then have his first introduction to Duluth. There will be a special program of music.

All of the Methodist churches of the city will be represented at the two evening services, and most of the other Methodist churches of the city will hold no services Sunday evening. There are eleven Methodist churches in Duluth, seven English speaking, two Scandinavian, one German and one colored. The various ministers will be given parts in the celebration.

CO-EDS LIVE HIGH.

Northwestern Faculty Has Decided to Call Halt.

Chicago, June 4.—Too fast a pace followed by co-eds and young men at Northwestern University and a social whirl that is too giddy to be compatible with the stated principles of the Methodist institution of learning are undermining the students' morals, in the judgment of the faculty, and a damper is to be placed upon gayety.

Information brought to the faculty yesterday that seven co-eds were deeply indebted to liverymen of Evanston for cabs and carriages, and that legal action had been threatened by the creditors, shocked the professors, who immediately instituted an investigation. The young women, whose names were kept secret, were found to be in arrears for expenses entailed at college dances and parties. A round of such entertainments, which have averaged five and six weekly during the past winter and spring season, have drained student resources to the bottom, it was learned, and caused many a young woman at Northwestern to become financially embarrassed.

In addition to the financial difficulties of the young women, it was discovered that many young men of the school had fallen into a similar predicament, and were owing large bills to caterers, tailors and liverymen. Room rent had also, in some cases, remained unpaid, that dress suits and flowers might not be wanting to maintain a place in the college social swim.

Aghast at the time and money devoted to pleasure the co-eds and young men professors in the institution have determined to call a halt. Professor V. E. Young, chairman of the social committee of the faculty, is at the head of the movement, and will probably advocate the curtailment of dances and balls that have been given in such profusion heretofore. Professor J. Scott Clark, another member of the committee, will support Professor Young in his demand for a social revolution.

S. F. Boyce Guarantees That Hyomei Will Cure the Worst Case of Catarrh In Duluth.

When one of the most reputable concerns in Duluth guarantees that a medicine will effect a cure or he will return the money, it speaks volumes as to the merits of that remedy. It is in this way that S. F. Boyce is selling Hyomei, the treatment that has made so many remarkable cures of both acute and chronic cases of catarrh in Duluth and vicinity.

Hyomei is not a pill nor is it a liquid that has to be taken with a tablespoon or wine glass. Just breathe it in by the aid of an inhaler that comes in every outfit, and benefit will be seen from the first treatment.

It destroys all germ life in the air passages and lungs and enriches and purifies the blood with additional ozone. It cures catarrh of the head and throat, or of the stomach, liver and kidneys. Wherever mucous membrane contains catarrhal germs, there Hyomei will do its work of healing. When using this treatment, the air you breathe will be found like that on the mountain high above the sea level, where grow balsamic trees and plants which make the air pure by giving off volatile antiseptic fragrance that is healing to the respiratory organs.

Remember that if Hyomei does not cure you, S. F. Boyce will refund your money. This is a good time to cure catarrh by this natural method and prevent catarrhal colds that are so common at this season.

DULL WEEK IN IRON

But Very Little Actual Business Has Been Transacted.

Southern Furnace Association Reduces the Price of Iron.

Cleveland, June 4.—The Iron Trade Review, discussing market conditions in its current issue, says: A quiet week in iron and steel has followed the United States Steel corporation's purchase of all the Bessemer pig iron offered by merchant furnaces on a basis of $18.50 at furnace. Whatever activity in foundry iron might have come from this impulse was lost in view of the pending meeting of the associated Southern furnaces at Birmingham. A two-days' conference ended on Tuesday with the announcement that the following new prices had been agreed upon, being a reduction of $2.50 from the schedule promulgated April 1:

No. 1 foundry, Birmingham, $15.50; No. 2 foundry, $15; No. 3 foundry, $14.50; No. 4 foundry, $14; gray forge, $13.75; motled, $13.50; white, $13.

The $1 differential was abolished and Eastern and Western markets are now on the same basis. The furnaces represented were those of the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad company, Sloss-Sheffield Steel and Iron company, Alabama Consolidated Coal and Iron company, Virginia Iron, Coal & Coke company, Republic Iron and Steel company, Roane Iron company, Citico Furnace company, Lacey-Buck Iron company and Chattanooga Furnace company. The fact that so-called independent Southern furnaces in some instances have asked 50 cents to $1 above the $15 basis, recently having booked business for most of the third quarter at prices scaling down from $16.50 at Birmingham for No. 2, has evidently led association furnaces to believe that buyers must now come to them for third quarter iron. As compared with the contract prices of a year ago, the new basis represents an advance of from 25 to 50 cents; comparing it with the contact price of last fall for iron for the first quarter of 1903, it is a reduction of $1 a ton. The continued heavy consumption of foundry iron and the full shipments under existing contracts support the expectation of a buying movement in the present month. Another consideration is that contracts for casting which have been held up awaiting lower prices for pig iron may now be placed. The labor situation has been cleared somewhat in the week, particularly at Chicago, and this may be expected to have some effect upon the foundry trade. As far as actual business is concerned, the week has been one of the dullest of the year in all lines.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Incorrigible Girl Badly Injured By Jumping From Train.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Fargo—Jennie Reuter, 15 years old, was before the court a time or two for alleged incorrigibility, and more recently was arrested on the charge of being implicated in the burglary of the Barnes residence. She was located at Barnesville and Capt. Gowland of the local police force sent for her. On the way back she went to the front of the car and jumped from the moving train. A search finally located her with a leg broken, two ribs smashed and a bad cut on the cheek and scalp.

The dog cranks of Fargo have been somewhat interested in the case of William Burt against Architect George Hancock. Some time ago Burt's dogs killed Hancock's rabbits, and when the dogs recently died of poison Burt blamed Hancock and asserted that Hancock's little boy had made damaging admissions. Action was brought, and the case dismissed against Mr. Hancock.

In the annual contest of the Western League Normal, Wednesday night, Miss Anna M. Bagstead, of Yankton college, S. D., was awarded first place for an oration of Goethe. A. Wentz, Dakota university, Mitchell, S. D., second place for an oration on "Savonarola." The other contestants were Miss Stephens, of the Agricultural college, Fargo, and J. A. Marsh, of North Dakota university.

Bismarck—The supreme court today handed down a decision holding the peddlers' license law, passed by the last legislature, to be constitutional. The matter was appealed from the district court of Grand Forks county, where it is of special interest because of the large number of peddlers.

Cannonball—Protests are being made by settlers on both sides of the river against the abandonment of Fort Yates. Even some of the Indians are opposed to it. If any trouble should arise with the Indians, troops could be brought in about as quick from Snelling as from the Bismarck post. Agent Carignan paid every man, woman and child on the reservation $5 in two days and a half, a record performance. Special Agent Conser of Washington, D. C., is investigating agency affairs with special reference to recent complaints by the Indians in council.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Cyanide—John Brenner, an employe of the Spearfish Gold Mining and Reduction company is sick with smallpox. A second case is that of the foreman at the Spearfish mine. Charles Bauer. These are said to by physicians to be the most severe cases they have encountered.

Clear Lake—Elmer Mellem, aged 24, son of County Treasurer J. L. Mellem, took arsenic with suicidal intent and there is no hope of saving his life. Despondency over continued sickness and a love affair is the cause.

Wessington Springs—The first legalized saloon ever opened in Jerauld county has commenced business at Alpena. Many persons are apprehensive of greatly increased expenditure in the management of county and city affairs as a result of this new departure. Heretofore the compensation of the town marshall has been very light. In Wessington Springs for ten years the marshal's fees have not averaged $5 a year and in Alpena but a little more, while the sheriff of the county has for several months boarded himself in the county jail, being a bachelor, because the income of his official hotel. Woonsocket, east of line, in Sanhotel. Woonsocket, east of line, in Sanborn county, has four saloons and the marshal is paid $50 a month and the sheriff's office pays $3000 a year.

Rapid City—Raymnd F. Walter of the United States geological survey is here for the purpose of establishing measuring stations along the principal streams in Pennington county, to determine the amount of water available for irrigation under the federal irrigation law. One of the stations is to be placed along Rapid river. Mr. Walter intends to put in at least six of these stations on various Black Hills streams, and after he has ascertained the volume of water that can be utilized in watering the semi-arid lands he will investigate the various natural reservoir sites that have been proposed by citizens.

Clark—As a result of a runaway Mrs. H. C. Bockoven and Miss Wilcox were thrown from a buggy and the latter seriously injured. A dog ran out and bit the horse, causing the accident.

Spearfish—Jones D. Hicks, well known on the western cattle ranges as a stock detective, is on trial at Sundance, Wyo., charged with the murder of Robert Bryson at Gillette last fall.

WIFE WAS DISINHERITED.

Stenographer Gets Bulk of Dr. Remington's Property.

Sioux City, Iowa, June 4.—While his wife was hurrying from Minneapolis to the deathbed of Dr. Frederick A. Remington, one of this city's prominent physicians, he made a will disinheriting her. He left his new automobile to his 1-year-old son Earl, as well as his shotgun, rifle and phonograph. To Mrs. Fred Kneebs, mother of Miss Nettie Kneebs, the doctor's stenographer, he left his horse, buggy and cutter. Surgical implements, medicines, etc., were given to fellow practitioners, while most of the personal property was bequeathed to the stenographer, Miss Kneebs. She is made the residuary legatee, as well as receiving considerable property by specification.

Three years ago the doctor and his wife separated. Inability to agree as to who should have custody of the one child delayed divorce proceedings. The wife and son have been living in Pleasant Grove and Minneapolis, Minn.

Last Saturday afternoon, while driving through the rain to a dying patient, Dr. Remington took a cold, which developed into inflammation of the spinal cord. His wife was summoned to bring their child, but both arrived after the doctor died. He made his will a few hours before expiring.

For several years Dr. Remington lived in Woonsocket, S. D., where he was a physician, and also held the position of superintendent of schools of Sanborn county. It was there he met Miss Nettie E. Reese, of Pleasant Grove, Minn., whom he afterward married.

The funeral was held yesterday afternoon, conducted by Knights Templar. Among those present were the wife, his sister, Mrs. Alice Harter, Owatonna, Minn.; a brother-in-law, Frederick Reese, of Roswell, S. D.; two nieces, Mrs. Laura McClure and Miss Lillie Plummer, of Owatonna, Minn. The remains will be taken to Woonsocket, S. D., for burial.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Escanaba Man Has Papers Signed By Early President.

Escanaba—State Senator O. B. Fuller, of this district, presiding officer of the upper branch of the Michigan legislature, possesses a packet of papers of considerable value and historical interest. They are documents issued to sailing masters in the early days of the republic and bear the signatures of all the presidents from Washington to Buchanan in addition to the autographs of Randolph, Clay, Webster and other noted personages in their official capacity.

The papers were collected by Mr. Fuller's father and came into the son's possession when the latter became of age. Not only do the documents bear the signatures above noted, but many of them also contain the signatures of the representatives in this country of Great Britain, Holland and Spain. Most of the vessels named in the papers were of but 100 to 250 tons burden.

The state has offered to purchase the papers from their owner, but it is considered doubtful whether Senator Fuller would part with them at almost any price, and it is likely they will continue to rest in the little safe in the Delta county hamlet of Ford river, where the senator resides.

Houghton—The Trades and Labor council of Portage lake, in which a considerable number of union men residing at Houghton and Hancock hold membership, has passed a resolution providing that no member shall purchase goods from a clerk in any store who cannot show that he or she is in good standing in a clerk's union. The resolution will be enforced.

Menominee—While David Adams, of Downsville, was raising some heavy timbers, to be used in the erection of a house, one of the timbers fell and struck him on the back. His back was broken and he died in two hours. He was sixty-three years old.

Ontonagon—The Diamond Match company's hoists have gone into commission and about forty cars are being loaded with logs daily. This will soon be increased to the full capacity of the plant, about sixty cars.

Munising—Patrick Buckley has contracted with the Bay de Noque company to cut 1000 cords of hardwood for it this summer. He has established a camp on the Sturgeon river.

Menominee—The employment of colored girls is in part to solve the servant problem in Menominee. At present a colored preacher is canvassing the city, seeking positions for experienced negro girls, and is meeting with much success. The girls will come from Milwaukee and points in the South.

Ironwood—The Finnish and Scandinavian residents of Bessemer have organized a night school, the purpose of which is to perfect the members in speaking and reading the English language.

Marquette—The Wolverine Cedar and Lumber company, which operates a sawmill at Northland, has taken an option on 30,000 acres of land on the north shore of Lake Superior, in Canada.

ALLOUEZ EXTENSION.

Manager Warren Confers With Superior Authorities.

Manager Herbert Warren of the Duluth-Superior Traction company met last evening with the members of the chamber of commerce in West Superior and talked over the matter of street railway extension to Allouez bay and Itasca. The members of the committee and the people of the two last named localities have been urging the extension of tracks, but Mr. Warren argued that the engineer's report showed the condition of the Nemadji river bridge to be unsafe for street car traffic, and that it is first up to the city to prepare a substantial roadbed before the street car company can be expected to seriously consider a proposition for an extension.

Mr. Warren also took up the action of the West Superior council in taking steps to test the validity of the extension ordinance, and stated that he had doubts whether the company would favor an extension if it did not have the right to use the streets.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer one hundred dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

EXPLAINS THEIR VIEW.

Commissioner's Attitude on Feeding of City Prisoners.

County Commissioner Fred Kugler says that some people have the mistaken notion that the board of county commissioners has been in favor right along of compelling the city of Duluth to pay 50 cents per day for the board of its prisoners in the county jail, when the actual cost per prisoner to the county was but 33 cents.

Mr. Kugler says that the matter was first agitated in behalf of the city by Alderman Watson Moore, and that the county commissioners have repeatedly said that they had no disposition to charge the city any more than the amount laid down by the law. He says that the general impression among the commissioners was that the law fixed the board of city prisoners in the county jail at 50 cents per day, and if such were the case the county board had no recourse but to enforce the law, that it would have been the law, not the county board, to blame. The commissioners, Mr. Kugler says, have not the slightest objection to the city paying the actual cost of the board of its prisoners, if, as assistant county attorney claims, it may legally do so.

OUTLOOK FOR THE COLLEGE GRADUATE

$10,000 position. There is no short-cut to success without hard work. The kind of genius that the twentieth century is looking for is the man with a capacity for hard work."

"To the extent to which your university course has tended to develop a character will your training result in success or failure. It is impossible to overestimate the importance of character in achieving success. To emphasize this fact may seem trite, but in these times, when mere smartness, tricky shrewdness, ability to sail very close to the wind without quite capsizing are sometimes highly rated, it is useful to remember that lasting success cannot be built upon these qualities.

"The counterfeit dollar may pass for a while; it may shine as brightly as the genuine, may ring almost as true, but it is bound in the end to be detected. It is a sham. It cannot escape discovery. Some men cheat themselves into the belief that superior craft will more than make up for lack of character. They deceive only themselves. They are bound for inevitable failure, no matter how bright their prospects at first may seem.

"When the trust movement shall have steadied itself, when it shall have eradicated wrong tendencies and strengthened those elements which are right, then of the men in charge of great combinations will be required not alone an intimate knowledge of the business itself, but the training to be derived from a university course."

As to some evils of the consolidation craze, Mr. Dill said:

"Many amalgamations, formed ostensibly for purposes of mutual protection, have accomplished little else than the unloading of blocks of indigestible securities upon a deceived public. Such combinations never had an excuse for existing, nor a chance of success, except as it was possible to suppress trade in a way thoroughly repugnant to American principles.

Mr. Dill's reference to the field for educated women was a feature of the address:

"Women's efforts in the direction of business enterprises will be valued loyally, faithfulness and intellectual alertness are appreciated. Women are not crowding out men; they are only making them hustle a little to hold their places. The struggle will be productive of far-reaching results. It is severe, interesting and suggestive, but the man who fails under it should not complain. Wholesale Grocers In Ohio Form a Combine.

Chicago, June 4.—A combination of wholesale grocery companies with a capital of $10,000,000 is being formed in Ohio by Frank S. Letts, of Chicago, who is vice president of the National Grocer company, of which H. H. Higinbotham is the head. Announcement was also made yesterday of the organization of the Canadian Grocers' company, limited, having a capital of $5,000,000, and headquarters at Toronto. This company includes nearly all of the larger grocery concerns in Canada.

According to Mr. Letts, who is president of the Western Grocer company, owning and operating a number of grocery houses in Iowa, Minnesota and Missouri, this plan of co-operation of jobbers has been decided upon as the best way to bring to terms various trusts with which grocers have to deal. Mr. Letts says the combinations he has formed are not trusts, and that eventually it is expected to organize grocery houses from New York to the Rucky mountains. Combinations will be organized in New York soon.

A GREEK CRUCIFIED.

Would Not Pay Ransom to Bulgarian Band.

London, June 4.—According to dispatches published in this morning's Times a serious condition exists in the villayet of Adrianople, where the Turks are carrying out searches for arms and punitive measures among the refugees.

Several fights have occurred between Bulgarian bands and Turks and Bashi Bazouks, in which many were killed. A Greek noble who was kidnaped by a Bulgarian band near Sarakina, failed to pay his ransom and was promptly crucified.

West Duluth People May Bring Tax Abatement Up Anew.

Are Not Sanguine But Hope to Convince State Auditor.

It is understood that the West Duluth Commercial club will have another committee at the next meeting of the board of county commissioners relative to the proposed tax abatements on West Duluth property, which the state auditor recently turned down. The refusal of the state official to consider the applications already made for abatement of tax assessments and his promise that he will take similar action on any more applications of the kind has been a big damper to the hopes of West Duluthians who were hoping to get sewer improvements in that part of the city this year.

The West Duluth Commercial club committee was instructed to confer with the county auditor, but it is not thought likely that any relief can be expected from that source, for the reason that the matter of tax abatement lies entirely with the state auditor. All the county authorities can do is to make recommendations to the state auditor that the taxes on certain properties should be abated and that official may or may not concede the abatement requested.

Some of the property owners, who have been disappointed by the action of the state auditor, accuse him of acting in bad faith. They claim that a distinct understanding was had at the conference between Assistant County Attorney W. G. Crosby and Commissioner Fred Kugler, on behalf of the city, and State Auditor Iverson, that certain West Duluth property, which it is desirous should be placed on the tax paying list again, and has been so loaded down with tax assessments and penalties that the assessment against the property exceeds its value, that the state auditor would act favorably on the applications that should be sent in from the owners of the delinquent property.

On the other side, those who are opposed to the abatement of any tax assessments in the city claim that the understanding with the state auditor was that he would consider individual applications, and that he is not to be blamed for turning down a wholesale attempt to get tax abatements.

Just what action the board of county commissioners will take on the state auditor's attitude is difficult to surmise, if there is really any action to be taken. Sentiment on the board is not unanimous on the subject of the desirability of tax assessments, and some of the commissioners have expressed themselves in words to the effect that they believe that the West Duluthians are asking too much.

Anyway, there is promise of an interesting discussion over the situation when the West Duluth committee comes before the board of county commissioners.

THE STAGE

The regular box office seat sale for the opening week of the Northwestern Opera company's engagement opened this morning at the Lyceum theater box office.

The subscription sale is still on and has been patronized largely by opera admirers, who have taken regular seats for the entire season. The subscription sale is still open and will be in operation for several days yet, in order that people may try their selections of seats.

The Northwestern company opens the summer season at the Lyceum Monday night with the production of "The Black Hussar." The management proposes to offer a performance which will outshine any staging of the piece ever seen in Duluth. The company will be at the Lyceum till Friday, when it will play two nights and a matinee at Superior.

"Said Pasha" was again presented by the Wilbur Opera company at the Metropolitan last evening and at the matinee in the afternoon, the troupe playing to good houses on both occasions. The leading members of the cast sang their parts well, and the vaudeville features were accorded their share of attention. A feature of next week's Wednesday matinee will be a reception by the Gardner children on the stage at the close of the matinee. All children under 12 years of age will be admitted to the performance free of charge, whether they come alone or are accompanied by their parents. Beginning tonight and for the balance of the week and the Saturday matinee the bill at the theater will be "The Bohemian Girl."

* * *

Saturday evening "Ole Olson" will be presented at the Lyceum, with Ben Hendricks in the leading role. Mr. Hendricks has been seen here before, and in Swedish roles is one of the favorites with Duluth audiences. The play is pleasing and one of which the public never seems to tire. With the company is offerd as a special feature a Swedish ladies' quartet. They sing delightfully and make a great hit everywhere.

DIED OF GLANDERS.

Newark, N. J., June 4.—Albert Meyer, who was attacked with glanders three weeks ago, is dead after terrible suffering.

PLATFORM ADOPTED

By the Ohio Republicans Endorses Roosevelt and Hanna.

Insists on a Continuation of All Republican Principles.

Columbus, O., June 4.—At the Ohio Republican state convention this morning, Gen. Charles Dick, chairman of the committee on resolutions, presented the committee's report on platform, as follows:

The Republicans of Ohio rejoice in the results of the Republican administration in the state and nation. It has promoted the welfare of the entire country. Past achievements insure the faithful performance of new duties.

Ohio enters upon her second century of statehood with a record unequalled. Republican control has aided immeasurably in placing our state in the very fore front of the union of states comprising the world's greatest nation.

We commend President Roosevelt's fidelity to duty, his adherence to President McKinley's policies, and his own proved ability in his high office, showing him in every way worthy of election by the people to be their chief magistrate. We favor his nomination in 1904.

The Ohio Republican delegation in congress has honored the state in both houses. Senators Joseph B. Foraker and Marcus A. Hanna have splendidly maintained Ohio's leadership. The re-election of Senator Hanna is a distinct national demand upon our state, and we hereby cordially promise him the undivided support of the entire Republican party of Ohio.

Governor George K. Nash, with his able assistants in the state offices, for their faithful and successful administration, deserve the generous commendation and gratitude of the people.

In Ohio, as in the nation, Republican achievements compel popular approval. Our state debt is cancelled, the cash surplus in our treasury is at record figures, the state institutions were never more efficiently or economically conducted, and yet the state tax rate has been reduced by half through Republican laws. We favor removing limitations which prevent a more just system of taxation.

Ohio ought not to discriminate longer against her own corporations, thus cutting off possible revenues and other benefits, and we therefore favor and indorse the amendment to remove the present provision in our state constitution of the double liability of stockholders.

We also favor the amendments to vest the governor with the veto power. The resolutions after reciting other state needs takes up the question of transportation as follows:

The question of transportation is one of the most important business problems now before the American people for determination. The full utilization of our inland waterways is demanded by all business interests. We therefore, favor the continued improvement by the general government of Ohio river, that a navigable stage of water may be maintained the entire year.

As Republican legislation has always provided work for those who would work, while Democratic free trade has produced the opposite result, so the labor laws, state and national, have been largely of Republican origin. We favor their extension in every way equitable in all, particularly those designed to promote harmonious conditions and to secure for labor just recognition in the settlement of differences. Public welfare demands this quite as much as the interests of employers and employed.

Better roads would save Ohio citizens millions of dollars yearly, and should be systematically established.

They are especially needed on account of the rural free mail delivery system, for which the demand is now very high universal. Inaugurated by Republicans a Democratic administration refused it a trial and Republicans have now proved its value. We favor the extension of the system as rapidly as possible wherever desired.

Public improvements have invariably been favored by the Republican party, benefitting the entire country many times the ir total cost. Every citizen interested in better rivers and harbors, public highways, improved postal service, forest preservation, flood prevention, the great Isthmian canal, and other enterprises of like character, has the rightful home only in the Republican party, where progress has never been opposed.

Nearly three thousand millions of dollars paid to pensioners since the Republican party came into power, almost all of it under legislation enacted without a dissenting Republican vote in congress, but always against Democratic opposition, attest the contrast between the parties in this respect and yet further liberality was evidenced by the pension legislation of the last congress.

The improvement in our relations with the Philippine Islands is attested by the reduction of our army to the lowest legal limit. Education and enlightenment under broad minded administrative policy are gradually obviating the necessity for control through military power and we command the rapid and steady progress made in the preparation of the Philippines for the fullest practicable degree of self government.

In this connection we voice the grateful acknowledgement of the entire nation for the splendid services in the Philippines of that distinguished son of Ohio, Governor General William H. Taft.

Under Presidents McKinley and Roosevelt, our foreign policy of equity to all has made the United States the peacemaker of the world, guarding weaker nations from aggression and giving the Monroe doctrine a vital force greater than ever before.

As America part in preserving the peace of the world, we endorse the Republican policy of developing the United States navy to the highest efficiency and we favor every encouragement possible to our merchant marine in the extension of American commerce in American ships upon every sea.

The protective tariff policy of the Republican party has made the United States the greatest industrial nation, astonished the world with the tremendous development of our boundless resources; has added vastly to our foreign commerce; has greatly increased the prosperity of the farmer and has advanced American labor to the best scale of living ever attained. We oppose all attacks upon this policy, whatever the pretext, as tending to bring back the disastrous days of Democratic tariff revision and free trade. Changing conditions and the possible benefits of reciprocity may call for timely readjustment of schedules, but protection as a principle and as a policy must be administered by the friends of American prosperity and must not be sacrificed.

Combinations for the monopoly of trade and kindred unlawful purposes are directly amenable to penalties provided by Republican legislation and their vigorous enforcement in the courts. No worthy interest is imperilled but whatever will work public harm is restrained and that without resort to the Democratic plan of destroying all American industries through tariff revision or otherwise. If further legislation should be found necessary, the Republican party can be depended upon to enact and enforce it with equity and safety in every legitimate interest.

The Republican party having restored the national credit after it was nearly destroyed by the Democratic party, and having maintained, defended and advanced it to the highest in the world, with every dollar of full value, and having given to the people the only banking system that operates uniformly everywhere without loss and at lowest cost, should now endeavor within safe lines to stimulate local bank circulation, thus securing an elasticity of currency supply commensurate with business demands and we favor well guarded legislation to this end.

Ohio was the first state with soil forever free from the strain of slavery. It was foremost in the war to preserve "the indestructible union of indestructible states" and adheres firmly to every amendment which that war wrought into our country's constitution as binding in honor upon every American citizen.

Therefore, we hold fast to the doctrine of equity everywhere, in the exercise of the elective franchise, maintaining that justice requiring any state excluding any of its citizens from the ballot to be proportionately reduced in its representation in the electoral college and the lower house of the national congress.

From its earliest day, the Republican party has accomplished great results in the state and nation, and without resting upon its laurels, has continually pressed forward to new duties. Unremittingly it seeks to establish whatever is safe, wise and truly progressive, and in furtherance of its great and patriotic purposes, it invites most cordially the cooperation and support of all who sincerely desire to promote our country's highest welfare.

MOOSE PEEP AT CITY LIFE

Two Full Grown Ones Show Up at an Early Hour.

Two full-grown moose paid a visit to the city today.

They wandered into town out in the East End this morning, when the quiet of the early hour of 5 o'clock, before many people were up, made the streets look safe to them.

They were big fellows, and they looked oddly out of place as they slowly stalked along East First street, at Twentieth avenue east, solemnly and wonderingly gazing about at the most unique forest they had ever seen in their lives.

Occasionally they would stop for a few minutes, the better to take in the sights. Then they would march gravely on.

A few early risers saw them out of bearoom windows, but there were no people on the streets, and there was nothing to alarm the strangers from the forests and interrupt their little journey of sightseeing. Later, when people began to appear, they became alarmed and scurried back to the pines.

IS FOUND GUILTY.

Oscar Anderson Convicted of Manslaughter at Superior.

Oscar Anderson was yesterday convicted of manslaughter in the fourth degree in the circuit court of Douglas county, Wis. Anderson was charged with causing the death of Bernard Nassin, an aged shoemaker, with whom he roomed. Nassin died in the hospital May 1 on account of the treatment alleged to have been accorded him by Anderson. The latter and his brother were apprehended in this city as they were about to get on a train.

The principal evidence against the defendant was the statement of Nassin to the police while on the way to the hospital, that Anderson had beaten him, also the testimony of the defendant's brother that Nassin told him that Oscar Anderson had assaulted him.

The penalty in Wisconsin for manslaughter in the fourth degree is from one to two years' imprisonment in the state penitentiary, one year in the county jail, or a fine not to exceed $1000, or both.

Will Sue Combine.

R. R. Hudson, a West Superior plumber, threatens to institute legal proceedings against certain West Superior wholesale concerns which he claims are refusing to sell him goods, even on a cash basis. Hudson claims that when he started in business he did not have the $500 to put up to become a member of the Master Plumbers' association and, as a result, has been up against a continual fight with the organization. Hudson says that a case identical to his came up recently in a St. Louis court and the court ordered a dissolution of the masters' association.

WHITE WHALES IMPRISONED.

Halifax, N. S., June 4.—Two large white whales, rare specimens it Atlantic coast waters, are reported to be imprisoned in the Braz D'Or lakes, Cape Breton. They are supposed to have entered the lakes in pursuit of mackerel schools. Cape Breton fishermen are making great efforts to capture one of them.

THE BUSINESS OUTLOOK.

The possibility that the anthracite coal miners will again quit work owing to a dispute with the coal operators over the boards of conciliation provided for in the strike commission's report, adds another disturbing factor to the business situation, which has been considerably unsettled already by labor troubles. Inasmuch as the other disputes between labor and capital are in a fair way to be amicably settled, good progress in that direction having been made during the past week in nearly all the centers of disturbance, it would be a calamity to have the coal strike renewed. That it might have a serious effect upon the prosperity of the country cannot be doubted. It is to be hoped that the danger of such a calamity will be averted and that the miners and operators will realize their true positions towards the public and refrain from assuming a stubborn attitude that will prevent an early and amicable arrangement of the details of the agreement reached at the close of the strike commission's inquiry.

With the labor troubles settled, there would be nothing visible in the near future at least to warrant the fear of serious depression in trade. That the present prosperity will continue is the judgment of all business men who are in a position to gauge accurately the condition of things throughout the country. Except as affected temporarily by labor troubles, every industry is busy, with no indications of changing conditions. The demand for material of all kinds is as great as ever, and production lags behind while activity and demand travel hand in hand. One of the most favorable factors is the practical certainty that the yield of winter wheat will be a record-breaker. Prosperous farmers are the surest foundation for increased prosperity. When the farmer is prosperous the rest of the country will have an abundance of the necessaries and luxuries of life. He will buy more clothes and many of the so-called luxuries and thus the manufacturers and merchants will be benefited. With large crops to haul, the railroads will have big earnings and will declare higher dividends, and this money will be reinvested by stockholders, removing the temporary dullness in financial circles. There is no danger, therefore, that the tide of prosperity will be checked.

A ROOSEVELT CAMPAIGN.

The plans of President Roosevelt for renomination and further, for re-election, have been cleverly drawn, and if the present incumbent of the White House does not win out it will not be from lack of preparation or detail. The president proposes to run the whole thing and to have a free hand in selecting a running mate, and the framing of the party platform. The conduct of the president in forcing the various state conventions into declaring for his renomination, and thus grabbing off the nomination a year in advance of the assembling of the national convention, has convinced the old party leaders that the proper thing to do is to let him finish up the rest of the job.

So the old-timers have, in a way, washed their hands of the entire matter, and it will be strictly a Roosevelt ticket, a Roosevelt platform and a Roosevelt campaign. Information is to the effect that a representative of the New York senators will go to Washington soon and arrange with the president the selection of a successor to Chairman Morris of the New York county committee, for the president is to have the say in the local campaign in his state as well as in the national fight.

The disposition to let the president run things to suit himself, and without advice from experienced heads, is particularly strong among the Hanna followers. The latter continue disgruntled over the outcome of the flurry in Ohio, and although Senator Hanna has hauled down his flag, his supporters still taste the bitterness of defeat. They show no inclination to pitch into the campaign and help the president to win another term in the White House. Their attitude, together with that of the other leaders who have less reason to sulk, will be that of acquiescence in the wish of the president. They will inform the president that he is assured of a nomination by acclamation, and that as he is the sole candidate for the position of head of the ticket it is only right that he should name his running mate and arrange the other important details incident to the campaign. So the president will select the candidate for vice president without opposition. It is the scheme for the leaders also to defer to the president's wishes in regard to the platform. He will be asked to name the features which he desires to have prominent and which will sound the campaign cry.

It is not imagined that the president will shrink from this responsibility. During his trip to the Pacific coast he has had a chance to size up the available vice presidential timber and by the time he returns to Washington will probably have his mind made up as to his running mate. No announcement of this is expected for some months, however. The platform will be allowed to go over until next winter, as developments in the coming session of congress may make it desirable to advocate new policies and to drop old ones.

It is plainly evident that the coming campaign will be clearly Rooseveltian from start to finish. The president will stand or fall on his own platform and efforts.

The Boston Globe makes the astounding admission that in the average Boston family dust will now accumulate on the volume of Emerson's essays for another 100 years. This destroys many preconceived notions in the West regarding Boston. Here it has been generally believed that every resident of "The Hub" read an Emerson essay or two every night before retiring.

RECIPROCITY WITH CANADA.

M. S. Burrows, one of Duluth's leading merchants, who has been on a five weeks' trip to the East, has returned much impressed with the importance of securing closer commercial relations with Canada. In an interview published yesterday, Mr. Burrows dwelt upon the great benefits which Duluth would derive from the negotiation of a reciprocity treaty that would establish freer trade relations with our northern neighbors, and he urged that the Duluth Commercial club should take up this matter and agitate it vigorously. Several Duluth business men have taken an active part in the educational movement being conducted by the National Reciprocity league and they would welcome the valuable assistance of the Commercial club in the campaign in favor of reciprocity with Canada. In view of the great importance to Duluth of reciprocity with the Dominion no effort should be spared to secure a commercial agreement of this character.

The Herald today publishes another interview on this subject, giving the views of a Canadian, Casimir Dickson, at present visiting this city. Mr. Dickson presents the Canadian view of the question, and it is evident from what he says that if reciprocity is to be secured no time must be lost in pushing the negotiations. For over twenty-five years Canada has been ready to negotiate a reciprocity treaty. The present Liberal government was elected on a platform pledging an earnest effort to secure reciprocity with this country, and it has done everything possible to carry out its promise. Certain interests in this country have been successful in preventing the negotiation of a treaty, and they will continue to prevent it unless the American people demand that the party in power shall carry out its pledge made to renew reciprocity legislation if restored to the control of the government by the election of Mr. McKinley. Having accepted the pledges and promises of the party and elected Mr. McKinley, the people have a right to demand that the party leaders shall keep its promises.

This should not be a political issue, because it is a business proposition. It neither antagonizes nor accepts as its essential factor the policy of protection or free trade, and yet it has been misrepresented and the issue befogged by appeals to partisanship and prejudice. It is gratifying to note, however, that today our ablest business men, regardless of political party, are directing their energies toward the solution of the problem, and that the sentiment in favor of Canadian reciprocity is rapidly spreading. But more work must be done at once if success is to crown the efforts of those who appreciate the great value of such a reciprocal trade arrangement. The conditions in Canada are such that early action on this side of the boundary is essential. Unless the negotiations be pushed immediately all hope of a trade treaty will have to be abandoned and the result will be the adoption by Canada of an ugly policy of trade reprisals. Duluth should take a leading part in the movement for reciprocity, and the Commercial club can do nothing better to demonstrate its usefulness to this community and to advance the business interests of the city than by vigorous agitation of reciprocity with Canada.

CONGRESS TOO CARELESS.

It seems evident from present revelations into the management of the postoffice department, that it behooves congress to inaugurate a number of reforms in connection with the annual appropriations for the support of the service. Congress should exercise greater care in the wording of the postoffice appropriation bill and should put more restrictions about the expenditures of moneys than have been imposed in the past.

The inquiry into the scandals in the rural free delivery division and in the division of salaries and allowances has developed surprising laxity on the part of congress in guarding against improper disbursements of postoffice appropriations. For the past four or five years it has been the custom of congress to place in the hands of the chief of the division of salaries and allowances $225,000, to be expended practically as he saw fit, and without accounting to the postmaster general or to anyone. This sum was provided for the purchase of "miscellaneous and incidental items directly connected with first and second-class postoffices, including furniture, cleaning and all matters not specifically provided for in other appropriations." The following significant proviso then follows in the act:

"Provided, That the postmaster general in his discretion, under such regulations as he shall prescribe, may authorize any of the postmasters of said offices to expend the funds he may allow them for such purposes without the written consent of the postmaster general."

In addition to this sum the chief of this division had another fund of $300,000, which he handled about as he say fit. This was for "all other incidental expenses, including letter boxes, package boxes, posts, furniture, satchels, and straps." The inspectors are now scanning the expenditures under these two items, for it is believed that if there were irregularities in Mr. Beavers' office they were in connection with these appropriations. In fact the allegations against Beavers which Postmaster General Payne referred to the other day was to the effect that there had been fraud in certain contracts for supplies purchased by the head of the division of salaries and allowances.

A great quantity of postal supplies are "patented articles" and as such are not brought under competitive bids. That was the case with the Groff fastener, on which Mr. Machen is alleged to have received a rake-off. It is significant also, that the irregularities thus far developed in Mr. Machen's department were in connection with appropriations that were not properly guarded in the way of restrictions. To Machen was given the free handling of about $250,000 for "incidental expenses, including letter boxes, furniture, satchels, straps, badges, and so forth."

It grows more evident every day that the postoffice department is thoroughly rotten in administration of public affairs and nothing but a most thorough investigation will serve to show up the rottenness. Whether the public will learn all the truth or not remains to be seen.

The California state board of health is contemplating the removal of Chinatown from the heart of San Francisco to some outlying region, where sanitary conditions may be enforced in the building and the maintenance of the houses, and where if necessary strict quarantine may be enforced without inconveniencing the whole city. In the meantime, it is proposed that the Chinese who live underground shall be compelled to come up to street level. The city board of health will be asked to cooperate.

Commissioner Greene announces that he is going to stop "grafting" by the New York police. He will find he has undertaken a big contract.

It is proposed in Boston to run a special street car late at night for drunken men. It should be run direct to the police station.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Frank Harvey, a broker of Colombus, Ohio, is at the St. Louis hotel for a day or two, and before leaving for the Pacific coast will look into some Mesaba range holdings he has in this vicinity.

Mr. Harvey and Matt Clark, of St. Paul, who is also at the hotel for a few days, have been acquainted in years gone by. Mr. Harvey, though not a Duluth man, has many acquaintances, and is a near neighbor to George Larke, formerly of The Evening Herald, who is now managing the Ohio State Journal at Columbus. Mr. Harvey therefore spent some time shaking hands with old friends of Mr. Larke, acting as a sort of proxy for the former popular newspaper man of Duluth.

Mr. Harvey is interested in or owns a silver mine near Vancouver, and is on his way to that place to look it over and see what there is to it. He has never seen this mine, but believes that it is going to be a winner. He will spend several weeks there on his investigation, and will return by the way of Duluth.

The broker firm of which Mr. Harvey is a heavy owner, is the largest institution in the state of Ohio, and has offices at practically every city in the state.

Guests and employes at the St. Louis hotel are alarmed and the cause of it was a rumor this morning that one of the Winnipeg baseball players had married one of the young ladies who are employed in clerical work at the institution.

Who started the rumor cannot be ascertained.

This morning there was a serious conference at the desk by several interested ones, and the head porter, whose oratorical powers are of a wonderful and fearful variety, was named a committee of one to find out the truth.

All the recent newspapers were purchased and the marriage licenses were looked over carefully, but nothing could be found that would indicate that the miss had changed her standard of life.

The members of the gossip convention were becoming very much disappointed, for they could not get at the truth in the matter, and they took it as a personal affront.

So when the players came down from breakfast this morning, and picked up their hand luggage and started out, the head porter was put on watch to see if the young lady gave any signs of agitation, when the boys left.

He wathed her narrowly, but could see nothing more than a trace of sadness on her countenance, and not even a sign of recognition for any of the baseball heroes.

In desperation one of the curious ones decided to try a new tack and he went over to the girl and asked point blank:

"Say, are you married?"

"This is so sudden," etc., the girl replied, but he got away before she finished.

She told the clerk she considered it a proposal, and would probably sue if the young man does not come to the front and participate in the ceremony.

In the meantime there are bets being waged as to the outcome, and it looks serious all around.

Edward B. Bishop, of Port Arthur, came up from the copper country this morning, and is at the Spalding hotel. He travels from Port Arthur to Duluth in various and sundry ways. This time he went across Lake Superior from Port Arthur, and down into Michigan and took the train up here. He is very much put out because there is no direct rail connection between Duluth and Port Arthur, and believes if he disregards forms of travel long enough and takes every known route, he will be able to find a short line between the two points that will permit the travel in less than two days and a half.

Mr. Bishop says that the hot weather has struck Port Arthur and Fort William and the towns are booming, a great deal of building now going on. The shipping out of the port is larger than ever before, and the new railway terminal improvements are being completed. Mr. Bishop says the Canadian government will do a great deal of dredging and harbor improvement work at that place this summer, and some of the paraphernalia is already being placed on the ground.

A Fact Worth Remembering.

Brooklyn Eagle: The wire fences that land thieves have put up about public properties in the West are disappearing. It is always a comfort to know that the United States can be regarded as stronger than the worst citizens.

Difference In the Point of View.

Portland Oregonian: The New York Financial Chronicle calls the Omaha injunction against an employers' boycott against union contractors "grotesque." The injunction never seemed grotesque to the Chronicle when it was working exclusively the other way.

Chicago Tribune: "Wiggins," said his compagnon de voyage, tapping on his stateroom door late in the morning of the second day at sea, "it's time to turn out."

"That's what I've been doing," replied a feeble voice inside.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "I see there is a strong prospect of a Shakespeare revival."

"Yes, I noticed there are three brands of whisky named after him and four kinds of cheap cigars."

Philadelphia Press: "Well," said the New Yorker, tauntingly, "you don't see any grass growing in our streets."

"That's so," replied the Philadelphian; "clever scheme of yours."

"What's that?"

"To keep tearing your streets up so the grass can't grow."

On the Safe Side.

Brooklyn Eagle: The old farmer backed off to the edge of the sidewalk when the well-dressed stranger stopped him. He was taking no chances.

"Is your name Hiram Barker?" asked the stranger.

"Mebbe 'tis an' mebbe 'taint," replied the farmer suspiciously. "Lookin' fer someone to cash a check for ye?"

"Oh, no."

"Mebbe you'd like to have me change a $50 bill fer ye?"

"Not at all."

The old farmer scratched his head in a puzzled way.

"Like as not you want me to sign some blamed dockyment," he suggested.

"No."

"Want to teach me poker or somethin' like that?"

"I never play poker."

"Goin' to try to show me where the explosion took place, then?"

"Nothing of the sort. But if you are Hiram Barker I have a letter for you."

Again the farmer showed that he was worried.

"Stranger," he said at last, "you got me beat. I don't know whether I'm Hiram Barker to you or not. When I come to the city Maria loaded me up with seven acres of advice, but she didn't say nothin' about a skin game with a letter in it. Jest you wait till I write to her an' then I'll tell ye whether I am or I ain't."

May.

First you turn the heater off,
And then you turn it on.
We had a hot wave yesterday,
This morning it was gone.
You're reaching for hat of straw,
And for your summer coat,
And find an ulster's what you need,
Well buttoned 'round the throat.

The wild flower shivers in the wood;
The birds their work have left.
Haunts that should ring with sylvan glee
Are silent and bereft.
The May Queen's regal courage wakes
A sympathetic thrill.
You'll find her languishing at home;
The poor girl has a chill.

Would Rather Have Ears Than Nose

Philadelphia Public Ledger: Robert is a bright little chap of 5 years. "We are the best of friends," said a neighbor, "and he often runs in to see me. He likes to have me read to him, and is particularly fond of Gelett Burgess' rhymes.

"The other day I happened to run across this little verse, and took it to his home to read to him:

I'd rather have fingers than toes,
I'd rather have ears than a nose,
And as to my hair,
I'm glad it's all there.
I'll be awfully sad when it goes.

"I read no further than the second line—'I'd rather have ears than a nose'—when Robert burst out with:

"I wouldn't. I wouldn't rather have ears than a nose.

"Wondering what possible reason this small critic could have for disagreeing so emphatically with his friend, Mr. Burgess, I ventured to ask:

"'Why is it, Robert, that you wouldn't rather have ears than a nose?'

"'Cause they're harder to wash.'"

THE LOVE OF SUN FIRE

By Izola L. Forrester.

(Copyright, 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

Wah-ne-ota, the Indians called her over at the reservation, Fire of the Sun. Up at the fort, we cut it short to Sun Fire. She was different from the other Indian girls who came to stare and barter baskets and bead work. Her mother was a French half-breed, and Sun Fire was brought up at the mission school of Our Lady of Sorrows, over beyond Great Spirit lake. When she came back she wore her glossy hair in one long braid instead of the typical two, and sat her pony with the easy grace of a cowboy.

The first time she rode to the fort with old Red Buck, her father, Ainslee stopped his talk up on Burton's piazza to watch her. Red Buck came twice a week to trade and confer with Tapley, the Indian agent. If there was any private understanding between the two they kept it to themselves, and so long as the Indians made no complaints the colonel did not interfere.

As she rode past the piazza later on her way out Ainslee sauntered down and spoke to Red Buck. He also raised his hat and Red Buck grinned pleasantly at the unusual salutation and said something to the girl as they rode out of the fort inclosure. She nodded and looked back over her shoulder. That was the dash of French blood in her. Ainslee smiled and raised his hat again.

Sometimes in the long June days that followed we saw them ride away together before Red Buck had finished his trading. There were trips to the reservation and northeast to the old pipestone quarries that reared red bluffs here and there along the dry bed of Skull creek. Ainslee said he was collecting notes and data on geological phenomena.

The middle of June Estelle Howard came to the fort. She was on her way East from Oregon and stopped to visit her sister, Captain Burton's pretty bride. It hardly seemed fair to the other boys when Ainslee sailed ahead with flying colors in the new quarter and gave no one else a show, but she liked him and his interest in geological data went down to zero.

It was interesting the first time Sun Fire saw them together. Ainslee had always met her lately, when she visited the fort, and had stood beside her pony talking, while Red Buck went to see the agent. As she rode up the drive she saw him on the Burton piazza, twirling a blue silk parasol idly over his head and laughing up at a figure in the hammock.

The next day Red Buck appeared and held a private interview with Ainslee that left the latter flushed and angry.

By the first of July things were serious. Ainslee was overboard and drifting. Every evening found him on the Burton veranda, and at sundown he rode with Miss Howard. Sun Fire came no more to the fort, and Ainslee did not bother to raise his hat to Red Buck when the old Indian went to Tapley's alone.

The Fourth dawned a scorcher. For miles around the prairie lay, hot and blasted by the long drought. The heat seemed to rise from the tall, scorched grass in quivering waves, and the colonel had issued orders that no fireworks were to be set off.

"A spark would set the grass going," he told Burton. "There is no wind, but it's too great a risk to run."

So, with the exception of flags drooping in the still, hot air, and bunting twined around the piazzas of the officers' quarters, there were no outward signs of celebration. A dance had been planned for the evening in Miss Howard's honor, as she was to leave for the East in a day or so.

At sundown Trent, the sentinel on duty, was startled by the sudden appearance of Sun Fire. Her pony was panting heavily and wet with perspiration.

"I want Ainslee," she said, shortly.

Trent told her he was out riding. She flicked the pony's side impatiently with her quirt and it started to dance resentfully. She jerked it to a standstill with a pull that left a stain of red on the bit foam and turned around.

"Which way did he go?"

Towards the pipestone quarries, Trent thought. He wanted to show them to Miss Howard.

"He will marry her, yes?" The girl glanced at him stealthily from under her lashes.

"Looks that way," said Trent, carelessly, but the look in her eyes bothered him and he watched until the pony was a mere dust speck on the prairie and wondered what mischief the half-breed was up to.

Ainslee and Estelle rode leisurely on. It was after sundown when the dried up creek and long line of dark red bluffs came in view. They looked like jasper in the ruddy light of the afterglow.

A light, fresh breeze had sprung up from the southeast with the setting of the sun. Before they had ridden two miles the horses began to act restive, and Ainslee's glance was fixed ahead on a low, pale vapor that seemed to rise like mist out on the prairie between them and the fort. He said nothing to alarm her, and they rode faster as the twilight closed in. Suddenly Estelle drew rein.

"There is a fire somewhere," she said. "Don't you smell smoke?"

"It is probably smouldering grass somewhere," he returned, rising in his stirrups to get a better view. "There is no danger. They will see it from the fort and send for us."

They rode on in silence. It was his first prairie fire, and he had a vague idea that there must be some clear spot where they could break through in safety, but as the dusk grew deeper he caught a glimpse of low flashes of light here and there in the distance, and halted again.

"There is no danger," he said, "but I think we had better turn back to be sure."

She obeyed and urged her horse faster. Ainslee wondered desperately whether they could make the quarries before that line of smoke and flame swept over them, whether the horses would hold out, whether she would faint when she realized the truth, whether they would send from the fort, wondering fifty things at once, and, most of all, whether she loved him.

As the red bluffs loomed ahead in the gloom the smoke grew dense and the horses staggered blindly. Ainslee dismounted and held out his arms.

"We shall have to run for it," he said. "The horses will make their way without us."

She laid her hand in his and they ran like children down the slope of the creek bed. At the bottom she slipped on a rolling rock and he caught her in his arms. The cloud of dark gemil shapes were closing in on them, and with one last glance over his shoulder he held her close to him and struggled up the bluff towards a cave near the summit. By the time he reached it the first scorching blast of fire was licking up the tall, yellow grass of the creek bed. With a low, crackling roar it swept across and broke helplessly, like a beast of prey, on the lower face of the pipestone barrier, then parted and moved on like the divided currents of a river.

We followed in the wake of the fire. At the first alarm Burton headed a rescue party, for the southerly wind which saved the fort from destruction blew the whole force of the flames northward, and we knew it would catch them somewhere. The only thing of interest that the fire left was a half-burned Indian quirt near the starting line, and Burton hid it from sight until a month later, when Ainslee and his bride went East on their wedding trip. It was Sun Fire's, but some way we did not blame her.

Crowding the Danger Line.

Philadelphia Record: Because of the high prices of living the workingmen of the country insist with force that wages should be advanced. If the advance of wages have a tendency to cheapen production by increase of output equivalent to increased pay a general benefit may result, but if the added wage must be added to the price of the product prices will soon reach a point where exports will cease and imports increase. Then the danger line will have been reached. Prices, wages, production and prosperity will all go down together, and the slow processes of repair and recuperation will begin again.

JUNE VOICES.

June comes again and brings the wren,
And brings the robin too,
Their notes of gladness in the glen
Create the world anew!
See everywhere the verdant grass,
The odor-laden breezes pass,
The dove her nest has made,
And rushing from its rocky home,
Dashed into spray and seething foam,
Now leaps the wild cascade.

What joy to press the living sod,
How sweet to drink the air,
When every bird is praising God
Who made the world so fair.
The night has music all her own
When bats are out and birds are flown;
The frog at hiding in the moat
When blinking stars above him sees
Stands in the water to his knees
And croaks his double note.

Now wheels the gull the live-long day,
Or poises in the air,
Or plunges in the glimmering bay
To press his quarry there;
We're greeted by the noisy crow
Who journeyed South when came the snow,
He loves the fringing wood,
And looking down his shadow sees,
While swinging from his bough at ease,
Below him in the flood.

Glad Nature sweetly moves along
And yields to men her treasures up,
And springs from all a joyous song
Who quaff her golden cup.
Her fields are in their glory now,
She twines the blossoms 'round her brow,
And echoes soft and thin
Prolong the music all about,
Of laughter, song or merry shout;
Let all be joy within!

Repentance Without Restitution.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat: Witnesses who come out of the grand jury room with streaming eyes and other signs of emotional distress are naturally supposed to feel the pangs of an aroused conscience as well as to have yielded to a desire to turn a new leaf. But, as far as heard from, there has been no offer to deliver up the boodle admitted and specified in the case. While confession is good, confession and restitution would be much better. The money could be used to good advantage in the school fund, where it now legally belongs. The tears of quickened sensibilities might flow more freely if the money is returned, yet weeping at all, while the boodle is retained, would seem to be illogical rather than pathetic. Repentance plaied with boodle is not a satisfactory article.

Is Necessary to Secure a Reciprocity Treaty With Canada.

Views of a Canadian on the Important Subject.

Casimir Dickson, Canadian at present visiting Duluth and thinking of locating here, is much interested in the movement to secure a reciprocity treaty between the United States and the Dominion. Talking on this subject this morning, Mr. Dickson said, speaking as a Canadian and voicing the Canadian sentiment on the question:

"I notice that the question of reciprocity between this country and Canada is one of the apparently live issues in federal politics in this part of the United States. To a Canadian the very existence of the National Reciprocity league comes as a startling surprise. It almost makes one think of a deathbed repentance. Nearly a generation ago a reciprocity treaty was in force between the two countries. This country abrogated that treaty. Ever since that time the Canadians have strenuously endeavored to renew the bond; but you have consistently and persistently refused to entertain our proposals. For over twenty years the Liberal party in Canada has made reciprocity with the United States a leading plank in its platform, and that party, with Sir Wilfrid Laurier as its leader, is now in power with a mandate from the people to negotiate a fair reciprocity treaty with you, if it be possible. They were returned to power in 1896, and again in 1900, on that platform. They are firmly entrenched in power today. They control the government in all its branches. They have advocated this policy in season and out of season, and are, I am convinced, prepared to make generous concessions in order to bring the matter to a successful issue.

"I belong to the Conservative or Tory party and have taken an active part in political matters for he past twenty years. That party has opposed the Liberal attitude towards your country. Why? Simply because we regarded their efforts futile. We had tried ourselves in the old days to get you to discuss reprocity, and our representatives had been scarcely treated with courtesy. We, too, believe in reciprocity; but we need to be convinced that the people of this country seriously want to come to terms. For the past two decades we have taken it for granted that it was useless talking about the matter, and our faces have been urned towards England. The Liberals still look to Washington.

"I assert with confidence that if the people of this country are in earnest in this matter, the government of Canada is ready and willing to arrange a treaty with you and also able to put it in force. They have a mandate from the people to do so. They control the executive, and the opposition would not be serious.

"But I assert with equal confidence that unless this is arranged NOW, it will not be arranged at all. Time is of the essence of the matter. Many of us Canadians think you are not in earnest. If the present high commission finally adjourns without achieving the wished-for result, our people will be practically unanimous, and the inevitable and deplorable result will be retaliation and a tariff war. At present the balance of trade between the two countries is seriously against Canada. If you are going to continue to act the dog in the manger and to exclude us from your markets, we will be forced to give you a taste of your own medicine. We cannot afford to do otherwise. I do not say this as a threat, but as a matter of business. We can get the same goods as we purchase from you elsewhere, and can make use of this trade as a lever to obtain favors from other people who are not as unreasonable as you appear to be.

"This is not the place for me to enter at length into the question of British imperial reciprocity and the important declarations of Prime Minister Balfour and the Rt. Hon. Joseph Chamberlain on the subject which have been recently made. I am not over-sanguine in this matter. But it is one of the signs of the times, and if the policy which is foreshadowed were to be made a reality, the results would be far-reaching.

"I have read the extremely able report of Hon. Eugene J. Hay on this question of reciprocity between my country and yours, and wish to confirm the correctness of his conclusions. It is a singularly able and incisive document and replete with interesting points. He and Governor Miller deserve your thanks for their efforts and their zeal in making the case clear to you.

"You have the facts before you. It is up to you to act. Canada is prepared to treat with you fairly and liberally. Are you ready? If you are not, and think that the matter can be attended to later on, let me make it clear to you in all friendliness that you are mistaken. The door will be shut."

BOOST THE PRICES

Restaurant Keepers Decided to Increase the Cost of Living.

Pie Off Dinner Free List and Raises on Some Meats.

Patrons of Duluth restaurants whose proprietors belong to the Restaurant Keepers' association will hereafter pay extra for pie when it is served with their dinner. Soup will remain on the free list with dinner orders, but pork chops and mutton chops will come 5 cents higher.

These changes were effected at a meeting of the restaurant men Tuesday evening, and the new scale of prices went into effect yesterday.

No change will be made in the prices of steaks and vegetables, except in the latter according to the season.

The restaurant men claim that these changes have been brought about by the higher cost of pork and mutton and from the fact that their help costs them more than formerly. Recently the waiters went out on a strike for higher wages, and in meeting the raise of wages demanded the restaurant keepers claim that they must arrange their charges in order to meet the additional expense of running their place of business.

It has been customary at the local restaurants for some time past to offer at noon what is termed a business men's lunch, which consisted of a meat order with vegetables, soup, tea or coffee and pie. The restaurant keepers claim that the lunch has not been a success financially, from the fact that many persons who order the lunch do not care much for the pie served at the finish and often take the pastry simply because they have paid for it and have it coming. It is claimed that a large percentage of the patrons leave the larger part of their pie at the close of the meal after taking just enough to spoil the cut. The number of pies consumed per day in a restaurant varies with the location, but it is claimed a fair average is somewhere between 35 and 40 pies. One member of the Restaurant Keepers' association has been charging extra for pie previous to the agreement reached at the meeting the other night.

The new schedule brings the lunches with pie up to 35 instead of 20 cents, and increases the cost of orders with pork or mutton chops by 5 cents.

WILL ASK FOR COUNTY AID

Fair Association Presents Request to the County Board.

The management of the St. Louis County Fair association has asked the county for an appropriation of $500 to aid in making the big agricultural and industrial fair planned this coming summer a success. Yesterday Secretary Hill of the association filed a letter with the request, at the county auditor's office, to be brought to the attention of the county commissioners at their meeting tomorrow.

The last state legislature passed a law which provides that county boards may appropriate an amount not to exceed $500 for county fair purposes, and it is under this provision that the request is now made.

Secretary Hill says that many thousand dollars will be needed to carry out the exhibition, and the management is using every legitimate means to raise the funds. Men are already employed repairing the fences and buildings at the fair grounds.

FIRE AT HULL, ONT.

Twenty-Eight Houses Burned In the Suburbs.

Ottawa, Ont., June 4.—A fire last evening destroyed twenty-eight houses in the suburbs of the city of Hull. A stiff wind was blowing at this time and a serious conflagration was threatened. Ottawa was called on for aid, but by the time the first engine from Ottawa reached Hull, the fire was under control. The buildings destroyed were small dwellings owned by mill workers. The loss is $35,000. One hundred homeless persons are cared for by the city.

A fire at Coteau, Que., early in the day destroyed eight houses, causing a loss of $20,000.

Only phychologists and experts in mental phenomena could possibly analyze the causes which led the Winnipeg players to imagine they could make it three straight.

Diminutive Mr. Shaw, the new pitcher for Duluth, took the Champions out riding in the daffy wagon, letting them down with seven bleary singles. The locals won swiftly.

Under the field generalship of Capt. Murphy the Cardinals put ginger and speed into their work and instead of every man trying to hit the ball over the fence the batting efforts were directed along scientific lines.

Should the team continue this new order of things it is up to every ball crank in town to get their throat filed and grooved and see that his windjammer is in perfect working order. Rooting will be the law of the day and the citizen that does not contribute his share to the uproar will be denounced as a basely silent disturber.

Yesterday's shake-up seemed to be about what was needed. Murphy celebrated his promotion to field captain by using the cleverest kind of judgment in directing plays and with three men on bases in the sixth and the score two to nothing against Duluth he smashed out a life-sized double to left scoring three runs—enough to win the game.

But Shaw was the star performer. He reached Duluth shortly before noon yesterday tired after an all-night ride and when informed that he was to pitch against the heaviest hitting team in the league he seemed delighted. A little later in the day he had the aforesaid heaviest batters in the league blowing large holes in the vapor with their bats and the spectacle seemed even more pleasing to him than the rooters on the sun seats. He fields his position nicely, at times going over and backing up third, while at the bat the diminutive twirler laid a neat sacrifice and a single that brought in a run.

Smith, the new catcher, is Shaw's opposite physically. He is about six feet tall and for a big man has tremendous speed on the base. He caught a much better game than Rogers, the little Winnipeg backstop whose work has been considered so good during the series just closed. In the fifth inning he gave the first real exhibition in base stealing that has been seen here this year. He took a long lead off first and on the second ball pitched got away like a flash. With ordinary base running he would have been out by six feet, but somewhere between third and second Smith disappeared in a puff of dust and when he was sighted again he was safe on the bag, having slid in under Kelly. In the eighth he slashed out a screeching double to middle, scoring Shepard and scored a moment later on Shaws single to left. Single to left.

An error, a single and a double steal gave Winnipeg the first run. A base on balls and two singles gave the visitors the second in the sixth.

That same inning Duluth won the game. Murphy told every person to hunt. Kline hunted to Bemis who threw Harris out at third. Shepard's hot one to short knocked Annis off his feet and the bases were filled. Murphy then smashed his double to left, Kline, Shepard and Lambert crossing the plate. Olmstead beat out an infield hit and Murphy scored.

The Champions were hard losers. They tried to rattle Shaw but the youngster from Milwaukee who made Duluth famous regarded them as a bunch of comedians.

Shepard got back in the game and showed his old-time form much to the delight of many friends in the stands. He had two hits, two runs, and took six out of seven chances.

* *

Kline's unassisted double play in the sixth was a beauty. The bases were occupied by two Champions and only one man out. Bemis drove a fierce liner off toward right that looked good for a single. The men on bases began to move, but Kline putted down the hit and touched first ending the agony. If it had been necessary a triple play could have been worked as Eagan had a long lead off second.

* * *

Randall had the hardest kind of luck despite the fact that his father, mother, brothers, sisters and several cousins were in the grand stand to encourage him. Shaw struck him out twice.

* * *

O'Dea, of Winnipeg, has a batting average of .562 but that was prior to yesterday. Shaw struck him out in the eighth with ease. Another hard hitter whose past record was treated with contempt by the little twirler, was Annis. He has a batting average of .400, but that was also prior to yesterday.

Possibly the "knockers" will bury the hatchet or hammer now. The team has struck the pace that won't come off.

Grand Forks team came over from West Superior this morning for a three game series. They feel that Duluth's victory over Winnipeg yesterday gives them a look-in for first place again and were so anxious to win this afternoon's contest that they decided to put Sessions in the box. Mueller is pitching for Duluth.

Fargo is strengthening up its team having three or four new men in prospect.

CONVENTION CALLED.

Miners to Decide Whether to Suspend Work.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., June 4.—Tre district executive boards of the United Mine Workers of America yesterday issued a call for a convention, to be held at Pottsville, June 15. The object of the convention is to decide whether the miners shall suspend work pending the settlement of the difficulties existing in the conciliatory board.

PHYSICIAN SUICIDES.

Dr. Straw of Ashland, Wis., Cuts His Throat.

Ashland, Wis., June 4.—Dr. J. R. Straw, a prominent phsician of Ashland, was found dead in the bathroom of his residence yesterday, having cut his throat with a razor. He had locked himself in the room, held his head over the bath tub and then severing the carotid artery and jugular vein had bled to death. Dr. Straw formerly resided in Virginia, but came to Ashland from West Superior. Despondency is supposed to have caused the act.

LAND FRAUDS.

Many Discovered In the State of Oregon.

Portland, Orc., June 4.—Miss Mary Ware, who recently resigned as United States commissioner at Eugene, at the request of United States District Judge Bellinger, was arrested here yesterday. Miss Ware is charged with conspiracy to obtain government lands by fraud. Horace G. McKinley, a timber land locator, was arrested charged with making false affidavits in the office of the United States commissioner at Eugene. Special agents of the general land office have been investigating alleged timber frauds in this state for several months past. It is said that the fraudulent entry of lands in this state will run up into the thousands and that startling developments are expected.

COMFORTING WORDS

Many a Duluth Household Will Find Them So.

To have the pains and aches of a bad back removed; to be entirely free from annoying, dangerous urinary disorders is enough to make any kidney sufferer grateful. To tell how this great change can be brought about will prove comforting words to hundreds of Duluth readers.

Mrs. William Lynn, of 120 Third street west, says: "I suffered a great deal for many years with pains through my back and kidneys, especially if I caught cold or over-excited myself. I tired very easily and often, when working about the house, my back hurt me so that I was obliged to sit down and rest myself. I tried many remedies but could get nothing to relieve the trouble. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills highly recommended I procured a box at W. A. Abbetts' drug store and commenced using them. They acted like a charm, and in a few days I was much better. I continued the treatment until the trouble was banished and since then I have felt splendid."

FORGERY BY WHOLESALE

Le Sueur Man Successfully Worked By Agent For Three Years.

Le Sueur, Minn., June 4.—James A. Cosgrove, a prominent merchant of Le Sueur, brother of C. N. Cosgrove, of state fair board, may be out $5000 on account of wholesale forgery committed by one of his agents. There is some question as to whether he will lose the money or whether the Bank of Belle Plaine must stand the loss.

Cosgrove is an extensive wood dealer, and at the town of Blakeley was represented by a man named Schmidt, who bought wood for him. Schmidt would buy wood from a farmer and then notify Cosgrove how much was coming to the farmer, and Cosgrove would send him a check in favor of the farmer.

According to the allegations made by Cosgrove Schmidt would buy thirty cords of wood, and write him that he owed the man for sixty cords. When the check came he would forge the name of the man to whom the check was made payable, and then he would indorse the check himself and draw the money at the Belle Plaine bank.

One day Cosgrove spoke to a farmer about some wood Schmidt had bought, and the farmer said he had never sold Schmidt a stick of wood. Cosgrove investigated, and found that, where Schmidt should have 2400 cords of wood on hand, he had but 600 cords. This had been going on for some three years before Cosgrove became suspicious.

STATE PRISON TWINE PLANT

Will Save Farmers of Minnesota About $150,000 This Year.

St. Paul, June 4.—The state prison twine plant will this year save the farmers of Minnesota about $150,000. If it could supply the entire demand of the state it would save the farmers of the state over $300,000.

Warden Wolfer says that every pound of twin now on hand and every pound that can be manufactured, running at full capacity up to Aug. 1, has been sold direct to the farmers of the state.

The twine output from the prison will be a little more than 7,000,000 pounds.

The entire amount of twine used by the farmers of the state this year will be about 18,000,000 pounds.

At the present time the state is selling standard twine for 8¾ cents a pound, while the twine trust price is 10½ cents a pound.

The trust price is almost certain to go up. Owing to the jute strike the output has been restricted, and the manufacturers will take advantage of the scarcity of twine, the heavy demand and the fact that the prison twine is all sold. Those farmers who were so fortunate as not to get prison twine, will have to pay as high as 12 cents undoubtedly before the season is over.

The trust twine will be sent into the state in answer to the demands made after all the prison twine is used up. The price can be arbitrarily fixed, and the farmer must pay.

Next year the twine plant will manufacture 9,000,000 or 10,000,000 pounds, about one-half the total amount needed by the state.

SOUTH DAKOTA CROPS.

Weekly Report Shows Satisfactory Condition of Affairs.

The South Dakota crop report for the week ending Monday is as follows:

The temperature during the week averaged about the normal, with considerable cloudiness. There were general rains the forepart of the week, and generous to heavy rains in the extreme southeast portion of the state. The rains were generally beneficial, except in the lower James and Sioux River valley counties where they caused considerable low and flat land to continue too wet.

One the whole, wheat, oats, barley, rye, spelt and grasses made very satisfactory progress. Winter rye is heading and thick on the ground, and the other small grains are stooling well, especially wheat, and are in very healthy condition. Late sown grain is making good progress.

The completion of corn planting on low lands was further delayed by wet soil in some of the southeastern counties, but elsewhere planting progressed favorably and is nearly finished. Early corn is up generally; but there is some complaint of only fair stands, and some replanting is being done, because of poor seed, and two wet lowlands. Cultivation is in progress, except where it is too wet. Reports indicate that in the extreme southeastern counties some of the corn lands will be used for later crops.

Flax and millet sowing progressed favorably, and early sown flax is up and doing well.

Potato planting is nearly completed, and the growing crop is making very satisfactory progress.

Grass crops are in very good condition and pasturage is ample. The condition of range cattle is steadily improving.

In some Upper Missouri valley counties more rain would be beneficial.

There was some local hail, but no material damage is reported therefrom, except in Clay county.

SPECIFIC KIDNEY CURE!

These are some of the symptoms of chronic Disease of the Kidneys and Bladder: A Lame Back, Sharp or Dull Pain in the Loins, a Ropy, Milky or Brick Dust Sediment, Hot Scalding or Bloody Urine, Dribbling or inability to retain, Difficulty in starting or Pain and distress after; Dizziness, Spots before the Eyes, Palpitation of the Heart, Shortness of Breath, Puffiness of the Face or Eyelids, Swelling of the Limbs or Abdomen.

If you are suffering from any of these symtoms don't hesitate to consult a physician at once. Remember that Kidney Trouble is a fatal disease. It carries off thousands every year. This disease is little understood for the reason that few physicians will take the time to make a careful chemical analysis of the urine, and without this it is impossible to reach a correct diagnosis and without a correct diagnosis the case cannot be treated successfully. The careful manner in which I examine each case has enabled me to cure

Many Cases Considered Incurable.

Diabetes, Bright's Disease, Gravel or Stone in the Bladder, Stricture, Enlarged Prostate, Gleety Discharge, Sexual Weakness on account of their exceeding chronic nature, are often thought to be incurable. Let me tell you that such is not the case. You may have tried a hundred doctors or a hundred patent medicines without benefit.

Don't Despair. There Is Yet Hope.

Try, try again. Your life is still worth saving. If worth nothing to yourself, it may be to some one else. If some one would bid fifty or one hundred dollars for you you would feel insulted. Why not, then, spend that much to be cured? Don't go away to Hot Springs or sanitariums; you can be cured just as well at home and much cheaper.

THE WHOLE THING

Hanna Practically Controls the Ohio Republican Convention.

Outlines His Position For 1904 In Lengthy Speech.

Columbus, Ohio, June 4.—Hanna is it, and Hanna is for Roosevelt and against changing the present principles of the Republican party one iota. All this was settled yesterday at the opening of the Ohio state Republican convention.

Senator Hanna carried everything as far as committeemen were concerned. It is conceded that Hanna's friends control almost, if not all, of the twenty-one congressional districts. The meeting was given over to a speech by Senator Hanna and in his talk he clearly outlined his position as regards candidate and platform for the national campaign of 1904. The senator carried his audience in every sentence, and, apparently, they were with him, to a man.

There are few differences as to state nominations. It is settled that Myron T. Herrick, of Cleveland, shall receive the nomination for governor.

When J. B. Clingman, chairman of the state central committee, introduced Senator Hanna as temporary chairman, there was wild applause. Senator Hanna, after referring to the recent centennial celebration of Ohio and the record made by Ohio during the last 100 years, called attention to what the Republican party had done for Ohio and for the United States. Senator Hanna said:

"The Republican party laid the foundation stone of this republic. It placed human liberty and protection to American industries and American workingmen in the sacred archives of our country's history to serve as its foundation and since that time, stone by stone, has been added to that structure, every one as hard and indestructible as granite itself, every one composed of its component parts with a mixture of principles which fitted with and made up the whole and as it was raised year by year, tried by experience, encouraged by success. Today standing here in the presence of this great audience, let me point to that magnificent structure, the monument to the principles of the Republican party, and let that party write the inscription upon the base in letters that all who run may read, 'Hands off.' (Prolonged applause.)

"Time and patience have builded that structure. The blood and sweat of our best husbandry has contributed to it. If we are to have a new era or if the era of the twentieth century is to be a continuation of Republican prosperity, let these who were the workingmen upon that edifice 'stand guard.'" (Applause.)

The senator then paid a tribute to Governor Nash, saying of him: "Wise and conservative, always ready; always on hand at duty's call; always considerate of the whole people of his state, he has watched your interest with unremitting attention."

Senator Hanna then paid a tribute to Theodore Roosevelt in these words: "Republicans today can congratulate themselves that in the direction of national affairs they have realized all they hoped for and all they expected in the election of Theodore Roosevelt. (Applause.) We look back but a few short years ago when that young man, standing under the gloom of that awful tragedy at Buffalo, feeling and appreciating the responsibilities which had come upon him and in the face of the American people made that sacred promise to them that to the best of his ability, with his heart full of desire it should be his aim to carry out the policies of President McKinley. And how well he has succeeded we all know and we all feel as this convention will express an appreciation of that administration. We all realize to that young heroic president is due, as coming from his heart, the most patriotic, unselfish and energetic devotion to the interests of the people and the interest of his party. Standing in the presence of the American people and hearing those words—the solemn import of which undoubtedly impressed itself on all those who stood near, no one can doubt this motives or even his ambition. No one can place him in the category of a man whose ambition is greater than his patriotism. (Great applause.)

The senator said that people all over the United States were watching Ohio Republicans to see what principles would be announced for the national campaign in 1904. Then he inquired:

"Is there anybody in this great audience, yea, is there anybody in the state of Ohio who for one moment under all the conditions which have gone before, under all the environments of the present, under all the hopes of the future, can see one single cause as to why the Republican party should change one iota in its present principles of human liberty, protection to American industries and to our workingmen? We started with that slogan many years ago. It went forth and reached the hearths of every fireside in the land, and if we need any additional tribute or any accessory to add to the luster of that monument, it would be the culmination of happiness and contentment and prosperity everywhere around us. I once said: 'Let well enough alone.' For God's sake keep on letting it alone.

"If you considered from a practical standpoint which is best for your country, with the evidence of the past before you, with the object lessons around and with certain deductions as to the future which must follow sound reasoning and right principles, can we ever hope to place ourselves in a happier position as regards ourselves and our interest. I say to that, no, and therefore, in the opening of this state campaign, when we are called upon to voice our sentiment reflected from the people, so that it is their sentiment, and knowing full well and trusting in the intelligence of the people of the Buckeye state, are we not right, in this period of our history, in saying that we have redeemed prosperity and carried out every promise? (Applause.) And it was not the result of accident or circumstance. It was because the Republican party had found early in its existence the condition which governed the people, and had at first tried as an experiment and then after long years of experience had brought to its aid the best minds and counsel of our people, that had brought an irresistible Americanism which could not be checked, and I give notice to the Democratic party, 'If you get in the way we will run over you.'

"The people are not narrow in their line of reasoning. It is a matter of pride to us that the people of this country are so intelligent, and when I hear suggestions that the time may come as the result of this enormous influx of immigration that the spirit of Americanism may become contaminated, I say: 'No, no, my friend, the institutions of these United States are upon a surer foundation, and there is a bulwark built years ago which stands today stronger and stronger. That bulwark is our common schools, our institutions of education, so that we are adequately prepared for all assimilation that may be necessary for any and all who may come to our hospitable shores.'"

Senator Hanna then spoke of the greatness of the United States internally as to power, influence and wealth. He said that people were beginning to realize that all factors that contributed to our country's greatness were and should be of interest to both capital and labor. The day was dawning when all important questions of the relationship between capital and labor would be taken up, discussed and considered, not purely from the standpoint of politics, but also from the standpoint of humanity and of society. The senator concluded:

"I say now, beginning from the starting point of the twentieth century to all the people of the state and nation, this is an age of progress. The Republican party is in the lead, and we have no brass band ahead of us. We are going to follow along the lines and the straight path which we have trodden for nearly fifty years. You must accept results as proof, and if you consider not only your material interests, but also the best interests of society and the common country, you cannot fail to find yourselves useful in the ranks of the Republican party without regard to past affiliations, marching shoulder to shoulder with the soldiers who have won the battles and who are now leading on to new victories, with that banner floating aloft which displays the principles of the Republican party."

Almost every sentence of Senator Hanna's speech was interspersed with vociferous cheering. On the mention of President Roosevelt and the plea for standing "pat" on present principles, the audience rose and cheered for five minutes.

A HEART WAS MASSAGED

Surgeon Set It Going After It Had Stopped Beating.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 4.—At a recent clinic in England the operator actually started a man's heart working after its functions had ceased by massaging the vital organ with his hands, says the North American. It was at a meeting of the Society of Anaesthetists in England the other day that Dr. E. A. Starling reported the occurrence.

The case was that of appendicitis. The patient was a man 65 years of age. Ether and nitrous oxide were the anaesthetics employed to render him unconscious. It is always considered a risky matter to use the knife extensively upon a person over 60, and in this instance the operators were well prepared for emergencies. Therefore, when after the operation had proceeded for some minutes, the subject's pulse began to slacken and his breath to come faintly, there was no flurry among the surgeons or nurses assisting. At first they tried artificial respiration, drawing the tongue in and out to induce resumption of the natural functions. But the lungs failed to respond, and finally both pulse and respiration ceased.

Then the surgeon, W. Arbuthnot Lane, pushed his hand up through the abdominal wound and grasped the motionless heart through the diaphragm. He squeezed it and felt it start pulsating, though no radical pulse could be felt. Artificial respiration and other restoratives were continued, and in about twelve minutes natural respiration reappeared and the pulse became perceptible at the wrist.

After that the surgeon withdrew his knife as before the interruption and proceeded to complete his work in business-like fashion. He did not use an anaesthetic while performing the final work.

There was no complication in the case and the old man made what the doctors call "a good recovery." Commenting on the success of the experiment in this case, the Journal of the American Medical association says:

"This rough and ready method and its success in this case are suggestive of important possibilities, and demonstrate that cutting operations in these cases are not essential and can be avoided.

"The previous failures followed extensive exposures of the heart either by its resection or incision through the diaphragm, as recommended by Maunsiaire (in two cases). This of itself introduces a serious complication, and Lane's success was probably mainly due to his avoidance of this. The case, as the Lancet remarks, 'justifies us in saying that, if during laparotomy the patient's heart stops, the case should never be abandoned as hopeless until manual compression performed.'"

ROBBED BY A VALET.

Blind Millionaire's Employe Stole Diamond Ring.

New York, June 4—Harry Sobel, 22 years old, valet to W. I. Moore, the blind millionaire broker, was arraigned in the West Side police court charged with grand larceny. The complaint was made by Mrs. Elizabeth Daily, Mr. Moore's sister, who lives with him at 131 West Seventy-second street.

On March 30, says the Evening Sun, Mrs. Daily missed a diamond ring valued at about $150. The valet was suspected, but when taxed with the theft denied all knowledge of it. Detective Scargeant Peabody, who was put on the case, kept watch on Sobel, and from the bad companions he kept decided that he had taken the ring.

The valet was arrested. He finally told Peabody that he had stolen the ring and that he had given it to his mother, who lives at Sixty-third street and Second avenue. Peabody recovered the ring.

In court Mr. Moore told Magistrate Hogan that Sobel had plenty of opportunities to steal a great deal more if he had wished, but that he had always been honest in the past. He wanted to withdraw the complaint. The magistrate granted the request and discharged Sobel.

A prominent Southern lady, Mrs. Blanchard, of Nashville, Tenn., tells how she was cured of backache, dizziness, painful and irregular periods by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"Gratitude compels me to acknowledge the great merit of your Vegetable Compound. I have suffered for four years with irregular and painful menstruation, also dizziness, pains in the back and lower limbs, and fitful sleep. I dreaded the time to come which would only mean suffering to me. Six bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound brought me health and happiness in a few short months, and was worth more than months under the doctor's care, which really did not benefit me at all. I feel like another person now. My aches and pains have left me. I am satisfied there is no medicine so good for sick woman as your Vegetable Compound, and I advocate it to my lady friends in need of medical help."—MRS. B. A. When women are troubled with menstrual irregularities, weakness, leucorrhœa, displacement or ulceration of the womb, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation of the ovaries, backache, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

IS GROWING FINELY

Hibernians Are Pleased With Development of Their Order.

Steps Are Taken Toward Arranging For Their Annual Picnic.

Division No. 1, A. O. H., held a regular meeting in Odd Fellows' hall last evening and it was largely attended. Ten candidates were initiated into the order and a number of new applications were received. The degree team of the order exemplified the first and second degrees and the ceremonies were conducted in a most impressive manner.

President F. L. Ryan, who has been touring the northern part of the state for the past week, gives a glowing account of the spread of Hibernianism and reports a great increase in the ranks of the A. O. H. On an average 200 members a month have been initiated since the last state convention of the order. He had the pleasure of meeting State President Regan during his trip, and the state officer congratulated the local president on the splendid record that St. Louis county is making.

Duluth Hibernians are justly proud of their rapid increase in membership, and especially of the excellent set of officers and committees at the head of them, who are most active in the work of building up divisions of the order at the head of the lakes, which will keep in line with the progress of the cities in which they are instituted. There is a possibility that a division will soon be organized at Two Harbors, and Division No. 1, of this city, will take up the matter.

A committee has been appointed to make arrangements for the annual picnic of the society. These outings are always happy affairs and are looked forward to with pleasure by the Hibernians and their friends. This event will be in keeping with past ones and nothing will be left undone to make it a most successful one in every particular.

AT CLOQUET.

Cloquet, Minn., June 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—O. W. Topping, of Duluth, was a business caller in the city Tuesday.

A. C. Brace, of Floodwood, was looking over business matters in Cloquet yesterday.

Dr. A. E. Johnson left Monday evening for an extended trip to the Pacific coast.

The Supreme Lodge of S. A. C. F., representing four states, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin, Michigan and Minnesota, are holding their national convention in this city this week.

A. Shannon left yesterday for Mountain Iron where he will be employed during the summer months.

Another garbled account of baseball played in Cloquet appeared in The News Tribune of Duluth the day following the game between the locals and Hins of Duluth. The score was given in detail by innings and the totals were footed as 8 to 6 in favor of Cloquet, whereas the proper score was 21 to 6. To one acquainted with the facts, this continuous and persistent misrepresentation appears ridiculous. An effort was made in the article to show that the Duluth pitcher was in fine form, only ten hits being made off his delivery, whereas the score shows that Cloquet batted him for a total of more than thirty safe ones. The line-up was entirely removed, and the item in general was as far off as it could well have been. Cloquet people are desirous that the facts be published and care little for a sheet that persists in making false representations.

Pete Dempsey left this week for the Embarras where he will be employed for some time in the construction of a dam for the Northern Lumber company.

Isaac Summerfield made a business trip to Duluth this week.

Tom Morgan spent a few hours in the city Tuesday.

Miss Irene Peache, of Hay Lake, was calling on friends in Cloquet Wednesday.

Miss Rosina Sarette and Alfred J. Lee were married in the Roman Catholic church Wednesday morning by Rev. Father Giraux. Both parties are well and favorably known in the city. The bride was attended by Miss Margaret Kelly while E. E. Davis acted as best man. The bride was gowned in a creation of crepe de chine and carried roses. The bridesmaid was attired in a gown of Nile green. The ceremony was performed at 9 o'clock and a large number of invited guests attended. A wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents on Avenue A. The happy couple then left for St. Paul and other points on their honeymoon trip. They will make their future home at Carlton.

G. W. Rodenberg, of St. Paul, was looking over business matters in the city this week.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

The village of Briggs, Queens county, N. B., was wiped out by fire Friday afternoon. The loss is probably $30,000 of $40,000.

Montreal is surrounded with forest fires which have wrought havoc in several settlements of the province. Wednesday the city was enveloped in a pall of smoke so deep, that the sun was obscured from view.

It was announced authoritatively at Washington that Secretary Moody, of the navy, would not remain in the cabinet longer than the present term of President Roosevelt. Mr. Moody expects then to resume the practice of law.

The protected cruiser Minneapolis, for some time the receiving ship at the League Island navy yard, has been placed out of commission and her officers and crew transferred to the monitor Puritan. This action was taken because of the infection of the Minneapolis. That vessel after undergoing repairs will be subjected to a thorough cleaning.

CHURCHES WILL UNITE.

United Brethern and Methodist Protestant Join Forces.

Baltimore, Md., June 3.—The committee composed of representatives of the United Brethren, Methodist, Protestant and Congregational churches, appointed to work out a basis of union between the three denominations, was in session from Wednesday until Friday of last week in the First Congregational church of Washington, D. C. The meetings were held behind closed doors and but little has been given out to the public. It was learned here yesterday however, that no basis of union could be effected that would be satisfactory to the Congregationalists, and no further effort to include them in the uniting bodies will be pushed.

But the United Brethren and Methodist Protestant churches evidently mean business and are making substantial progress toward union. Bishop Mills, of Annville, Pa.; Dr. W. L. Weekly and W. R. Fink, of Dayton, Ohio; Rev. F. S. Tagg, of Baltimore; Dr. M. L. Jennings and Dr. George Schaffer, of Pittsburg, Pa., were appointed a committee to draft a constitution for the church. They will be ready to report in January.

The name agreed upon for the united church is kept secret.

GREAT FOREST FIRES

Are Raging Throughout the State of Maine.

Portland, Maine, June 4.—Maine is burning from one side to the other and in almost every section. Thousands of dollars worth of property and valuable timber land are destroyed hourly by forest fires, and there is little prospect for changed conditions until rain has soaked the ground and woodlands. At least thirty fires had been reported tonight and many others are raging. The fire line at Bemis and Rangley lake extends from one to twelve miles and in some places is more than two miles in depth.

Fires had been reported tonight as burning in the vicinity of the following towns: Rangley, Bemis, Bath, Topsham, Portland, St. Stephen, N. B.; Millbridge, Livermore Falls, Lovell, Demark, Waterford, Bradton, Kineo, Greenville Junction, Ellsworth, Millinocket, Gardiner, Pittston, Benton, N. B.; Houlton, Monticello, Littleton, Ludlow, Bridgewater, York, Smyrna Mills, Presque Isle, Old Orchard, Clinton, Bunham and Rome.

ASSAILANT PUNISHED.

Kiel, June 3.—A seaman of the German navy named Andreas Messerschmidt, was sentenced by a naval courtmartial today to eighteen months' imprisonment for striking Ensign Von Abel on May 2, at Kiel. The case has been widely commented upon because of Von Abel's suicide after he found he was unable to identify the man who assaulted him and personally avenge himself.

Farmer Cured of Rheumatism.

"A man living on a farm near here came in a short time ago completely doubled up with rheumatism. I handed him a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and told him to use it freely, and if not satisfied after using it, he need not pay a cent for it," says C. P. Rayder, of Pattens Mills, N. Y. "A few days later he walked into the store as straight as a string and handed me a dollar, saying, 'Give me another bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. I want it in the house all the time, for it cured me.'" For sale by all druggists.

BUNKO MEN SWINDLE

Postmasters By the Sale of Bogus Postage Stamps.

Victims Get Usual Bundle of Sawdust and Waste Paper.

Washington, June 4.—Uncle Sam's shrewd postoffice inspectors have taken their hats off to the latest swindling scheme of notorious green goods men, of which they have just learned. Naturally men of nerve, though not necessarily brave, the new mark of genius which the accomplished bunko steerers have shown is much the "cheekiest" thing they have ever done, as it is the most clever.

It is the postmasters in cities with populations of from 8000 to 30,000 on whom the kings among the green goods men are now centering their wits and circulars marked "confidential" in large letters inside and outside are sent to them by the thousand from New York. Postmasters in smaller towns would not be so strongly appealed to by the plan on account of the increased chances of detection, if nothing else, and the sharpers seem to think it unsafe to fool with those in the larger cities. The circulars recite, in glittering terms, that the sender has come into possession of a large quantity of 1 and 2-cent stamps which he is anxious to sell to the right parties at bargain prices. They do not say whether the stamps were stolen or are counterfeits.

A few stamps, genuine, of course, are enclosed as samples, and the postmaster is told that he can have them at the rate of $1000 worth for $250 in cash, $500 worth for $400 or $2000 worth for $500. It is suggested that he can easily dispose of a large amount of them without any suspicion resulting from the falling off in his purchases from the government. If any questions should be asked he could satisfactorily account for the slight discrepancy by assigning the fluctuation of trade as the cause. To consummate the deal the postmaster is told that it will be necessary for him to come to New York, "so we can see you face to face and can see that you are a man to be trusted and not a government spy."

When the "innocent" postmaster bites, as some of them have, and goes to New York, he is met and identified in the usual way of the green goods men, and escorted by a roundabout way to a remote back office, into which he is ushered with a great show of secrecy. But with the door locked behind him everything is open and above board. Thousands of dollars' worth of stamps, chiefly in 1 and 2-cent denominations, are spread out for inspection and selection. They stand all comparisons for the good reason that they are genuine.

The postmaster picks out what he wants, pays his good money for them, and they are wrapped up under his very eyes. It is at this stage of the proceedings that the victim looks for trickery, if at all, and he is all eyes and ears. But there is no sign of deception, and to prove that they are perfectly honest the swindlers allow the postmaster to wrap up his purchase with his own hands if he cares to. They merely direct how it shall be done in the way best calculated to disarm suspicion. After being enveloped in soft wrappings the stumps are finally securely done up in heavy paper of unusual color and texture, tied with red tape, such as lawyers use, and sealed at every point where the fastenings cross.

The postmaster is told to leave the city on the first train so there will be no possible chance of discovery, and is cautioned above all else not to open the package until he is safe in the privacy of his own office, with the door locked. One of the gang volunteers to accompany him to the depot to see that he does not fall into the hands of the sharpers who are always on the lookout for strangers and who might try to rob him. He grips his package under his arm, shakes hands, is cheerily told to "come again when you need more," and starts out with his guide. As they reach the street a carriage is seen driving slowly along.

"I guess we can afford a hack on this deal," suggests the guide as he whistles at the driver of the innocent-looking rig. It all happens naturally enough, and by this time the postmaster's suspicions, if he had any, have disappeared. They occupy the rear seat and the package is placed between them, or perhaps on the victim's knees. As the hack rattles along they talk of how easy it is to make money if one only knows how. Then the carriage encounters something of a crowd at a crossing.

"Great heavens!" suddenly gasps the guide, as he glances out of the window, "there's the chief of detectives."

Like a flash he raises the cushion of the front seat and throws the bundle of stamps beneath it. The postmaster is too badly frightened by his companion's words and actions to offer any protest, and is thinking only of the exposure that would follow his arrest. In a moment, when the hack has cleared the crowd, the guide peers cautiously out of the window, gives a deep sigh of relief, raises the cushion again and hands out the package.

"Jimminy, but that was a close shave," he says as he wipes his forehead. "The chief looked straight at me and I was sure he recognized me. But he didn't or he would have had us by this time. You can't be too careful in this business."

The postmaster agrees with him, and his nerves are not restored to anything like their normal condition until his new-found friend has put him on his train and he is headed safely for home. Upon his arrival there he locks himself in his office, breaks the seals on his package and spreads out the contents, only to make the horrifying discovery that sheets of cheap brown paper have taken the place of the stamps. Then it is for the postmaster to groan and marvel at the wickedness of man. He cannot complain, for to admit that he had been victimized while trying to buy stamps for one quarter or less of their value would mean the loss of his official head.

When the guide tossed the package under the seat at sight of the imaginary officers at a point that had been previously agreed on he threw the top of the seat down with a bang that the trained ear of the driver was quick to catch. Instantly he pressed a lever with one foot and let the bundle fall into another opening below. When he released the lever the bottom flew back and locked. Then he pushed another lever with his other foot and the front wall below the seat opened and a package, which was the exact counterpart of the other in exterior appearance—filled in precisely the same manner, with the same red tape and sealed with the same wax—rolled under the seat. With the raising of the lever the second opening closed and locked, and a crack of the driver's whip told his confederate inside that the transfer was complete. Then, with the imaginary detective out of sight, the top of the seat was again raised and the postmaster was handed his package. This time it contained only the paper he found when he reached home, but the play had been so cleverly worked that he had no suspicion that he was not in possession of the stamps he had just paid for.

JANITORS STRIKE.

Object to the Transfer of One of Them.

Chicago, June 3.—Flat janitors, employed in sixty buildings, controlled by W. A. Merrigold & Co. have been ordered on strike. Twenty men have stopped work, leaving elevators idle, cold water in the hot water pipes and the halls uncleaned. Residents of the north and south sides are affected by this contest and may be cut off from food supplies, inasmuch as the grocery and milk wagon drivers are in an alliance with the flat janitors.

Harry Janeycke was ordered to move from the building in which he was janitor and to take charge of another one, which he refused to do. His discharge followed and the union men voted a strike.

BARABOO'S MINES

Four Hundred Foot Shaft Sunk on Bob Whiteside's Property.

United States Steel Corporation Is Securing Options on Lands.

Milwaukee, June 4.—A Baraboo dispatch to the Sentinel says: One hardly can conceive of the Baraboo River valley, one of the beauty spots of Wisconsin, being transformed from a region of fertile fields and gently sloping hillsides into one of the most important mining centers of this country, but this conception will find its realization in actual fact within the next few years. This prediction concerning the immediate future of this section is not based upon conjecture alone, but upon actual conditions as they exist today and upon definite explorations and surveys already made. In addition to these evidences, there is a mine in operation and a stockpile of ore of between 4000 and 500 tons taken from the mine in sinking the shaft and in making preliminary development.

Up to the present time only a partial exploration and survey has been made of the section included in a territory length and from one to three miles in approximately thirty-five miles in width, extending diagonally across Sauk county, and following the line of the Baraboo quartzite hills.

This exploration and work has largely been done in the vicinity of North Freedom and for some time diamond and churn drills have been operating with a view of definitely locating the ore beds. This work for three years has been conducted in a systematic manner, and deposits of high grade ore hundreds of acres in extent have been located in the vicinity of North Freedom. Similar work is being done from a point west of North Freedom to within a few miles of Baraboo, and explorations are soon to be made in the territory east of Baraboo.

It will be the purpose of the writer to describe the work done and the findings made as reported by reliable men within the North Freedom district, embracing a radius of territory from two to three miles in extent and lying principally southwest of the village. It is here that the mine, which is now producing the ore, is located and where the largest amount of drilling has been done, as well as where the principal ore field has been defined up to this time. Other work of exploration through the iron formation is more in the nature of experimental soundings, although the claim is made with uniformity that high grade ore deposits have been found and that the work of mining soon will begin.

The principal operator in the new iron fields at the present time is the Illinois Iron Mining company, consisting of the stockholders of the Deering Harvester company, of Chicago. This company is operating under a lease ratified last month secured from W. G. La Rue, Herman Grotophorst and R. B. Whiteside, of Duluth, the owners of the fee, and who, about three years ago, organized a corporation to explore the field.

After carrying on the work of exploration for a time, the men named gave the Deering people an option for a lease and the lease was made last month. It is upon this property, consisting of 420 acres, that a 400-foot shaft has been sunk and a full mining equipment has been installed. While the work of actual mining has not begun, as said above, between 4000 and 5000 tons of high grade ore have been taken from this mine and can be seen on the dump pile. This ore was taken from the mine in the work incidental to drifting and cross-cutting. The exploration of this property was made with a diamond drill and the ore deposit was encountered at varying depths ranging from 100 to 300 feet.

At the present time the work is being done upon a deposit 100 feet wide, consisting of forty feet of high grade ore and sixty feet of shipping ore. From the surveys and developments made at this mine it is estimated that the Illinois Iron Mining company has at least 2,000,000 tons of high grade ore in sight and many million tons of lower grade commercial ore. Permanent improvements in the nature of an engine and hoisting house are being made, and the machinery is being placed. The mine is ready to produce 500 tons of ore daily as soon as the necessary railroad connection is made for shipment of the product.

The Wisconsin Iron Mining company, of which B. C. Dean is president, H. H. Thomas, secretary, and M. L. Patterson, treasurer, and with whom other Baraboo men are associated, has expended approximately $20,000 in diamond drill work, and the claim is made that one of the richest as well as most extensive deposits in the field has been located. The deposits controlled by this company are said to aggregate 7,000,000 tons of ore. The Iroquois Iron company, of Chicago, in which some of the principal iron men of Chicago are interested, including M. C. Armour, William A. Rogrs and Gorg A. Tripp, has also made extensive explorations and expended many thousand dollars in drilling operations.

It is claimed that the company have developed deposits of from 2,000,000 to 3,000,000 tons of high grade ore on its holdings. The Patterson Iron company, consisting of Baraboo men, also has done considerable work of development and report excellent showings on the property. The Sauk county Land and Mining company, which was organized and is owned by Messrs. La Rue, Grotophorst, and Whiteside, has optioned considerable land to different companies and individuals and explorations are being made of these tracts.

The Flewelling Development company is carrying on considerable work, and is said to be operating in the interest of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad, the leases being transferred to President Earling. There are any number of smaller concerns and many of the large steel and iron companies, including the United States Steel corporation, the Pittsburg Steel works, John C. Spry, of Chicago, and others, have representatives in the field securing options for land upon which to make explorations. Officers of the large iron and steel concerns of the country have inspected the ground, and after inspection, have sent their representatives to secure options.

It should be understood that the above list only includes the principal concerns and individuals operating in the district. It does not include the scores of men who are interested in smaller corporations or as individuals who have been canvassing every farm owner for an option upon his land. It is said that there scarcely is a tract of land within the limits of the iron formation bounded by the quartzite ranges that is not covered by an option.

Some idea can be gained of the option dealing by stating that one of the farmers was offered $125,000 for an option on his farm of 160 acres and 20 cents a ton royalty on all ore, and in addition was given a bonus of $2000 for the option. Ever since the first definite discovery of high grade ore, the entire section included within the limits of the Baraboo river valley has been canvassed and recanvassed by option seekers, and it is doubtful if there is a farm within the territory that is not fully covered.

It is difficult to estimate the amount actually expended by the different concerns and individuals in prospecting and land purchases, but it is said that the Illinois company has spent a quarter of a million dollars up to this time. Those who have purchased the fee were able to secure the same before the konwledge of the discovery of high grade ore became general, and thus avoided paying exorbitant prices for land.

DRESS FIVE TIMES A DAY

Result of Order Issued By the War Department.

Washington, June 4.—Officers of the army and navy on duty in the war department wear uniforms the same as if they were on duty at military posts. Occasionally an officer is found who does not appear in uniform, but it is only for a day or two at most. The practice has resulted in making nearly every room occupied by officers a dressing room, where wardrobes are kept, says the Post. Most officers dislike to appear on the street in uniform; it makes them too conspicuous. Uniforms for use in the department are kept in a wardrobe, and the officers put them on when they arrive in the morning, take them off and don civilian dress to go to luncheon, and upon their return in the afternoon and departure for home later go through the same process. They don't like it, but it is an order. For people doing business at the department it is much better, for a stranger knows whether he is talking to an officer or a clerk, and if familiar with the emblems can tell the rank of the officer.

Several attempts have been made to have an order issued in the navy department which would direct officers on duty there to wear their uniforms, but the officers have always made it plain that such an order would not be best.

"It is all very well," said an officer of the army, "so far as discipline is concerned, but uniforms are not needed in the department or about headquarters in a city. In garrisons, where the uniform is worn all the time and where all men are soldiers, it is, of course, a good practice and essential, but it is a great annoyance in other places, where only a few men are in uniform out of several hundred thousand."

COURT FREES ACCUSED LOVER

Futile Effort of Girl's Parent to Stop Courtship.

Newark, N. J., June 4—Edward Bawling 20 years old, of 214 West Kinney street, who is employed as a salesman in a Market street department store, was arraigned before Judge Lambert in the Fourth precinct police court this morning on a charge made by David Arbeitel, 50 years old, of 25 Clayton street. The latter alleged that the defendant had threatened to kill him. Bawling's arrest was the sequel to a parent's energetic but futile efforts to end a clandestine courtship, and in the criminal proceedings he also met defeat, for the judge discharged the accused because of lack of evidence.

According to the story told in the police court, says the News, Bawling became engaged to Arbeitel's daughter three years ago. The young couple fell in love while serving behind adjoining counters in a Market street store. At first Bawling was a welcome visitor at the Arbeitel home, but finally it was suspected that something more than a mere friendship was being entertained by the young people, and Arbeitel informed Bawling that he must stay away from the house.

The daughter, whose name is Dora, objected to the interference of her father, and clandestine meetings were arranged between her lover and herself. Arbeitel heard of these occurrences, and meeting the two one night on Washington street he belabored Bawling with a fence picket, and took his daughter home with him. Then the young man and young woman contented themselves by writing letters to each other.

But Arbeitel was still watchful and he intercepted several of these letters, and in them, he says, the young man told the daughter that he would kill her father if the latter did not favor his suit. These missives were shown Justice Cohen, and yesterday Bawling was arrested and spent last night in jail.

Judge Lambert, to whom was shown letters said to have been the same on which the issuing of the warrant was based, was unable to find anything in them that might be construed as a threat.

LUXURIES ON BATTLESHIPS

Modern Warship Carries 350 Tons of Unnecessary Articles.

Washington, June 4.—Rear Admiral Bowles, chief of the bureau of construction, has made a calculation based on investigations made by officers of his bureau of the weight of "luxuries" carried on a battleship of recent construction. In the preparations of plans and designs for war vessels there is almost a constant contention between the several bureaus in regard to the weight that should be carried, each branch contending for the installation of machinery and devices deemed essential. These controversies are usually settled by a compromise, in which something is yielded by each, but the result is often unsatisfactory and not infrequently has proved detrimental to the efficiency of the vessel.

At a recent meeting of the board of construction, according to the Star, Admiral Bowles declared that on each battleship there were 350 tons of luxuries, a statement which startled the members of the board. Included in these so-called luxuries are materials of every description that cannot be classified as necessities, such as furniture, ice machines, refrigerators, radiators, and the machinery required for them.

It is pointed out that flagships are supplied with two bathrooms and appurtenances for the flag officer, while one bath tub is deemed sufficient for the wardroom, in which fifteen or twenty officers live. There will be undoubtedly a protracted discussion as to what constitutes luxuries, but officers generally believe that much of the weights which Admiral Bowles described might be abolished and the space given to what may be called necessities.

There will be little discussion outside of the flag rank as to the necessity for two bath tubs in the elegant and spacious quarters set apart for the admiral. The additional bath is provided for the guest of the admiral in case he should have one, which seldom happens.

ANOTHER BULGE

Wheat Has an Advance, With St. Louis In the Lead.

Markets Follow Damage Reports—Flax Is Active and Stronger.

Duluth Board of Trade, June 4.—This was another day for bulls in the wheat market and good advances were made in all markets. St. Louis led again and is now up about 11 cents from the low point on its July option. The reports of crop damage were thick and this was the bullish influence. The Missouri state report was out and it reduced the crop condition from 86 to 65, a decline of 17 points. The Ohio report was also somewhat bullish, reducing the condition of wheat 6 points. Argentine reports were somewhat bearish, also Bradstreets estimating shipments this week of 80 bushels, against 1,830,000 bushels last week. The weather in Argentine is also reported unfavorable. Receipts were light.

There were bearish influences as well as bullish but the trade follows the weather entirely now. Minneapolis was inclined to drag. Two of the Pillsbury flour mills have closed down because of light business and an increase in Minneapolis stocks is predicted for this week. Clearances were small and the cash demand is poor. The foreigners are not disposed apparently to follow the advance. There were advices from some St. Louis sources, too, which were not so bullish as the course of that market would seem to indicate, their idea being it was time for a reaction and that puts seemed to be bought for a few days.

The Liverpool market closed with an advance of ½d. Paris was 5c to 15c higher and Antwerp unchanged.

Primary receipts of wheat were 526,000 bushels, last year 588,000 bushels. Shipments were 238,000 bushels, last year 500,000 bushels. Clearances of wheat and flour were 193,000 bushels.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis were 670 cars, and at Chicago 218, a total of 198 cars, against 795 last week and 256 last year.

Corn in Liverpool market was 1@2d higher and in the Chicago market July was up 1@1c. July oats advanced 2@2½c. Primary receipts of corn were 693,000 bushels, last year 357,000 bushels. Shipments 232,000 bushels, last year 240,000 bushels. Clearances were 240,000 bushels.

The Duluth wheat market was fairly active and strong. July wheat purchased at 70½c sold at 75½@75¾c at 9:30, at 70½c at 10:40 and 76¾c at 11:05. At 12:17 it sold at 80c and at 12:57 at 80½c. At the close it sold at 80½c and that was the closing price. This was an advance of 10c. September advanced 10@10c in Chicago July advanced 10c and September 7½c. At one time September was up 2½@2c while July's extreme rise was 12c. Minneapolis July advanced 12@12c and September 11c, and in New York the July made an advance of 13c and September 11c. In the St. Louis market the advance in July was 12c and in September 12c.

Cash business picked up somewhat, sales being 35,000 bushels. Prices continued at 4c over July for No. 1 northern and 12c under for No. 2.

Flax was very active and stronger, July sold it up to $1.13¾, fell back to $1.13¾ and closed at $1.13¾. This was an advance of 3c. September made the same advance and October was up 3c.

There was an advance of 2c in rye.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat—To arrive, No. 1 hard, 81c; No. 1 northern, 81c; No. 2 northern, 79c; July, 80½c; September, 79¾c. Flax in store, $1.13; on track, $1.13; to arrive, $1.13. July, $1.12½; September, $1.15; October, $1.14¾; November, $1.14. Oats, to arrive, 36c; on track, 36c. Rye, to arrive, 50½c; on track, 50½c. Barley, 36@50c.

Close, wanted. Wheat, 9; last year, 4; oats, 2; barley, 1; flax, 3; last year 2.

Receipts—Wheat, 33,423; oats, 3962; barley, 936; flax, 21,062.

Shipments—Wheat, 31,264.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Bullish Sentiment In Wheat With Good Demand.

Chicago, June 4.—There was a bullish sentiment in the wheat pit the early part of the day, opening prices being strong with July 1@1½c higher, at 75c to 75⅛@¾c. There was a good demand from commission houses and local traders, and with light offerings the market developed a still firmer tone, the bullish Missouri crop report, light receipts and threatening weather being responsible for the better demand. After selling at 75⅝@76 shortly after the opening, July advanced to 76¾c and held strong at the advance. Minneapolis and Duluth reported receipts of 170 cars, which with local receipts for the three points of 198 cars, against 166 cars last week and 256 cars a year ago.

There was a big trade in wheat the latter half of the day and prices were strong on continued reports of enormous damage by the floods. July sold up to 76¾c and closed at 76@76c, a gain of 1¾c for the day.

Higher cables, bullish crop advices and smaller receipts caused strength in corn. July opening unchanged to ⅝c up to 47¾@48⅛c. There was a good general demand from commission houses and shorts, and after selling at 48¼c, July steadied around 48c. Local receipts were 222 cars, with fourteen of contract grade.

July corn was in active demand and the price advanced steadily until 49c was reached. There was a little recession near the end of the day and the close was 10@12c higher at 48¾@48c.

Trading in oats was light the first part of the day, but a bullish sentiment again prevailed and special features and prices showed little change. After opening a shade lower to a shade higher at 34¾@35c, July held firm around 35¾c. Local receipts were 117 cars.

A big run of hogs, together with lower prices at the yards caused an easier tone in provisions at the start and the selling was quite general. The market lacked any definite support and a still further decline resulted in the whole list. September pork opened 2½c lower at $16.85.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The market was very active with a broad general trade. There are complaints of damage by rust in the Southwest and reports from Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Missouri all indicate a rapid increase of damage. The floods in the Mississippi and Missouri valleys will also ruin many thousands of acres of wheat. The country is buying on it both here and in the Southwest markets, and St. Louis continues to lead the advance. The cash situation is quiet for the moment, and foreign markets so far show no inclination to respond to the strength here. They are usually slow to do this under such conditions. It looks to us like a bull market for the time being, and we would buy wheat on the breaks. Estimated cars, 38.

Corn—The market was very active and strong. There was showery weather West and large country offerings and local buying of corn. On these conditions the cash position is of little importance. The market is likely to continue to be a weather market for some time to come, and until the conditions improve, corn should probably be bought on the breaks. Estimated cars, 415.

Oats—The market was active and strong. There is not so much complaint in respect of conditions of the crop, and while reports are generally improving. Price Current says it is still below an average. Strength in corn helped the price of oats, but the sentiment among the strong class of local operators is still bullish. Estimated cars, 156.

* * *

McKinnon, Chicago: We are getting some very bullish advices on wheat. Well informed Indiana people say the crop in that state is about as poor as could be and the reports from Missouri, Illinois and Ohio are anything but satisfactory. The best and most successful wheat trader in the Southwest are bulling wheat on this condition, but local traders are inclined to fight any advance. If these reports we get are true, the local crowd will wake up to the situation when the price is materially higher.

* * *

St. Louis wires: A letter here from Indian Territory says that the territory will not raise over 25 per cent of wheat crop. Plant full of rust right up to the head and the writer says it looks more like a failure than for past twenty-two years. Damage reports and buying orders coming in from several directions.

Cincinnati Price Current: Winter wheat condition is lowered somewhat but moderately above average. Spring wheat favorable. Corn planting seriously retarded. Much replanting. Extent of acreage unsettled. Early planted generally good stand but weedy. Oats improving. Still below average.

Harris, Gates & Co.: Wheat—Foreign markets continue rather indifferent to our weather conditions. There were renewed statements yesterday of foreigners offering to resell purchases made some time ago at prices below ours. New export engagements were light. There is a prospect of somewhat larger receipts in the Northwest. Floods, of course, have done great damage to winter wheat in the lowlands. There is some rain again in the Southwest this morning. St. Louis continues to send the worst reports.

A. H. Farnum, Chicago: I know corn is up 3 cents but for all that the conditions that exist will bring more buying than selling orders here and the result is likely to be a further advance. Longs keep taking profits, selling round lots, especially of September corn. Market absorbs it easily and keeps firm. The more we hear from Iowa, Nebraska and Kansas the stronger our market will be, I think.

Chicago Record-Herald: The Ohio state crop report for June wired here by Kilg, of Toledo, made the winter wheat condition .89 a drop of 5 points from May. The report says the decline was in the ten days the result of the dry weather of May. All the St. Louis talent is in accord on the wheat crop situation this year, Spencer, Green and the other leaders are all there. Green sent Howard B. Jackson yesterday the following: "The writer took a trip to Indianapolis over the Big Four, returning over Van Wert, Ohio, and at the same time sent a man over the Illinois Central to Cairo and over the Mobile & Ohio and another one out through Missouri. From personal observation and reports of these men we do not see how it will be possible for us to raise over 60 per cent of a red winter wheat crop."

The total sales were 767,000 shares.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market is again heavy and lower. There is enough bad crop news to cause some liquidation and to encourage the bear element. Money is a little firmer and there are vague rumors of somebody in trouble. The latter cannot be traced to any definite source. All this keeps the feeling unsettled and nervous. We do not, however, feel like advising sales of stocks at this time. The effect of failures, unless very large, is unimportant. Firmer money will tend to shut off gold exports. We would rather buy good stocks on the breaks.

* * *

New York to W. H. Laidley & Co.: A further sharp advance in Twin City occurred on buying of a very good character by those who believe that liquidation carried the price too low. It is reported that Philadelphia crowd bought 2500 shares on decline. The buying of Canadian Pacific was also described as good buying. It is said that controlling interests in Sloss were generally opposed to the wild bullish speculation carried on in that stock and have decided to stop it. The buying in this last break is said to have emanated from good sources.

* * *

New York to Paine, Webber & Co.: The Chronicle says: "A high official of the St. Paul road yesterday denied positively that the directors had disposed of any of their $25,000,000 stock issue authorized by the stockholders last fall. He said that some of the stock probably would be issued later in the year but just when the issue would be or what its amount would be he was unable to state. He also said he had no reason to believe that any of the interests identified with the St. Paul had purchased large amounts of Erie for the account of St. Paul road."

* * *

Waldorf to Coe Commission Co.: Comment on the market reflects the confident belief that but for the news of a threatened strike of anthracite miners speculation at the stock exchange would have almost been buoyant. As it was the unfavorable labor developments did not deter strong people from buying stocks and it is these purchases more than those made to cover short contracts which leading brokers said last night gave strength to the market in the face of strike news and the engagement of nearly $5,000,000 gold for export to Europe. As to the probable price movement good opinion is that while reactions are inevitable the real tendency of the market from now on will be upward, barring, of course, a strike of miners in Pennsylvania, which is regarded as unlikely. Subsistance of floods, improving crop prospects and the splendid showing of net earnings reported this week for April are believed to be more potent influences at the present low range of prices than those which make for depression, such as the gold exports and the hardening rates for money. Apropos of this last development it is to be noted that owing to the large increase in circulation during the past year authorities of the monetary situation are of the opinion that a very moderate advance in interest rates will attract large amounts of capital from all over the country. Discussing stock market brokers say most noteworthy features today were absence of liquidation, the presence of buying orders in nearly all prominent issues, the unmistakable signs of a very large uncovered short interest and noticeable disposition of holders to ignore adverse developments on the theory bad news had been discounted. The strength of stocks like St. Paul, the Steels, and the Erles they regard as significant.

* * *

Miller to Paine, Webber & Co: The Bank of England rate is unchanged. The most important thing to watch at the moment is the coal situation, but from what we can see, doubt whether there is any strike likely. We think the street has come to the conclusion today that yesterday's selling of Pennsylvania was spectacular.

* * *

New York to Paine, Webber & Co.: The Chronicle says: "The Dominion Iron and Steel company is issuing $1,000,000 additional stock. It will be underwritten by the members of the directorate. The slump in the stock precludes present marketing. The money is needed to complete the extensive improvements began a year or two ago and the directors are unwilling to sacrifice the $5,000,000 which has already been spent in improvements."

* * *

Dow-Jones to W. H. Laidley & Co.: W. G. Rockefeller, Stillman and Rogers being down on the books for only 200 shares has created unfavorable impression in Amalgamated. It is known these interests were not interested in the recent advance in Amalgamated and that the entire campaign was run by the Lewisohns. The greatest uncertainty prevails as to the position of the metal in public. The fact that every producer in New York expresses supreme confidence in the situation.

* * *

New York to Paine, Webber & Co.: For the first time in two months the foreign bankers seem to have money to lend for six months at 5 per cent and six months at 5 per cent. We understand considerable has been loaned this week at these figures.

* * *

Ridgley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: Everybody is guessing at the market but after the sharp rally some reaction was natural. A large block of Pennsylvania was sold apparently to weaken the general list. I am of the opinion that market will do better all through this month but the fluctuations are pretty hard to guess. Reports of various commercial purchases of leading stocks are in order whenever they look weak or on drives. St. Paul might not go below 150 then again it might go as low as 148.

* * *

Norton to Paine, Webber & Co.: There was very little recovery early in the afternoon and the market covered early in the week seemed to be putting shorts out again on the failure of the market to respond to attempts to put it up after London export was removed. Atchison common sold off and seemed to lack support from quarters which had hitherto done so. It is not believed Berwind interest has changed position. Selling of Amalgamated Copper was ascribed to Lewisohn interests. Although reported earnings of Manhattan and Brooklyn Rapid Transit report was unanticipated the character of the trading was indicated by fact that both sold off in spite of good showing made. The outside market was weaker. Northern Securities, the active stock, selling down.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, June 4.—The cotton market opened firm at an advance of 30@10 points on cables which were much better than expected. Selling by a Philadelphia spot house, caused a reaction, but the announcement of the agricultural bureaus report resulted in an advance of 60@10 points over the closing figures yesterday. Notwithstanding the official report, the selling by the Philadelphia interest continued heavy until 75,000 to 100,000 bales as estimated had been thrown on the market for this account. All offerings were absorbed, however, and the market returned to about the best prices of the morning.

Cotton spot closed quiet; mid ups 11.50; mid gulf 11.75. Sales 500 bales. Cotton futures closed uiet. June 11.15; July 11.24; August 10.70; Sept., 10.13; Oct., 9.59; November 9.45; Dec., 9.44; Jan., 9.44.

DECLINE IN STOCKS

The Pressure Against Pennsylvania Forced Down Prices.

Any Effort to Force Recovery Brought Out Offerings.

New York, June 4.—The tone of the opening market was feverish and there were heavy dealings in some of the leading stocks. Fifteen hundred shares of Pennsylvania sold at an advance of ⅛ over last night, but the price ran off ½ on offerings of thousand share blocks and upwards. A thousand shares of St. Paul sold at an advance of ¼, but the gain was immediately lost. There were sales of 4800 shares of United States Steel at 31⅞, compared with 32 last night. Otherwise the active stocks showed fractional declines except for the Canadian group which was inclined to advance. Twin City Rapid Transit rose over a point.

Pressure against the market ceased when support appeared for St. Paul and Pennsylvania and prices rallied to yesterday's level. The market then became feverish and reacted following large sales of Amalgamated. That stock went below 50, losing 2⅜ and other leaders sagged to the low point. Trading was heavy in Pennsylvania and a few of the transcontinentals but the general volume of business was small. Pennsylvania was freely sold on advances which kept the market unsettled. United States Steel preferred was notably firm as were also the second mortgage 5s. The pressure against Pennsylvania which touched 125⅛, a new low record, on the movement, undermined the market and the leading trunk lines and Pacifics fell a point or more below last night. Minneapolis & St. Louis dropped 4 and Northwestern 4½. Amalgamated Copper was forced down 2 by large selling. Sugar declined 1 and other specialties a point or more. The market dragged and became dull at noon. Bonds were irregular at noon.

Traders returned to the attack on the general market when the selling movement broke out again in copper and Pennsylvania. The large sales of stocks for which there was no apparent support disturbed holders of stocks and free sales were made in the general list. Amalgamated dropped to 51 and Pennsylvania touched 124⅝. Large inroads were made on the prices of various other stocks, especially St. Paul and some of the coalers. Union Pacific and Atchison lost 1⅜. Occasional pauses were made in the selling campaign but any effort to force a recovery speedily brought out fresh offerings and prices fell to a lower level than before. The pressure was largely concentrated against Copper, Pennsylvania, St. Paul, Atchison and the Pacifics were also pressed at intervals. Later in the day losses had been made of 3¼ in Amalgamated, 2 in Union Pacific, Southern Pacific and Delaware & Hudson, 1¾ in St. Paul and Atchison and 1 to 1½ quite generally elsewhere. Northwestern was down 6¾ in all. Twin City relapsed to 1¼ under last night.

Amalgamated rallied nearly a point, but recoveries elsewhere were insignificant before last night's figures that Amalgamated fell 5, St. Paul over 2, New York Central 1¾, Rock Island preferred 2¾ and some other stocks lower than before. Pennsylvania met vigorous support as it approached 124, but it broke through to 123¾and the whole market turned weaker in sympathy. Soo preferred was bid up 4¾ over last night before meeting any offering had been reacted 2. St. Louis Southwestern broke 4¾ with a rally of 2¾. Consolidated Gas 3, Brooklyn Union Gas 4 and General Electric 2½. The flurry in the call money market aggravated the weakness. The close was active and weak.

New York to Paine, Webber & Co.: The Chronicle says: "A high official of the St. Paul road yesterday denied positively that the directors had disposed of any of their $25,000,000 stock issue authorized by the stockholders last fall. He said that some of the stock probably would be issued later in the year but just when the issue would be or what its amount would be he was unable to state. He also said he had no reason to believe that any of the interests identified with the St. Paul had purchased large amounts of Erie for the account of St. Paul road."

IN MARINE CIRCLES

Smaller Vessels Said to Having Good Chance This Season.

Steamer Leonard Is Out of Dry Dock—Tug Crosby Sold.

Shippers say that for the first time in many years the smaller vessels on the lakes have a chance to make money for their owners.

Masters complain that the wages of crews are eating up the profits, but they are busy. Several of the steamers have contracts that will keep them busy until ice comes in the fall and shippers are chartering everything that can carry coal. The big vessels are experiencing numerous and lengthy delays in loading, but the smaller vessels can slip in and secure a cargo between meals.

The freight blockade on the railroads is favoring the smaller vessels that draw ten feet or less. The smaller way ports that formerly depended entirely on the railroads for their supplies of coal are receiving their coal this year by the lake and rail route. All of this business must be handled by the smaller boats as the larger craft cannot enter the shallow harbors.

"The man who is lucky enough to own a fleet of these little fellows is making money nowadays," said a prominent marine man. "They don't have to wait for cargoes and are never delayed at unloading ports as they only ply between the places where the larger ships are unable to enter, consequently there is never a string of boats ahead of them waiting to be relieved of their cargoes."

The present condition of affairs, however, where the smaller vessels are holding their own with the big freighters, is said by marine men not to be abnormal and due to circumstances that are liable to change at any time. The tendency all is to transact a vast amount of business on small profits and under such condition both the small owner and the small vessel must suffer. In a year of sharp competition the smaller vessel and the small owner would not be able to compete against the greater economies which the larger vessels and large companies could observe. The fleet of the steel corporation would thrive under a rate which would be ruinous to a smaller company.

NOT GOING THIS YEAR.

Local Inspectors Will Not Go to Rainy Lake.

The board of supervising inspectors of the United States steamboat inspection service is in session today at Washington. The meeting is a special one called for the purpose of making certain important changes in the rules of the service.

The meeting will present the local inspection officials, Captains Monaghan and M. F. Chalk from taking their annual trip to the Rainy lake country as the supervising inspector of the Duluth district, who assumes charge of the Duluth office in the absence is in Washington. The inspectors from the Dubuque office will go this year as their places are expected to arrive in Duluth during the latter part of the week, on their way to Rainy Lake. There is a large number of boats this month to be inspected on Rainy Lake this year.

LEONARD REPAIRED.

Repairs to the big freighter George B. Leonard of the United States Transportation company have been completed and she will leave the dry dock at West Superior today.

The Leonard ran ashore in St. Mary's river and damaged a number of her plates. It is said that the total cost of the repairs will be in the neighborhood of $25,000, in addition to which the boat will lose at least two trips.

The Peerless and the Langell will go to the docks today for repairs to their wheels.

BUYS TUG CROSBY.

Capt. John Shea purchased the tug Crosby this morning, paying $1800 cash for the boat. It was formerly the property of Butler Bros., and cost about $4000 originally. The bill of sale was filed at the customs office this forenoon. Capt. Shea is now the owner of the Walter Richardson and Crosby and will use both tugs in a general towing business.

CANAL'S BIGGEST MONTH.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., June 4.—The canal traffic for May broke all previous records. By the official report, out today, the tonnage for

RECEIPTS LARGE

Land Office Earnings Last Month Greatest In Its History.

More Than $53,000 In Fees Taken In During May.

The report of the Duluth land office for May shows the largest cash receipts in the history of the office. A total of over $53,000 was taken in by Receiver Smith in payment for state and timber claims and in fees on homestead entries.

The detailed report for the month is not yet available, but the amount of land disposed of will be proportionate to the receipts.

The largest previous month was March, when the receipts were slightly overd $48,000. November of last year was also a very large month, the receipts being about $45,000. May, however, was the first month to pass the $50,000 mark.

"The receipts do not yet show the effect of the transfer of a portion of the Duluth district to the Cass Lake office," said Register Cutkin, in commenting on the report. "Our cash receipts are made up chiefly from stone and timber proofs and these will continue to be received here for the transferred land until some time in August. No more entries can be made here for the land in the district to be transferred after June 30, but proofs on land that has already been entered will be received here. Consequently our receipts will not show a large falling off until about August, although the entries will, of course, decrease somewhat after the transfer."

The extraordinary volume of business transacted last month is the culmination of a business that has been steadily increasing for the past year. The receipts have crept up from the $20,000 mark, passing the $30,000 and $40,000 marks, and have finally exceeded $50,000.

The clerks and officials at the local office are already commencing to prepare for the transfer, which takes place July 1. The books are being audited and put in shape and everything is expected to be in readiness by the end of the month. This work, together with the immense volume of regular business, is proving almost more than the force of clerks can handle.

H. B. MOORE HERE.

Begins Duties as Secretary of Board of Trade.

H. B. Moore arrived in the city today from Louisiana and assumed his duties as secretary of the Duluth board of trade. Mr. Moore was to have been here Monday morning but was delayed by the floods in the southwest. He was in Kansas city, and to reach Duluth had to go around by St. Louis. The damage in Kansas City from the flood is enormous, he says. Business in the city is practically paralyzed. It is difficult for one to gain an adequate idea of the situation without seeing the results of the deluge.

Mr. Moore has been connected with the lumbering business during his absence in the South. He says the South is making great progress in the lumbering industry, though it is largely through the efforts of Northerners. There are mills all over the South now that compare with any of those in the North, but the old Southern mills are playthings.

ANNUAL MEETING

Of the Chicago & Northwestern Railway.

Chicago, June 4.—The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Chicago & Northwestern Railway company was held today, and among those present were Chauncey M. Depew, H. McK. Twombley, J. C. Fargo, New York; Zenas Crane, Dalton, Mass., and David P. Kimball, Boston. The annual statement submitted to the stockholders showed gross earnings for the year of $50,041,18, with operating expenses, taxes, interest, etc., amounting to $35,246,314. The surplus for the year over all charges (land incomes not included) was $519,502.

Prior to the meeting of the stockholders there was a meeting of the directors, at which a quarterly dividend of 2 per cent on the preferred and a half yearly dividend of 3½ per cent on the the common stock, payable July to stockholders of record June 10.

PEACE IN COLOMBIA.

Decree Declares Public Order Has Been Restored.

Washington, June 4.—A cablegram received at the state department from United States Minister Beaupre, at Bogota, dated June 1, reads: "A decree issued today declares public order restored through the nation."

This announcement is believed to have an important bearing upon the pending canal treaty, for it is supposed to indicate the suspension of martial law and the removal of the constitutional objections to the assembling of the Colombian congress under other than peace conditions. The officials feel that this would not be done were not the Colombian officials reasonably confident of their ability to carry through congress their program relative to the canal treaty.

SCALE ARRANGED.

Steel Company and Men Agree on Differences.

Pittsburg, June 4.—The wage scale conference of officials of the American Sheet Steel company and representatives of the Amalgamated Association of iron, steel and tinplate workers, which opened here yesterday has resulted in an amicable adjustment of all the differences between the manufacturers and workers. Both sides were reticent on the basis of the agreement, but it is understood that the men were granted the 15 per cent advance decided upon at the recent convention of the association. The settlement of the scale means continued work in the sheet mills of the country for the ensuing year.

THE MILLERS

Hear Addresses By British Flour Representatives.

Detroit, June 4.—Two representatives from the British flour market addressed the convention of the Millers' National federation at the forenoon session today, pointing out several conditions which they declared American millers should remedy.

Dr. J. A. Wesener, of Chicago, read a paper on Wheat Mixing, as Related to Yield and Quality of Flour," and C. M. Friend, president of the Fraternity of Operative Millers, made a brief address.

TWO DROWNED

In the Lagoon at Jackson Park, Chicago.

Chicago, June 4.—Jesse Miller and a young woman, as yet unidentified, but believed to have been a student at the University of Chicago, were drowned in the lagoon at Jackson park today. Whether the double drowning was suicide or not the police have not been able to learn. In a memorandum book in the clothing of the dead man was the following: "If anything happens to me notify Ira Miller or Sophia Cass, 1636 M street, Lincoln, Neb."

BITTEN BY A HORSE.

New York, June 4.—Jockey Bullman was attacked by his trotting horse Ravanna today and perhaps fatally injured. It was found that a big piece had been bitten out of the boy's left side and that the teeth of the horse had lacerated his chest and left shoulder. One of his ribs is broken and it is feared that he has sustained internal injuries.

LICENSES ASKED

Annual Rush For City Saloon License Is Now On.

Temperance and Saloon People Working Against An Increase.

The city clerk's office is being deluged with the annual rush of saloon license applications.

It is estimated that on July 1 saloonkeepers will turn over $60,000 to the city treasury in license money, there being at least sixty applications for renewals and the licenses costing $1000 each.

A singular condition of affairs exists in regard to the liquor license business at this season of the year. The temperance element and saloon element are both watching the application list very conscientiously to prevent any increase in the number of saloons.

It seems like a paradox that these two elements should be working for the same end, but it is a fact—both are working toward the same end, but with vastly different motives.

The temperance element believes that a restriction in the number of saloons reduces the liquor evil to a minimum of danger to society, and urges that if the city grants any more licenses at this time, the liquor traffic as at present constituted, would force some saloons to either close their doors or embark in business not recognized as legitimate.

The saloon people say that any more saloons means a loss financially, and the better class of saloon proprietors use the same argument that the temperance people use, saying there is a certain class of men that would be driven to desperate methods.

THOSE WHO HAVE DIED

Three Well Known Minnesota Men Have Passed Away.

St. Paul, June 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Walter Bowne Boyd, one of the first postmasters in the territory of Minnesota, died last evening at the age of 92 years, at his home in this city.

R. H. Adams, aged 81 years, who was terribly burned on April 15 by a gasoline explosion which killed his housekeeper, Mrs. Ida Hawley, died today after seven weeks of intense suffering. His son was also burned, but has recovered. Adams was a cousin of President John Quincy Adams, whome he visited in the White House, when a small boy.

Nathan Myrick, one of the pioneer settlers of the Northwest, died yesterday aged 80 years. Mr. Myrick was closely identified with early settlement of the Northwest, he laid out the town of La Crosse, Wis., and on removing in 1854 to Minnesota he established a great system of trading posts on the northern frontier, where he carried on an extensive traffic with the Indians.

MACHEN'S CASE

Is Being Considered By the Grand Jury.

Washington, June 4.—The case of August W. Machen, late superintendent of the free delivery service of the postoffice department, who is charged with having received bribes to the amount of $20,000 in connection with department contracts, was presented to the federal grand jury today.

Assistant District Attorney Taggart represented the government. The first witness was Andrew McBath, a chief of division in the office of the auditor for the postoffice, which was under examination for several hours. Inspector Mayo, who worked up the case against Machen, followed McBath. The secrecy with which the names of the witnesses has been surrounded is still maintained.

At 1:15 the grand jury took a recess until 2 o'clock.

After reconvening the grand jury remained in session only ten minutes and adjourned until tomorrow at 10 o'clock.

McCORMICK AT WASHINGTON.

Washington, June 4.—Ambassador McCormick called at the state department today to pay his respects to Secretary Hay. He is on his way to Chicago to attend the marriage of his son to Senator Hanna's daughter. The ambassador made a brief verbal report to the secretary of conditions in Russia, when he left St. Petersburg, and incidentally took occasion to point out that he had been wrongly quoted in a newspaper as saying that Russia intended to remain permenently in Manchuria. The substance of his statement was that Russia had large interests in Manchuria, that she would probably remain in possession as long as the railroad needed protection.

EXPERT TESTIMONY.

Coffee Tried and Found Guilty.

No one who has studies its effects on the human body can deny that coffee is a strong drug and liable to cause all kinds of ills, while Postum is a food drink and a powerful rebuilder that will correct the ills caused by coffee when used steadily in place of coffee.

An expert who has studied the subject says: "I have studied the value of foods and the manufacture of food products from personal investigation, and wish to bear testimony to the wonderful qualities of Postum Cereal Coffee. I was an excessive coffee drinker, although I knew it to be a slow poison. First it affected my nerves and then my heart, but when I once tried Postum I found it easy to give up the coffee, confirmed coffee fiend though I was.

"Postum satisfied my craving for coffee, and since drinking Postum steadily in place of coffee, all my troubles have disappeared and I am again healthy and strong.

"I know that even where coffee is not taken to excess it has bad effects on the constitution in some form or other, and I am convinced by my investigation that the only thing to do if health and happiness are of any value to one is to quit coffee and drink Postum." Name given by Postum company, Battle Creek, Mich.

A WOMAN IS KILLED

A Great Northern Train Fatally Injures Mrs. Edward Chisholm.

Accident Occurred at Brook Park—Is Wife of Section Foreman.

Train No. 32 of the Great Northern road, leaving Duluth at 6:45 a. m. for St. Paul and Minneapolis, ran over and fatally injured Mrs. Edward Chisholm, wife of the section foreman of the road, stationed at Cornell. The accident occurred while the train was passing Brook Park, a small station on the line between here and the Twin Cities.

No details of the accident could be learned from the Great Northern offices at Superior. The only news that had been received there was a brief telegram announcing the death of the woman and stating the mere fact that the accident had occurred.

After the accident the woman was taken on board the train, but she died almost immediately after the train left Brook Park. It was hoped to get her to St. Paul in time to receive medical aid, but death intervened.

The manner in which the accident occurred could not be learned, from the meager details supplied in the telegram from St. Paul. Train No. 32 stops at Brook Park, and as the accident occurred not far from the station, it is likely that the train was running at a reduced rate of speed.

OMAHA MEN GET INCREASE

New Schedule of Wages For Train and Yard Men.

St. Paul, June 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—General Superintendent Winter, of the Omaha railroad, has announced that effective last Monday a new schedule of wages will be in effect for all train and yard men. The action of the company is practically voluntary.

The new scale of wages is practically the same as that granted by the Northern Pacific and Great Northern. The bulletin also announces that wages in freight service will be increased 15 per cent over present rates and in passenger service 12½ per cent. There will also be an increase of 15 per cent in switching service. It is understood that the same rates of increase will obtain over all the Northwestern lines.

JUDGE SUMMERS

Nominated For Supreme Judge of Ohio.

Columbus, Ohio, June 4.—In the Republican state convention, for supreme judge, Judge Augustus M. Summers, of Springfield; Judge Jacob F. Burkett, of Findlay; Samuel A. Wildman, of Norwalk; Gen. John M. Sheets, of Ottawa, were named as candidates. Three ballots were taken, and at the end of the third Judge Summers was declared the nominee.

Other nominations were: For school commissioner, Edwin A. Jones, of Massillon; for member of the board of public works, George H. Watkins, of Wakefield, Ohio.

The state committee was authorized to fill all vacancies, the eagle was adopted as the party emblem, and the convention, shortly after 3 o'clock, adjourned sine die.

GAINESVILLE'S LOSS.

Mayor of Storm Swept City Gives Summary.

Gainesville, Ga., June 4.—Mayor Parker of Gainesville today made the following summary of conditions in the storm-swept city, as he sees them:

"The dead will number 125 by the end of the next twenty-four hours. Three hundred is a conservative estimate of the wounded, some of whom will die. Four hundred houses have been destroyed. I estimate the number of homeless at 1500. The financial loss will reach $600,000. There is still need for more physicians."

MENOMINEE WOMAN.

Attempts Her Life By Taking Carbolic Acid.

Menominee, Mich., June 4.—Mrs. S. Francis Sanderson attempted to commit suicide last night by taking carbolic acid, and is unconscious and not expected to live.

About three years ago she secured a divorce from her husband, S. D. Sanderson, a lumberman of this city, in the Milwaukee courts. It is believed she was insane.

TWO VILLAGES BURNED.

Sherman and Crystal, Me., Destroyed By Fire.

Houlton, Me., June 4.—The settlements of Sherman and Crystal have been burned. Sherman has a settlement of 900 and a property valuation of $467,142.

Crystal is a plantation on the Bangor & Aroostook railroad, and with the population of 291 and property valuation of $73,730. At Sherman every building was burned.

EIGHT PEOPLE HURT.

Gas City, Ind., June 4.—Eight people were more or less seriously hurt in a collision at Jonesboro today. A Gas City motor car running between Jonesboro and Marion, and a gravel car on the Union Traction line, both running at high speed, were in collision near Jonesboro at 12:30. The cars met in a

ANNIHILATION OF THE BERRYS

Were Killed By Cowboys For Cutting Wire Fences.

Lincoln, Neb., June 4.—A special to the Star from Superior, Neb., gives the story of the fight at St. Francis, Kas., between the Berry family and some cowboys. Land had been taken up by old man Berry as a homestead. The fences of the cattle company interfering with his passage to and from the roads and wire cutting on the part of the Berry family, in order to get the shortest possible road to town, is said to have been the original cause of the fight. The cowboys on the Dewar ranch had threatened to kill the family.

The fight resulting in the five deaths came after a recent trip of the Berry family to town. The father and four sons were returning to their home. Eight miles from their farm they stopped to cut their way through a wire fence. The cowboys came upon them just as they completed their work. The Berrys mounted quickly and the cowboys fired. The oldest boy, John, was wounded, but stayed in his saddle. The farmers had the freshest mounts and soon were out of accurate rifle range. The cowboys kept up a scattering fusillade of shots.

Arriving home the Berrys did not think they had been pursued all the way and they were in front of the house when the party of cowboys rode up the hill a few yards to the north. The shooting began immediately. Two of the Berry boys were killed before they could reach their rifles. The old man and the other two boys fought inside the house. There were about twenty cowboys and they started on the gallop for the house intending to fire it and burn the defenders out. The old man and the boys attempted to escape from the other side of the house and were shot down in succession. Three of the cowboys were killed by the farmers while they were defending the house.

SHERIFF REMOVED.

Jackson, Ky., June 4.—The motion to remove Sheriff Callahan was granted and Judge Redwine appointed John Jones. Jones is at present deputy sheriff under Callahan but is the only deputy not objected to by the prosecution. The jury will be drawn from Magoffin county.

PRESBYTERIANS ADJOURN.

Tarkio, Mo., June 4.—The general assembly of the United Presbyterian church of North America, has adjourned. The final day was spent in the discussion of the freedmen work. Addresses were made by Revs. C. H. Johnson of Alabama and J. T. Carter, of Athens, Tenn. The total amount of appropriations made by the assembly during the entire session amounted to over half a million dollars. No city was decided on the next meeting.

THE OLD SIGNOR

By Lawrence Henry.

(Copyright, 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

You never saw Francesca? Ah, she was a dream. She was the most beautiful girl I had ever seen. In a Kirally ballet, too; deuced odd I should find her there, don't you think? She was just coming out of a sea shell, or something or other, when I discovered her. Such insinuating grace and innocence charmed me; but I saw at once she was a novice, for there was in every posture a modest shrinking, while in her deep, black, lustrous eyes burned the stormy fire of innocent maidenhood's outraged sensibilities.

But what a dream of beauty! A form lithe, sinuous, dainty as a nymph's; voluptuous in its tantalizing curves as a Moorish sultana, an ecstasy in every line. Her hair, black as a raven's wing, reached almost to her girdle. A poem of love was her face, for the skin a warm olive, soft, soothing, inviting, while the red coral of her arched lips made the white teeth within glisten like polished ivory. It was, however, in the depths of her magnificent eyes that everything was summed up. Timid at the moment, but with mirrored possibilities unlimited; hate and love, passion and tenderness, intensity and languor—I saw all there, and I—well, I went around behind the scenes.

I knew the stage manager, Duval. Looked him up, and in a casual way, you know, sought some information concerning my maid of the sea shell.

She was on the pay sheet as Francesca Pauli; had made her first appearance only a few nights before; possessed a father, a swarthy, keen-eyed old chap of rather distinguished appearance, whose lowering brow suggested something unpleasant, also a brother, Pietro, not less threatening, possibly more formidable; that both the father and Pietro always most zealously escorted Francesca to and from the theater.

I thanked Duval, but as I was leaving him he cried after me: "Look out, old man; I know you're dead game, but it's dangerous! Those dagos don't play lawn tennis."

After a brief search I found my sweet enchantress in a recess between some stage trumpery, apparently trying to evade the attentions of an overgrown lout of a fellow, who, with greasy leers, was trying to do the gallant. As I stepped up I chanced to hear his last remark, and I knocked him down.

"Oh, signor!" she murmured, "you have my gratitude!" and her voice was like the chords of a harp.

"Ah, you speak English!" I eagerly responded.

"Oh, yes. Pietro and I do, but poor papa not so well. Ah, but aren't you afraid that fellow will come back?"

She came close to me, forgot the fleshings, her bare neck and arms; as she turned her troubled face up to mine I caught the incense of her breath. I could hardly resist the impulse to grasp her in my arms and press her to my heart.

Ah, those women from that far-off sunny land! They learn things in the nursery that some women never know.

"Oh, you must not spoil it all now," she gently cooed, as she shyly backed away. Then she seemed to remember the scantiness of her attire, for, glancing down at herself, a reddish glow mixed with the olive of her cheeks, the long lashes of her eyes fluttered without lifting. Hesitating a moment, she suddenly, like a startled fawn, glided by me and disappeared in the wings. As she passed a low-keyed, breathless sentence quivered to my ears:

"I am to be here every night."

After that I managed to see Francesca often, always at the theater, however, and always with the certainty that at the last drop of the curtain the old Italian and Pietro, the son, were on hand to appear. This was awkward, of course.

I remember an occasion, after my sweet, palpably little divinity and I had reached terms of excellent understanding, that the signor suddenly appeared before me as I was entering the theater. In tones vibrant with emotion he startled me with "Ze wants to marry Francesca?"

For a moment I was nonplussed and stared blankly at him, then all at once the humor of the thing struck me—me want to marry—and from the corps de ballet! I could not repress a smile.

"Looka out, signor!" he hissed. "Ze life at stake in zissa play. Zis not ze heart of ze card, but ze woman's heart."

Darting at me a venomous look from eyes that seemed to turn green like a cat's, he lost himself in the crowd.

Well, to cut it short, one night the old signor and the faithful Pietro came to the theater for their Francesca, and she was gone. She was not theirs any more. I heard afterward of the awful row they raised. Pietro was for everybody's blood, while the old man sobbed and tore his hair, and muttered vows of vengeance—but they returned home alone.

I thought I had been loved before I met Francesca. Bah! One don't know how deluded that a claret is until he sips champagne! Love once blossomed to her was the breath of life; it mixed with her blood, tingled in the caress of her fingers, burned in the touch of her lips.

It was not many weeks after we were established that I became aware when down town I was being shadowed. Once I caught a glimpse of Pietro's menacing face as I suddenly redoubled my tracks.

One afternoon Francesca and I were returning from a little expedition of our own. As the cab rounded the corner to the entrance of our apartment building, she joyously exclaimed: "Oh, there is Pietro. I will tell him!"

But Pietro wasn't there when she finished her sentence. He darted into a nearby court and was to be seen no more. Francesca was visibly annoyed. That evening she pleaded with me to remain at home, but I had a special engagement. As I went out I cautioned the night porter to let no one disturb her.

I had previously ordered a carriage, it was waiting at the curb. I stepped forward, and, stooping over, pulled open the door. That instant a pair of long, bony hands pushed through the aperture and clutched me by the throat. With a strength that seemed to be Herculean I was dragged inside, bound hand and foot, and gagged.

"Maledetto!" exclaimed the one with the fingers in a guttural snarl, and I recognized the voice of the old signor. The other was Pietro. The latter slid out, climbed to the box and lashed the horses into a gallop.

I tried to cry out, but with the gag I was dumb. Fancy my state of mind.

Finally we brought up before a forbidding-looking house in a narrow, deserted street, and I was lifted to the curb. The horses were given their heads, and as they wandered aimlessly away into the night I was roughly seized, carried in through a dark hallway, down a narrow passage to a squalid, dingy room, where I was deposited on the floor. Pietro locked the door after us, then said something to the signor in Italian that made the old man growl with fiendish approval. The latter, turning to me with a sardonic leer, muttered: "Make happy ze moments; it ees few." Both went out through another door, and I heard the bolt slide into place.

They were going to murder me and do it with diabolical finesse.

I was given the tortures of anticipation while they leisurely discussed the method. My thoughts wouldn't come cohesively for my brain grew soggy and obstinate and refused to comprehend.

All at once, as if struck with a blow, Francesca came into my head. Francesca! I could see her at home, tucked in her dainty bed, her beautiful face nestled softly against the pillow.

But the bolt clicked, the door opened and my executioners had returned. With stealthy, catlike movements they approached me; I was helped to my feet and placed upright in an angle of the room. Pietro glided back, leaving the old signor standing before me; his hard, rigid face set; in his eyes the cold, sinister gleam of pent-up hate and ferocity.

Facing me, and assuming the dignity of a Roman judge, he proceeded in a solemn, vibrating voice: "No man can leeve who deeshonor ze name Pauli. Francesca, my honor, my love, ze steal! Today she ze meestris, tomorrow worse. Ze play ze game—ze lose. I kill you."

Leaning forward with a convulsive tremor, I thought he was going to plunge the blade into my heart. How I strained for speech—but the gag; I was dumb. Ah, why did he not strike! I was dying a thousand deaths.

For an instant there was the stillness of the tomb, then the rumbling wheels of a carriage sounded from without. Suddenly this stopped, a voice called "Whoa!" Then the pattering of fast moving feet in the passageway; somebody violently grasped the knob of the door to the room—it would not open.

The signor and Pietro stood breathless, transfixed.

A key scraped in the lock, the door flung back; on the threshold stood Francesca. "Matre di Dio!" hoarsely breathed the old man.

Francesca, scantily attired, hair dishevelled, her eyes ablaze with a feverish glow, her cheeks whiter than alabaster.

My heart gave a great throb of joy.

A moment's hesitation, and she grasped the meaning of the scene before her in one overwhelming impulse. With a heart-rending cry of anguish she leaped forward, seized the signor's hand, and fell on her knees before him.

"Father! father! For the love of Jesus spare him! Kill me—no, wait! See what I have got! Wait, father; that's a good father!" She fumbled in her bosom and drew forth a paper. "There, father, see; he's my love, my life!"

"Black child; zee ses my deeshonor; I kill him!" he replied, as he spurned her from him.

Frantic with alarm, she rushed up to Pietro. "Pietro, my brother, you love me—see, read; I am his wife."

Pietro took the paper reluctantly, glanced at it skeptically, suddenly gave a start and read eagerly.

"Father! father!" he almost screamed. "Come—look; it is a marriage certificate!"

With a hurried stride the old man was at his side. They examined the document with almost frenzied cunning. In low, quick tones they discussed its import. Pietro, well versed in English, seemed satisfied, and was explaining to the father.

Meanwhile Francesca had not been idle; the old man in the flurry had dropped his stiletto. She secured it, and in a twinkling my bonds were cut and she was smothering my face with the sweetest kisses mortal man ever welcomed.

Well, I guess you can figure out the rest. They were satisfied the marriage certificate was all right, and it was. You remember I told you Francesca and I had returned from a little expedition of our own that afternoon. It was then we were married.
